PROSPERITY.

BUSINESS BOOMING.

Country Recovering from Panic.

Certainty of Taft's Election Gives Optimistic Tone to Work.

Bryan's Nomination Has No Bad Effect; No One Concedes Victory.

Many Men Back on Payrolls and Employers Plan for Big Year.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Business interests of all kinds in the East are moving rapidly toward the normal condition. The revival assumed a pronounced character immediately after the close of the Chicago convention.

The nomination of Bryan, whose election would be considered most deplorable from a business standpoint, has no depressing effect, because it had been expected and fully discounted. His election is not conceded by any business man.

The tone today in New York is most optimistic, because Taft's election is considered a certainty, and already plans are being laid for heavy manufactures, large sales and overtime wages for every working man.

PAY ROLLS GROW.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In September and August of 1907 the daily pay roll made up in the Pittsburgh banks aggregated $1,000,000.

In February, March and April of 1908 the pay roll made up in Pittsburgh proper had dwindled to $300,000 a day in some instances, and it has gradually increased from this figure until the figures for June and July of 1908 approximate $650,000 a day.

It is figured out by the best financial authorities of the city that by next November Pittsburgh's pay roll will again be on the million dollar a day basis.

RELY ON TAFT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] New Orleans business outlook is better now than it has been for many months.

The Hibernian Bank and Trust Company furnishes an excellent illustration of the improvement of the financial condition in its statement that the last six months' business was the best in its history.

Business men here feel the nomination of Bryan insures the election of Taft. Anti-Bryan sentiment here is not only strong, but bitter, in financial circles

Hundreds of Democratic New Orleans business men will vote for Taft.

BACK TO NORMAL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The volume of trade in the territory of which Kansas City is the center is practically in as good shape as it was a year ago.

What change there has been has resulted from local rather than from national conditions.

BUSINESS BOOMING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Baldwin Locomotive Works, Cramps's ship yard and other big industrial plants where thousands are employed, all report a healthier business state and the concerns' heads are almost unanimously optimistic in tone.

They declare that they believe things are rapidly on the mend.

After long idleness the great Dobson mills, giving employment to about 5000 persons, have started again and several others are preparing to follow suit.

MEN BACK AT WORK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MILWAUKEE, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to President Walter H. Whiteside of the Allis-Chalmers Company, the biggest individual ironworking concern in the city, the orders received during June show an increase of 30 to 50 per cent. over those of May and the plant is now running at about 70 per cent. of normal.

The Thomas Furnace Company has resumed full force. The Milwaukee railroad shops, which cut the force to 1500 men in October, are now working nearly the full complement of 5000 men on cars and locomotives for the Pacific Coast extension.

All of the orders for cars are rush, and the shops are expected to turn out about $1,500,000 worth of locomotives alone before winter.

CINCINNATI IMPROVES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CINCINNATI, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A considerable improvement is reported in all trade and manufacturing circles here. The clothing industry—one of the largest in the city—and the dry goods and shoe industries are working about normal time and help, and are anticipating heavy fall trade.

In these line. much business is expected to develop to restock the country merchants who trod carefully during the panic.

The machine, tool and other lines of metal work are operating their plants at about 65 per cent. of capacity.

MASQUERADES AS A BOY.

Works in Dining Car Several Months Before Sex Is Discovered.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OMAHA (Neb.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Unhappy home relations led Melwood Kemmaster, a 17-year-old San Francisco maiden, to seek employment on a dining-car dressed as a boy. A few days ago the runaway was arrested in Omaha on a charge of vagrancy.

Today, the police judge, after she had admitted his guess was correct, told her to assume her own attire and return to her home. Melwood told the judge she had planned for months to escape from conditions at her home which she said were irksome. She applied for a position on a dining-car and was accepted, and it was several months before her sex was discovered. Then she was dropped from the pay roll and from the train.

Discouraged and penitent, the girl broke down and told the judge she was willing to go back home.

DISGRUNTLED.

NAVAJOES ARE THREATENING.

LIABLE TO GO ON WARPATH AT ANY MINUTE.

Are Restive Under Strict Federal Laws, and Object Particularly to Government's Ruling That Braves Must Limit Themselves to One Wife Apiece.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With five troops of the Fifth Cavalry in the field, with two Maxim guns, trouble is expected any minute with the Navajo Indians, who are uprising in New Mexico over strict Federal laws and a ruling of the government, prohibiting Indians to have more than one wife, says a special from Gallup, New Mexico, near the Navajo reservation.

Two troops are out from Fort Wingate, one from Fort Whipple, one from Fort Apache, and another from Fort Huachuca, all heavily armed, and with plenty of ammunition for the two field pieces.

Another special from Bisbee, Ariz., confirms the departure of the troop from Fort Huachuca, on July 8, trouble having been expected as early as that date, although the commanding officer has been reticent, and now, the special says, declines to make a statement. The Fort Huachuca troops are in command of Second Lieut. Dockery, and are headed for Fort Wingate, close to the reservation.

Details are meager, but other troops are being held in readiness for marching orders in case the number of armed Indians is larger and the trouble greater than is anticipated.

TERRIFIC.

CAUGHT IN A FIERCE STORM.

MRS. LONGWORTH'S PARTY IN MIDST OF LIGHTNING.

Notables Delayed on Pike's Peak by Electrical Gale Which Rages in Almost Unparalleled Fury—Cloudburst Holds Visitors at the Summit of the Mountain.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

COLORADO SPRINGS (Colo.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Alice Nicholas Longworth and party, including her husband, Congressman Longworth, Mr. and Mrs. Medill McCormick, Norman Hapgood and W. B. Conner, were caught in a frightful electrical storm on Pike's Peak this morning.

The storm broke as they neared the timber line and raged with almost unparalleled fury as the cog-train pushed on to the summit. The lightning played about the party with terrifying display.

The party was obliged to stay on top of the peak longer than anticipated, as the storm continued for several hours.

The trip up the peak was the first outing planned for the distinguished visitors in the Pike's Peak region. The party reached Colorado Springs last evening from Denver, where they had been attending the National Democratic Convention, and the start up the peak was made at 8:25 this morning by special cog-train.

The visitors had planned to return to Colorado Springs at noon, but the fierceness of the electrical storm, which was accompanied by torrential rains, forced them to remain at the summit until late in the afternoon.

The storm followed an almost unprecedented drought, and reached the proportions of a cloudburst in Ute Pass, west of Manitou.

BISHOP HOLDS HIS OWN.

COOPERSTOWN (N. Y.) July 11.—Bishop Henry C. Potter, who has been making no progress toward recovery for the past few days, has had a comfortable day and his physicians report that if any change has taken place it is in the direction of improvement. The greatest anxiety is felt as to his general condition.

REVOLUTION.

NICARAGUA PROTESTS.

Sues Neighbors for Damages.

Accuses Salvador and Guatemala of Aiding Revolutionists.

First Complaint Lodged With Central American Court of Justice.

Washington in Anxiety as to Result—Situation Most Serious.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MANAGUA (Nicaragua) July 11.—The Nicaraguan government has presented a complaint to the Central American Court of Justice, located at Cartago, Costa Rica, based upon the allegation that the governments of Guatemala and Salvador have rendered assistance to the revolutionists of Honduras and the Nicaragua refugees who are allied with them.

This fact, the Nicaraguan government alleges, menaces the peace of the Nicaraguan republic. President Zelaya is organizing an army to protect the Nicaraguan frontier, and his action to this end receives the support of the people of the country.

A request has been sent in from Porto Cortez, Honduras, for Mexican warships to protect Mexican interests. The Honduran government is said here to have irrefutable proof of its allegations that the governments of Salvador and Guatemala have given aid to the revolutionists in Honduras.

FIERCE FIGHTING AHEAD.

There is reason to believe serious engagements soon will occur, and that the fighting will be desperate.

The rebels have captured the towns of Nacoane and Bien, and Santa Rosa and Copan are menaced. The revolutionists have been almost uniformly victorious.

Nicaragua is fearful of the outcome of the movement in Honduras, for there is reason to believe that the plan of the allies is first to establish a joint government in Honduras as soon as Davila is driven out, and then to advance upon and overthrow the Zelaya government in this republic.

WASHINGTON ON WATCH.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Great interest was manifested at the State Department and in the Central American diplomatic colony in the news that Honduras had instituted suit before the Central American Court of Justice, against Salvador and Guatemala, charging them with promoting the Honduran revolution.

It is the first suit of that character brought before the court and the outcome will be watched closely, involving, as it must, the question whether a regularly constituted government can be civilly held for damages for acts committed by any of its subjects against another with which the government sued may be at peace.

While the treaties agreed upon by conference last year contemplated reference to the court of disputed questions it was hardly expected that the very first issue would be of the character which now has been submitted to the tribunal. The institution of a general peace court has been dear to the hearts of Secretary Root and the Mexican government.

STRIVE FOR PEACE.

Salvador and Guatemala, both through their diplomatic representatives in Washington, have declared their absolute neutrality in the present uprising in Honduras.

The efforts of Mexico and the United States are being exerted in every way to prevent violations of neutrality by any of the Central American countries.

One report which has reached the State Department was that there was an invasion of Honduras territory by Guatemala, but the American Consul at Porto Cortez, who is in communication with the legation at Guatemala City, has not confirmed it.

Nicaragua declares that whatever action may be taken is entirely for the purpose of patrolling its own coasts and that it has no ulterior designs against Honduras; while Salvador, according to advices which have just reached the State Department, has arrested both Hondurans and Salvadoreans, who are believed to be implicated in the uprising against Honduras.

The American government has a consular agent at Amapala, William Hayden. Curiously enough, he is a Venezuelan by birth, but was appointed to his present position from Honduras.

FORTUNE TO CHARITY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] By the will of the late Caroline Stannard Tilton, filed in court today, the sum of $1000 is left to one of her godchildren, Francis Kirby Smith Wade, of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Tilton had a number of godchildren, most of them in this city, and to each one she left a handsome remembrance.

Her immense estate was practically all left to charity and $20,000 is given, in one case, as a nucleus for a new Protestant Episcopal church in this city.

Americans in Paris Flock to See the Wonderful Flying Machine With Which the Inventor Will Give Exhibitions in America—He Calls It the "Flying Fish."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Henry Farman, practicing with his new aëroplane, which he means to take to America, attracted a big crowd of Parisians to the level plain today. They covered the small hills which surround the level plain and remained until even the twilight was completely gone.

M. Farman desires to embody the results of his experience in the new flying fish, as the machine is called, so he is going slow in its construction, but he makes almost daily flights for the purpose of testing one part or another.

The framework of the craft is elongated and has ten flat wings, five on each side. They are arranged on a descending plane, those in front being more than a yard higher than those in the rear. The wings are movable and under the control of the steering wheel. Thus the new machine differs in many respects from the old one not only in shape but in flexibility and ease of evolution. It is twenty-two yards in length, weighs about a ton and is propelled by a 100 horse-power motor.

M. Farman is not at all worried over the outcome of these changes. He says they only embody a little more elaborately the simple principle of the old form but he will test the machine thoroughly before he takes it to the United States.

His tremendous workshop on the outskirts of Paris in which the curious fish-shaped air vehicle now rests on props, is the mecca of hundreds of Americans who, however, rarely get farther than the door.

Though the contracts have not been entirely arranged, it is understood that M. Farman will get $6000 or $7000 for an indefinite number of flights. It was expected that he would receive more but being uncertain as to how the enterprise would succeed in America the backers of the scheme were unable to make a higher bid.

TO BUILD AIR NAVY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERLIN, July 11.—According to a local news agency, an "air navy" league is being formed in Germany. The articles of the association declare the object of the league to be promotion of a big imperial dirigible air navy and the construction of numerous airships for excursions and commercial enterprises, which, in the event of hostilities, would be turned over to the government as auxiliaries to the regular fighting navy of the air.

According to the same agency, a company called the "Zeppelin Company," is about to be formed, with a capital of $2,000,000, to undertake popular dirigible airship excursions to Switzerland and the scenic and mountain resorts of Germany and Bavaria.

TAKEN FROM SARCOPHAGUS.

Democrats Rescue "On the Banks of the Wabash," Which Will be Campaign Song.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER (Colo.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Back to the sarcophagus of dead and forgotten ditties the Democratic party has gone for its campaign hymn this year. It has dragged from the tomb "On the Banks of the Wabash," a song that was embalmed ten years ago and laid away after a season of great popularity.

The nomination of Kern of Indiana has brought all this about. When the cowboy band, yesterday dragged the old song from it swrapping and dusted off the myrrh and aloes, the crowd recognized an old favorite in the musical mummy.

Today a Denver music house placed an order for 100,000 copies of the old song. From the dust covered shelves in back rooms of music houses, stacks of the defunct ditty were dragged forth and placed on the counters.

RESOURCEFUL.

OPENS WINDPIPE WITH PENKNIFE.

SURGEON'S PROMPT ACTION SAVES LIFE OF PATIENT.

Had No Time to Secure Proper Instruments When He Saw Man Was Choking to Death, So He Resorted to Crude Methods and Rescued Patient from Death.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] By a wonderful display of resourcefulness, Dr. Bernard Rosen, a young surgeon in Lebanon Hospital, early this morning snatched Charles Schwarz, a patient, from the very jaws of death.

With a penknife the surgeon performed the operation of tracheotomy on the man, whom he accidentally found gasping feebly for breath.

This morning at 3 o'clock, Dr. Rosen happened to pass through the ward where Schwarz is. He detected a choking sound coming from some one in the ward, and he soon discovered that Schwarz was near death.

Dr. Rosen realized that unless the patient could get air to his lungs in a very short time, that he would choke to death. There was no time to call for aid or secure the proper surgical instruments, so he took a small penknife fom his pocket, and, dipping it in the antiseptic solution beside the bed, cut into the left side of the patient's neck, and then made an incision in the windpipe.

MRS. LEITER DENIES ROW.

Says Stories of Trouble With Lord Curzon Are Hallucinations of Revenge-Crazed Mind.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Mary L. Leiter, before being named today in a second suit for salary in arrears claimed by Hugh Crabbe, former manager of the Leiter estate, declared that his first suit, nonsuited before Judge Heap, was nothing more than an attempt at extortion by a distinguished hireling, cut from the pay roll of the estate because of his insolence and inebriety. Crabbe's claims she characterized as hallucinations of a revenge-crazed mind.

"Now as for the story he tells of Lord Curzon coming here to investigate my son's management of the estate, it is ridiculous. Lord Curzon and myself, as well as other members of the family, are on the best of terms and have been for years. There has never been slightest question between Lord Curzon and any of us as to the management of the estate. That is simply a hallucination."

SIZZLING.

FOUR CHICAGOANS DIE IN BLISTERING HEAT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chicago sizzled and suffered anew on this, the hottest day, officially, since 1901.

Old Sol stared the big city squarely in the face with blistering and fatal effect and the mercury soared above the 90 mark.

At 2:30 p.m. the sun's hypnotic ogling had forced the temperature to 95 and the city's famed lake breeze gave not a rustle of encouragement. Four deaths and thirty-seven prostrations were reported and distress prevailed among thousands.

In the loop district every section of shadow was utilized by the heated pedestrians. The streets spanned by the elevated structures were sought as offering the greatest amount of protection from the burning sunbeams.

By 2 p.m. this year's record was broken the metal liquid reaching the 94 deg. mark.

At 3 p.m., under the blistering rays of the sun, the mercury reached 96 deg., which is the highest mark reached since July 21, 1901, when it had reached 101 deg.

THREE TIMES AND OUT.

SAILS ARE TRIMMED.

Democrats Seek Any Old Votes.

Net Set for Union Thugs and Socialists, but Bryanites Are Fearful.

Hope to Get Coast but Admit Chance Is Small; East Is Hostile.

Murphy Has Them Worried by Tammany's Indifference at Convention.

BY HARRY C. CARR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OGDEN (Utah) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Nominating Bryan was easy, but the next thing is to elect him.

The last day of the convention several of the men, who will direct his campaign, outlined at my request, the various pipe dreams upon which they base their hopes of making the "Peerless One" President.

Mainly, the theories and prediction here presented are those of Mr. Dahlman, the cowboy Mayor of Omaha, who is to be a sort of campaign manager for Bryan.

Many of the ideas, however, which are not so favorable to Bryan have been confidentially contributed by other men who will have big parts in the coming fight.

It is conceded that Bryan's chances are largely dependent upon the Western States. If a single one fails him, the "Peerless One" will be in danger.

The Asiatic exclusion plank was put in by Bryan in the hope of pleasing California and the other Coast States.

Bryan's Coast managers rely a great deal on an alleged change of popular sentiment. They say the man in the street car talks favorably of Bryan in California.

BANK ON REPUBLICANS.

In a way the Coast managers hope to gain votes for Bryan by touting him as the legitimate successor to President Roosevelt and his policies. They hope to take advantage of the anti-railroad feeling.

They feel that the "Peerless One" made a great mistake in causing the speech of the permanent chairman to be filled with the bitterest abuse of the President.

One of the best-informed Bryan men in California told me, however, that Taft will not carry our State. He said Bryan will scare the California Republicans into a blue funk, but can't carry the State.

States like Montana and Idaho will be caught, the Bryan men hope, by the anti-injunction plank, and by the use of men like the "priest and prophet of those who toil, Raymond Robbins."

As Oklahoma is in the control of the sagebrush socialists, who wrote the platform, it is fair to assume that Bryan will win in the youngest and noisiest State.

After he leaves the wild and woolly, Bryan's managers begin to get careworn.

ANXIOUS FOR LINCOLN.

Dahlman swears he is going to carry Nebraska for Bryan. The Republican party has had a few domestic troubles in that State, but Dahlman says he does not rely on that. He believes that Nebraska has begun to feel a belated personal pride in Bryan. The "Peerless One" is frankly very anxious over carrying his own city, Lincoln. It is a fact that the townspeople there feel more cordial toward him than ever before.

Bryan's managers will make a desperate fight to carry Illinois, in spite of his quarrel with Roger Sullivan, the State boss. John Mitchell, the labor boss, is supposed to swing the whole State for him.

The anti-injunction plank and Taft's labor decisions will be worked to the limit in Illinois.

The fact that so many are out of work in Chicago is also a feature upon which the Bryan men place hope. They talk a great deal of the theory that "no administration ever survived a panic." They assert that 2,500,000 are idle in the United States, and that 70 per cent. of them have a vote.

The idle, they say, can always be depended upon to vote against the present order of things.

IOWANS PROMISE.

During the convention, the Iowa Democrats made the most confident pledges to Bryan. To tell the truth, the Bryan men were grateful, but skeptical.

The tariff reform plank is to be dingdonged all over the State of Iowa.

Through Iowa and Wisconsin and other prairie States Bryan relies a lot on the La Follette idea. It is considered that one of the strongest assets of Bryan is the manner in which the La Follette delegation uttered a wild howl of defiance at Chicago, and was promptly squelched.

One of the favorite campaign theories is that "a radical Republican hates a standpatter worse than a Democrat."

The nomination of Kern of Indiana is a bid for the support of that State. Bryan simply must carry Indiana. He relies not only on Kern but on the negro vote and upon the Campbellite or Christian church. Taft is said by the Bryan men to be a Unitarian. This JUSTICE.

STANDS ON HIS RECORD.

Taft Treated Laboring Men With Fairness.

No Favors Not Allowed Capital Shown.

Uniform Justice Found in Judicial Decisions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A formal statement contending that William H. Taft, as a jurist, Governor of the Philippines and in other public positions has treated labor and capital with equal fairness, was issued today by Maj. Beach B. Ray, who came to Chicago to handle the candidate's industrial bureau. The major said that the statement has the indorsement of Mr. Taft, and will be used as a campaign text later.

The statement gives excerpts from decisions of Mr. Taft as judge in labor disputes, extracts from his speeches and other records showing his attitude toward labor.

"There has been considerable criticism and discussion of the injunction record of Judge Taft, but most of it has been a misunderstanding of the real truths in connection with the several cases in question and the misstatement to the effect that as a jurist he imposed unfair conditions upon labor unions, and did not use capital likewise," reads the statement.

"It will be shown that no unfair practices can be charged to him. The earliest and strongest declarations of the rights of labor can be attributed to him; the same law he applied to labor he applied to capital, and in every instance the same uniform fairness can be found in his judicial utterances."

BLOOD NO ASSET.

HAS NO USE FOR PEDIGREE ONLY.

PRESIDENT WANTS MEN WHO CAN DO THINGS.

So Expresses Himself in Address Delivered at Dedication of Monument to Memory of Capt. John Underhill, the Soldier-Statesman of Colonial Times.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

OYSTER BAY (N. Y.) July 11.—To the memory of Capt. John Underhill, who became prominent in the government of the colonies and as a soldier achieved a high reputation in the Pequoit Indian War, a beautiful monument was dedicated today before several hundred of his descendants at Maltencock, L. I. President Roosevelt was at the unveiling of the monument, and made a short address.

The President left his home at Sagamore Hill in an automobile, and made a quick trip to the grounds, arriving there at 4 p.m. His remarks were short, and in half an hour he was on his way back. Dr. Alexander Lambert of New York accompanied him.

President Roosevelt said, in part:

"The founder of the family here was a good soldier and a good citizen, and the Underhills of today have furnished their full quota of good soldiers and good citizens in their time. If they had not, I would not be here. I have no use whatever for the man with nothing but a pedigree—the man the best part of whom is under ground. I believe in the pride of ancestry, but only if it takes the part of making the man or woman carry himself or herself well as regards the duties of today.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY.

"I believe emphatically in doing everything that can be done by law or otherwise to keep the avenues of occupation, of employment, of work, of interest, so open that there shall be, so far as it is humanly possible to achieve it, a measurable equality of opportunity—equality of opportunity for each man to show the stuff that is in him. But when it comes to reward, let him get what by his energy, foresight, intelligence, thrift, and courage he is able to get if the opportunity opens. I don't believe in coddling any one; I would no more permit the strong to oppress the weak than tell a weak man or a vicious man that he ought by right to have the reward due only the man who actually earns it.

"Very properly, we in this country set our faces against privilege, and there can be no grosser example of privilege than that set before us as an ideal by certain socialistic writers—the ideal that every man shall put into the common fund what he can, which would mean what he chose, and should take out whatever he wanted; in other words, this theory is that the man who is vicious and foolish and a drag on the whole community, who contributes less than his share to the common good, should take out what is not his, what he has not earned; that he shall rob his neighbor of what that neighbor has earned. This particular socialistic ideal would be to enthrone privilege in one of its grossest, crudest, most dishonest, most harmful and most unjust forms.

"Equality of opprotunity to render service—yes, I will do everything I can to bring it about. Equality of reward—no, unless there is also equality of service. If the service is equal let the reward be equal; but let the reward depend on the service, and mankind being composed as it is, there will be inequality of service for a long time to come, no matter how great the equality of opportunity may be, and just so long as there is inequality of service, it is eminently desirable that there should be inequality of reward.

"But in securing immeasurable equality of opportunity let us no more be led astray by the doctrinaire advocates of a lawless and destructive individualism than by the doctrinaire advocates of a deadening socialism. As society progresses and grows more complex, it becomes desirable to do many things for the common good by common effort. No empirical line can be laid down as to where and when such common effort by the whole community should supplant or supplement private and individual effort. Each case must be judged on its own merits.

"Similarly, when a private or corporate fortune of vast size is turned to a business use which jeopardizes the welfare of all the small men, then, in the interest of everybody, in the interest of true individualism, the collective and common power of the community must be exercised to control and regulate for the common good this business use of vast wealth, and while doing this, we must make it evident that we frown upon envy and malice exactly as we frown upon arrogance and oppression."

PREFERS INTERESTS OF STAGE TO SOCIETY.

Mrs. Davis Lindenborn, wife of a wealthy New York art dealer, who returns to the footlights declaring society folk drink and gamble too much to suit her.

NEW YORK, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As between the quietness of home and the glare of the footlights, Mrs. Davis Lindenborn, wife of a wealthy art dealer of this city, has chosen the latter. Mr. and Mrs. Lindenborn now are living apart, and, resuming her former professional title of Bertie Martin, she will return to the stage as a member of the chorus of a musical review which, after an opening performance in Atlantic City, is to come to the Casino.

"My former experience on the stage," said Mrs. Lindenborn at the King Edward Hotel yesterday, "was of rather brief duration. I contracted to appear in the chorus of El Capitan when De Wolf Hopper took that comic opera to London. The members of the chorus were asked to go second-class to England. I refused, paid the difference, voyaged first class on the steamer and then brought suit against Mr. Hopper for that difference. I lost the case, however, and returned to New York, where I appeared for three weeks in the Rogers Brothers. On the voyage to Europe I met Mr. Lindenborn, and shortly after my return I again went to London and we were married there eight years ago.

"After our return to New York City, I frequently appeared in society. But society bored me to extinction almost. They drink more in society than I care to, and they gamble, too. I prefer the activities of the stage to bridge and whist and the other so-called diversions of society.

"I am glad to return to the stage because that will give me something to live for and to occupy my time. I have studied music diligently for some years and I hope I have a future ahead of me. Pretty costumes? Oh, yes, very. Tights? Yes, unfortunately, I shall have to wear them in the last act. I shall resume my former name of Bertie, pronounced Bartie, you know—Martin. My real name? Oh, it was Bertha Martin, but I disliked that and adopted Bertie during my schooldays at my old home, at Scranton, Pa."

Mrs. Lindenborn's marriage took place when she was seventeen years old. For many years the Lindenborns lived at No. 45 West Thirty-fourth street. Mr. Lindenborn could not be found at his apartments, but his friends asserted he contemplated no separation proceedings. The wife, too, stated she planned no such step, adding that her husband has granted her a liberal allowance since they mutually agreed upon parting.

LORD CURZON OFFICIATES.

Unveils Medallion at University College.

Is Memorial to His Intellectual Affinity.

Many Thought One Time They Would Marry.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The unveiling today of the medallion in memory of the late Pearl Mary Teresa Craigie at University College, London, derived special interest from the fact that the ceremony was performed by Lord Curzon of Kedleston.

Mrs. Craigie was always a great admirer of Lord Curzon. They had much in common in their outlook on life, and, in fact, were intellectual affinities. When Lord Curzon became a widower it was common gossip in society that if he married again he would marry Mrs. Craigie—forgetting that as a devout Catholic, she could not marry while her divorced husband lived.

The select gathering of the friends of Mrs. Craigie, therefore, listened on this occasion with particular interest to a quotation from the last letter she wrote, addressed to her literary executor, Mgr. Browne, in which she said:

"I have not the smallest wish to marry. Even if I were a widow tomorrow, there is nothing now in marriage which calls me. If I had an illusion or so it might have been different, but I have pulled through the worst years and the supreme difficulties—difficulties of loneliness, and society not the least of them. I don't feel these any more."

Proposition Now Said to Have Been One of His Majesty's Little Jokes—Fatherland Had Nearly Five Million of Them When Census Was Taken in 1900.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There is the highest authority for saying that the Kaiser's hint in his Hamburg speech regarding a tax on bachelors was not meant to be taken so seriously. But it sent a distinct shudder of apprehension through the ranks of Germany's 5,000,000 unmarried men.

They argue that the Kaiser is not given to joking in his speeches, and regard as very real the danger of their being called upon to bear a substantial share of the $122,500,000 new taxes which the imperial government desires to levy.

According to the census of 1900—the latest figures available—4,604,005 males over 20 were then treading the lonely paths of single blessedness, while there were 5,023,126 single women of over 18.

Port au Prince Merchants Marked for Death in Cablegram from Haytian President and Flee to Vessel While Friends Delay Delivery of Order for Execution.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—By the suppression of a telegram ordering their arrest and immediate death as enemies of the government of Hayti, and with only one hour to spare, two merchants of Port Au Prince saved their lives by flight, and are now in New York on their way to Curacao. They are Adolf Valbrune and Dantes Theodule, both of whom arrived here on Prinze Wilhelm IV, of the Royal Dutch West Indies mail service.

Through the influence of friends the men learned on July 4 that an order for their arrest had been issued. The telegram received at Port Au Prince was said to have borne the name of Nord Alexis, President of Hayti, and to have read in part:

"Take the men from their beds and shoot them at once."

Valbrune and Theodule stood high in Haytian circles, and had many friends in the service of the government. Realizing that immediate action was imperative, they conferred with officials who were friendly, and arranged to have the telegram held in the receiving office at Port Au Prince until 2 o'clock in the afternoon of July 4. The Prinze Wilhelm IV was scheduled to steam for New York at 1 o'clock.

Eight of Crew Are Drowned and One Is Killed by Shark When He Had Almost Reached Shore—Four Men Rescued After Being in Water Twelve Hours.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SUEZ, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A government tug has arrived from the Ras Gharib lighthouse with the survivors of the tug Belmore, which foundered at sea. The survivors are Second Officer Robertson, Seaman Campbell and Firemen Callaghan and Hepburn.

Mr. Robertson reports that the Belmore shipped a heavy sea aft, and capsized and foundered twenty miles north of Ras Gharib. Capt. Murchee, Chief Engineer Blue, Second Engineer Gallagher, the mate, Brodie; the steward Oliver, and Firemen Russell and Douglas were drowned. Gray, a seaman, was killed by a shark when close to land, and was buried ashore.

The survivors were in the water twelve hours, and were ultimately saved by the keepers of the lighthouse. All four are in a hospital here under medical treatment.

RECOVERS BODIES OF AMERICANS.

LIEUT. AHERN RETURNING WITH THEM TO MANILA.

Men Were Murdered by Filipino Tribesmen Just Because Their Chief "Felt Like Killing Some One"—Were First Drugged by Fumes of a Plant.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

MANILA, July 11.—The bodies of H. D. Everett, a government forester, and T. R. Wakely, a schoolteacher, who were murdered several weeks ago by tribesmen while on an expedition into the unexplored mountain regions of the Island of Negros, have been recovered by Lieut. Ahern of the constabulary forces after a difficult and dangerous search.

Lieut. Ahern tells of the finding of the bodies in the following telegram which has been received here:

"Am returning with the remains of Everett and Wakely, which we found near their last camp in the Bayaual mountains. At first our guides were apparently afraid to lead us into the mountains of the interior of the island along the route traveled by the two murdered men. Luckily, we at last succeeded in securing guides who were acquainted with Ayhao, the leader of the murderers, and who took us to the last camp of Everett and Wakely.

"Ayhao, it was explained, planned the murder while acting as one of the native guides which were conducting the two white men into the interior of the island. While gambling with the other guides, he drugged the entire party with fumes from a plant. Ayhao and some followers then killed Everett and Wakely and five guides. The only excuse given by Ayhao for murdering the party was that he 'felt like killing some one.'"

Lieut. Ahern and his party found the botanical and other equipment of the two men and also Everett's money. All the villages and the native strongholds in the mountains were abandoned upon the approach of the searching party. Lieut. Ahern stated that he endeavored to capture Ayhao, but was deserted by his guides, ran short of rations, and found the trails so bad and the rivers so swollen that he had to return with his small force.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

HELENA, July 11.—A complaint in intervention was filed in the District Court here yesterday, asking for the dismissal of the case of the Consolidated Gold Mining Company against the Kimberley Montana Gold Mining Company.

The petition alleges that Henry M. Ryan and others so conducted the business of the Kimberley company as to make it apparently insolvent for the purpose of fraudulently foreclosing the interests of a large number of the other stockholders; that Ryan and others incorporated the Consolidated company May 25, 1906, under the laws of the Territory of Arizona, with a capital stock of $10,000,000 in order to obtain possession of the property of the Kimberley company, and then agree to exchange the stock of this company for that of the Consolidated company; that the Kimberley sold about 540,000 shares of its stock at prices from 40 to 75 cents a share, and that the Consolidated, through Ryan and associates, agreed to loan the Kimberley company money to pay off its obligations.

The Kimberley company, it is alleged, at this pretended meeting in Chicago, signified a willingness to be adjudged a bankrupt and notified the Kimberley company, a pretended creditor, to this effect, the purpose being to defeat the rights of the minority stockholders of the Kimberley company.

ENGINEER GAVE NO SIGNAL.

So San Jose Contractor Was Injured in Crossing Accident—Now Sues for Damages.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN JOSE, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As the result of a railroad accident last May, J. W. Batdorf has brought suit against the Southern Pacific for $11,375 damages.

While driving an automobile, Batdorf was struck by a train from Gilroy to San José. The collision completely demolished his machine, and so seriously injured him that he was for two months unable to continue his work as a carpenter and contractor.

In making his complaint, Batdorf says the engineer gave no signal, as the rules require when a train is approaching a crossing, and he had no intimation of the presence of a train until he was struck and carried for a great distance on the front of the engine.

MISS MAY SUTTON WINS.

Appears in Exhibition Match on San Rafael Courts Against Miss Hotchkiss.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN RAFAEL, July 11.—Miss May Sutton appeared on the tennis courts of this city this afternoon for the first time in three years, playing an exhibition match with Miss Hazel Hotchkiss of Berkeley, which proved a decisive victory for Miss Sutton, by scores of 6-1 and 6-2.

Critics who watched the game think Miss Sutton was not in the best of form for the match, though her judgment was perfect. They also credit Miss Hotchkiss with a fine exhibition of skill.

Miss Sutton will be seen in the mixed doubles tomorrow afternoon, playing with Coast Champion Maurice McLaughlin, against her sister, Mrs. [illegible], and Carl Gardner.

TOWN BURNS DOWN. SCHURZ IS IN RUINS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The town of Schurz, on the Southern Pacific, east of Reno, and the junction, where the Rawhide automobile and stage lines meet the railroad, has been completely destroyed by fire.

Only a few expensive buildings stood on the townsite, which has made its growth since the Rawhide boom, yet the loss in these few structures will [illegible] $20,000.

Two Hundred Homeless.

SEATTLE, July 11.—Two hundred persons rendered homeless and eight buildings burned and contents destroyed, causing a loss estimated at $60,000 is the result of a fire starting in a vacant frame house this morning. For more than an hour seven fire companies, aided by fifty-seven men with a hydraulic giant, engaged in sluicing operations on Beacon Hill, worked to save buildings in the neighborhood before the flames were under control. The occupants made homeless are mostly Japanese, although a few negroes and white persons lived in the burned district.

Heirs Contest Davis Will.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—Eastern heirs yesterday began in the Federal Court here a contest of the will of the late Jacob Z. Davis, who left an estate valued at upward of $3,000,000. The new claimants allege that through conspiracy and a false will they have been defrauded out of their share of the estate.

Wireless on Big Hotel.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—Managers of the principal hotels of the country are arranging to install a wireless-message service embracing the entire United States, and far out to sea on each coast. Negotiations have been carried on for some time, and last night the managers of the St. Francis Hotel in this city, announced that they have joined with other hotel managers over the country in the scheme.

Asphyxiated by Gas.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—A man believed to have been Charles F. B. Burns of No. 1705 Fifth street, Oakland, was asphyxiated by gas in a Sutter-street rooming-house last night. His dead body was found today. Both gas jets in the room were turned on.

Withholds Decision.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—United States Circuit Judge E. S. Farrington took the Spring Valley Water Company's injunction suit under advisement today at the conclusion of the argument in rebuttal made by Attorney E. J. McCutchen for the corporation. Judge Farrington will return to his own court in Nevada, and he announced from the bench that he would have the decision entered through Judge Van Fleet.

BIG ENTERPRISE.

SOCORRO TO HAVE SMELTER

GUGGENHEIMS TO BUILD ONE WITHOUT DELAY.

Cost Will Approximate One Hundred Thousand Dollars—Will Be Designed to Handle Ores Produced in That Section of New Mexico. Santa Fe County Booming.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SANTA FE (N. M.) July 8.—The chief interest in the mining industry in New Mexico during the past week centers in the announcement that the Guggenheims have decided to erect at once a mammoth smelter at Socorro, Socorro county, to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000, to handle the ores produced in the mining districts of that section of the Territory.

The smelter is to be built by the Pan-American Smelting and Refining Company, a branch of the Guggenheim syndicate, of which George Smith of Denver is the president. Mr. Smith and other officials were in Socorro this week conferring with a committee of citizens and mining men of that section, and the agreement providing for the immediate erection of the smelter was signed.

According to the proposition made by the mining company, which was accepted by the citizens of Socorro, the latter pledge $10,000 and a site for the smelter. The amount has already been raised, and will be paid over when the smelter is finished and blown in. The promoters, by the terms of the agreement, are required to bring receipted bills, showing everything paid for, to the Socorro Bank, where the $10,000 will be held in escrow.

The new enterprise means a great deal to the mining industry of New Mexico in general, and to the city of Socorro in particular. Smelters there have been talked of many times, and that city is now assured of a modern plant, with a capacity to handle custom ores on a very large scale. It is expected to have the smelter in operation by January 1, 1909.

SANTA FE COUNTY BOOMING.

South Santa Fé county is just now the scene of renewed activity. This district was once the banner gold, silver and copper camp in the Southwest. The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company is pushing development work on rich iron deposits in the vicinity of San Pedro, it having recently acquired control by lease of several thousand acres of mineral land known to contain iron ore in abundance. One hundred men are now at work prospecting, and more are being employed as they can be secured. Large sums are being expended for machinery, etc. A survey is now being run for a branch railroad to connect the camp with the main line of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway, which is twenty miles distant. There is also considerable talk of a smelter being erected at San Pedro by this corporation to treat the ores.

In this district, Denver capitalists recently acquired possession by purchase of some valuable copper and gold claims which are being developed on an extensive scale. Among these is the famous Cash Entry mine, which in years gone by yielded millions in the precious metal, but which because of litigation of long standing was forced to suspend operations. Recently this litigation was settled and the property placed on the market, where it was quickly snapped up by the Denver parties.

"LEMON BATHS" ARE LATEST.

Foreign Royalty and Swagger Set Take Up Fad as Aid to Beauty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The "lemon bath" is the latest summer craze—one likely to achieve much popularity with those who delight in new sensations and have the leisure to pursue them.

"It is a valuable aid to beauty," said a Bond street beauty specialist, "and the custom has been adopted by royalty.

"Queen Wilhelmina of Holland borrowed the idea from the Duch East Indies, and attributes a great deal of the satin-like softness of her skin to the refining and cleansing of the lemon baths in which she has been indulging for some weeks on the advice of the wife of one of her colonial governors."

Dr. Humelbaugh Dentist

This Means You

I will replace all your missing teeth without resorting to a plate (providing you have two or more teeth for a starter.) They are an exact duplicate of nature's own handiwork. The same money you are paying for temporary and inferior dentistry will at this office purchase for you a perfect and permanent mouthful of teeth. An investigation will cost you nothing.

WASHINGTON.

BANKS TAKE THEIR TIME.

Are Not Availing Themselves of New Currency Law.

Those of Washington City Only Have Done So.

Apparently See No Need for Emergency Currency.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Although the Vreeland-Aldrich bill has been in operation a month and a half, Washington is the only city that has a fully organized national currency association, the purpose of which is to enable the banks to take advantage of the clause in the new law providing for the issuance of commercial paper—secured emergency currency. Other cities are at work on the matter, but so many questions have arisen in connection with the attempted organization that but little progress is being made.

Treasury officials are averse to discussing the matter in any phase, holding that it is well to let sleeping dogs lie. They are satisfied with conditions as they are.

The attempt of the New York association to adopt a by-law and get it past Secretary Cortelyou, permitting any member of the proposed organization to withdraw its membership at any time, constitutes the big question before the Secretary of the Treasury. At present the official view of that matter is that permission to withdraw at any time would destroy one of the best provisions in it.

The one best feature is the scrutiny of the affairs of every bank by every other bank in a given association, that scrutiny being compelled by the fact that a certain percentage of every loss that may be sustained by reason of emergency currency issued at the request of the association falls upon all the members of the association.

Not a city, nor a bank has thus far indicated a feeling that an emergency is in sight, wherefore, of course, there have been no applications for permission to take out emergency currency.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS.

To Rush National Forest Work.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—To expedite and economize the work of administering the national forests, the Bureau of Forestry will establish, about October 1, next field headquarters in the West. The clerical force will be somewhat reduced, many being needed to carry on the postponed work in the West. Headquarters of forest districts will not be changed.

Charge d'Affaires Departs.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Señor Veloz Goitica, the retiring Venezuelan chargé d'affaires, left Washington tonight for New York, whence he will sail for Venezuela next week on the first convenient steamer.

Mayor H. A. Schunck, who disappeared recently from Dubuque, Iowa, was found Friday in the Trappist monastery, eighteen miles from there. Troubles in legal and political affairs are assigned as the cause for the official's desire to shun the world.

MADE RIGHT

It Won the Banker.

"At the age of seventeen I was thrown on my own resources," writes the cashier of a Western bank, "and being low in finances I lived at a cheap boarding-house where they served black coffee three times a day.

"At first my very nature rebelled but soon I became accustomed to it, and after a while thought I could not get along without it.

"I worked hard during each school term (I was attending college) and taught country school between times.

"At the end of three years I had finished my course—my nerves, too, and I went back to the farm to rest up. This did me some good, but I kept on drinking coffee, not realizing that it caused my trouble, and later accepted a position in a bank.

"About this time I was married and my acquaintances called me 'Slim.' On the advice of a friend, my wife began to serve Postum and she made it right from the start (boiled it 15 minutes after boiling actually starts.) I liked it and have used it exclusively for three years. I am no longer dubbed slim, my weight has increased 60 pounds and I have nerves to stand any strain without a flinch. And I have increased my salary and my shares of bank stock. I can work 15 hours a day, sleep soundly, and get up feeling like a healthy boy." "There's a Reason."

ALL-BIG-GUN SHIP LAUNCHED.

The South Carolina, Newest Addition to Navy, Christened by Daughter of Governor.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Amid the din of steam whistles ashore and afloat and the cheering of thousands of persons assembled to witness the event, the "all big gun" battleship South Carolina was launched at 12:05 p.m. today at Cramps ship yard on the Delaware River.

As the latest addition to the American navy slipped into the water Miss Frederick Calvert Ansel, daughter of Gov. Ansel of South Carolina, broke the traditional bottle of wine against the prow of the great hull and gave the big sea fighter its name. Surrounding the pretty girl stood a group, including her father and his military staff, many officials of the Navy Department, the commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard, officials of the city, officers of the Italian warship Ettore Fieramosca, now in port, and hundreds of other invited guests.

There was not a hitch to the launching. After the launching the christening party sat at a luncheon and the usual toasts to the new ship, to the President of the United States, to the navy and to the fair sponsor of the ship were drunk.

The South Carolina is the second of the two all big-gun battleships authorized by Congress, the other being the Michigan, which recently was launched at Camden, N. J.

An automobile carrying W. R. Hutchings of Brooklyn, his wife and daughter and a chauffeur, was run down by a Long Island express train Friday night at Center Moriches, L. I. Mrs. Hutchings was dead when found, and her husband died later of his injuries. Lillian Hutchings, the daughter, was seriously injured. The chauffeur was not hurt.

Cholera Morbus and Bowel Complaints

"Over 95 cases in every hundred of summer complaints could be avoided," says a leading specialist, "if every one was careful to keep his system toned up with Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It's the most effective germ destroyer known to the medical profession."

ABSOLUTELY PURE & UNADULTERATED TRADE MARK

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It cures nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, disease of the throat and lungs, and all run-down and weakened conditions of the body, brain, and nerves. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as the world's greatest family medicine everywhere.

(DOSE)):—One teaspoonful in each glass of drinking water during the hot weather will kill all germs.

If weak and run down, take a teaspoonful four times a day in half a glass of milk or water.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is sold throughout the world by druggists, grocers and dealers, or shipped direct for $1.00 per bottle.

If in need of advice, write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a handsome illustrated, medical booklet containing some of the many thousands of gratifying letters received from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young, who have been cured and benefited by the use of the World's greatest medicine

TAFT LEAGUE IS LAUNCHED.

Charter Applied for for National Organization.

Design Is to Have One Million Members Enrolled.

Each Is to Contribute One Dollar for Campaign.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WILKESBARRE, (Pa.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Enthusiastic admirers of W. H. Taft, headed by Mayor Kniffen and Street Commissioner Thomas Barrett of this city, have applied for a charter for The National League of Taft Clubs, and today made announcement of the fact.

They state also that they will make Thomas Barrett president of the league, and Mayor Kniffen, treasurer, while Frank H. Hitchcock has been requested to be the first vice-president, Charles P. Taft, second vice-president, and Isidore Straus, financial secretary.

Barrett says that the purpose is to form clubs in all States, and to obtain a million members, contributing $1 each. Half of this fund is to be sent to Taft for campaign purposes, one-fourth to State presidents of Taft clubs for the State campaigns, and the remaining fourth to the counties for county campaigns.

HEARST'S PARTY WILL SPIEL.

WILL MEET IN CHICAGO.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—Preparations are well under way for the national convention of the Independence party, which will be held at Chicago, Monday, July 27.

The Independence party leaders say they will put a full ticket in the field, and will also try to have a State ticket in every State in the Union. In thirty-eight States national committeemen of the Independence party have been appointed, the last State thus represented being North Dakota.

Although the party leaders have not come out strong as yet for any one man as their standard-bearer in the campaign, there is a strong sentiment, they say, for Thomas L. Hisgen of West Springfield, Mass. Mr. Hisgen ran for Governor of Massachusetts two years ago. This was encouraging to the Independence party leaders.

Another possible candidate is M. W. Howard of Alabama, a member of the National Committee of the Independence party from Alabama. He is a former Congressman.

TAFT'S WELCOME.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CINCINNATI, July 11.—Arrangements have been completed by the general committee in charge of the welcome that Cincinnati will extend to Judge William H. Taft July 28, when he is formally notified of his nomination to the Presidency.

At 11 o'clock in the morning there will be salutes of twenty guns or more fired from the hilltops.

At 8 o'clock bands stationed in the parks, squares and at prominent corners will begin to make melody and keep at it all day.

At 11 o'clock the Notification Committee will be escorted to the residence of Charles P. Taft, and Judge Taft will hear the formal word that he is the Republican party's choice for President. There will be but two speeches, that of Senator Warner of Missouri, notifying Mr. Taft, and that of acceptance by the nominee.

At 10:30 p.m. marching clubs will pass in review, and then a public reception will be held.

PLAN WELCOME FOR KERN.

Indianapolis People Will Warmly Greet Democratic Candidate for Vice-Presidency.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS, July 11.—Telegrams received here today from John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for Vice-President, announce that he will remain at Denver until Monday when he will go to Lincoln with the members of the National Democratic Committee to call on Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Kern will reach Chicago Wednesday and will return to Indianapolis Thursday. Arrangements are being made for his reception here.

A big civic celebration is being planned. Mayor Bookwalter and John Hollen, president of the Commercial Club, who is also president of the Indiana Democratic Club, have begun arrangements.

"It must be an affair in which the people of Indianapolis, irrespective of party, will be asked to participate," said the Mayor today."

When Vice-President Fairbanks returned home after his nomination one of the happiest and heartiest addresses of welcome was made by John W. Kern.

LONDON PAPERS' VIEWS.

FAVORABLE TO TAFT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

LONDON, July 11.—The London newspapers anticipate an interesting contest for the Presidency of the United States. This, they think, will arise not so much from the difference in the platforms of the opposing parties, as from the striking personalities of the candidates.

Mr. Bryan, having dropped the free silver and other "extreme planks," is regarded as an acceptable candidate, but is likely to stand little chance against "Roosevelt's nominee."

His only chance, it is thought here, will be from the support given him by the labor-union party, but this is expected to be more than balanced by the accession of the business community to Mr. Taft.

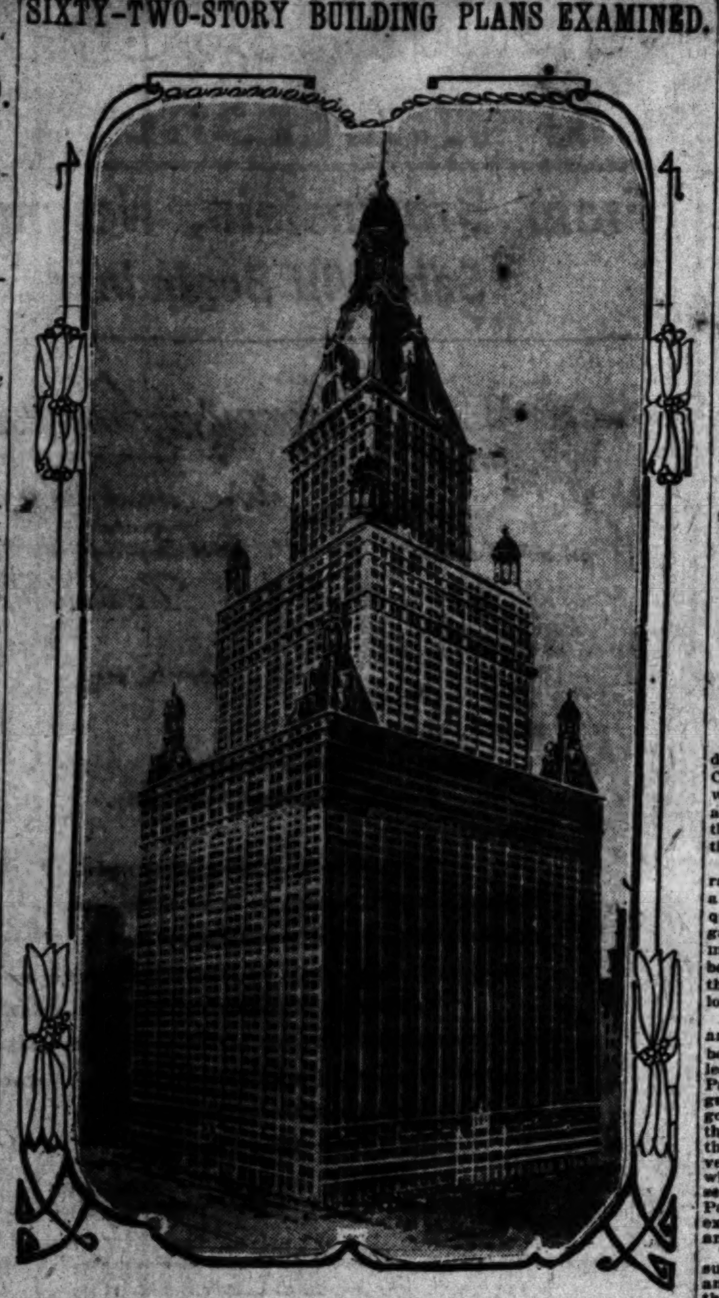
The Daily Chronicle regards Mr. Bryan's policy as being the same as that of President Roosevelt, and says it is a question of which of the candidates shall be entrusted with its execution. Whoever is the victor, the paper says, he will be a man of high character, marked ability and distinction.

The Daily Graphic says: "Whatever is really good in the Democratic creed is already an integral part of the policy President Roosevelt is bequeathing to Mr. Taft, hence there is no serious political issue, as it will be exclusively a question of persons."

The Saturday Review thinks Mr. Bryan has an advantage in being more prominent than Mr. Taft, and suggests that the Nebraskan may obtain a stronger support from the Pacific Slope by the adoption of Congressman Hobson's naval views.

The Times in an editorial says: "It would be rash to prophesy, but it seems not unlikely that Mr. Bryan will go to the wall. He never has had the opportunity of showing whether he possesses capability for constructive work, and his speeches and writings seem to be as deficient in originality and statesmanship as they are in clearness and coherence of thought. Still, he has a personality and a real power among his own people, and the bulk of his party will fight strenuously for his success."

SIXTY-TWO-STORY BUILDING PLANS EXAMINED.



NEW YORK, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Inspection of the plans for the sixty-two-story building of the Equitable Life Assurance Society has been begun by the building department. The task will take several weeks.

As filed by Daniel H. Burnham of Chicago, the large volume of plans represents many weeks of work, and each sheet will have to be done over separately to see that all requirements of the building laws and regulations are filled.

Owners of the property in the vicinity of the Equitable plot are very much interested in the new plans, as the building, when completed, may darken many structures, which now have ample light.

The plans as filed show the building will be in four parts. The first, or lower thirty-five stories, which will reach a height of 472 feet, will occupy the entire plot. The next fourteen stories will have about two-thirds of the floor dimensions of the first section; the third section of nine stories about one-half, and the remaining four stories still less.

In effect the building will suggest a child's house of blocks upon a large foundation. Mr. Burnham is receiving many congratulations on having procured the contract, which, it is estimated should be worth $500,000 in fees for superintendence and other work.

AT FAIRVIEW.

BOSS BRYAN HOLDS COURT.

DELEGATIONS RETURNING FROM DENVER PAY VISITS.

New Yorkers Too Hurried to Go to Fairview So "Peerless One" Goes to Train and Makes Point of Having Picture Taken With Chief Murphy of Tammany.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

FAIRVIEW (Lincoln, Neb.) July 11.—William J. Bryan opened the doorstep campaign today, with a brief speech touching on publicity of campaign contributions, the platform and the candidates. He also received cheers left over from the Denver convention.

The Nebraska delegation, returning with triumphant banners, after vociferousness unequaled in political or other history, having participated riotously in the convention proceedings, did not deliver what might properly be called a cheer at all.

Minnesota, however, having had less call for the assertion of their lungs at Denver, delivered the full three as a seal on Gov. Johnson's promise to support the ticket in every way possible. They were ably assisted by the North Dakotans, who came on the same train. The Nebraskans, however, looked their cheers out of their tired eyes, soothingly caressing their strained throats.

It was to them, many of their fellow-townsmen and members of either the Lincoln Bryan Club or the Nebraska Traveling Men's Bryan Club, Mr. Bryan made his only speech of the day.

The lawn, as a substitute for a front porch, was also brought into play by Mr. Bryan. The Minnesota, North Dakota and the Ohio and the Virginia delegations were guided to the lawn, where the afternoon sun, which had been exerting its full summer strength all day, was warded off by the house. All were invited to be seated, and Mr. Bryan set the example by sitting down in the middle of the circle, after the fashion of an oriental story teller.

NEW YORKERS HURRY.

T. D. O'Brien of the Minnesota crowd assured Mr. Bryan that he and his companions had come to Fairview to assure him that Minnesota would fight her best to elect him.

The convention fight was over, he said, and in the new fight all Democrats would stand together against the common enemy.

"I remember no fights after they are over," responded Mr. Bryan, informally. "Minnesota had a good man, and stood by him. Mr. Johnson has telegraphed me, offering his support, and I have no doubt he will do much good for the ticket during the campaign."

At this point the Minnesotans, hot and weary after their ride and the exertions in the convention, were led to the hydrant, at Mr. Bryan's request, and for a time the Fairview windmill was kept busy cooling parched throats. Thus relieved, the visitors delivered three fairly able cheers, and departed for their train, which left shortly afterward.

Returning New York convention workers had no time to make the four-mile trip from Lincoln to Fairview, so Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Mrs. Bryan, and his private secretary, Robert Pose, made the trip to town in a family carriage.

SNAPPED WITH MURPHY.

At the two railroad stations he saw first, W. J. Conners, chairman of the New York State Central Committee, whom he congratulated on New York's share in making the platform and the selection of a Vice-Presidential candidate. Mrs. Conners was traveling with Mr. Conners in a regular train.

At the Rock Island depot there was a larger crowd, including Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany; Lewis Nixon, F. B. Harrison, Orlando Thayer, Robert E. Luce, Martin W. Littleton, D. L. Cohan and James Cassidy.

"They want to put us on record," remarked Mr. Bryan, as a photographer requested that Mr. Murphy and the Presidential nominee be taken in the act of shaking hands.

"I'm willing if the other fellow is," said Mr. Murphy, and the two grasped hands as the camera was snapped.

"Are you going to carry New York for the ticket?" Mr. Bryan asked Mr. Conners with a smile.

"If we don't I'll never shake hands with you again," came the answer, and Mr. Bryan laughingly pleaded against so "cruel and unusual a punishment."

"No, that goes," answered the New York leader.

T'DORE IS SANGUINE.

The last delegation of the evening was one representing Ohio and Virginia, and nearly 200 strong. Seated in the center of a large circle on the lawn, Mr. Bryan gave them what one of them described as "just a nice farmer talk." All were put at their ease and in a short time there was none so humble as to fear to put in his little word anent the Bryan farm, of which most of them took a critical professional interest.

Despite the size of the crowd, Mr. Bryan satisfied their obvious though not expressed curiosity, by showing them through his residence. Mr. Bryan's curios excited much interest, but no less than his workroom, for this was the spot where most of them had been told the convention had been controlled.

In the course of the conversation on the lawn, Mr. Bryan said he expected to carry New York, and there was no other State in the Union in which he could be said to have no chance.

Theodore A. Bell, who was temporary chairman of the convention, called to pay his respects. He said he expected Bryan to carry the Coast.

PARIS PRESS ON CAMPAIGN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

PARIS, July 11.—The Temps this afternoon says it thinks the deliberations at the Democratic convention at Denver proves that Bryan is again in complete control of the Democracy. After saying that the war declared by the Democracy against the trusts and railroads is manifestly contrary to ancient democratic tradition, while hostile to the extension of the Federal power, the paper concludes its article with these words:

"Both parties have taken up the same battle cry, and a characteristic of the present campaign is the similarity of the programme of the opposing forces. There is practically no difference between them, and there is only a temperamental difference between the two men, one of whom may be selected to apply them."

The Temps thinks it is too early to predict the results; that the popular tide must be first aligned.

The Journal des Debats takes a similar view of what it calls the identity of the two platforms.

"The contest under way," this paper says, "and under these conditions, is largely a question of the personality of candidates. Mr. Taft's final victory, however, seems to be almost assured. Certain it is that Mr. Bryan's personality attracts much sympathy throughout the United States, where his sincerity and eloquence are universally admitted and appreciated, but Mr. Taft, if less popular, has behind him President Roosevelt, whose influence is predominating.

"The question of business must also not be forgotten in American elections. A party can triumph if it has the money and support of the business interests. These have been estranged from Mr. Bryan by his advocacy of free silver. Mr. Bryan also has the opposition of the conservative Democrats, who believe that the party never will triumph as long as he remains its leader."

ANTAGONISTIC.

PARKER OPENLY IS DISSATISFIED.

NEW YORKER TELLS OF PLATFORM COMMITTEE WRANGLE.

Says He'll Support the Ticket, but Doesn't Like Departure from Conservative Democratic Principles. Checks the Exuberance of Congratulating Friends.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

DENVER, July 11.—The exodus of delegates to the Democratic National Convention, and visitors to the city, which began last evening within half an hour after the final adjournment of the convention, continued steadily throughout the night and today.

The Cook County (Illinois) Democracy was the first club to depart in a special train and it was followed quickly by Tammany. Many delegates and thousands of tourists will make excursions to the mountains before returning home. A number of the New York delegates left for Yellowstone Park today.

Judge Alton B. Parker of New York, and other delegates at large and members of the New York delegation are leaving today for the East. Judge Parker was the central figure of groups in the hotel lobby, bidding him good-by and congratulating him on the harmony and unanimity with which the platform was reported to the convention, despite the sharp differences which had developed between the conservative and radical elements. Judge Parker showed some dissent from the exuberance of these congratulations, and with much frankness said:

"One thing is sure—I am going to support the ticket of Bryan and Kern, and want my friends to do the same thing. But I do not want to receive any credit under the slightest misapprehension of the facts. I think in all frankness I should say I resisted in the platform committee any departure from our time honored Democratic principle of the soverign supremacy of the States within their borders, or any committal of our party to the dangerous policy of the Roosevelt administration of a supreme and all-enveloping centralized authority in the Federal government at Washington.

"I felt that I owed it to my party and my convictions to make this fight against any attack on State home rule, and having made it I am content with the results."

"It is understood," said a representative of the press who was present, "that while the platform was reported unanimously, you recorded with the chairman of the committee your dissent as to the provision on Federal action within State lines?"

Judge Parker hesitated a moment and then replied:

"I don't like any secrecy in public affairs and I don't mind telling you that I did record my dissent from the platform on account of this and certain other provisions, as I propose to fight this battle over again in some later conventions. The situation was just this: I and a few others went into the Platform Committee differing with other members on the question of resisting Federal encroachments on State home rule.

"We were thus confronted with a marked difference of view. But let me say that throughout the long and trying sessions of the committee there was never any variation from the utmost good feeling among the members. The spirit of give and take always prevailed. It made me feel glad that I had attended the convention. It always gave me the point of view of those having honest differences of opinion with me on questions of moment.

"While some of the contentions urged by part of my associates were contrary to those of my education and belief, yet I could not but feel that they were as sincere and honest in their convictions as I in mine. The one dominating sentiment was to formulate a platform which would state honestly to the public the views of its framers."

M'CARREN LOSES.

COURT AGAINST HIM.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—State Senator McCarren's application for a peremptory writ of mandamus commanding the board of elections of the city of New York to appoint the Democratic members of the various boards of elections in Kings county from lists filed by him, was denied today by Supreme Court Justice Kelly.

McCarren was chairman of the Executive Committee of Kings county and the committee is thus deprived of considerable political patronage that has formerly attached to the position and his political enemies have scored another point in the fight against him.

POLITICAL BRIEFS.

Sherman Expects Hitchcock.

UTICA (N. Y.) July 11.—James S. Sherman, the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, was well enough today to visit his business office and remain there for an hour. He expects a visit from Chairman Hitchcock of the National Committee some time next week. It is announced that Sherman will be operated on in one of the hospitals in this city, probably ten days or two weeks hence.

Hearst Attacks Bryan.

NEW YORK, July 11.—That William J. Bryan is not to have the support of William R. Hearst is indicated today by the attitude of Mr. Hearst's New York newspapers, the American and the Evening Journal. The two papers announce a loss of confidence on their part both in the Democratic party and Mr. Bryan.

Plan Visit at Fairview.

DENVER, July 11.—A special train bearing the members of the National Democratic Committee and newspaper correspondents to call on William J. Bryan will leave here for Lincoln Monday evening. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt will also be with the party. They will arrive at Lincoln early Tuesday morning.

Chicago Appropriates $10,000 When Told 31,414 Little Ones May Die During Summer.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—To save babies' lives the City Council of Chicago made a special appropriation of $10,000 last night. Intestinal diseases among infants, caused chiefly by the hot weather, have been of such frequent occurrence in Chicago that, according to relative figures, the deaths of babies due to the complaints this year will reach the startling total of 31,414.

Alarmed at the prospect of this wholesale slaughter of the innocents, the Council authorized the transfer of $10,000 to pay 100 physicians who will be employed by the city to disseminate information concerning the causes and prevention of summer sickness among babies.

Augustus Hartje, the millionaire paper manufacturer, whose sensational divorce litigation, has attracted wide attention, has taken an appeal to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania from a decision of Judge Frazier, who ordered him to pay his wif penses, and $7000 counsel f appeal Hartje makes no m $5000 alimony a year. NEW UNIFORM BILL OF LADING.

Interstate Commerce Commission Approves It.

Recommends Adoption by All Common Carriers.

Changes Made in Interest of Shipping Public.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, July 11.—A new uniform bill of lading designed as a substitute for bills now in use for the movement of miscellaneous freight and general merchandise was today approved and its adoption recommended to the common carriers of the country and the shipping public by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The new bill of lading provides two forms printed on the face side in different colors, one for straight and one for order consignments.

The "order" bill will possess a certain degree of negotiability while the "straight" bill will be non-negotiable. The order bill must be surrendered on the delivery of the property to the consignee. This plan is expected to meet the requirements of the banking concerns of the country which advance vast sums of money on bills of lading. The changes have all been in the direction of greater simplicity in the interest of the shipping public.

The bill is more or less a compromise. It imposes important obligations which carriers have not heretofore assumed but retains the exceptions to which some shippers may object. The commission looks to the best adjustment practicable of a long standing controversy which affects the business of the country.

The commission expressly retains the right to exercise its authority as to any provisions of the new bill which under the test of experience may prove improper.

It is understood that the new bill will be adopted by all the railroads in the official classification. The commission recommends that the new bill be adopted generally by December 1.

COLONIST RATES PROBABLE.

Transcontinental Roads Have Them Under Consideration for September and October.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Transcontinental roads have under consideration colonist rates to Pacific Coast points during September and October.

The Transcontinental Passenger Association as an organization has refused to indorse them, but it is almost certain that some of the roads, taking independent action, will force them into effect, and then all the roads will have to meet the competition.

BATTLEGROUND.

CAMPAIGN WILL BE IN THE WEST.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS SO EXPRESS THEMSELVES.

Think Selection of Western Man as Candidate for Vice-Presidency and Several Planks of Platform Indicate Democrats Will Fight It Out in the West.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

HOT SPRINGS (Va.) July 11.—"I am entirely willing to turn the campaign over to the management except as to the question of general policy," said William H. Taft, the Republican Presidential candidate, today, when questioned concerning the conduct of the coming campaign.

That the campaign is to be conducted chiefly in the West is conceded by political leaders who have been here since the Democratic convention has concluded its work.

Elmer Dover, secretary of the Republican National Committee, arrived today, and had a talk with Mr. Taft lasting three hours.

"The campaign will be fought in the West," said Mr. Dover. "The selection of the Vice-Presidential candidate from the West, and several of the planks of the platform, plainly indicate to me that the Democrats do not intend to make any general effort for electoral votes in the East, but will concentrate their efforts in the West. Of course they will contest some of the Eastern States, but if they had intended to make a serious fight in the East they would have selected a New York man."

George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the National Committee, does not intend to permit any delay in beginning his work of raising money for the campaign.

"Since I have been here," he said today, "I have received a dozen checks from men who wished to be the first to subscribe to the campaign fund."

Mr. Sheldon declared he will begin the work of raising money in a systematic manner in New York next Monday. He left here this evening, after having played a game of golf with the Presidential nominee, the score being 96 for Mr. Taft and 98 for Mr. Sheldon. Mr. Taft won by 2 up.

Atty.-Gen. Wade Ellis of Ohio telephoned Mr. Taft today that he was unable to come here at this time on account of illness.

Mr. Taft was in the hands of his tailor today for some time, trying on clothes that have been made for him in Washington.

SAILS TRIMMED.

explains why Bryan, every time he opens his face, says something about the "Prince of Peace."

This is also to be worked in Ohio. Bryan relies on the support of the booze interests of Ohio.

FEARFUL OF TAMMANY.

In Indiana he has constituted himself earthly banner-bearer for the Prince of Peace. In Chicago, he is the Messiah for the anarchists. In Ohio, he is the "Priest and prophet" of booze.

A variety of local option has been put into effect in Ohio by the Republicans, to the vast disgust of the liquor men.

The Bryan men in Ohio are also banking on the factional fights between the Republicans in that State. They hope for the worst with Foraker, and in regard to the trouble between Hitchcock and Vorys over the national chairmanship.

Although they expect to win labor votes in Pennsylvania, the Bryan men actually haven't the nerve to claim that State. Even Dahlman can't conjure up a pipe dream big enough to make a Pennsylvania claim.

The spot in the United States where the worry hurts worst is the little old town of New York.

The peculiar way that Charley Murphy and his Tammany braves behaved during the convention has bewildered and mystified.

Through all the enthusiasm they sat bored and chewing gum, the Bryan men tried in every way to woo 'em but couldn't get a rise or even an answer out of them.

RESIGNED TO LOSS.

Actually when the roll of the States was called at the long night session the Bryan men did not know how the New York men would vote until Murphy stood up and announced, in a voice of utter indifference that, under the unit rule, the entire vote of New York would go for Bryan.

From first to last, the New York men have not shown as much as a friendly interest in the "Peerless One."

They consider the whole convention to have been a tiresome adventure among the rurals and they want to get back to the Bowery. It is not likely that New York intends to loose much sleep over Bryan. The "up-State" delegates were not much more emotional than Tammany. One of the Bryan men told me they are resigned to the loss of New York in spite of the feeling against President Roosevelt.

DOUBT EVEN GEORGIA.

In all the New England States, Bryan has hopes of the anti-injunction plank among the enormous factory vote. They feel more confident of Connecticut than of any other Atlantic State. On the ground that they are naturally Democratic, Bryan hopes to win all the States of the South with the possible exception of Georgia. For some reason that no one seems to understand, Georgia, like New York, absolutely refused to join in any of the Bryan demonstration. The reason assigned is that Georgia considers that two failures have demonstrated it is impossible to elect Bryan.

Opposed to these Bryan views is the opinion of a prominent Democrat of national standing who told me the day of the nomination that Bryan hasn't a chance. He thinks that the way Bryan crushed Guffey, and his rows with Roger Sullivan, and the relentless brutality of his steam-roller, and his rank socialistic platform have all hurt him in his own party.

FISHING FEVER SEIZES AVALON.

Great Catches of Yellowtail at San Clemente.

New Mecca for Sportsmen on Far-Away Island.

Buttons Getting Scarce for Record Catches.

AVALON, July 11.—Never in the history of the island has the true spirit of sportsmanship reached such a fever heat as at present. The daily reports of tremendous catches round about Clemente have fired the enthusiasm of the least enthusiastic angler. Every steamer brings in groups of eager-faced fishermen, armed with rod and reel, anxious to take part in the fray.

The success of Messrs. Murphy and Hooper, who returned from Clemente last night, added further glory to the angling annals of the present season.

Report comes from Clemente that Chief Forester Pinchot worked five hours trying to land a fish and then lost him. It is said that the Washington government officials are trying to establish a record in landing their prizes with 3-6 tackle. The Madrono is anchored in a sheltered cove on the east end of the island, known as Smugglers' Cove and the party live on board, spending their days fishing and their evenings in the cosy cabin of the Madrono, where they smoke and retail the exciting events of the day and spin numerous fish yarns. Senator Flint increased his record of a silver button yellowtail by 2½ pounds yesterday, his latest catch tipping the scales at the 32¼ pound notch.

OFF FOR CLEMENTE.

F. W. Weinheimer of St. Louis left at midnight last night for Clemente on the San Toy. He arrived at Avalon a week ago and is seeking a gold button.

Early Monday morning Rev. Dr. Atterbury, pastor of the Park Presbyterian Church in New York, will leave in a launch for Clemente, accompanied by his brother, Dr. B. C. Atterbury, and son of Pasadena. Rev. Atterbury, with his wife, is passing his vacation at Avalon and is an enthusiastic sportsman anxious to register as a gold button angler before he returns East.

Early Tuesday morning Messers. Hooper and Murphy will again sally forth for another two days' fishing bout at Clemente. Mr. Hooper is determined to win that gold button he has narrowly missed twice within the past week—once when he was disqualified by permitting his boatman to assist in landing what he supposed was a bunch of kelp, and again yesterday, when his catch lacked but a couple of pounds of the required weight.

S. A. Barron of the City of Mexico is to leave tomorrow for the East. He has simply no more worlds to conquer in the fishing line here, having won honors galore. He says the one thing that will bring him back is the news that some one has beaten his record of a 54½-pound yellowtail taken on 6-6 tackle. It is whispered, however, that Mr. Barron intends coming back in September, anyhow.

HERE'S A PRIZE.

W. W. Simpson, the game sportsman from England, has deposited with the Light Tackle Club a magnificent signet ring, made by a native worker of gold in Madris, on the east coast of India, which will be awarded to the angler who exceeds his record of a 60½-pound yellowtail. Several crack sportsmen have tried on the ring, and declared it an exact fit. If another "daddy yellowtail" swims the sea hereabouts he's taking chances about now.

L. G. Murphy, the Indiana record-breaker, has had endless sport in Gulf waters at Aransas Pass. He accomplished the feat of landing six tarpon last year on light tackle, one of which lacked exactly three-sixteenths of an inch in measurement to win the gold button. Down there it is length, not weight, that decides the question. A four-foot six-inch tarpon wins a silver button, and a five-foot-six takes a gold button.

P. Mooney of Jersey City returned from Clemente yesterday and qualified for a bronze button, with a 22¾-pound yellowtail.

CALIFORNIA STATE.

GAME IS UNDER PROTEST.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SANTA CRUZ, July 11.—Santa Cruz won its eleventh straight victory today by beating Alameda. Capt. Russell of the visitors protested the game, as the Sand Crabs had but nine men in uniform, after Schimpf had been spiked by Buckley and taken out of the game. Score:

Santa Cruz, 6; hits, 4; errors, 3.
Alameda, 0; hits, 7; errors, 1.
Batteries—Loucks and O. Hoag; Sparks, Wilcox and Buckley.

CLOSE SCORE GAME.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ALAMEDA, July 11.—Errors by Fresno allowed Oakland to get the best of 4-to-3 score today. Score:

Fresno, 3; hits, 11; errors, 6.
Oakland 4; hits, 11; errors, 2.
Batteries—Barren and Blankenship; H. Goldy and Esola.

BATTING RALLY WINS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

STOCKTON, July 11.—After Stockton appeared to have the game cinched, San José had a batting rally in the seventh inning and made three runs off four hits and two errors, nosing out the home team. Score:

Stockton, 2; hits, 5; errors, 5.
San José, 3; hits, 5; errors, 1.
Batteries—Moskiman and Hackett; Stricklett and Eager.

HITS, ERRORS, FINES.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, July 11.—Sacramento shut out San Francisco, today, in a ragged game. Whalen was put out of the game in the second inning for questioning a decision of Umpire Schroeder, and was fined $5 in addition. Echfeldt made the one brilliant play in the fifth inning when he grabbed down Nealon's long hit to left, shutting out a run. Score:

Sacramento, 13; hits, 15; errors, 7.
San Francisco, 0; hits, 2; errors, 1.
Batteries — Whalen, Brown and Byrnes; Wittmar and Bodie.

OFF DAY FOR GOLFERS.

Fifty Men Enjoy Pleasant Day at Country Club in 18-Hole Match Play Against Bogey.

A large number of golf devotees took pleasant recreation at the Country Club links yesterday afternoon and accepted the weekly card as arranged by the Green committee without a murmur. It was the popular four-ball 18-holes foursome at handicap match play against bogey, with a one-ball sweepstakes extra.

The recent hot weather has completely withered what little vegetation marked the ground, and the course was hard, giving the players little excuse for not being up. The exhibitions, however, were not as strong as usual.

Mrs. Seymour and daughter, and Miss Hughes of St. Paul, together with E. B. Barry whiled away the afternoon in practice play on the tennis courts in preparation for the Santa Barbara tourney, which opens this week.

The results of the golf play is as follows: Sterling C. Lines, two down, handicap, scratch, two down on bogey; M. M. Harris, eight down, handicap, five, three down; John W. Wilson, six down, handicap, three, three down; Frank Griffiths, four down, handicap, four, even; J. J. Mellus, three down, handicap, three, even; George Steckel, five down, handicap, seven, two up; Henry Newton, five down, handicap, three, two down; Joseph Cook, six down, handicap, five, one down; Charles McFarland, five down, handicap, seven, two up; Albert Grutcher, seven down, handicap, seven, even; William Frederickson, two down, handicap two, three down; Julius A. Brown, four down, handicap, three, one down.

FIFTEEN-INNING TIE BALL GAME.

BANKERS' LEAGUE PLAYS SWELL CONTEST AT U.S.C.

Beamer Strikes Out Twenty-two Men and Reinhard Fans Out Nineteen More, Forty-one in All, Probably a World's Record—Other Teams in League Play Good Games.

A fifteen-inning game called on account of darkness, resulting in a tie score of 1 to 1, featured the baseball game between the Security Savings and Nationals of California in the Bankers' League series played yesterday afternoon at U.S.C.

The contest was a pitchers' battle between Bruce Beamer and Reinhard. Beamer struck out twenty-two and allowed but five hits, while the opposing twirler secured ninteen strike-outs, being found for nine bingles. "Reine" also saved the game in three different periods when the bases were full, and but one down, retiring his opponents without a run.

The Nationals scored their single tally in the initial inning, and the Securities annexed their saving run in the fourth session.

CLEARS THE COMPLEXION OVERNIGHT

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Since its discovery one year ago, poslam, the new skin remedy, has, in its extraordinary accomplishments, exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialist who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. The terrible itching attending eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. A muddy or sallow complexion is noticeably improved by a single application. Those who use poslam for these minor skin troubles can now avail themselves of the special 50-cent package, recently adopted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent package and the regular $2 jar may now be obtained in Los Angeles at the Owl Drug Co., and other leading drug stores.

Samples for experimenting purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth St., New York City.

SEVENTEEN MOTORS IN.

Six Make Perfect Scores as Far as Cleveland With Run to Chicago Yet to Make.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLEVELAND, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tired and dusty, seventeen contestants in the annual motorcycle run conducted by the Western District of the American Federation of Motorcyclists, arrived in the city tonight.

There were six who had perfect scores. The run is from New York to Chicago, and is similar to the Glidden tour but is not a contest of speed, endurance being the issue. The entries and their scores follow:

J. S. Woodworth, perfect.
M. C. Trupar, ten points.
A. G. Lyon, perfect.
Through (three men team) 1000 points.
C. S. Hinckley, perfect.
Excelsior (three men team,) no score.
Fred Huyck, 1000 points.
R. W. Duseliel, perfect.
Indians (team,) perfect.
Reading-Standard (team,) perfect.
Light (team,) no score.
G. W. Lyon, perfect.
J. Desalvo, 8½.

In the run from New York, only one accident was reported. This was when George W. Florman, riding an Indian, spilled at Ashtabula and sustained a fractured shoulder blade as well as several severe bruises.

VOLTAIRE'S INFLUENCE.

Described at Venice Chautauqua—Today's Programme—Los Angeles to Be Entertained at Beach.

VENICE, July 11.—The closing day of the California Chautauqua's first week opened with a lecture by Prof. Thomas R. Bacon of the University of California, whose subject was: "Voltaire and His Contemporaries." He showed the influence of Voltaire's incisive writings on religion and said that they had been a factor in the French Revolution.

As a prelude to the afternoon programme, Miss Estelle Miller sang. The lecture was by Alvin H. Lowe.

In the evening there was a concert by Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Lott, Arnold Krauss and Ludwik Opid.

At tomorrow morning's session Rev. James H. McLaren of Riverside will speak on: "Why Nations Perish." In the afternoon will be a congress for the unification of spiritual forces. It will be presided over by Mrs. Bertha H. Baruch. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Harbert, chairman of the world's extension of parliament of religions, will read greetings from great men and women allied with the movement. Rev. Helen Van Anderson, recently of Constantinople, will speak of "The New Day in the Orient." Mrs. Annie R. Militz will talk on 'Spiritual Co-operation" and Mrs. Baruch on "Character Building of the Child Through the Drama."

There will also be service in memory of Susan B. Anthony and Mary A. Livermore. There will also be musical numbers by Miss Margaret Goetz and Nator Blumenfield.

In the evening "The Merchant of Venice" will be presented by Percy Aylmer and a select company.

"LOS ANGELES DAY."

Saturday, August 8, will be "Los Angeles Day" here. Mayor Harper has approved of the plan and the day will be declared a holiday in the city. The Council has accepted the invitation of the Venice Chamber of Commerce to come to the seaside. "Los Angeles Day" will hereafter be observed annually. The general arrangements have been entrusted to the Chamber of Commerce's special committee, consisting of M. B. Eakins, J. M. White and J. A. Stanwood. There will be speaking, music, sports, races and fireworks.

Exciting Runaway at Whittier Ends in Killing—Old Pico Mansion Being Restored.

WHITTIER, July 11.—A runaway made things lively this afternoon in the business section, when the streets were crowded.

Allen Barnett hitched his horse near the corner of Greenleaf avenue and Philadelphia street. The animal became frantic at a trolley car and got loose. Men, women and children scattered as the plunging animal went through the crowded street, and finally was stopped by running the thill of a grocery wagon more than a foot into its breast. The horse was hurt so badly that it was necessary to kill it. The carriage to which it was hitched was made into kindling, and a popcorn stand, which came in its way, w reduced to small pieces. A nu rigs were smashed in lesser de

LIFE'S SEAMY SIDE.

DRIVES BRIDE TO SUICIDE.

Russian Count Too Devoted to Gambling.

Leaves Wife for Cards While on Honeymoon.

Refuses to Go to Her and She Shoots Herself.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

AIX LES BAINS, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Neglected by her husband, who preferred the gambling table to her society, a beautiful young Russian Countess committed suicide Tuesday at the Hotel Beau Site, Aix les Bains.

The Count and Countess de Bristram had only been married a few weeks, and the former seemed devoted to his beautiful young wife, who was only [illegible]. The marriage took place at Odessa and the pair were spending their honeymoon at Aix.

The Count, like most Russians, loved gambling, and his young wife had upbraided him for leaving her so long alone, while he was playing games of chance.

The Count had spent hours the other night at the Grand Circle playing cards, ignoring his bride's pleading message to come to her. At last, to a more than usually pressing message, he answered:

"Wait half an hour. Will come when I have finished the rubber."

Hardly had his message been handed to the Countess when the report of a shot was heard, and the maid, rushing in, found her mistress lying on the floor dead.

DASTARDLY.

SCHOOL TEACHER BADLY BEATEN.

UNKNOWN RUFFIAN ATTACKS HER IN MINING CABIN.

Uses a Revolver Upon Her With Such Terrible Effect That She May Die—After Beating, Ties Her and Robs Her of Her Clothing. Neighbor Is Suspected.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An unknown ruffian attacked Miss Emma G. Robinson, for several years a school teacher in this city, last night at her cabin on a mining claim near Galice, Ore., and she may die as a result of the severe beating she received.

Her cabin was broken into and she was beaten fearfully with a revolver. The man then tied her and tore her clothes off. She is in such a serious condition that it is not believed she will survive.

The countryside is greatly excited over the affair, and the sheriff and a posse are scouring the district. Suspicion centers on a man in the vicinity.

The crime occurred near the Galice mine, which is twenty miles over the mountains from Merlin.

POLICE MAKE ONE ARREST.

Hold August Delmonte in Custody on Suspicion of Murdering Boy Found in Garbage Bin.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—Working on the theory that John Buchneff, the [illegible]-year-old lad, whose body was found buried in a bin of garbage at the sanitary reduction works last night, was murdered and his body thrown into the bin to conceal the evidence of the crime, the police today placed August Delmonte, an employe at the plant, under arrest pending further investigation.

A postmortem examination of the body showed that death resulted from a wound in the head, described as such a one as might have been made by a prong of a rake or a small caliber bullet. No bullet was found, however, and the police are working on the theory that the lad was playing in the bin, and when ordered away did something to anger some employé of the plant, which resulted in his being struck on the head.

It is thought possible that when unconsciousness of the lad's hurt became apparent to his assailant, the latter threw the body into the bin, hoping that it would be consumed with the mass of debris, thus protecting him from the consequences of his act.

SEEKS PEACE IN DEATH.

Widow, Impoverished, Tells Pathetic Story of Hardships When Rescued; Children Starving.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

OAKLAND, July 11.—Mrs. Helen [illegible], a widow, attempted to commit suicide today by jumping into the estuary. She was rescued.

She tells a pathetic story of hard struggles to feed and clothe herself and children.

For months all the family has had to live on has been what a daughter, [illegible] years, could earn working in [illegible] mills. The mother says that her children are starving and she wanted to die rather than see them suffer and hear their piteous cries for food. She lives at No. 18 Chester

MRS. FAIR'S NIECE CHOKED.

Mrs. Whitley Fights Desperately and Mysterious Intruder Leaps from Window.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—Awakened at an early hour this morning by pressure on her throat, Mrs. Igoe Whitley of Boston, a niece of the late Mrs. James F. Fair, discovered that she was being gagged by a masked man. She was unable to scream, but she struggled desperately and awakened her brother-in-law, Frank B. Leonard, at whose home she was staying in Caldwell, N. J.

He rushed into the room and the man leaped from a second-story window and escaped. The police are inclined to think the intruder was not a burglar.

CRIME BRIEFS.

Must Hang.

SACRAMENTO, July 11.—Gov. Gillett refused to commute to life imprisonment the death sentence of Louis Dabner who, with his companion in crime, John Siemsen, is to be executed at San Quentin on July 31 for the murder of M. Munakata, a Japanese banker in San Francisco. Dabner and Siemsen are known as the "gas-pipe thugs" and are accused of two murders and several robberies in addition to the crime for which they were sentenced.

Veteran Commits Suicide.

SAN JOSE, July 11.—Oliver B. Spencer, aged 78, who served through the war in a Kentucky regiment, committed suicide this afternoon by taking laudanum. He leaves one married daughter in Sacramento and another in Monterey county.

Night Riders Again Active.

LEXINGTON (Ky.) July 11.—A telegram from Owenton, Ky., summoned Capt. V. M. Mulliken of this city and a pack of bloodhounds today, a barn full of tobacco having been burned there, and night riders having been accused.

Confessed to Another's Theft.

SPOKANE (Wash.) July 11.—Charles Wheeler, an old man who confessed that he stole a package containing $500 from the express company at Elk, Wash., was set free by the court today. A twelve-year-old boy named Harry Russell confessed the theft of the same sack, and was committed to the State training school. The officers think Wheeler was drunk, and merely imagined that he stole the package.

Treasurer $5000 Short.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—A committee appointed to investigate the accounts of J. Hood, treasurer of the District Council of Carpenters, has reported a $5000 shortage. Hood, who has been deposed, says he will make it good.

Says Turkeys Were Stolen.

MODESTO, July 11.—Edward Hill of Turlock has discovered that 1200 turkeys with which he hoped to corner the San Francisco Thanksgiving market, have been spirited away, and the men in charge of his ranch, F. L. Sowers and G. W. Hanford, have been arrested for the theft. Half of the herd had been disposed of but the remainder was found in the possession of the accused, twenty miles from the ranch.

TRAWLER LANDS QUEER CATCH.

LONDON, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A huge head, part of some prehistoric monster, was landed at Grimsby by the trawler Balmedie, in whose nets it had been brought up from the depths of the Atlantic Ocean.

From the jaw of the strange monster protrudes a leathery tongue three feet, eight inches in circumference at the base, and tapering off to a point, while a little above are two cavities, each quite a foot across.

It is suggested that the monster has been preserved for centuries, it may be, in some Arctic ice bed.

DISCIPLINE.

HOT SHOT FIRED AT GUARDSMEN.

VIGOROUS SPEECHES MADE AT REGIMENTAL SCHOOL.

Shooting of the Seventh Criticised. Colonel's Explanation—First Brigade's General Expresses Hope of Securing Adequate Armory—Distinguished Guests Invited.

At the regimental school at the armory, last night, there were talks by Maj. Collins on guard duty; by Gen. Wankowski on the need of a new armory; by Adj.-Gen. Lauck on duties of the national guardsmen and by Col. Schreiber on rifle practice and the duties of company commanders.

The address of Maj. Collins, inspector of rifle practice, was a valuable description of the duties and responsibilities of the officers of the guards and sentries, and was illustrated by the formation of two reliefs, and the posting and relieving of sentries.

Gen. Wankowski said that a full attendance is expected on next Tuesday evening, when Adj.-Gen. Lauck will present the brigade trophy to company A. He added that the Mayor, City Council, the Supervisors, representatives of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and Chamber of Commerce and Senators have been invited to attend, and that a demonstration will be made to them of the necessity of an armory large enough for a regiment. He thought this would result in securing a site in the city and that the State might then be induced to build an armory.

He mentioned the promotion of Maj. Adams, and his appointment to the command of the regimental hospital.

The general expressed his disappointment that so few men had qualified in the regimental shoot.

Adj.-Gen. Lauck complimented the First Brigade, saying that much is expected of it and that it has the best officers the State affords.

He called attention to the fact that the State soldiery now stands in the first line of defense with the regular army.

Col. Schreiber, when called upon, said he observed that compliments to the brigade had ended in criticisms of the Seventh Regiment on its shooting. In defense of his command he stated that many of its men could shoot faster and better than some who competed but that they did not enter the competition for the reason that it required a month's time, with loss of home and salary, which they could not afford. He regretted that so few qualified, and thought, from several incidents observed by him, that the competitors had not been closely following the rules in their practice.

He criticised company commanders for failure to enlighten their men as to the specific requirements of the order he had issued several weeks ago regarding the service uniform and equipments for this shoot.

He dwelt upon the necessity of adhering to the regulations and range rules, and averred that a man who knows the rules and will not "play the game" according to the rules, is neither sport nor soldier. He quoted the remark of Col. Wilhelm, that some soldiers "lack military respectability," and cautioned his hearers that on the range one man must be boss, and that when that man makes a ruling he should "stay with it," and everybody should "shut up."

The colonel, who was captain of the first California team sent East, said that if a man in the United States matches started "to work its mouth" after a ruling the offender went off the range and stayed off. His parting injunction was: "Follow the rules, or give up your gun and don't shoot."

That his hearers, including the competitors in the two days' contest, appreciated and approved his vigorous remarks, was evinced by hearty applause.

MINES CHAMBER INDORSERS.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Mines yesterday passed resolutions indorsing the report of the Highway Commission and urging its members to work in support of the good roads bonds.

WISE TALKS BY THE "OFFICE BOY"

I got acquainted with Mr. Huntington, the big railroad man, the other day, and I liked him awfully much. He said, "So you're Mr. Silverwood's 'Office Boy.' Well, my boy, I've been reading some of your philosophy and it's good. I liked that thought you expressed the other day where you said 'Every man who does the best he can is a hero.' You must bend the willow while it's young and it's about as easy to be a leader as a wheel horse. Take a big block of marble. The statue is hidden inside and the sculptor has to chisel it out. It's about the same with building a railroad. When you start you usually have nothing but a stretch of country. Civilization follows two things—the American flag and a good railroad." I butted in and said, "But you have faith in the future of Los Angeles and Southern California, have you not?" "Here's the answer to that question," said he, holding up a slip of paper, "I was just trying to figure out how many men are employed by the street railroads and other enterprises I am interested in, in and around Los Angeles. This shows 5875 and I haven't got them all yet. I think it will foot up about 7000. A man who employs that many men usually not only has faith, but is absolutely sure." Now then, let us wash the windows off, quit all the sale-fooling and look prosperous to the stranger who comes here to locate and invest his money.

The retail section of a city and the quality of the goods displayed, gives a stranger a better idea of the character of its inhabitants than he could get in a year in any other way. Stores wouldn't fill their windows full of trash unless somebody bought it. Good goods are much the cheapest. The Silverwood Stores sell only goods they can guarantee and sell them as cheap or cheaper than you can buy the imitations. Become a Silverwood customer and boost for good roads, no discounts, clean windows and one-price stores.

UNIONITES ARE EXCITED.

Principal to Superintend the Painting of Schools.

Lowbrows of Stockton Want Job for Themselves.

Insist That Mechanic Draw Pay for Work.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The employment of Principal E. Z. Hughes of the Eldorado School by the High School Board of Education, to superintendent the painting of the schools of the city, has stirred up a hornets' nest in union circles, and the Painters' Union has asked the Building Trades Council to interfere.

The board last year employed Hughes to superintend repairs of the buildings, and the members were of the opinion that there would be no objection to such a move this time, but the unions insist that a regular mechanic be named.

For a time there was quite a hot argument, and the Building Trades Council was to have taken up the matter last evening, but the board secured a postponement, having agreed to meet next Tuesday evening with representatives of the union in hopes that matters can be adjusted.

Observatory Opened in Germany for Observance of Meteorological Conditions by Kite-Captive Balloons.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

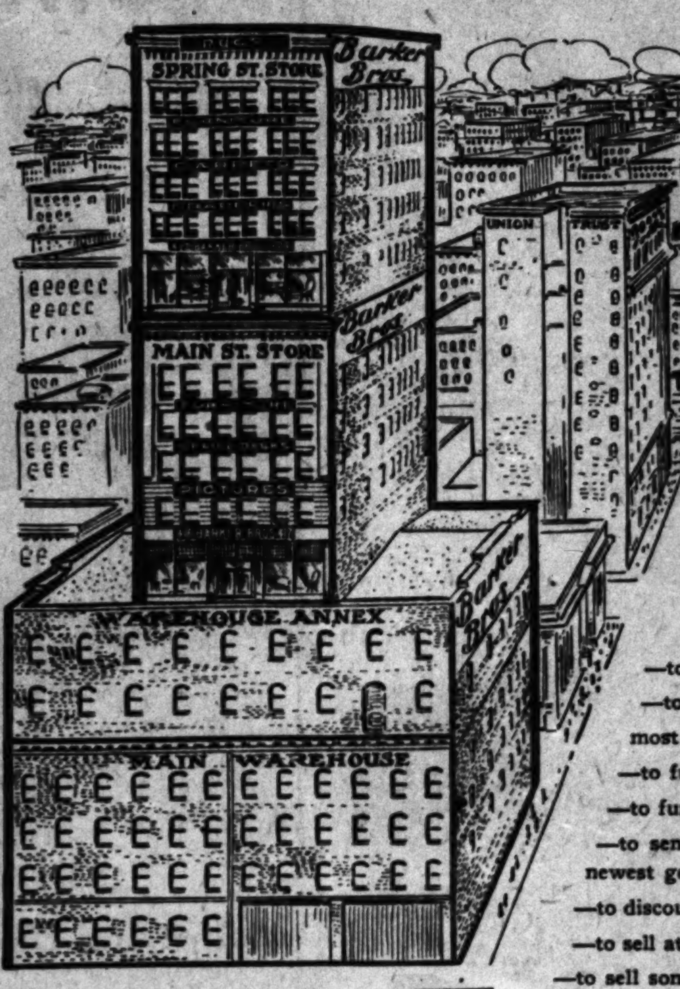
FRIEDREICHSHAFEN, July 11.—The inauguration by the King of Wurtemburg of the new government observatory for the study of meteorological conditions by means of kite-captive balloons took place here today in the presence of a brillaint assemblage of officials and scientists representing the entire empire.

This new observatory in its workings is based upon certain ideas successfully carried out in America. It is one of the best equipped in the world. It is provided with a special boat for the purpose of carrying out experiments over Lake Constance.

Kites will be sent aloft from the boat to a height of 20,000 feet, carrying registering instruments. It is hoped by this means that atmospheric records of the greatest value will be obtained.

The House of Barker Bros.

Established 1883



If the several buildings of Barker Bros.—the big warehouse, warehouse annex, Spring and Main street stores—were placed one upon the other, they would form a combined structure overlooking by several stories the tallest building in Los Angeles. Consider what this immense establishment means to the furniture seeker—the greater stock, the better selection in every line—furniture, carpets, rugs, draperies, upholsteries, office, school and bank furniture, etc.

The Largest Furniture House On the Entire Pacific Coast
Is big Enough

—to furnish the largest hotel, on a commission basis;
—to equip an apartment house with the latest inventions and in the most complete manner, at the lowest cash prices;
—to furnish a mansion with the finest imported goods from Europe;
—to furnish the most modest bungalow on partial payments;
—to send experts and buyers East every season for the latest ideas and newest goods.
—to discount all bills and still give customers accommodation if they wish it;
—to sell at a lower margin of profit than any other Western firm;
—to sell some goods even at a loss at certain times and for various reasons if thought advisable;
—to place at the command of patrons the services of foremost American specialists in fine home furnishing;
—to employ the most experienced staff of salespeople, whose knowledge will aid buyers in selecting in a manner most advantageous to their own interests;
—to hire the very best workmen in every department and to maintain separate departments for each class of work;

In other words, we are big enough, in facilities and financially, to deal with everyone, in any way, upon any plan and upon any terms most convenient and best adapted to the needs of each individual purchaser--to meet every want, large or small--and to give every patron absolute satisfaction.

A thoroughly good dresser, well made, well finished; the illustration does not do it justice; an absolute $23 value—exactly as we state. Our price, however, this week, only $17.50.

$14.00 Golden Oak Chiffonier Shown Below $9.75

A good practical size; nicely polished top, French bevel mirror, good finish throughout. Not a $9.75 value, but a genuine $14 article.

This $32 Weathered Oak Dresser Here for $19

Mission style, large French bevel mirror; well made in every particular, and a genuine $32 value—worth every cent of it. Of course, we have hundreds of other dressers, all styles, all woods, all prices, and if this is not the style you fancy, we can unquestionably please you in the particular pattern you desire.

This $3.50 Center Table Here for $1.95

Quarter sawed golden oak, 20-inch top, finely polished; a very neat, well-made, well-finished practical table for living room; good enough for the parlor, if you wish; worth just what we say, $3.50, but we'll sell it for $1.95—a forceful illustration of the superior values at Barker Bros. Don't forget, we have hundreds of other styles if this is not exactly what you want. All prices.

This $2.00 Rocker Here for $1.25

This is a very desirable porch rocker, with double cane seat and frame of natural maple; a rocker well enough made and finished to justify indoor use when occasion requires. Chair to match, $1.10.

We have hundreds of other rockers and chairs. A big line of the seasonable summer goods—old hickory, Crex, willow, rattan, reed, maple, weathered oak, etc., and our prices are right. Remember, we are never undersold.

This $9.00 Grand Rapids Refrigerator for $7.25

Genuine Grand Rapids make; latest, most improved construction; best low cost refrigerators, biggest value in town. Don't buy until you've seen our line, the celebrated "White Frost," Leonard Cleanable and other superior makes.

Bed, Spring and Mattress Complete Outfits

Here are genuine bargains—a combination offer—wood bed, woven wire springs and substantial cotton top mattress, at a price which practically makes you a present of the bed; only one bed of a style, however, which explains the offer; to clean up the lot quickly. Full size outfit, complete, $5.85; another ¾ size, $5.85; two more full size, $6.60 each; three more, full size, $6.95 each. First come best choice; be prompt.

This $13.50 Old Hickory Table $8.75

Just the table for the commodious porch or beach cottage use; will stand hard use; top 24x48, with drop leaf of same size—making 4-ft. square top when opened. Artistic, practical, substantial. A bargain.

This $3 Dining Chair $1.70

Golden or weathered oak, box construction, cane seat, French legs, quarter-sawed back. A well made handsome chair; a genuine $3.00 value—compare it with $3.00 values elsewhere. Barker Brothers' price $1.70. Same with leather seat, $4 value, for $2.00.

Everything in summer furniture—"for less."

This $4.25 Dining Chair $2.70

Golden oak, quarter-sawed back, full boxing around seat; leather upholstered. This is a first-class chair—not a $2.70 value, but an absolute $4.25 article.

Many other styles at lowest prices.

REPUBLICANS RALLY UNDER TAFT BANNER.

Presidential Campaign Opens With Stirring Downtown Meeting at Which "Reformed Democrat" and Others Are Cheered Lustily.

FIFE and drum corps played in the streets last night and Republican orators "pointed with pride" from platforms festooned with the national colors. The campaign for Taft, Sherman and Prosperity is formally opened.

The big rally in the center of the city was held in the rooms of the Republican League, No. 122½ South Spring street; there half a dozen speakers sounded as many keynotes of the campaign.

One of them was a "reformed Democrat," an old Tammany Hall orator, who turned his back on the unwashed, for this campaign at least, when they squabbled in Denver over the wording of the resolutions paying a last tribute to their dead chieftain, Grover Cleveland, fearing to pay too much honor to his memory lest it detract from the luster of the halo of the "peerless one."

The first, Sixth and Ninth Ward Republican clubs held Taft meetings in their respective districts. In each club a working committee was selected to arrange for the prosperity campaign which is to be a feature of this year's national election.

At each meeting, resolutions were adopted indorsing the proposed issue of bonds for "good roads" and urging all loyal Republicans to vote for them as a part of the prosperity campaign.

VICTORY'S CLARION NOTE.

There was a note of victory in every address delivered at the Third Ward Club meeting, and the cheers that punctuated the hits made by the speakers gave evidence of the pent-up enthusiasm that has been fomenting in the bottle during four glad years of Roosevelt Republicanism.

Former Judge J. A. Gibson, chairman of the evening, said that the campaign just opening is to be a contest between those who say things and the ones who do things—a campaign between Demo-Socialistic theory, and staunch Republican practice.

"The Democrats are claiming that the Roosevelt policies are their policies, that Roosevelt stole them out of a Democratic platform," said Chairman Gibson. "They forget that the principles of right are as eternal as the stars, that these can be compassed by no single party or platform.

"But the principles of the Bryan Democracy have no place in a Republican platform. In no two Bryan campaigns are these to be the same; the principles on which he has sought to be elected have been discredited, and even the Democrats have consigned them to the political scrap heap.

PARTY'S LACK OF FAITH.

"Bryan represents the apostles of State rights. Why is it that during the last twelve years he has not succeeded in inducing any State to inaugurate one of his proposed reforms? Most of his principles can be applied better by States than by the national government; but have you found any State adopting them? The Democrats themselves have shown a surprising lack of faith in their leader's policies; there is not enough left of them to be really worth fighting."

Former Gov. Gosper spoke on the protection policies of the Republican party. He said that Cleveland started with a tariff for revenue only, and that he is followed by a man who is apparently a candidate for revenue only.

Attorney E. J. Fleming urged the Third Ward Republicans to make one of the features of the State campaign this fall the election of Assemblymen and Senators pledged to work and vote for a bill abolishing the California race tracks. He said this should be the keynote of the State campaign.

Second only to the cheers for Taft and Sherman were those which greeted this demand for anti-race-track legislation; the Third Warder indorsed it by riotous acclamation.

BLACK'S BIG HIT.

Col. George N. Black of the Republican State Executive Committee paid his compliments to Bryan and the Democratic platform in an address sparkling with epigramatic wit. He said, in part:

"Denunciation and abuse seem to be peculiarly the weapons of losers and of Democrats. A Democrat usually figures that if he can prove that his adversary is a bigamist and a chicken thief, his own virtue will shine out the more luminously by contrast, and his own character will be proven thereby to be as pure and spotless as the driven snow.

"Our Democratic friends—the self-appointed 'protectors of the poor' and the self-annointed high priests of the discontented and the downtrodden—have distinguished themselves most amazingly this year by nominating for the Presidency a millionaire candidate, in the person of my esteemed fellow-colonel, William J. Bryan.

"It seems they had to stop the clock Thursday night to avoid nominating him Friday morning, but in dodging one ominous superstition they rushed blindly into another. While I know nothing of such matters myself, I understand that those who follow the ponies consider it bad luck to place a bet on a 'three-time loser.'

"The Denver convention, however, rashly named for first place on the ticket a man who was defeated twice for the Presidency and once for the nomination, while for second place they picked out a man who was defeated twice for Governor of Indiana and once for the United States Senatorship.

"With such a combination of twice three-times-defeated and discredited candidates, why should they worry about so inconsequential a matter as nominating them both on Friday? [Laughter.]

"Some witty Democrat, in complaining of the dominating, domineering and obliterating influence of Mr. Bryan, said 'There is no longer any Democratic party, and William J. Bryan is its prophet.' He might have gone further and explained that there is no longer any Democratic party, because Mr. Bryan has exploited it to his profit.

OLD PARTY DEAD.

"The staid, conservative, old Democratic party died with Grover Cleveland—sturdy, honest, able, fearless, patriotic Grover Cleveland.

"It seemed incongruous and inconsistent for the Denver convention to adopt resolutions glorifying his memory, and then to deliver itself over body and soul to leaders and to policies diametrically opposed to everything he represented, and which in his career reflected luster upon his party and his country.

"The latter-day Democracy is about three-fourths socialistic, seven-eighths Populistic, 99 per cent. destructive, and the balance unclassified and unidentified. Its nearest claim to consistency has been its consistent devotion to the campaign leadership of a man who has never consistently advocated the same policies and principles two campaigns in succession. [Groans.]

"First, he was a free trader, pure and simple. Then he wanted, spectacularly, to crucify our financial system on a cross of silver, and to legislate the poor rich and the rich poor.

"Then he abandoned these visionary schemes and started out on the warpath against imperialism. But the war came along, anyhow, and Mr. Bryan (to his credit let it be said) enlisted as a volunteer, and became a colonel and an imperialist.

"Subsequently he discovered that the country would go to rack and ruin unless the government bought up all the railroads in the United States with William J. Bryan at Washington as chief engineer. An indignant howl from South of Mason and Dixon, however, caused Col. Bill to drop that issue like a hot potato, because it was made manifest to him that the Solid South wouldn't vote for any man who proposed anything even remotely suggesting Federal interferance with so sacred an institution as the Jim Crow car.

MILLIONAIRE HIMSELF.

"The Colonel was then forced to start in again on the millionaire class; not too hard, only just hard enough, because Col. Bryan is a millionaire himself now and he knows how it feels to have a bank account, a bald head, and adipose tissue.

"The most dangerous and sinister doctrine which Bryan ever advocated for the sake of a few wretched votes is his anti-injunction attack upon the integrity of the courts, seeking at the behest of demogogues to cripple the powers of the judiciary and to put into the hearts of the judges the fear of the mob. [Cheers.]

"The Denver platform purports to be a cure-all for the imaginary ills of the body politic. It bears a close resemblance or affinity to one of those patent medicine nostrums that is 'good for anything you've got, and if you haven't got it, it will give it to you, besides helping you some.'

"It presents the usual calamity cry, the usual abuse of everything Republican and progressive, the usual covert appeal to the shiftless and the thriftless, the usual sneer and attack upon business success and the usual attempt to set sails to catch votes from every evil wind that blows across the troubled sea of politics.

"The destiny of this, our country, the greatest nation upon God's spinning footstool, shall never be entrusted to the insincere and untrustworthy advocates of such impossible follies and fallacies. What we want is "Taft, Sherman and Prosperity." [Continued applause.]

BACK TO THE FAITH.

Grant R. Bennett, an old Tammany Club orator, was the first Democrat to come forward and announce publicly his conversion to Taft and prosperity. He said that he went astray in 1884 with hundreds of other young men just out of college carrying more enthusiasm than wisdom. He says he has now returned to the faith of his fathers.

"They are going home from Denver," said Bennett, "and I am glad I am not with them.

"That convention reminds me very much of a funeral I once attended in a Southern State. I was riding in the front carriage with the mourners. About half-way to the cemetery the horses drawing the hearse bolted and started at a wild gallop over ditches and across lots. To my surprise our driver started our carriage after them.

"I rose, caught him by the arm and called, 'Hold back, can't you see they are running away.'

"Giving the horses full rein, he called back over his shoulder, 'Young man, in this country it is customary for the mourners to follow the hearse.' That is what the Democrats are doing. I am tired of following the hearse. [Laughter and cheers.]

"A BAD HABIT."

"Some one has said that politics is a prejudice; that is a mistake. Politics is a habit, and Democratic politics has become a bad habit.

"To me the Democratic party is fascinating; it is as full of promises as a woman, but it is short on performances. During the last twelve years the Democratic party has been—um—um, well; it has alternated between a Parker chill and a Bryan fever." [Laughter.]

In an eloquent conclusion, Mr. Bennett said that the Democrats of the Cleveland school see in Taft the tactful, Taft the truthful, Taft the triumphant advocate of liberty under the law, a promise of better days yet to come.

CAPT. SHEA ELOQUENT.

Capt. T. J. Shea of the Soldiers' Home welcomed those present in behalf of the Army and Navy League. Capt. Shea is a fluent speaker, and the Third Warders did not protest when he added to his campaign keynote a tone of local politics, which indicates that he is to be the Soldiers' Home candidate for the Assembly from the Seventy-fourth District. Capt. Shea said, in part:

"Speaking for myself as a veteran soldier of the Civil War, and for my comrades present with me tonight, I will say that we are more than pleased to be with you, and heartily join with the Third Ward Republican Club in your many sincere and enthusiastic indorsements of the glorious and patriotic work done by the grand body of men which constituted one of the most thorough, businesslike national conventions ever held in Chicago, or elsewhere—performing and completing a work that indicates further progress and greater prosperity for this great nation of ours.

"From the rank and file of American citizenship, or American soldiery, no more capable, sincere, honest, faithful, or better qualified citizen could have been selected for the highest place than the one named at the Chicago convention, William Howard Taft of the great State of Ohio, a State that has given us first a Grant, second a Hayes, third a Garfield, fourth a Harrison, and fifth a McKinley—a State that on the third day of November next will send to the Presidential chair her sixth contribution in the person of William Howard Taft—just as good and brainy as her other gifts, and the biggest boy she ever sent to Washington.

"From February 15, 1861, when the flag of our country was fired on at Fort Sumter, down to the present moment, the living loyal men of those days, who wore the blue, have been and will remain steadfast in support of the principles of the Republican party, realizing and recognizing it as the party of freedom for all, rich or poor, black or white; as a party of progress, as a party of prosperity, and as the party that furnished the arms, ammunition and all other supplies which enabled us loyal men and boys then—gray-haired veterans now—to save the Union, and protect its resplendent flag from ignominy, disgrace and degradation in the eyes of the nations of the civilized world."

WILLIS PRAISES CONVENTION.

Attorney Frank R. Willis complimented the Republican convention for the sturdy manner in which it repelled the assaults of the labor unionites in preparing the party platform, which he praised as one of the greatest documents promulgated by the Republican party.

Justice J. W. Summerfield made an appeal for support for James McLachlan for Congress. Chairman Gibson held the watch on each speaker, limiting him to ten minutes. The oratory alternated with musical selections furnished by the Mizpah Glee Club, which will be one of the features of the Los Angeles county campaign.

Flexible Rubber Plates

Have many advantages over the old thick, cumbersome, ordinary rubber plates and even over gold plates, being much lighter thinner. These plates are flexible, only a trifle thicker than heavy writing paper, fit closer and adhere better to the roof of the mo Particles of food and small seeds cannot get under them. They will last longer, are stronger than any others and will not break, as will give first, being flexible. Dr. Schiffman's own process and made only by us.

I have always heretofore shared with most people the dread of a dentist's chair. But now am sure I shall not dread the ordeal again, for at your office I can truthfully say, "I was not hurt at all." Even the bridgework which I had dreaded was painless and most satisfactory.
MRS. EARL ROGERS.

It gives me great pleasure to state that Dr. Schiffman extracted an impacted wisdom tooth for me, which had been giving me great annoyance for years. It was extracted absolutely without a particle of pain to me. It was easily worth 100 times the amount paid.
ROBERT MARSH,
Of Robert Marsh & Co., H. W. Hellman Bldg.

Dr. Schiffman placed bridgework in my mouth which has proven, after five years' use, to be a perfect piece of work and durable. Is now quite as serviceable as original teeth. A very difficult tooth was pulled before this bridgework was put in, and "it didn't hurt a bit."
C. S. SPRECHER,

LETTER RECEIVED BY WIFE OF ARCTIC EXPLORER COOK.

Friends Feared He Had Met Disaster and Were Planning Relief Expedition — Writes That He Expects to Reach Pole and Tells of His Prospects and Hopes.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn, the explorer, who is trying to reach the North Pole by a new route through Nansen Strait, and whose friends were fearful that he had met disaster in the frozen North, has been heard from.

A letter written by the explorer last December was received today by his wife, who is living in Brooklyn, stating that he hoped to start for his goal in January. No word has been received from Dr. Cook since last October, and his friends announced recently that an effort would be made to send a special expedition to find him.

The letter received today was written at Ocmanui, Westenholme Sound, and bears date of December 6, 1907. It is as follows:

"I take this opportunity to send a letter to Upernivik by Rasmussen during this moon, and I must hasten to report our progress to the present. AFTER THE POLE.

WORD FROM FROZEN NORTH.

LETTER RECEIVED BY WIFE OF ARCTIC EXPLORER COOK.

Friends Feared He Had Met Disaster and Were Planning Relief Expedition — Writes That He Expects to Reach Pole and Tells of His Prospects and Hopes.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—Dr. Frederick Cook of Brooklyn, the explorer, who is trying to reach the North Pole by a new route through Nansen Strait, and whose friends were fearful that he had met disaster in the frozen North, has been heard from.

A letter written by the explorer last November was received today by his wife, who is living in Brooklyn, stating that he hoped to start for his goal in January. No word has been received from Dr. Cook since last October, and his friends announced recently that an effort would be made to send a special expedition to find him.

The letter received today was written at Omanui, Westenholme Sound, and bears date of December 6, 1907. It is as follows:

"I take this opportunity to send a letter to Upernivik by Rasmussen during this season, and I must hasten to tell our progress to the present. I have a hundred dogs, and as many more as I desire, with fifteen of the best men of the tribe assembled here for the attack over the new road across Elsmoreland out by way of Nansen Strait and back by Kennedy Channel, thus using to good advantage the drift and the musk oxen in Elsmoreland.

"All of my equipment is ready and we hope to stast for the goal late in January. With men and dogs, well-fed, and under normal conditions, like my predecessors, I feel confident, as our equipment means perfection. When we return we will push southward at once to Cape York and Upernivik."

MANY WILL COME FROM AFAR.

Lawyers of National Repute to Attend Coming Session of New Mexico Bar Association.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SANTA FE, (N. M.) July 8.—What is expected to be the most important meeting in the history of the New Mexico Bar Association will convene in this city on August 31 for a four days' session.

The coming meeting is of particular importance because important reforms will be taken up, and this will attract the leading members of the bar not only in the territory, but also from other parts of the country.

Among the distinguished guests at the meeting will be Solicitor General Henry M. Hoyt and Secretary of the Interior, James R. Garfield, of Washington; Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, Attorney General Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, and other distinguished barristers. All these are down on the programme for addresses.

Local members of the bar association are making arrangements for the entertainment of the visiting lawyers on an elaborate scale. Two days of the session will be given over entirely to social gaiety. Trips will be made over the famous Scenic Highway which traverses the Pecos National Forest and to the historic cliff dwellings in Pajarito Park. An elegant banquet on the evening of the last day of the session will mark the end of the program.

TO ANNUL STRANGE MARRIAGE.

Groom, 82, Is Now Dead, But Heirs Want Ceremony Nullified and Accuse Young Bride.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—Annullment of a marriage that no longer exists is sought in a bill filed in the Circuit Court last evening by heirs of the late Frederick Schramm, 82 years old, who is averred to have been "broken, old, decrepit and insane," and took for his wife Elizabeth Fritz, "24 years old, of fair features, calculating, scheming and shrewd intellect."

Following the marriage, property worth $40,000, it is charged, passed into the control of the woman whom the heirs have made defendant in the suit. Another action to have the will declared null and void is pending in the Circuit Court.

In November, 1906, it is asserted, the woman was employed as a servant at $4 a week to care for the old man's home at No. 286 North Ashland avenue. December 27 she persuaded him to marry her secretly, it is charged. Ninety days later he died of apoplexy.

On entering the Schramm home, it is averred, the woman began to exercise a system of fraudulent practices with a view of obtaining his property. He was possessed of an "insane delusion that he had become rejuvenated," and, it is declared, the defendant encouraged this belief and finally married him.

COAL SUPPLY GIVING OUT.

Expert Estimates It Will Be All Gone by Year 2055, Because of Growing Consumption.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—If the consumption of anthracite coal continues at the same rate at which it has been going on for the last several years, it is estimated that the supply will be entirely exhausted in the year 2055, says Edward W. Parker of the United States Geological Survey.

He adds, by that time, "according to the records up to date, the United States will be using more than 2,000,000,000 tons a year—2,300,000,000, to be nearer exact.

The average annual production during the decade from 1916 to 1925 will be about 600,000,000 tons. The total production in 1907 was 480,450,042 tons."

CHARGES DISMISSED.

On the District Attorney's motion, Justice Summerfield yesterday dismissed a charge of uttering a worthless check that had been lodged against Deputy Constable W. H. Weaver of Redondo by Evan Lewis.

DRUIDS WILL CELEBRATE.

Members of Magnolia Grove, No. 97, United Ancient Order of Druids, will celebrate the ninth anniversary of the organization of the Grove tomorrow evening at Druids Hall, No. 128 North Main street. There will be boxing contests, music, recitations and refreshments.

DOC HOUGHTON JAILED.

Former Councilman Casts in Lot With Reds and Just Escapes Martyrdom.

After declaring that he was a martyr in the cause of "free speech," and that he would rot in the City Jail with the remainder of the reds, Dr. Arthur D. Houghton, former Councilman from the Sixth Ward, "welched" when he was arrested last night at Seventh street and Grand avenue on the charge of speaking on the street without a permit. He wanted bail and wanted it quickly when he reached the Police Station. Having only 15 cents on his person, he telephoned to several of his friends to scurry around for $200 bail and deposit it as soon as possible.

Houghton ate a large dinner at the Bristol Café before he repaired to Seventh street and Grand avenue, where about 200 socialists and labor-unionites were waiting for him. He went arm in arm through the crowd with two socialist friends, and was cheered. At last he mounted a soap box and began to speak. Houghton had hardly emitted a dozen words before he was arrested and taken to the Police Station.

"If they had given me time," he said last night, "I was going to explain my position in the matter. When I was in the Council I was opposed to the ordinance which prohibited free speech. At the time of its passage, I told the Councilmen that I would violate the ordinance whenever I felt disposed.

"I am not a socialist, and never was. When I went up to speak to the crowd I had no intention of remaining in jail. I have some important business to attend to, and I expect to secure bail."

Cloudsley Johns, whose wife is now in the City Jail on the charge of violating the same ordinance, said last night that Houghton had pledged himself to the "cause," and had agreed to remain in jail until his case was settled.

Late in the evening former Councilman George H. Smith put up the necessary $200 bail, and Houghton escaped martyrdom.

As soon as Dr. Houghton was led away by the police, S. L. Dodge addressed the crowd. He, too, was arrested and in default of $200 bail, was locked up.

CRAZED BY GRIEF.

One Hour After Wife's Death, Widower Takes Strychnine, But His Life Is Saved.

Crazed by grief over the death of his wife, Matthew H. Gibbs, a cement worker, attempted to commit suicide by taking strychnine, last night, an hour after his wife died, at their home at No. 369 Bryan street. His young and pretty daughter, Margaret, assisted by neighbors, who were preparing Mrs. Gibbs's body for burial, immediately administered antidotes, and saved his life.

For several weeks Mrs. Gibbs had been ill, and her husband was constantly by her bedside. When she died he left the house. He was found an hour later by his daughter, wandering about the streets aimlessly. When he returned home with her, he went into the pantry and saw a bottle containing strychnine. After swallowing half the contents, he rushed into the dead woman's room and knelt beside the body. A moment later his daughter discovered that he had taken the poison.

An emergency call was sent to the Police Station, but when the ambulance arrived, Dr. Wiley found that the man was out of danger. He refused to go to the hospital.

Gibbs is 45 years old and has three children. His wife will be buried today.

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED.

Pioneer Spring-street Firm Changes on Account of Illness of One of Its Members.

The most interesting mercantile change of some time in the city was the dissolution, yesterday, of the partnership of Siegel Brothers, one of the pioneer business houses. For twenty-one years the two brothers have been conducting an extensive trade in men's hats and haberdashery in the Nadeau Hotel building.

Harry Siegel, one of the most stanch, progressive, and public-spirited business men of Los Angeles, now retires on account of failing health, which has for sometime necessitated inactivity. His interests have been purchased by Nate Siegel, the other brother, who possesses similar traits, and is now sole proprietor, although the name of Siegel Brothers is to be continued, as heretofore, and at the same location. A general reorganization is to take place at once, according to Mr. Siegel, who announces that he will proceed on more aggressive lines than ever.

THIRSTY MAN THROWS DIAMONDS TO THE WINDS.

Residents of South Pasadena and Alhambra Identify Treasures. Pasadena Postoffice Shows Big Gain in Receipts—Record on Annandale Golf Links.

Offices of The Times, No. 25 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, July 12.—Under the pretense that he was thirsty, a man who gives his name as Julian Wieland, persuaded Marshal W. H. Johnson of South Pasadena to let him go to a faucet on a heavily-shaded lawn and, under the protection of the night, succeeded in throwing away nearly $1000 worth of jewelry which he is charged with stealing from homes in Alhambra and South Pasadena.

About 8:15 o'clock Friday night Johnson was summoned to the home of E. H. Hobart, No. 1610 South Marengo boulevard. While on his way there he heard the barking of dogs and retraced his steps, just in time to see Wieland coming out of an alley. As he answered the description of the man who had been seen by Miss Hobart prowling suspiciously around her residence, Johnson took him to the house for identification. The man was arrested on suspicion and while on the way to the Police Station here threw away $1000 worth of jewelry. However, upon being searched at the Police Station, two gold bracelets were found on him. These were identified by Miss Hobart as her property, much to that young woman's surprise as she did not believe that Wieland entered her house.

M. A. Balchior of No. 915 Bushnell avenue, Alhambra, has identified a diamond-studded gold watch, a gold chain set with opals, a solitaire diamond ring and a pearl and diamond brooch, which were found near the faucet. Some other articles of minor value cannot positively be identified and it may be that Wieland is responsible for other thefts that have been reported in Alhambra and surrounding country.

Wieland was arraigned in Judge H. H. Klamroth's court yesterday morning and was bound over for examination on Wednesday morning. His bail was fixed at $1500, which had not been furnished late last night. Wieland is unable to give his address in Los Angeles, which adds more suspicion to the case.

POSTOFFICE DOING WELL.

A gain of nearly 6 1-2 per cent. in business for the past fiscal year over the previous twelvemonth is recorded by the local postoffice. For the twelve months just closed the receipts amounted to $95,970.07, as against $80,694.51. Receipts for June amounted to $631.12 more than for the same month in 1907, a gain of a little over 13 per cent.

BRIGADE BOYS TO CAMP.

Under full military discipline, fifty of the Boys' Brigade of the Lake Avenue Congregational Church will camp this week in the Arroyo Seco. Early Monday morning the brigade will leave the church here and will march to the Arroyo, making camp just above the first ranger's cabin. Capt. Herbert E. Pickering will be in charge and his father, Major Pickering, will visit the camp daily to inspect the quarters.

The Boys' Brigade has been organized not quite a year and has proved the most popular organization for the Sunday-School pupils. Other churches of the city are taking up work along similar lines.

Those who will make up the company are: Herbert E. Pickering, captain; Paul Brown, first lieutenant; William Brown, second lieutenant; Lloyd Stafford, Red Cross sergeant; F. Wilson, first sergeant; R. Pickering, second sergeant; J. Gordon, third sergeant; S. Chamberlain, fourth sergeant; Corporals, King, Wood, Coman and Norris; J. Bartlett, bugler; H. Morris, chaplain; privates, H. Kartwell, K. Smith, C. Jones, N. Presser, B. Kelley, E. Dener, N. Haddock, C. Marshall, F. Marshall, H. Case, G. Gilbert, Mettier, C. Diffey, C. Lewis, N. Lewis and S. Gordon.

GOLF AT ANNANDALE.

The record for Annandale golf was made yesterday by T. P. Mumford. During the regular Saturday sweepstakes play he covered the eighteen-hole course in seventy-nine strokes. Mr. Mumford was unfortunate in not winning yesterday, for Alexander Macfeigan tied him for first place, with a handicap of 9 and 4 up on bogey. When the tie is played off, the winner will receive the club cup put up for the match, and the loser will receive a box of golf balls. E. L. Eliot and W. Morris tied for third place. They will play off their match next Saturday.

C. S. Byington won from Colin Stewart in playing off the tie for the Independence Day putting contest for the handsome cup offered by H. A. Whitley. A new approach was tried, and Mr. Byington made the distance in ten strokes.

Those who took part in the play yesterday with good scores are: Rev. S. G. Dunham, C. S. Byington, E. H. Strafford, W. I. Morrison, T. P. Mumford, Colin Stewart, W. H. Bennett, Edward Eliot, E. L. Eliot, Benjamin Blossom and N. W. Leithead.

The service of the Pacific Electric from this city to the club is proving very satisfactory.

FUNERAL OF MAJ. CORSON.

The funeral of Maj. Joseph B. Corson will be held this afternoon at No. 609 North Hill avenue at 4 o'clock. Rev. R. M. Webster of El Monte and Rev. E. L. Conger, will officiate. Burial will be private.

OCEAN PARK.

OCEAN PARK, July 11.—July 17 has been selected as the date for a congress of the health and pure-food physicians of Southern California. The gathering will be at the auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Poland have departed for San Francisco, en route to Honolulu, where they will make their home.

Raymond Wayman has returned to this beach, having disposed of his interests at Newport.

N. F. Cassidy, late of Wyoming, has taken charge of the Evening Journal as editor and manager.

The day brought no new developments in the scandal involving Sergt. Murray Bowers of the local police force. The Trustees are continuing their investigation into the charges that have been made, and these, it is understood, will be the subject of inquiry at the session of the board Monday evening. The investigation will perhaps be held behind closed doors.

RESCUE AT AVALON.

Pasadenan Saved from Drowning by Athlete—Fire in Paint Shop—Many Hotel Guests.

AVALON, July 11.—Charles E. Stimson of Pasadena had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon. He went in bathing, in company with his son, George W. Stimson, and was seized with cramps. His son swam to his rescue, but found himself unable to save him, and shouted for help. C. E. Van Cort, the Los Angeles athlete, heard the cry, plunged into the water, and brought the old gentleman to shore.

At 1 o'clock this morning whistles aroused the population of the island. From the roof of the paint shop on Metropole avenue flames were bursting, and had it not been for the splendidly-organized fire department, a destructive fire would have followed. The loss was small.

QUICK WORK.

A local grocery firm sent a wireless message to Los Angeles, this morning, and received an answer in exactly four minutes.

Daniel Frohman, the New York theatrical manager, has engaged rooms at the Metropole for himself and wife over Sunday. Mrs. Frohman, who is charming Margaret Illington on the stage, will enjoy a two days' rest here previous to her Los Angeles engagement in "The Thief."

WOMEN WIN VETERANS.

Female Cooks and Waitresses at Soldiers' Home Quickly Justify Their Appointments.

SOLDIERS' HOME, July 11.—The wisdom of change in the cuisine and table service, whereby women cooks and waitresses have been substituted for veterans, is already manifest in the satisfaction expressed, especially by patients in the hospital. Restaurateurs in the near-by town of Sawtelle, heretofore liberally patronized by diners-out among dissatisfied veterans of the home, are losing custom, and one or two have already gone out of business.

The sum appropriated by Congress for "construction" at this branch for the current fiscal year was $19,500; for development of water supply, $8000; addition to the hospital, $6400; for extension to the power-house, $5100.

VETERANS ARE WRITERS.

The annual report of Postmaster George A. Dills makes an admirable showing. The total number of pieces handled by him and his two assistants was 442,150; number of money orders issued, 4750; value, $78,433.68; number paid, 1450, amounting to $43,163; registered letters and parcels sent, 1601; received, 800; letters and postal cards sent, 132,336; received, 96,070; newspapers and packages sent, 30,296; received, 121,931; free letters sent, 39,091; received, 30,925.

MORE CHANGES.

Additional changes, which took place today, in the non-commissioned staff and clerkships are: T. A. McLaughlan, late Co. A, Thirteenth New York Infantry, appointed commissary sergeant, vice Redfield, resigned; W. T. McCrindle, formerly clerk, promoted to quartermaster-sergeant, vice Lasher, resigned; Frank Smith, late Co. B, Twenty-second Ohio Infantry, appointed commissary clerk, vice Freckman, resigned, and Frank E Conkling, late Co. B, Eighteenth United States Infantry (Spanish-American War,) appointed clerk in quartermaster department, vice McCrindle, promoted.

GIVE IN.

PLEAD GUILTY IN LIQUOR CASE.

VIRGINIA HOTEL DIRECTORS ACCEPT INEVITABLE.

Will Now Rely Upon Charter Revision in Order to Make It Possible to Get Table License—Starving Girl Seeks Refuge in Camp of Graders.

LONG BEACH, July 11.—The directors of the Long Beach Hotel Company met today and decided that there is not much chance of winning in the liquor violation case now pending on a writ of habeas corpus. It was therefore agreed to enter a plea of guilty, pay the fine and close the case. They will then await the effort to amend the city charter to make it possible to have a table license.

BLONDE RESCUED.

Bessie Davis, a pretty 17-year-old blonde, was taken in charge today by Chief Williams and Police Matron Bixby and sent to the home of her mother in Tulare. She was rescued last evening from a grading camp by Mrs. Laura Clayton, who lives nearby. The girl's story is that she wanted to make her own way in the world and has been working in Oakland. A week ago she secured promise of a position in Long Beach, but when she arrived it was filled. She tramped the streets for two days seeking employment and then, faint with hunger, was attracted to the grading camp, by odors from the kitchen. She told her story, was fed and given a place to sleep. The men were rough but considerate, and offered her no indignity. But Mrs. Clayton saw her in the camp and fearing for her safety induced the girl to go to her home. Then she told the police. The girl was humbled and willing to go home, so Miss Bixby, from her own purse, purchased a ticket and sent her to Tulare.

GENIAL GEORGE.

George Stanlon of Los Angeles, came down from that city on the last car last night, went to the home of Mrs. Adelaide Christenson at Third and Cerritos avenue, kicked in the door and drove the woman and her five small children out into the night. Later he relented and allowed the children to return, but denied admittance to the woman. When the police arrived Stanlon was engaged on a quart of whisky, his face bleeding from cuts, and the five children lying asleep about the floor. This morning the woman refused to appear against him and Stanlon escaped with a fine of $5 for drunkenness.

DEMOCRATS REVIVE.

The few Democrats who live in Long Beach have revived under the magic of the nomination of Bryan and have organized a Democratic league and a Bryan club. The officers for the latter are: President, S. G. Long; secretary, E. F. Davis; treasurer, C. A. Miller. Only a preliminary organization of the league has been made, a committee of six being named to submit a plan for permanent organization. About twenty-six attended the preliminary after a week's persistent hustling.

One hundred and twenty-five members of the Southern California Credit Association arrived here at 4 o'clock and after an ocean trip to the breakwater, sat down to a banquet at Hotel Virginia. Addresses were made by Frank Tyrrell of Los Angeles and others.

FESTIVAL OF THE SEAS.

A joint meeting of the Chambers of Commerce and Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association will be held Tuesday evening to discuss the project of a five-days' carnival to be called the "Festival of the Seas." One of the announced features will be the production of "H. M. S. Pinafore" on a ship anchored alongside the south end of the wharf, with a chorus of 100 voices.

Mrs. H. B. Wynkoop of St. Louis, who is here with her husband on their honeymoon, went bathing today and after dressing missed three costly gold combs which, aside from their intrinsic worth, were prized as the wedding gift of her husband. Search for the valuables has been futile.

FIVE-MINUTE TALKS.

The religious societies of the city will hold a mass meeting at the Auditorium tomorrow afternoon to discuss the trend of organization and club life in the various societies and churches. Five-minute talks will be given by eight representatives of as many church societies.

G. W. Squires, residing at No. 1170 Elm avenue, has a sample of Bermuda, or Devil grass, taken from a lawn on Ocean avenue, which measures eleven feet, six inches from the ban to the end of the main stem. From this main branch have grown other stems and laterals which total a length of 107 feet, six inches.

DOG ATTACKS BABY.

A dog attacked two-year-old Harold McCreary this morning and throwing him to the ground, tried to bite the baby, but the stout jacket of the boy prevented the teeth from penetrating, though the abdomen skin shows black and blue imprints. The animal was beaten off.

A lively contest is on between several boys and girls for scholarships offered by Chautauqua to winning sellers of course tickets. Present indications are that Frank Robinson of the High School class of '08, who won a gold medal for debating, will win the University of Southern California scholarship.

ARE RE-EMPLOYED.

At a meeting of the school board today Messrs. Brewer, Hillary, Middough and Robertson were reëmployed as janitors and Robert W. Wrisley as gardener. Miss Ida Cary of San Francisco, a graduate of the Santa Barbara Training School, was engaged as assistant teacher in the sloyd department.

In order to safeguard bathers as much as possible, the bath-house company added F. K. Daniels to the life-saving crew. Daniels, who hails from Deming, N. M., is a strong swimmer and a good boatman.

CHAUTAUQUA.

The Chautauqua management has secured for its initial musical feature Tuesday night the Orpheus Club of Los Angeles under the direction of Prof. J. P. Dupuy. Assisting will be Wenzel Kopta, the Bohemian violin virtuoso, also of Los Angeles.

Weymouth Crowell, who has been awarded the contract for the new Carnegie library, will begin work within ten days and expects to use Long Beach labor and materials as far as possible. He is under penalty to complete the building by February 1 and will put up a bond of $8600 on his contract and $17,200 to guarantee payment of labor and material.

BOY RESTORES JEWELS.

Mrs. Peter Hanley of New Mexico, who lost a pocketbook Thursday containing two rings valued at $125 each and found the empty purse yesterday in a vacant lot, had her jewels restored this morning by a boy who found them in the grass, a short distance from where the purse lay. It is supposed the looter of the pocketbook lost his plunder after throwing the purse away.

WOMAN BEATS DOG CATCHER.

Dog Catcher Hall today caught a dog belonging to Mrs. Esther Howard at State and Pacific and thereby brought trouble on himself. The fair owner attacked him rough-shod and during his efforts to get free, other women opened the wagon and let loose half a dozen canines. Hall tore himself loose, and jumping on his wagon, drove furiously away with his hair mussed and his clothing torn.

Ten choir boys of Pasadena Episcopal Church, accompanied by Choirmaster Hallett, are spending their vacation at Osmer Tent City on the beach at Seaside Park.

Alpheus A. Conover, aged 66, who had lived in Long Beach six years and who owned considerable real estate in this city, died last evening at his home, No. 907 Pine street. He had been ill for many months. Two daughters are left, Miss Vera Conover and Mrs. F. E. Shaw, the latter having gone to Lake Tahoe recently with her husband. Mr. Conover, for many years before coming to Long Beach, was a resident of Elko, Nev., where he was engaged in ranching and mining.

The efficient service and good order maintained at the Long Beach rink accounts for its increasing popularity.

INSPECT NEW WORKS.

Engineers' and Architects' Association of Southern California Visits Santa Monica.

SANTA MONICA, July 11.—Sixty members of the Engineers' and Architects' Association of Southern California came here today, inspected the reinforced concrete pier and magneto-electrolytic sewer system and later were banqueted. They arrived from Los Angeles by special electric car at 2:30 p.m. They were met by President Alf. Morris of the City Council and City Engineer T. H. James, who accompanied them to the site of the new pier, where Consulting Engineer Edwin H. Warner did the honors. The visitors saw the sticks of artificial stone cast in a vertical position and witnessed the moving of one to its place in the pier, where the operation of jetting it into the sand was observed. An inspection was made of the shore end of the structure. The casting forms had been removed, showing the concrete struts and girders and the junction points with the bracketed heads of the piles.

HAD TASTED WORSE WATER.

From the pier the observers moved into the concrete room under the surface of the street, where the magneto-electrolytic sewage treatment tanks are in operation. The demonstration proved of unusual interest, owing to the new and novel ideas developed in this, the only plant of the kind in the country. The process was fully explained by Henry Hawgood, consulting engineer, and Messrs. Chandler and Lautzenheiser, the builders of the plant. The engineers saw the sewage of the entire city being run through the electric tanks and witnessed the operation which caused the affluent to pass over the weirs, odorless and apparently harmless. However, none of the engineers or architects underwent the experience of an old man who was inspecting the tanks yesterday. While watching the affluent dashing into the outfall the man in charge of the tanks took a glass, dipped it in the flood and handed it to the visitor for the purpose of demonstrating that there was no offensive odor. The attendant was called to another part of the room and the guest took a sip of the fluid. He had swallowed considerable of it before learning that it was not a new spring that he was testing. He confessed that he had tasted worse water.

BANQUET AT BRISTOL.

The engineers spent the afternoon visiting the different attractions and viewing the points of interest along the bay and gathered in the evening at the Bristol pier, where a banquet was spread.

Henry Hawgood explained the principles upon which the electrolytic sewer system had been developed.

Edwin H. Warner, supervising architect for the pier, spoke on the subject of reinforced concrete and its use in sea water.

Those present were: Donald W. Campbell, Harry Hawgood, E. L. Swain, T. H. James, G. W. Newman, Henry Z. Osborne, Jr., Frank C. Ayars, S. J. Van Orman, Lester H. Gibson, A. B. Waddingham, George P. Robinson, W. B. Clapp, E. R. Dart, J. A. Allen, D. S. Halladay, Ivory B. Noble, Raymond G. Osborne, George W. Le Sage, Theo A. Eisner, Arthur B. White, S. F. Pearson, G. Reichard, Thomas E. Stanton, Jr., J. A. Osgood, William F. Bixby, G. W. Sherwood, H. G. Miller, D. P. Rittle, W. T. Knowlton, Arthur B. Benton, Henry E. Brett, N. S. Whitman, Arthur S. Bent, George R. King, A. A. Bennett, J. J. Backus, H. R. Postle, T. D. Allin, C. C. Brown, Henry Iles, W. D. Monroe, A. A. Schmidt, Charles Kern, W. P. Waite, F. L. Olmsted, U.S.A., R. H. Manahan, A. A. Hubbard, J. O Marsh, Charles Forman, Jr., C. P. Chandler, L. G. Lauzenheiser, Alfred Morris and Edwin H. Warner.

HERMOSA BEACH.

HERMOSA BEACH, July 11.—The Hermosa Land Company has a number of men engaged in preparing accommodations for the summer visitors. Cottages are being renovated and park seats scattered at convenient points for viewing the scenery. Yesterday a party of men located a life line 500 feet long, on the beach south of the pier. This is regarded as one of the best surf bathing spots along the beach. The absence of the life line alone has prevented it from being one of the most popular.

ESTUDILLO FOR STATE SENATOR.

NOMINATED AT RIVERSIDE BY REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

After Tenth Ballot Four Orange County Delegates Break Away from Whittaker—Holyrood Hotel Case Settled Out of Court—Bride of Year Dies.

RIVERSIDE, July 11.—Miguel Estudillo of Riverside was nominated for State Senator by the Thirty-ninth District Republican Senatorial Convention, which convened in the Y.M.C.A. hall shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. The convention was called to order by C. L. McFarland, secretary of the Senatorial District Committee, in the absence of the chairman.

George A. French of Riverside nominated J. H. Whittaker of Orange for temporary chairman, and he was selected by acclamation as was also Maurice Griffin of Riverside, secretary of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, for temporary secretary.

After a ten minute recess, the chairman named the following committees:

On Credentials: T. S. Flaherty, of Riverside; George Bird and K. E. Watson of Orange.

On Permanent Organization and Order of Business: C. O. Barker, chairman; John Landwell, A. N. Younglove.

On Resolutions: C. W. Barton, chairman; J. W. Morrison, W. E. Waldron.

The convention then took a recess for three-quarters of an hour to allow committees time to prepare their reports.

REPORTS ADOPTED.

The report on credentials was adopted without question, but when the report of the Committee on Permanent Organization and Order of Business was read, Judge Stutsman of Tustin moved a substitute to the effect that the delegations should be polled on all questions by roll call, each delegate being required to answer to his name. Chairman Whittaker ruled the motion out of order and an appeal was taken from the ruling. The chair was sustained by vote of 16 to 7 and thereupon the report was adopted. The temporary officers were made permanent and the report provided for a secret ballot on all nominations.

The resolutions indorsed the national and State platform, the national and State administration and declared for a maintenance of existing tariff schedules upon all horticultural and agricultural products of this State. The resolutions also pledged Congressional and State representatives to a support of the Newport harbor project.

Miguel Estudillo of Riverside was placed in nomination by C. E. Rumsey and seconded by John G. North and C. O. Barker.

ELEVEN BALLOTS.

Others placed in nomination were J. H. Whittaker of Orange, ex-Assemblyman Amerige of Fullerton, W. W. Wilson of Riverside and D. K. Royer of Anaheim.

The convention balloted six times before the lunch recess, each ballot standing ten for Estudillo, being the solid Riverside delegation, two for Whittaker, two for Amerige, six for Wilson, and three for Royer.

After the lunch recess two more ballots were taken before the break came, the ballot being substantially as at the morning session. On the ninth ballot one of the Orange county men broke away, thus giving Estudillo eleven votes, lacking only one of nomination. There was the same result on the tenth ballot and on the eleventh, Estudillo was nominated receiving four of the votes of the Orange county delegation.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT.

The suit brought some time ago by David Cochrane against S. A. Sanderson, to recover possession of the Holyrood Hotel, which Cochrane deeded to Sanderson upon alleged misrepresentations made by the latter as to the value of property given in exchange, was settled out of court today. Cochrane regains possession of the Holyrood and also retains the Long Beach residence, formerly owned by Sanderson, which figured in the transaction.

The Beaumont Eucalyptus Association filed articles of incorporation in the County Clerk's office yesterday, with a capital stock of $5000. Arthur J. Burdick, ediotr of the "Gateway Gazette," is one of the directors, others associated with him in the enterprise being Clement E. Smoot and Walter L. Percy, all of Beaumont.

CHICAGO CAUSES DEATH.

Mrs. Ada Boyer Spaulding, a bride of less than a year, died day before yesterday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ellen K. Boyer, North street. Shortly after her marriage last summer, she and her young husband, Roy Spaulding, went to Chicago to make their home. The winter climate proved too severe, and Mrs. Spaulding returned to Riverside, though too late to save her life.

WILL NOT EXHIBIT.

Riverside will not maintain an exhibit at the State fair at Sacramento. This decision was reached by the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. It was at first thought the exhibit which is to be placed in the Alaska-Yukon fair at Seattle next year could be made to do duty first at Sacramento, but this was found impracticable. The County Supervisors have set aside $1000 for a Riverside county exhibition at Seattle.

The Virginia, Long Beach, equaled by none. Moderate rates for the summer.

ORANGE.

ORANGE, July 11.—Earl Hadley, aged 19, last night confessed that he and Adrian Lawrence, aged 18, were guilty of the several hold-ups which have taken place here recently. Both young men live at El Modena.

The first named is the son of E. E. Hadley, while Adrian is a son of J. H. Lawrence. Hadley was arrested on information given by J. M. Martin, Marshal of Brawley, for robbing the Brawley Hardware and Implement Company's store. About $75 worth of goods was taken, consisting of guns, knives and razors. On searching the boy's room most of the plunder was found, and he then confessed to the many hold-ups around Orange. The boys were found working in the apricot orchard of John Pattberg, but Lawrence gave the officers the slip, and escaped. A watch was put on his home, and he was arrested about midnight.

A short time ago they held up a young lady and her brother from Tustin, who were driving home after attending the theater in Orange. The young lady thought she recognized Hadley, which probably frightened him, as the boys left immediately for Brawley.

They were sent to Los Angeles today, and tomorrow will be taken to Brawley and tried.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES MADE AT SAN BERNARDINO.

Malicious Destruction of Pipe Line and Diverting of Water Among Accusations — Newberry-Younger Troubles May Soon Be Settled. Odd Disappearance of Grocery Manager's Son.

SAN BERNARDINO, July 11.—Mrs. Anna Devore of Devore Heights has brought an action against Mrs. Anna Clapp, to enjoin her from diverting water from Ames Cañon. The complaint teems with sensational charges.

Mrs. Devore declares that interests, acting for the defendant, have maliciously entered upon the property of the plaintiff, maliciously destroyed her pipe line and diverted the water into a line illegally laid.

Both women are widows and both are wealthy.

ADJUSTMENT IN SIGHT.

Received S. S. Draper filed his final report in the Newberry-Younger matter and with the approval of the court, the troubles in which the partners have been involved for a year will be adjusted. Younger was resident manager of the grocery store and Newberry charged him with recklessness. The store was closed, but before a receiver could be appointed F. S. Younger, son of the manager, had collected almost $4000 of outstanding accounts. Of this sum he gave Draper $72, and disappeared. He has never been seen since. The report of the receiver shows a deficit of $7407.52, of which $1963.77 must be shared equally by Newberry and Younger, while $6425.63 is Younger's individual liability.

OPTION ON RANCH.

J. J. Suess has taken an option on the Frink ranch, comprising 520 acres at El Casco. The consideration is fixed at $75,000. The ranch is used for dairy purposes, and besides an excellent pasturage, has 100 acres in alfalfa, five acres in apricots and a large acreage devoted to farming purposes. There are valuable water rights. The property is owned by Messrs. Pratt and Cheney of Redlands.

ELECTRIC LINE ASSURED.

To Run from Center of Santa Ana to Site of New Sugar Factory.

SANTA ANA, July 11.—While stakes were being driven for the beet sugar factory to be built on South Main street, officers of the Southern California Sugar Company were busy securing a right of way for an electric line from the center of Santa Ana to the site of the factory. Today it was announced that this, with the exception of one piece, had been secured. Condemnation proceedings have been begun against J. M. Talcott, the owner of that piece.

The sugar company has a contract with the Pacific Electric that the line will be built, provided the right of way is given. The line will be in operation before the beginning of the next sugar beet season.

The road is to run from the Pacific Electric freight yards on East Fourth street, east of French street, south to First street, thence osuth along Maple avenue to Chestnut, where it strikes acreage property at the W. A. Stafford place, and then on south to the site of the factory, at the corner of South Main street and Delhi road.

The people of this community are jubilant over the securing of the right of way. It means a "starter" for an electric line to either Huntington Beach or Newport Beach. Huntington Beach has secured a right of way to Talbert, which is across the river from the sugar factory site.

How To Brown Hair Without Detection

Mrs. Potter's Walnut-Juice Hair Stain Can Be Applied in a Few Minutes Every Month.

There is a way of staining gray, faded or bleached hair any shade desired, from a beautiful rich brown to almost black, so that it is difficult if not impossible, for even experts to detect that the hair has been treated in any way.

This preparation has the tremendous advantage over hair-dyes of containing no silver, sulphur, lead or other poisons which invariably cause hair-falling. It has no odor, no oil, no sediment and no grease, and does not rub off on the clothing. It makes the hair grow out fluffy and luxuriant.

A liberal amount as a laboratory trial package of this walnut-juice hair-stain, together with a booklet on hair, is sent by Mrs. Potter's Hygienic Supply Co., 541 Groton Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio, in plain, sealed wrapper, if you will send twenty-five cents in stamps or coin, and if it is desired to continue the treatment, full sized packages may be obtained at drug-stores for one dollar a package.

It is applied in a few moments with the comb, and it stains nothing but the hair, and stains it evenly from tip to root. It produces any shade desired from a beautiful rich brown to almost black.

One bottle of this walnut-juice hair-stain can last a year.

Mrs. Potter's Walnut-Juice Hair Stain is recommended and for sale in Los Angeles by Owl Drug Co., 320 So. Spring and 5th and Broadway.

Long Life of Upland Woman Comes to Close—School Board Appeals to Supreme Court.

UPLAND, July 11.—Mrs. Lydia A. White died here Wednesday, aged 100. She was a resident of Upland for fifteen years. She was born in Clinton county, N. Y., June 7, 1808. She had been very feeble for several years, and was tenderly cared for by her son, Horace, himself a man well up in years. Interment was at Bellevue Cemetery.

NEW SCHOOL BOARD.

The new school board has perfected organization, A. O. Hadden, the new member, being chosen president, while Harry C. Kennedy is clerk, and Kirk Vernon the other member. The term of J. B. Goodrich has just expired. This board will have in hand the building of the new $30,000 grammar school building, now well under way on Tenth street.

TENTING IN MOUNTAINS.

The cottages and tents at Camp Baynham and Seven Oaks are rapidly filling, and the stage lines of A. V. Neff, with headquarters here, are kept busy transporting visitors to these popular resorts.

Rev. H. P. Lane, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, accompanied by W. B. Stewart and son, Milton, left yesterday for the mountains of Wyoming, where a month will be spent "camping out."

SCHOOL BOARD APPEALS.

The Board of School Trustees of Upland and A. S. McPherron, County Superintendent of Schools have appealed to the Supreme Court from the ruling of Judge Frank F. Oster of this county in the suit brought by Charles Frankish of Ontario against both appellants and the school board of Ontario, to enjoin them from forming a union high school district, to be composed of Ontario and Upland. The real basis of the suit is the Chaffey College trust fund, which some of the people of Ontario are alleged to have attempted to appropriate exclusively to the use of that city, while Upland as stoutly contends that a certain portion of the funds rightfully belongs to this district. Several months ago the question of forming a new union high school district was submitted to a vote and carried by a safe majority. Then Mr. Frankish brought his suit to enjoin the forming of the union district. It is an appeal Judge Oster decided in his favor.

Mrs. E. B. Reynolds and daughter, Marjorie, have returned from a visit to the home of the former's uncle, Col. F. M. Chapman, at Palmetto Grove Rancho, Covina.

Epworth Leagues of Two Divisions of Methodist Church Take Action at Huntington Beach.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 11.—The Methodist Chautauqua, under the direction of the Epworth League, was devoted yesterday to an address by Mrs. J. W. Patterson on the work of the Mercy and Help Department, Mrs. Lillie Burriss, Rev. E. P. Ashcroft and Byron C. Hanna also spoke. In the afternoon Rollin S. Tuttle lectured on the "Bride's Dowry" and Bishop Warne of India, delivered an address upon, "The Twentieth Century Orient." At night the great rally attracted an immense audience and Evangelists Hart and Magann created great enthusiasm.

STEP TOWARD UNION.

This morning the Leaguers went to Balboa Beach for boat rides and surf bathing. In the afternoon the president delivered his annual address and new officers were installed by Bishop Warne, after which a reception was held in their honor.

Tomorrow afternoon the entire convention of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, now in session at Pasadena, will attend the Chautauqua. This is regarded as the first step towards the union of the Epworth leagues of the two divisions of the church.

Anaemia—lack of blood—is one of the most common and dangerous of diseases. Common because the blood so often becomes impoverished, due to lack of development, over-study, over-work, and lack of exercise.

Dangerous, because of the stealthiness of its approach, often being well developed before its presence is recognized. The success of our treatments is well illustrated in hundreds of cases that we have treated and can refer you to. We have the finest equipment and offices in the city.

A Final Adjustment Forthcoming, Without Sensational Features—No Court Contest of the Will.

Certain premature, unauthorized, and hence incorrect publications concerning the affairs and present status of this case have appeared within the past few days. The effect has been to give the public a wrong impression of the facts in certain essential particulars. There is to be no court contest of the will of the late Hiram Higgins, all the parties in interest having agreed to a satisfactory settlement out of court; but as the court decree confirming the settlement has not yet been passed upon, or issued by the court (Judge Rives,) the exact terms of the settlement and final adjustment reached by the late contestants are not known outside of themselves and their attorneys, and therefore cannot yet be given to the public by proper authority or with entire accuracy. It is known, however, that among the minor features of the adjustment reached is an agreement that Mrs. Lilian C. Rand, the daughter, shall be made trustee of the estate, with the consent of all the beneficiaries, to succeed J. W. Phelps, Esq., who was originally appointed trustee under the will, and who is to resign. Mrs. Rand has consequently resigned as guardian of her minor children, Charles Rand and Lilian Rand, and W. W. Dodge, Esq., an old Burlington friend of the family, has been recommended by Mrs. Rand, and nominated by her minor children as their trustee ad litem. These are, however, only minor features of the complete adjustment reached. The principal features of the settlement will, it is presumed, be set out in the final decree of the Superior Court, which has not yet been issued. When it is issued and made public, the full extent of the satisfactory settlement arrived at will be known, and not before.

Ex-Gov. Gage, W. I. Foley and Hunsaker & Britt are the attorneys for Mrs. Rand, and Walter J. Trask, Esq., and his firm associates are counsel for the contestants, Mrs. Emma C. Higgins and her son, W. R. Higgins. The attorneys are naturally and properly reticent about the details of the settlement, but it is known that the adjustment presents no sensational features.

ELKS HAVE MERRY TIME.

Los Angeles Delegation, Delayed by Train Wreck, Organize Minstrel Troupe and Give Big Show.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Delayed by a freight wreck on the Texas and Pacific, the Angeleño Elks late last night made the most of the mishap, and soon organized a minstrel troupe in the rear car, and every person on the train was invited to participate. While the big siren whistle announced the train crews and wreckers who were trying to get a car back on the track, which was crosswise, the merry-makers heard jokes by the end men, of whom there were many, and all stars.

The interlocutor was kept busy, and with monologues, clog dances and chorus work by everybody that could get into the car, there were no dull moments. Some El Pasoans accompanied the Los Angeles crowd, and joined in the merry-making.

The siren whistle continued to wake the ranchers along the line as the special pulled out from Sierra Blanca, and without further mishap the Elks arrived in Dallas this afternoon, the siren continuing its good work of attracting attention.

INGLEWOOD.

INGLEWOOD, July 11.—There is a feeling here that incorporation should have been postponed another year. While nobody should be inclined to vote for disincorporation at the present time it is felt that the action was a little too previous and that it should not have been taken until the county highway was completed. The road does not pass through here, but stops at the northeast boundary and begins again at the southeast boundary. The connecting link is the city street. If incorporation had been postponed another twelvemonth the city would have fallen heir to a splendid highway through its territory from one side to the other, costing $3000. Inasmuch as incorporation is a fact, local pride will necessitate the construction of a first-class street through the city to connect the two ends of the Los Angeles and Hermosa and Redondo highway.

"Liner" (classified) advertisements for Sunday insertion received over the counter or by telephone after 11:30 o'clock Saturday nights will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify."

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before 10:30 o'clock Saturday nights. Rate 1¼ cents per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 77,000 copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements, ring up "The Times" any time of day or night and secure prompt and careful attention.

[illegible] Chicago near where the stock yards are. There is not a tree and scarcely a shrub often in miles of streets. On the contrary, in North Chicago once the cars get beyond the business center, the streets become very attractive, with their beautiful trees, lawns and shrubs.

An Artistic Section.

Some twenty years ago the Wilshire boulevard was laid out in this city. It was not a promising section. The soil was for the most part composed of a stiff clay. But the owners of the tract incorporated several features which have resulted in making that one of the most attractive residence sections of the city. In laying out Wilshire boulevard westward from Westlake Park a beautiful wide thoroughfare was planned, and this was carefully planted with palms and trees of different kinds. All the streets of the tract were set out with good varieties of street trees. At the end of twenty years the wisdom of these features incorporated into the tract is very evident. The houses for the most part are back some thirty feet from the street line and looking down these streets the effect is that of a beautiful park.

For New Tracts.

Those who lay out new tracts often do not see the desirability of incorporating features like this. If it is left to those who purchase the lots in separate parcels, uniformity is lost. The proper thing to do to secure a beautiful section of the city is to provide all these things when the tract is first laid out. Every such tract ought to be carefully planted in the beginning with proper varieties of street trees. In the old days we aligned the streets with eucalyptus and pepper trees. These grow to too great size. The roots become too large and lift up the sidewalks. The Grevillea was tried, but it also is too vigorous a grower and develops roots so large as to remove the sidewalks. Later we have taken to different varieties of palms. The old California fan palm is coarse and not particularly beautiful, but should be replaced with other varieties of less vigorous growth and more attractive shape.

Has a Mercantile Value.

It is like putting money in a savings bank to provide for this beautifying of the lots in any residence section of the city. As the trees grow and thus add to the attractiveness of the locality the value of the lots will rise so as to pay several hundred per cent. on the cost of planting trees and caring for them. This last is a very necessary matter. Often the trees are planted and then left to take care of themselves. They become stunted and never make a handsome growth. Provision should be made in all cases for caring for the trees on unsold lots and unimproved lots until a home is established upon them, securing the further care for the trees.

FORM NEW FIRM.

H. T. Hunter, formerly of the Van Vranken-Hunter Realty Company, and W. F. Ford of the Equitable Trust and Improvement Company, have joined forces and opened an office for the conduct of a general real estate and brokerage business in the H. W. Hellman building, under the name of the Hunter-Ford Company.

LIVE AND LET LIVE.

Never before in the history of occult science has a man of PROF. W. E. KING'S professional standing consented to place his services at the disposal of the public for such a nominal consideration. Realizing that this city has been overrun with pretenders and that many of its citizens are anxious to visit a genuine psychic PROF. W. E. KING has decided to place his consultation fee within the reach of all.

Years of study, travel in far eastern lands, and endless experience, coupled with rare psychical gifts, have made him the world's greatest living exponent of HINDOO and OCCULT MYSTICISM.

DO YOU WISH TO KNOW
How can I have good luck?
How can I succeed in business?
How can I make home happy?
How can I conquer my enemies?
How can I marry the one I choose?
How can I marry well?
How soon can I marry?
How can I conquer my rival?
How can I make any one love me?
How soon will my lover propose?
How can I get a letter?
How can I get a position?
How can I remove bad influences?
How can I control any one?
How make distant ones think of me?
How can I settle my quarrel?
How can I hold my husband's love?
How can I hold my wife's love?
PROF. W. E. KING tells all—never asks a question.

EXTRAORDINARY PSYCHIC POWER, combined with his superior knowledge of occult force, enables him to read human life with unerring accuracy from infancy to old age; his powers are wonderful and indisputable; his advice is reliable, his information clear, concise and to the point, in love, marriage, divorce, sales, wills, patents, journeys, old estates, investments, property, mortgages.

I WILL GIVE YOU THE LUCK that wins success in love, marriage, divorce, speculation, business, health and transactions of all kinds; restore lost affection; I will tell you how to gain the love of the one you desire, even though miles away; will tell you who and when you will marry.

I WILL TELL YOU HOW TO ATTRACT, control and change the thoughts, intentions, actions or character so that you will reach the highest possible development of mental vigor, health, happiness and capacity to earn wealth; how to accumulate a fortune and be happy.

I WILL TELL OF YOUR HUSBAND, WIFE, lover, friends, or enemies; who is true and who is false; will tell you every hope, fear, ambition, better than you could tell it yourself; those that are unsuccessful are made prosperous and started on the road to wealth; tell you how to make your husband or wife, or any one, be kind and true to you.
PROF. W. E. KING.

PROF. W. E. KING FORETELLS MANY EVENTS.

Some of the prophecies made by Prof. W. E. KING and which were fulfilled to the letter and day were:

The explosion of the United States warship Bennington at San Diego, Cal. It was predicted that on that day the government would lose a ship in the Pacific.

Prof. W. E. KING, Psychic, had warned the public of San Francisco's earthquake of 1906 for years.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the Japanese-Russian war. The day of the month and year was predicted on which hostilities would be begun and the victory of the Japanese.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the late President McKinley's assassination at "Buffalo Exposition."

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the assassination of Carter Harrison the elder three weeks before the weak-minded Prendergast fired the fatal shot at Chicago's chief executive.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the earthquake at Kingston, Jamaica, W.I.; the earthquake in Chile; the Thaw-White tragedy; also predicted the Galveston flood.

On Jan. 17 two earthquake shocks were felt at Oban, Scotland. They had been predicted by W. E. KING.

Prof. W. E. KING, Psychic, has foretold many great events that took place on the day set.

Prof. W. E. KING is now located at 247 S. Hill st., where he will be pleased to meet his clients and many friends.

All Los Angeles society is excited over Prof. W. E. KING'S predictions. His parlors are crowded daily.—London Mirror.

Dear Prof. W. E. KING:
My husband has returned. AFTER TWO PSYCHICS FAILED in this case, you have succeeded. I wish to commend you with my heartfelt thanks and may the Lord bless you in your work, as you certainly are a deserving prophet.
Your sincere friend,
MRS. G. E. M.

IF YOU ARE GOING TO SEE A PSYCHIC WHY NOT SEE THE BEST?

As the best is always the cheapest in the end. Better consult no clairvoyant at all than one who is unable to help you, as false prophets do more harm than good, as they leave you in a worse condition than before by their false advice, based upon guesses; but PROF. W. E. KING has an established reputation; testimonials and credentials from thousands of your own citizens and friends.

If you have already made a mistake, thrown away your money and lost confidence through dealing with much-advertised and self-styled palmists and psychics and their cheap, clap-trap methods, start from the beginning and consult PROF. W. E. KING. He will tell you frankly your condition and what you may expect; if nothing can be done for you he will not take one cent of your money. Has not this honesty on the face of it?

From Lillian Russell, the well-known Actress.

I was greatly impressed with PROF. W. E. KING'S reading. His powers are truly marvelous. He develops in one a force that enables them to attract people, to interest them and to please them to their good and to your advantage without the least effort on one's part. His advice and assistance have been of great benefit to me.

From a Prominent Minister.

I desire to bear evidence to the genuineness of PROF. W. E. KING'S work. God does not give to us an intuition whereby we may guide our lives. That PROF. W. E. KING possesses this guiding power to a marvelous degree is evident. The fact that his clients are his warmest and truest friends is alone a tribute to his sincerity and honest methods in dealing with all. He has rendered me immeasurable assistance. Rev. W. C. Jessup.

From M. Rothschild, the Well-Known Financier.

For the past five years PROF. W. E. KING'S advice and assistance have favorably influenced my business and financial affairs. I have tested nearly every psychic in this country and find PROF. W. E. KING'S advice reliable and far superior to any that I have ever met.

PROF. W. E. KING: I wish to give my testimonial for the benefit of those who wish to read it. Since I consulted you several weeks ago I have followed your advice and the instructions you gave me as nearly as I possibly could, and I can truly say the result has been marvelous. I shall consider it a privilege to recommend you to any person who will take the trouble to write to me. Yours truly, Maurice Winkler, 3829 State St., New York.

To Whom it May Concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. W. E. KING, as a psychic of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental psychicship. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his services.

MADAM KARMA.
THE WORLD'S GREATEST PSYCHIC.
The only Yogi Mediator of secret influence in America from India.

KARMA
is famous in two hemispheres for her accurately correct reading of human life from cradle to grave.

KARMA
FROM INDIA stands alone in her magnificent power of reading the future of human kind.
Born with a double veil,
Educated in the Occult,
Mystery and Hindoo Philosophy in India and Egypt.
KARMA gives you important dates, facts and figures; tells you of loved ones, living or dead;
YOUR SECRET TROUBLES, the cause and remedy—
in fact, tells you everything.
Locates absent ones, overcomes your rivals and enemies, gives infallible advice on all affairs of life, including business, law,
health, changes, travel, patents, financial troubles,
love, courtship marriage.
KARMA IS NOT A PSYCHIC FROM CHOICE, BUT BECAUSE FATE HAS SO DECREED IT.
HER ANCESTORS WERE POWERFUL PRIESTS AND PHILOSOPHERS AND HAVE FOR AGES HANDED DOWN THEIR WONDERFUL POWER
OR GIFT FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION; SO SHE HAS RECEIVED THE RICH INHERITANCE TOGETHER
WITH COMBINED KNOWLEDGE AND PRICELESS KNOWLEDGE OF GENERATIONS. NO MATTER WHAT YOUR PRESENT TROUBLE MAY BE,
OR WHAT YOUR PAST EXPERIENCE HAS BEEN, YOU WILL SAVE TIME AND AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT BY AT ONCE CONSULTING HER.
YOU MAY WISH TO KNOW

"If it is advisable to make a change in business, in love, in marriage?"
"Shall I succeed in my new undertaking?"
"Can I obtain my hopes, my wishes, my ambitions?"
"Shall I ever enjoy the luxuries of wealth?"
"Can I trust my friends?"
"When shall I marry?"
"Shall I ever be divorced?"
"Does another share the love that rightfully belong to me?"
"If so, whom?"
"Am I loved in return?"
"Is there a rival in my love?"
"When shall my love affairs terminate in marriage?"
"When shall my domestic troubles end?"
"How can I make my life and home happy?"
"Why do I not receive a letter?"
"Should I invest my money?"

Strangely fascinating are the words that come from the cultivated lips of this most interesting woman, whose journey of life has already taken her through all the renowned psychic schools of Egypt, India and Europe. It seems, indeed, as if her knowledge must come from that mysterious world of which we all would know, yet longing, cannot know. She looks far away into the dim, mysterious future—the great beyond—across the dark chasm which separates the human body from the flitting soul—and that which is to be is told. The seperated are brought together, foes are made friends, lost property is recovered, the mist is brushed away from business ventures, the hand is so guided that failures are averted, the earth's surface is explored, its treasures laid bare to her mysteriously perceptive mind, and while she gives names, dates, facts and figures, her visitor sits dumfounded at the revelations she makes to him. She is surely a woman of the passing time.

BYRON STANLEY,
THE WORLD'S WONDER
PSYCHIC, HAS RETURNED.

If you wish reliable advice consult STANLEY on past, present and future.
LOW FEE TO ALL.
50c—50c—50c—50c—50c.

If you have no one in whom to confide, no one to advise you; if your heart and brain are heavy with a load of care, business going wrong, friends or family unsettled, sweetheart indifferent; if you wish to buy or sell, to change location, consult without fear and in confidence, STANLEY. He will lift your burden, bring back hope to the weary, and peace to the afflicted mind.

Without doubt one of the greatest known psychics in the world today is STANLEY. Without asking a single question he tells your life as it is—to assist you so you may attain success.

A mysterious knowledge of this science, with the power of practically applying it, was a lucky inheritance of PROF. STANLEY'S. For years he has been using his power of divination and mental suggestion for the benefit of a mystified, but highly-pleased and grateful clientage, whose numbers run into the thousands. It is to your interest to try him. Go to him and let him for a small fee relieve you from all mental anxiety and guide and direct you into pleasant paths of happiness and prosperity. It is not necessary he should through the columns of the press mention all the ills one is heir to. Let PROF. STANLEY analyze your troubles and suggest the remedy.

THE NAME STANLEY A DOUBLE GUARANTEE.

No fee in advance; no questions asked.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (Suite 17.)
by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn, in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in everyday life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health, marriage and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.
HIGH CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.
(Daily and evenings; Sunday, 9 to 3.) 13

STARTLES PROFOUND THINKERS

SKEPTICS ARE DISARMED OF PREJUDICE IN THE PRESENCE OF MME. ANNUVE, WHO READS UNERRINGLY THE SECRETS OF THE PAST AND CASTS HER PSYCHIC LIGHT UPON THE FUTURE'S HIDDEN PATH.

MME. ANNUVE,
MME. ANNUVE,
The Wonderful Psychic,
Imbued with Psychic Forces.

TRANCE PSYCHIC, MENTAL HEALER.

Mme. Annuve has, through her marvelous psycho-vibratory and telepathic powers, brought about more happy marriages, reunited the separated and helped more people to health, wealth and happiness than any psychic in America.

Her Great Success Enables Her to Give

A SPECIAL 50c LIFE READING FOR 25 CENTS
25 CENTS
THIS WEEK. BRING THIS AD.

An opportunity for all to meet this great psychic.

During the year 1907 some of her records for successful work as follows:
148 reunited after separation.
Brought about 290 marriages.
Gained love of desired one in 314 instances.
Located 12 absent ones.
Located 2 buried treasures.
Overcame 575 rivals.
And hundreds of other cases, such as business, speculations, law suits and transactions of all kinds.

The tide of skepticism is surely turning by the wonderful power displayed by this phenomenal woman.

Mme. Annuve's purposes and intentions are best expressed in her own words: "I don't want money I don't earn; I don't need it. But I want to help you to success and happiness. I will tell you frankly your condition. If nothing can be done for you I will not take one cent of your money."

"My practice and professional reputation are built upon honor, reasonable charges, fair dealings, faithful service and speedy success, for my clients have won for me the largest practice in California. My superior knowledge and power give me advantages which warrant me in guaranteeing safer, surer and more rapid results than can be obtained elsewhere. Will give you the most complete, exact, reliable and intelligent reading you have ever had. Tell you whom and when you will marry; if you will be divorced and why. The sickness you have or will have. How to prosper and win success. Locate business to begin and where; the psychological moment for safe speculation or investment. Locate buried treasures, missing papers, lost or absent friends, mines, ore veins. Overcome rivals, enemies, evil influences, weaknesses of all kinds. I positively do what others claim to do."

The very secrets of the dead revealed.

And every warning, advice and information laid bare before you. Your present life and entire future told.

Mme. Annuve is the owner of considerable property in Los Angeles, and is consequently PERMANENTLY LOCATED in this city.

WANTED—YOUNG MEN ARE WANTED IN the United States Navy for all kinds of work on the vessels of the great fleet. Do you want to see more of the world, and at the same time have a steady job, with a chance to save more money than most men save working at home? Life in the navy is full of opportunities. You have an employer who encourages athletic sports and study, who holds out to every man advancement and more pay as an inducement for faithful service. The first year you get the benefit of a training-school without extra cost. Your pay begins when you enter the service—board, lodging, medical attendance if sick, and a $60 uniform outfit, all are free. A trade means better pay to begin with and quicker promotion, even if you know your trade only partially. Musicians have the same advantages.

You get a steady job, a chance to become manly and self-controlled. You will be sent to sea, probably on board of the big new war vessels. Congress has just voted for more men. Application should be made at once. If accepted, a position is ready for you. You must be an able-bodied American citizen, over 17 years old.

Tear this want ad. out and get some friends to go in with you. Send today for free book, illustrated with pictures in color, which tells all about life in the navy—the useful things you learn, the voyages, drills, sports, number of working hours and regular half-days off—all you want to know about the wages paid, promotions, etc.

Send postal today for it to the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, Washington. Or get all the books about the navy at the NAVY RECRUITING STATION, Rooms 225-226-227 San Fernando Bldg., city.

WANTED—LIVE BROKER OR PROMOTER.

Can you handle a controlling interest in a going irrigation system, in splendid condition and with a great field for extension? If you can, you are the man I am looking for.

I have too many irons in the fire and can't keep 'em all hot. Therefore, I will sell a controlling interest in a first-class irrigation proposition, at a big bargain. I want to get the project into the hands of a live man, who understands irrigation and who will hustle to increase the company's earnings. Company in good shape, but ought to be making more money and I haven't the time to attend to it. The right man can land a good thing here. Takes some cash and a little hard work. You can promote it or swing it yourself.

This will stand the closest investigation. If you mean business, ask for full particulars. Don't take up my time, unless you are prepared to handle this after I show you that it is a good thing. Address Z, box 37, TIMES OFFICE. 12

FOR SALE—GROCERIES, HARDWARE, feed and fuel, good clean stock of goods, first-class fixtures, horses, wagons, etc., and, best of all, a first-class trade that is paying and has paid right through the panic, business as good now as a year ago, with a larger per cent. spot cash. If you want a business for style, buy downtown, but if you want a business to make money, where the expenses are small and the profits good; look this up. Stock and fixtures will invoice about $2540; store and 5 living rooms, warehouse, barn, 2 lots, all fenced, fine garden, etc., $30 per month, first year. This business has been established 3½ years, it is not an old run-down business that has been patched up to sell, but is in a first-class, healthy condition, and you can see it just as we are doing business every day. If you want something good, let me show you. Reason for selling, have bought a farm and can't handle both. Address A, box 55, TIMES OFFICE. 12

THIS IS IT.

WANTED—A MAN WHO CAN TAKE UP the outside work for a factory in the building material line, that puts out a first-class article that is a part of every dwelling erected. There is keen competition in this, as there is in every profitable business. The factory can meet this competition and I want a man as a partner with a working interest, who can meet his competitors in the field, and develop the business which has a large and profitable field to be won by the right application of brains and energy.

The financial backing has now been obtained for this factory which has an established name and a fair amount of business. It remains only to secure the right man to handle the output of the factory. In answering give your name, address and qualifications. Address X, box 156, TIMES OFFICE. 13

$1000 WILL BUY HALF INTEREST IN cash business, established four years and where cash receipts are $1200 monthly, business located at 5th and Broadway, Los Angeles. You can have inside position or you can call on retail trade, making collections and soliciting at salary of $35 weekly. Address X, box 186, TIMES OFFICE. 12

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY TO make from 100 to 200 per cent. in a comparatively short time on a gilt edge proposition in which I hold an option on several thousand shares of stock, and which I am offering until my option expires, which is in a very few days. This stock is of a realty syndicate who are now very successful and who are selling in a very satisfactory way acreage near Los Angeles. If you are looking for an opportunity to invest in an exceptionally bonafide proposition which will bear strictest investigation, write me at once as my option terminates shortly. Address W, box 16, TIMES OFFICE. 12

NOTICE—A RELIABLE FIRM IS DESIRous of securing the services of a trustworthy gentleman who is reliable and can furnish good references as to honesty and integrity. An attractive business is open to such a man. A salary of $150 per month to start, also your share of the profits of this business. You must be a good manager and be able to invest at least $5000 in the business. Which will buy you a substantial interest. If you are able to furnish above requirements please call and investigate at 918 CENTRAL BLDG., S.W. cor. 6th and Main. 12

FOR SALE — A LITTLE BUSINESS NETting $100 per month or more, month in and month out, at $1500. Will consider a trade for local real estate—but it must be worth $1500. WE HAVE AN OPENING FOR A MAN of ability as a member of our directorate to take an active interest in a corporation that will revolutionize the transportation facilities of this city, the success of which is absolutely demonstrated. 70 per cent. was returned to the stockholders in a company recently organized in the East along these lines, for 9 months' operation, and there is no doubt but what returns will be fully as large in this city.

From $5000 to $10,000 required to be invested. Every facility will be given you to investigate this proposition. Call up Exchange 175, either phone, and ask for MR. LEHMAN for personal interview, or call 140 West 5th street. 12

SEVERAL THOUSAND DOLLARS IN A few weeks for only small investment. Full partnership, half interest, in a very valuable mining property with vast body of ore. Company incorporated. Its stock is underwritten (insured) by Granite Securities Company, Los Angeles, insuring return of stock investors' money. Granite Company is required to deposit sufficient collateral with Broadway Bank and Trust Company of Los Angeles to secure investors against loss of investment. Only $750 required to put company on its feet. I am the locator of property. Investigate and then reach your conclusion. Don't imagine because its a mine that its not right. It is the safest proposition offered in business chances published today and will make more and quicker money than any other offer herein. Address Y, box 164, TIMES OFFICE. 12

HAVE YOU MONEY TO INVEST IF AN INvestigation substantiates our claims? Here is the proposition: An established business which has been in continuous operation for twenty years, with branches in the leading cities on the Coast, whose sales annually amount to $2,000,000 and which has declared and paid a substantial dividend on its stock each year for 20 years, offers for sale to acceptable investors shares of its treasury stock. Approximate assets $750,000; started twenty years ago with a capital of $10,000. The money received from the sale of this stock will all be put into the business to increase the present capacity. The demand for these goods now greatly exceeds the supply and the business is very profitable. This is one of those rare opportunities which occur now and then. Address W, box 163, TIMES OFFICE. 12

WANT ONE OR TWO PARTIES WHO WILL invest from $2500 to $5000 each to join in forming a small syndicate to purchase machinery and plant and to organize a company to engage in a new manufacturing business to be established in Los Angeles, which promises extraordinary and almost immediate returns. Parties who join syndicate will be guaranteed 50 per cent. profit on their investment within 60 days. One position as manager at $150 per month, and another as secretary and accountant at $125 per month, is open to parties joining syndicate. Business is of most staple character, and by reason of certain new developments an unusual opportunity is here presented. Over $100,000 net profit can be made within the next 6 months. Best of city bank references. For personal interview address owner. X, box 41, TIMES OFFICE. 12

MINING—

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY—I OWN a group of 32 mining claims, (some of which are patented,) and upon which I have expended over $30,000 for development, and have erected a mill with a present daily capacity of 30 tons, with a mill building constructed for 20 stamps. The mill with its present capacity will produce 1½ tons concentrates of an average value of over $250 PER TON,
Gold and silver per day. The vein is a diorite intrusion between the Archean below and the Paleozoic shale above, which is the most permanent type of vein; 5000 tons of this ore has been blocked out and can be measured up and there are rich spots in the ledge running from 1500 OUNCES
TO 7000 OUNCES SILVER.
Exclusive of gold values. With the present capacity I can guarantee a net production within the next 10 months of between $90,000 and $100,000, at the same time developing the property to a point where it will be a two or three-million-dollar proposition. The property has not yet been incorporated into a stock company, as it is my desire to further develop it before incorporating on a large scale. I require immediately $10,000 for an additional working capital, and for this amount, I will sell an undivided one-fifth interest in the proposition, the money to be paid in three equal monthly payments after thorough investigation and verification of the claims and statements made above. Only principals having the necessary amount and who mean business are desired and requested to answer this advertisement. Positively no notice will be taken of brokers or agents. Address P, box 136, TIMES OFFICE.

INCORPORATE UNDER ARIZONA LAWS. No franchise or annual tax. No public statements. Members exempt from corporate debts. Hold meetings, do business and keep books anywhere. Stock non-assessable. Any kind of stock can be issued and paid up in cash, services or property. We charge but a very small fee for our services. A 300 page Corporate Record, book of by-laws and forms given to each incorporation. Write for our free 40-page "Book Of Information," blanks, etc., or see our local attorney, C. H. EUBANK, 302 Grant Bldg.
SOUTHWESTERN SECURITIES & INV. CO., Box 365, Phoenix, Arizona. •

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES OF stock in a California quick mine, U. S. patent, developed with over 1000 feet of work, showing large body of cinnabar in all workings. Now building furnace and we want a little cash to complete it. Will be on producing and profit-paying basis in 60 days. This is no prospect or wildcat, but we want just $2000 and will let you have 5000 shares for it. There is a big profit here; look it up. HUNTER-FORD COMPANY, 310 H. W. Hellman Bldg. Home A2446. 12

I HAVE FOUR MINING CLAIMS LOCATED in Esmeralda county, Nevada, just west of Goldfield; well defined ledge, 300 feet of development work already done, average assays across ledge $50, and picked samples as high as $500 per ton. Want party to put up $4000 cash to go ahead with development, for which I will give interest in property. There is a fortune in this; will stand closest investigation. Address Z, box 190, TIMES OFFICE. 12

EDUCATIONAL—
Schools, Colleges, Private Tuition

SPANISH QUICKLY TAUGHT AS IT IS spoken in Spain and Mexico.
No grammars or so-called readers needed; a notebook is all you have to buy.
My pupils in the Y.M.C.A. in the Heald's Business College and in my studio, learn how to speak, understand, read, write, put the words together and translate, by means of a practical commercial-social conversation and written exercises.
My instruction is personal, attending the age, education, memory and purposes of my pupil. Not two of them are taught alike.
The director of the Herald's Business College writes: "Prof. Uribe has been in charge of our Spanish department for the last three years, and we recommend him as a gentleman and most excellent teacher of the Spanish language." Send for circular.

Two Points of View.

The country school mistress sent word to the school that, owing to an attack of illness, she would be compelled to dismiss the classes for the day.

Toward evening she was pleased to receive a large bouquet of wild flowers from the class, and was giving vent to graceful speech for this thoughtful manifestation of sympathy, while she undid the wrapper, when this note fell from it:

"Teacher, stay ill tomorrow, too, and we'll send you another bunch."—[Chicago Journal.

Case for an Expert.

"Have you made my will just as I told you?" asked the sick man, who was the possessor of many needy relatives and some well-to-do but grasping ones.

"I have," asserted the lawyer.

"Just as strong and tight as you can make it, eh?" asked the client.

The lawyer nodded.

"All right," said the sick man. "Now I want to ask you one thing—not professionally—who do you think stands the best chance of getting the prop- [illegible] gone?"—[Pick-Me-Up.

NOBLE DUKE IS HARD UP.

Wellington Feels Poverty's Distressing Pinch.

Has Titles Galore, Yet Comparatively Poor.

Property Given to Illustrious Ancestor for Sale.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 30.—Probably the present Duke of Wellington, who recently availed himself of the privilege which he inherited from his famous ancestor of standing in the presence of the King of Spain with his hat on, would view with equanimity a plan for more nearly equalizing his honors and his purse, as it is no secret that he has more than he will ever need of the former and less than he often desires of the latter. In other words, he is one of the "hard-ups" of the British peerage.

The present Duke can be said to have been treated pretty badly by Fate. There was a time when the title was worth much to its possessor. The first holder, the conqueror of Napoleon, had not only honors, but money, as well, showered upon him. The British Parliament gave him $2,000,000, and the grateful people of his country bought him his magnificent estate, Strathfieldsaye, in Hampshire, at a cost of something like $1,300,000. In addition, he was granted an annual pension of $25,000, so that he appears to have been fairly well fixed in a financial way.

He is short of money, but long on titles, being a peer of four countries.

Unfortunately, however, for the present Duke, who is the fourth to hold the title, it was arranged that the pension which was granted to the Iron Duke was only to run for three generations, and this expired with the death of the third Duke, in 1900. So the present holder of the title is "strapped." Strathfieldsaye is closed and waiting for a tenant, and Apsley House, the big Hyde Park mansion so closely associated with the great Duke, is in the market for any fair price that can be obtained for it.

It was the Duke's second son, Lord Richard Wellesley, who was married recently to Miss Nesta FitzGerald, an heiress in her own right.

PRESENTS KING WITH FLAG.

Although the Duke pays no rent for Strathfieldsaye, there is a unique custom which he is bound, under the deed of gift, to observe. On the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, he must present to the King a miniature reproduction of the French flag as carried on the historic battlefield. Curiously enough, Blenheim, the principal seat of the Duke of Marlborough, husband of Consuelo Vanderbilt, is also held on condition that a "tenure flag" is presented each year to the sovereign on the anniversary of the battle of Blenheim.

SPAIN'S QUAINT CEREMONY.

The quaint ceremony in Madrid in which the Duke recently participated and in which he was confirmed in his right to remain covered in the presence of the Spanish King, is a time-honored ritual. It is doubtful whether the original Duke ever availed himself of the privilege. Indeed, it would have been a difficult matter to have dragged the bluff old soldier into any place where pomp and ceremony were compulsory.

When the King of Spain enters the hall in which the ceremony takes place he says to the grandees, of which this year there were twelve, "Cover yourselves." Each grandee advances two steps, bows to the King, and then proceeds to the middle of the hall, where he makes another bow. He then comes to take his place near a table, where he makes a third bow to the King, and salutes the other grandees of Spain on the right and left.

The King then says, "Be covered and speak." The new grandee at once puts on his hat, and makes a speech, thanking His Majesty for the honor he has just accorded him. Having finished his speech, the Duke removes his hat, kisses the King's hand and withdraws, walking backward, and bowing again.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the King rises, salutes all the personages present, and withdraws.

ELOPERS ARRESTED.

Married Man of Santa Maria Runs Away With Fifteen-Year-Old Girl. Defunct Bank to Pay Dividend.

VENTURA, July 11.—I. N. Searl of Santa Maria, who had with him a 15-year-old school girl from the same town, was arrested last night in a rooming-house here by Sheriff McMartin. Searl, who has a wife and two children in Santa Maria, ran away from that town with the girl a week ago. On arrival here the couple put up at the rooming-house under the names of Frank Smith and wife, Paso Robles. When arrested the girl gave her age as less than 15 years. A constable arrived from Santa Maria this morning and took the couple North.

WILL PAY DIVIDEND.

The defunct Collins Bank has announced that it will pay a dividend Monday of 20 per cent. to depositors. This will release over $50,000 which has been tied up since November last.

The forest fire on the Santa Ana this week destroyed 120 cords of cut wood on the ranch of N. Pierano, valued $1200.

Four insane men have been locked up here the past two days for examination.

Miss Irene Williams has been appointed teacher in the Nordhoff school.

THE ONLY ONE.

The only sweet pea threshing machine in the world has just been completed by William Hamilton of this city, who has built most of the lima bean threshing machines in this section. This sweet-pea thresher was built for John Bodger & Sons of Gardena. Mr. Bodger was for a long time a resident of this county, but removed to Gardena a few years ago, where he has gone extensively in the growing of sweet peas. The crop could not be successfully handled by any of the ordinary threshing or fanning machines. Mr. Hamilton left for Gardena yesterday with a new machine.

The figures of the Assessor show an increase in property values in the county this year over last of $1,250,000. The assessed valuation is $10,720,472.

Dr. Maulhardt of Oxnard has been appointed County Health Officer.

CHANGES THE LINES.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday passed the ordinance changing the lines of the Ventura and Oxnard Supervisorial districts. All that portion of Oxnard district lying on the west side of the Santa Clara River have been lopped off and added to Ventura. Heretofore the Oxnard district has extended right to the town limits of this city. Hereafter the Ventura limits will take in Montalvo, Saticoy, the Mound and a large and populous section of the country lying to the east. It will add a large vote and it is thought will make a decided difference in the political complexion of the board. The district will be heavily Republican.

ELSINORE.

ELSINORE, July 11.—Clouds and light showers yesterday, contributed to a day of oppressive warmth; it was much cooler today.

The big orchardists begun apricot drying yesterday. There is a heavy crop.

J. B. Robinson, Sr., has sold his home on Riverside street, consisting of a small house and ten acres of land, to J. Frank Moore, who recently purchased the G. W. Brewer ranch adjoining.

Mrs. Otho Boyd and little son of Riverside, are guests at the home of Mrs. Boyd's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Yates of Riverside street. Miss Ivy Yates of Los Angeles is also a guest.

Mrs. Oscar Ray and son, Harry, have returned from a trip to Santa Monica.

Mrs. Aaron Graham of Highgrove, is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Montague, for a month.

Eighth-grade pupils who have passed the examination successfully and will enter High School this fall, are: Paul Macy, Ruth Longstaff, Agnes Ramsdale, Claire Haigh, Amos Gardner, Irene Mayer, William Fetterly and Vivian Lillie.

Miss Rose Tooker of Santa Monica is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. A. Crane. She will spend the summer here.

Mrs. Mary Roberts and Mrs. Lois A. Phillips of Los Angeles are the guests of Mrs. Louisa Haughwout.

HEMET.

HEMET, July 11.—A new school building for the Little Lake district will be erected in the near future. The present building has become wholly inadequate to the needs of the school owing to the greatly increased population during the last two years. The new schoolhouse will contain four good-sized rooms.

A slight shower fell here yesterday morning, and the sky was clouded over part of the day. No rain fell today but cloudiness prevailed. A thunder storm occurred yesterday in the San Jacinto Mountains.

E. E. Green of Escondido is here for a few days on business.

A fire is raging in the foothills southwest of town. It has burned down close to the grain fields.

The Santa Fé station here released the last week of June sixty-two cars of freight last week and over twenty cars were dropped here containing merchandise for Hemet. One firm has shipped over fifty cars of hay, and it is still going at the rate of two cars a day.

NEWPORT.

NEWPORT, July 11.—The Orange County Bankers' Association will hold its first annual meeting here on the 14th inst. In the evening a banquet will be given at the Newport Tavern.

Rev. H. Russell Greaves, general superintendent of the Eighth California Convention, will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist church tomorrow evening.

The county bridge across the Santa Ana river, which has been in bad shape for several weeks, is being repaired.

ROYAL WRATH.

KING EDWARD IS INDIGNANT.

Angered at Present Manners of English Society.

Apotheosis of Cavalieri Especially Rouses Him.

Blames Mrs. Asquith for Exaltation of Maud Allen.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "The present manners of English society will be the laughing stock of the continent," exclaimed King Edward in a fury, the other day. The wild bohemianism, the ultra-unconventionality which the most aristocratic and wealthiest women and men affect nowadays, has angered the sovereign deeply.

For example, duchesses are worshiping now at the feet of Lena Cavalieri, the prima donna, a beautiful woman. The Cavalieri, who knows as much of the arts of the world as of the art of singing, is receiving more homage from the titled women than is even Maud Allen, the dancer—and when one says that he says a great deal.

The King is enraged because Cavalieri has been invited to parties given by duchesses—not to sing, to be received with distant politeness and to be paid a handsome sum—but to be welcomed as the equal in every way—birth, breeding, morals of the hostess and the guests. The Duchess of Rutland, celebrated for her varied artistic proclivities, invited the songstress to a ball she gave her daughter, at which nearly all the guests were young girls. With them Cavalieri danced and romped.

The Duchess of Sutherland had Cavalieri on a footing of perfect equality at one of her Wednesday salons.

The King deems Mrs. Asquith greatly to blame for having exalted Maud Allen into a social divinity.

DANGEROUS ROADS.

Rolling Thoroughfares Around Sierra Madre Cause Automobile Party to Become Seasick.

SIERRA MADRE, July 11.—Automobile parties complain of the condition of the leading roads here. Some are actually dangerous to travel over in the nighttime. It is thought the officials should have given these the first call in the improvement of the streets, combining with the county authorities in securing good avenues into the town, instead of urging the improvement of the streets within the central points of the city.

On Baldwin avenue, close to the county road, is a stretch that is in an abominable condition. The same can be said of the southerly point of Sierra Madre avenue, and other intersecting arteries. A few nights ago an automobile party, heading for the city over one of the sections, was so shaken up and jostled that it stopped at a lemon orchard and each member partook of a lemon to check the seasickness occasioned by the rolling road they had passed over. Another party, after passing through several gullies and ruts, hit what it supposed was a mountain.

The city itself is not entirely to blame for this condition, as there is a stretch of land owned by "Lucky" Baldwin of the city of Arcadia, on which it is claimed Baldwin refuses to permit improvements.

BANKER IN TRAINING.

R. C. Otis, the youngest bank president in Chicago, and possibly the youngest in the country, who is residing here, has started in for physical training along the lines adopted by Muldoon in his famous New York retreat. In company with a trainer, the bank president starts up Baldwin avenue for his daily road work, clad in striped blue undershirt, running shoes and light trousers. Many miles are covered by both men, and after their return to the city lighter exercise is indulged in, accompanied with the usual rubdown and bath. Many thought at first that Otis was one of the "sports" who had drifted in from the Arcadia training quarters, but since learning differently the younger element of the town is thinking of following the example of the bank president.

CAN'T SPARE THESE TREES.

It has been decided to remove the trees located in the middle of Central avenue. There is hardly sufficient space for a vehicle to turn between them and the railway tracks, and they have been the cause of two or three accidents. Only recently the driver of a hay wagon was severely injured by branches catching him in the throat and cutting him. With the possibility of the railway double-tracking its system within a short period, these trees would have to come out, and the danger of damage suits against the city for accidents, caused the officials to decide for their removal, although it has been the policy of the Park and Highway Commission to save all trees where possible.

Reports having been received of narrow escapes from gasoline and coal-oil explosions, owing to mistakes being made in the filling of the cans, the city authorities at their last meeting decided to pass an ordinance compelling the proper labeling of these receptacles. City Attorney Haas is drawing up such a law.

MYSTERY CLEARED.

SLAYER ADMITS HIS GUILT.

TUCSON (Ariz.) July 9.—The mystery of the murder of Albert C. Leonhardt here, last December, has been cleared by the plea of "guilty" made by D. W. Hawkins, when arraigned and charged with the crime. Leonhardt was shot after midnight, while he was returning home. He dragged himself a hundred yards to his doorstep, where he was found dead. Hawkins and his young wife at first said that Leonhardt was shot after offering insult to the woman. Now, according to the defendant's own story, it seems the affair was an incident of highway robbery.

Leonhardt was shot after offering resistance. This admission of Hawkins's was corroborated by his wife, who appeared upon the stand, carrying a month-old child. Hawkins admits that he served a term in the Folsom, Cal., penitentiary, having been sent up for forgery. He will be sentenced by Judge Campbell tomorrow.

S. Earl Metzler, charged with complicity in the murder, has been discharged, though both Hawkins and his wife swore he was present at the time of the shooting and was an accomplice in the "hold-up." He had an alibi. The woman told that she had gone on before the two men and had not seen the actual commission of the crime. After his release, Metzler left town in a hurry, only pausing long enough to have a physical encounter with Sheriff Pacheco, in which the Sheriff is understood to have had much the better of the argument.

A number of buildings are to be moved at Nogales, to provide room for several miles of additional sidings, needed by the Randolph line for material and freight bound into Mexico.

A new telephone trunk line is to be built by the Consolidated company northward from Willcox to Globe, via Aravaipa Cañon.

Tucson is to vote on a new charter, it being generally agreed that the city has very much outgrown its present system of government.

Nogales has added to the pumping equipment of her waterworks system and now is abundantly supplied with water.

The City Council of Tucson has advertised for plans for a $30,000 building to be erected in the center of Washington Park as a City Hall and fire station.

BRIDE-ELECT SPIRITED AWAY.

Last night at a local playhouse was billed a "cowboy wedding." Charles Eisenberg and Lillie Potts were to have been united on the stage and to have received a gift of $25 from the management. The groom appeared, but the bride failed to do so, having been spirited away, according to the wrathful cowboy, by an "automobile man." Eisenberg, with a large revolver, started on a hunt for the man and the girl, but was caught by officers before harm was done and jailed on a charge of robbery, as he had refused to surrender to its owner a horse he had borrowed. "I sure would like to meet that automobile man," he wailed, "for I simply want to have a long talk with him."

Two low-class Mexican women have been arrested for tying a 4-year-old child in a room, where she was left for days without food, water or attention. The child was found by an officer, at whose home she is now cared for.

NEWEST TOGA IN THE BLUEGRASS.

Kentucy's Junior Senator Discusses Violence in the Bluegrass State.

BY JAMES B. MORROW.

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) July 3.—The interview had taken us into the mountains among russet-colored men and lynx-eyed women. Bradley was talking—William O'Connell Bradley, recently elected a Senator from Kentucky in the Congress of the United States.

One episode had followed another and now in a village hacked out of the wilderness there is a pistol shot. The latitude, however, is right for rifles and bowie knives; nitroglycerin, too, for that matter. In romantic elements, also, Bradley is a human melodrama, written in blood instead of ink, with blazing lights and much fierce music.

Sen. Wm. O'C. Bradley.

When I first saw Gov. Bradley he was seated on a kitchen chair, stoutly girded with copper wire, before an amazingly tall desk that was skewed across a corner of his law office. His back was toward the door—a coatless back, broad and squat and solid as a block of cement. A drab hat was on his large, round head. The immediate accessories in the picture were a check book, an account book, and an awed and silent client. Bradley's blunt pen made as much noise almost as a lawn mower.

"There," he presently said, and he was curt as a country doctor, "take that to the bank and get your money."

The client, fumbling with his check, respectfully and mutely backed away. The patriarchal authority and dignity of the professions, law and medicine, especially, can still be maintained in some parts of the country.

But we were in the mountains and Bradley was talking with his gray, brown eyes and his musical voice. Violence had been the subject. Gaunt mountaineers in hickory shirts and boots had slipped into the discourse and passed on. Bradley, intense, emotional, but prudent, was smiling. He often smiles, and often laughs.

"I have never had any serious personal encounters myself," he said. "Once a drunken fellow named Mason, who had previously attacked a number of Republicans, accosted me in the streets of Lancaster and called me a 'damned nigger stealer.' He had a club in his hand. I warned him off but he continued to follow toward my office. When I turned to knock him down he swung his club, but I caught the blow on my left arm, which fell helpless at my side. In a friendly scuffle that morning I took a little, four-barreled pistol from a young man I knew and put it in my pocket.

SHOT HIM IN THE HIP.

"As Mason raised his club again I drew and, aiming for his bowels, fired. He turned and the bullet ran around his hip just under the skin and did no harm. However, he fell to the ground shouting as he went down that 'damned nigger stealer' had assassinated a good Democrat. Men came with revolvers in their hands, but a deputy sheriff commanded the peace and drove them away. I was heard and acquitted. Weapons have often flashed at political meetings I have addressed, but something always has happened to prevent bloodshed."

"Why are Kentuckians more quarrelsome than other people?" I asked.

"They are not," Senator Bradley answered. "However, certain things can't be said in this State without penalty. The word liar, personally applied, calls for immediate and forcible action. There is another, name, thought to reflect on one's mother, that will cause a fight as soon as spoken. Nor can any man scandalize a woman and go unpunished provided there is a son, husband or brother in her family. Our unwritten social code has always caused more or less trouble, but the vice of murder, as distinguished from murder as a crime, is a direct result of the Civil War.

"I recollect that previous to the year 1860 only three murders had occurred in Pulaski county, a mountainous region, and each, I know, made a terrible impression on the minds of the people. Then the guerrillas, Federal and Confederate, appeared and periodically burned our homes and killed our people. One neighbor turned on another. Crime got to be a common and horrible employment and in instances even recreation. Feuds started. Ambuscades came into fashion. Young Republicans were even forbidden to call on the daughters of Democrats.

"Masked men, members of the Ku-Klux Klan, rode about at night whipping and killing. In those days I more often slept with my clothes on than off, a rifle at the head of my bed and several pistols under my pillows. Six or eight of us in Lancaster kept together after sundown, first in one house and then in another, for mutual protection. Finally, we organized the Union League to meet force with force, either openly or in secret.

FIRED ON THE KU-KLUX KLAN.

"One night the Ku-Klux Klan took a man out of Lancaster and whipped him. When the party returned, the Union League, and let me add that I was not along on that particular occasion, opened fire at the edge of the village. Three horses were seen with empty saddles and the next day three citizens of Lancaster were reported to have died suddenly from natural causes. The Ku-Klux Klan instantly went out of business in that part of the country.

"Notwithstanding the peculiarities of their temperament and the eccentricities of their conduct," Senator Bradley continued, "the mountaineers of Kentucky have been shamefully misrepresented. They are a worthy and a remarkable people. Many of them are uneducated, I know, but all of them have good natural minds. Indeed, some of our greatest statesmen, best lawyers and most successful business men came from the hills. A mountaineer will divide his only crust of bread with a stranger, will lie on the floor that he may have a bed to sleep in, and will walk miles to put him on the right road or to show him a ford across a river; but if a stranger wearing a plug hat, a long coat and patent leather shoes speaks lightly of the country or makes fun of the people, the mountaineer will kill him in a minute."

"You are a hill man, yourself?" I said.

"Yes, most of my boyhood was spent in Somerset, Pulaski county, where my father practiced law and where I went to school until I was 14 years old. The Civil War closed the courts and my father not only lost his business, but all of his property besides. I was a page in the Kentucky Senate in 1861 and also in 1862, where, coming into contact with public men, I learned more that was of practical value than I could have learned from books."

"You ran away twice and joined the Union army, but your father brought you back?"

"After the adjournment of the Legislature in 1861 I hunted up a camp of Federal soldiers and begged to be taken as a drummer boy. My father hunted among the tents, found me, and gave me a flogging. The following year I tried to get into the cavalry. I was again flogged and taken home. Later I joined the Refugee Guards in this city. It was feared that Gen. Kirby Smith would capture the archives and so the Legislature left Frankfort in a hurry and came here.

WHY NELSON WAS KILLED.

"Gen. William Nelson, in command of the district, ordered that every male between the ages of 18 and 60 should either carry a gun or use a spade on the intrenchments. Of course, I got a gun. A spade would have been too much like farming. I did some drilling, but saw no service. The Refugee Guards were under the immediate command of Gen. Jeff C. Davis, of Indiana. When Nelson asked him the number of his men he replied, 'about 2500.' Don't say 'about 2500, you ——,' Nelson answered. 'You should know exactly.'

"After Oliver P. Morton, Governor of Indiana, came to Louisville and heard of the incident, he told Davis that he had been insulted and that Nelson ought to apologize. So Davis went to Nelson.

"'I shall insult you as often as I please,' Nelson answered. Then he slapped Davis in the face.

"Davis may not have been armed or he may have been a coward. At all events, he walked away. Nelson went into the parlor of the Galt House, where he talked for a time with Mrs. John J. Crittenden. When he started to go upstairs he was confronted by Davis, who said, 'Gen. Nelson, defend yourself.' Davis fired at once. Nelson took two or three steps and fell dead."

"I believe you were admitted to the bar by a special act of the Legislature?" I said.

"My father, a land lawyer, moved about more or less and had great difficulty in making a living because of the closing of the courts," Senator Bradley answered. "Moreover, there was prejudice against him on account of his being a vigorous Union man. After the war he went back to Lancaster, in Garrard county, the region in which I was born. I was now 18 and had been reading law under his direction for four years.

"Although I was ready for the bar I could not be admitted because I was under the required age. A special act of the Legislature authorized two judges of the Circuit Court to examine me. I passed the examination and was given a license to practice. My father took me into his office. There were six children in our family. I was the youngest and the only son. My father pushed me forward and gave me much personal attention.

HAS SAVED HIS FIRST FEE.

"My first case concerned the possession of some property. It was tried before a country justice of the peace. I won it and was paid $5. The identical bill that was given me then is now in my safe. I have needed the money many times since, but sentiment wouldn't let me part with it. When I was 19 years old we had a case involving land that was valued at $200,000. We got a change of venue and tried it in Lexington. Big lawyers were hired on the other side. Father made the principal argument, of course, but he ordered me up and I addressed the jury at length. We were successful on the first trial and also on the appeal, which I argued before the highest court of the State."

"Did you ever have any hungry days during your early experience at the bar?"

"I had enough to eat, I suppose, but the Bradley family was pretty poor. Our house was small, my two married and three unmarried sisters were at home, and so I slept on a cot in our office. Bed covering was scarce, and I used newspapers in cold weather. I practiced law for a good while before I could afford to have two suits of clothes at one time. Negro labor was cheap, but I swept the office and blacked my own shoes."

"Has any person in particular had a marked influence on your life?"

"Yes; my father more than any one else. He was a great man and a great lawyer—generous, emotional, and eloquent. I have seen him laugh a good case out of court and win a poor one by his wit and oratory. Prodigal with money when he had it, he was not a careful man in his own affairs. He kept his accounts in his head, and, therefore, never collected but a fraction of what was due him. When he died I thought the light of the world had gone out. We were comrades always and partners in business for many years. I knew his secrets and he knew mine. My mother was a practical woman and a strong charactr. She taught me to be prudent in business matters, to keep an account book, and instantly to pay over any funds I collected for a client."

"You are a famous campaigner," I said; "the ablest and most eloquent Republican politician in the South. Let me ask what your methods are when you undertake a political fight?"

HIS CAMPAIGN METHODS.

"When I am personally responsible for a campaign," Senator Bradley replied, "I organize my workers as well as I can. In the meanwhile I study general conditions. I search for all the possible good in what the Republicans have done or propose to do, and all the possible evil in what the other fellows have done or threaten to do. Then rejecting rhetoric for plain statement, I go to the people and say: 'It is not my intention to attack you for being Democrats—you are as honest as I am—but I do intend to attack your party.'

"I am never personal unless some one begins on me and then I am as ugly as anybody else. My theory of campaigning is the same as my theory of trying a lawsuit. A lawyer would be a fool if he abused the jury. He couldn't win in a thousand years by such tactics. I believe in being aggressive, not toward men, but toward unsound thinking and unpatriotic policies."

"In your great battle of 1887, when you ran against Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner for Governor and cut down the preceding Democratic majority of 47,000 votes to 17,000 votes, you only had $750 to spend during the campaign?"

"We didn't have a cent. The man who had our money came to this city and while walking in the street was knocked in the head and robbed. I traveled the State at my own expense riding in everything but a balloon. Oxcarts, I found, were infinitely better than walking, especially in the hills. Moreover, one had plenty of time for reflection. I covered a speaking appointment on the Ohio River by going seven miles upstream in a skiff. A deaf mute did the rowing. I bargained with him in a sign language which I invented for the occasion. It was awkward but sufficient."

"You have been active in public matters for nearly forty years and yet you have practiced law steadily during all that time?"

PAID THE STATE DEBT.

"I have earned my living in that way and also the $100,000 I have spent in politics. In 1899, at the end of my term as Governor, I opened an office in Louisville. I had previously practiced at Lancaster. At the age of 23 I was elected prosecuting attorney of Garrard county. After that I was a candidate for Congress several times, was the nominee on three occasions for the United States Senate, was a delegate-at-large to six Republican national conventions, received 115 votes for Vice-President in 1888, was appointed minister to Korea by Benjamin Harrison, and stumped the country during a good many campaigns, but I held no more offices until 1895, when I defeated Gen. P. Watt Hardin for Governor of Kentucky. Finding a floating indebtedness of $1,700,000, I paid it in four years and left $1,060,000 in the State treasury."

"It is said you are the real creator of the Republican party in this State. How was the work done?"

"By organizing, by talking to the people in the way I have described, and by courageously meeting every question as it came up for discussion and decision. I told our Committee on Resolution at the State convention in 1895 that there were three ways of dealing with the silver question. We could favor free coinage or the gold standard, or we could act like cowards and straddle the issue. 'As for myself,' I said, 'I shall refuse to be a candidate for Governor unless you put a gold plank in the platform.' There was considerable dodging in various parts of the country, but the Republican party of Kentucky took advanced ground without hesitation or moral weakness. I was the first Governor to be elected on a straightforward declaration against free silver."

"You were elected to the United States Senate last February with the help of certain Democrats in the Legislature," I said. "Did you at any time foresee the result?"

"I knew from the start that I should be elected if John Crepps Wickliffe Beckham persisted in being the Democratic candidate. He could have withdrawn and beaten me. He stuck, as I hoped he would, and as I planned that he should, and I beat him. I got four Democratic votes. As a matetr of fact, I should have had six."

GOOD IDEA.

WILL EDUCATE THE KAISER.

CATHOLIC PARTY STARTS IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.

Will Keep His Majesty Informed as to What Is Going on in His Empire, What His Subjects Want, and What They Think—Want "the Liars" Removed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A campaign of education for Emperor William has been started by the Center, or Catholic party.

The object is to let him know exactly what is going on in his empire, what his subjects want, and what they think.

These politicians contend that the German people have a right to demand that an absolutely fair and correct report on everything concerning them shall be made to their sovereign, and that "the liars" shall be removed from His Majesty's entourage.

They do not believe that the now discredited Prince Philip Zu Eulenburg is the only one who has misled—or is now misleading—the Emperor regarding public measures and conditions.

FAIRBANKS TO PRESIDE.

Republican Vice-President Will Aid in Welcoming Candidate Kern to Indianapolis.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS, July 11.—Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks will preside at a big nonpartisan reception which will be held Thursday when John W. Kern, Democratic nominee for Vice-President, returns from Denver.

An order has been placed for 10,000 Kern buttons which will be distributed on the day of the general reception. The words, "Welcome Home—John W. Kern" will be placed on the buttons.

A movement for a big non-partisan celebration was started at a meeting of the directors of the Commercial Club, today.

Robert E. McClure, secretary of the Commercial Club, said:

"Four years ago, the directors of the Commercial Club held a meeting, and John W. Kern, who was president at that time, presided. He was enthusiastic in his efforts to arrange a nonpartisan reception for Mr. Fairbanks on the occasion of his return to the city from the convention which made him the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee.

"Mr. Kern presided at the reception tendered Mr. Fairbanks, and we deemed it only fitting that we ask Mr. Fairbanks to return the favor in Mr. Kern's behalf this year. The Vice-President informed me that he would accept the invitation with pleasure, and we feel that the celebration will be a notable one."

OBITUARY.

Jack Fleming.

HALIFAX (N. S.) July 11.—Jack Fleming, who won renown during the United States Civil War by taking the Confederate cruiser Tallahassee out through the eastern passage of Halifax harbor in 1864, eluding the northern fleet that was lying in wait, is dead at Ketch Harbor, aged 86 years.

Rt. Rev. Alfred A. Curtis.

BALTIMORE, July 11.—Rt. Rev. Alfred A. Curtis, formerly Roman Catholic bishop of Wilmington, Del., and for a number of years vicar-general of the archdiocese of Baltimore, died at St. Agnes Sanitarium here this morning. He had been under treatment at that institution for cancer of the stomach. Bishop Curtis was born in Maryland in 1831 and became a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal church. After nearly a decade of service at Mount Calvary, this city, he resigned and going to England was received into the Roman Catholic church by the late Cardinal (then Bishop) Newman. He rose to the bishopric of Wilmington, which he resigned in 1896, and two years later he became vicar-general of the diocese of Baltimore.

FLASHES FROM WIRES.

Hoffman Philip, secretary of legation and Consul-General at Tangier, has been designated as the American member of the commission which is to meet in that city on July 20 to determine claims for damages growing out of the insurrection in Casa Blanca some time ago, when much damage was done to the property of foreigners. M. C. Jacobus, an attorney connected with the Paris embassy, will also be present to look into the claims presented on behalf of Americans.

Wireless telegraphic communication between Lima, Peru, and Iquitos, on the Amazon River, has been successfully established, according to a cablegram which has just been received by Eduardo Higginson, Peruvian Consul at New York.

GEIS GIVES BAIL.

George S. Geis yesterday gave $1500 bail for his appearance before Justice Selph on July 17. He is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from Mrs. Alice Leslie.

The second week of the scholarship contest closed last evening with fifty-eight racers in line with a score, and every one of the "high sixteens" well beyond the 10,000 mark.

See what will happen before another Sunday! There are promising contestants who have not been able to join that honorable company on the first sixteen lines, but they may compass it by another week.

There is that Santa Barbara climber dangerously near. The "Favorite of the Foothills," pretty Estella Wilson, and the dear Soldiers' Home girl, Laura Easton, are right on the edge, waiting and working for a chance to turn somebody down.

Gertrude Flick, whose picture is printed today, and Myrtle Hall, that other ambitious Methodist maid, both of whom are determined to secure a scholarship at the University of Southern California, are also in the near neighborhood of the fortunate sixteen, and the charming little Hollywood girl, Winifred Spencer, is close up. Constance Cunningham of Whittier, and the soldier lad, Wallie Swain, are casting longing eyes at those top lines, too.

MARGUERITE AT TOP.

The second week closes with Marguerite Jones at the top with the splendid score of over 36,000 points. This pretty little lady is smiling very much these days for it is so nice to be the very first, you know, and she is thinking about the beautiful piano that the Southern California Music Company is keeping ready for the winner.

The Delta Chi girl, Hazel Franklin, has not scored for two days, and there will be some fun when she does bring that yellow book of hers to the office for a general counting up, for Hazel has large ideas of the way a score should look.

Pasadena and Pomona keep the third and fourth places for themselves but one never knows whether to find Pasadena Alice above, or Pomona Thomas, for they jump about nearly every day. Alice Capron holds the third line this time, for she turned in nearly 3000 points to increase her standing yesterday, and Thomas McKinley is content with the fourth line—but he may not be content with it very long.

MOTHER HELPS HIM.

Leo Domke, the 14-year-old lad who is such a musician, is also a pushing worker, and he keeps a high position all the time. Leo's mother is helping him all she can to gain the scholarship and a good cash prize, for she feels that, with only one eye, he is handicapped in the race of life and should be well educated. Mrs. Domke belongs to the Ladies of the Maccabees, Hive No. 1, and to the order of Rebeccas, and Leo's father is an Odd Fellow.

The Upland representative, Grace Tyler, is a wonderful girl, and her score is one of the steadiest of any. Yesterday she sent in a big bunch of subscriptions, nearly 6000 points to last over Sunday, and has gone up in the tally from eighth to sixth place.

Margaret Chung, who was so unfortunate as to have a bicycle accident in Ontario, sends word that she is feeling better and that she may be able to come home in a few days. Margaret's friends are doing all they can for her, as it will be sometime before she can do active canvassing again. Yesterday, Mrs. Meserve brought in 1500 points for Margaret, and her other friends also are working.

LITTLE RAMONA'S JUMP.

Ramona Carter was a little heroine yesterday, making an increase of nearly 5000 points, and she is a very small girl, at that. Her little friend, Marjory Day, is really the tiniest mite, and she got 600 points of the 5000 for Ramona.

Ellen Robinson bounced from twelve to ten yesterday, with 2500 points to her credit. The two good friends, Lizzie Shapiro and Hazel Pestor, are right together today, and they are splendid workers.

The Orange county girl, Zarrah Morse, sent in a fine score, also, nearly 4000 points to her credit, but Orange county ought to be good to its first citizen. This county was the means of giving Merle Prewitt, two years ago, the largest majority that any contestant has ever achieved, and this year, with the Santa Ana girl and the Westminster boy, there will be things doing again in that thriving county.

Leah Aiken made a great leap in the score yesterday and this morning, instead of looking on the forty-first line for her name, this quiet little maid will find it on the thirty-third. That's a fine gain for one day, and Leah turned 1500 points to make it.

"Watch Us Climb."

Three promising contestants in this year's race.

MABELLE'S AMBITIONS.

One of the newest contestants of all, pretty Mabelle Wasell, almost equaled Leah's stunt, for she turned in 1400, and the others may count on this Huntington Park girl to go right up the line.

"I want the scholarship at Huntington Hall," Miss Wasell said when she came in to enter her name, and she will work hard to get it, for this is a valuable scholarship and one that is much sought after.

Ruth von Kirbach is the Brownsberger girl this year. She has just had a beautiful invitation to go up in the country to canvass and she intends making good in great style when she gets there. She has done fine work in the city and will make new friends in the country, as she has done here.

Among the boys, David Boardman takes a leap this morning, and success is what this lad deserves. Glenn Anderson of Pasadena, and that other fine Pasadena boy, Leon Riesenweber, are improving their standing rapidly.

A photograph is printed today of Clifford Mitchell, who is a member of the Y.M.C.A. Cadet Corps. He is working for a scholarship in architectural drawing, and has no time to do any canvassing himself, as he is employed in making a living. The members of the Y.M.C.A., and of the cadet corps, especially, intend to help this splendid boy to win his opportunities.

THE PRIZES.

Besides the valuable scholarships for which the young people are working, The Times offers fifteen cash prizes for those making the highest scores next to the top liner, who will receive the prize piano. The cash prizes totalling $1200 are arranged as follows:

THE PIANO.

The first prize to be awarded to the winner of the contest in addition to a choice of scholarships is a splendid Fairbanks piano from the Southern California Music Company, valued at $400. It is a beautiful instrument of superior construction, handled by an old and reliable company as a special feature, and is doubly guaranteed. It's known among musicians for its exquisite tonal qualities and responsive action. The case may be of rich mahogany or dark oak.

COMPLEXION THAT LASTS

Harmless Preparation Better Than Paint and Powder.

You, dear madam, you who are now reading this paragraph, will be interested in this easy-to-make toilet preparation if you care for your complexion;—you will be particularly interested if you do not approve of the use of powder and paint. We all realize that some aid must be given to the skin to keep the complexion clear, white, soft and velvety during the trying months of summer, when perspiration brings that annoying shine and gloss. Eppotone is one of the best known aids to a beautiful complexion. It is comparatively inexpensive and it is easy to prepare. Get at your druggist's 2 ounces of Rose Water, 1 ounce of Cologne Spirits and 4 ounces of Eppotone. Take these home and put the Eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling) and after dissolved strain and let cool, then add the Rose Water and Cologne Spirits. This excellent face wash should be applied daily. It is harmless and its use cannot be detected, for it does not rub off or show. For preventing or removing freckles, tan and sunburn there is nothing so good as Eppotone.

Maginnis, Bonnie Brae and Miramar streets, last evening, and the occasion was enjoyed by a goodly number of friends, many of whom were Mr. Maginnis's business associates. The twenty-nine rooms of the house were tastily decorated with potted plants and cut flowers.

J. J. Falls, Miss Wheat, contralto, Miss Smith and Mrs. Boynton contributed beautiful selections and the orchestral numbers under Mr. Gay were charmingly rendered. A. A. Boynton sang some fine tenor solos, notably Tosti's "Could I?" and Shelley's "Love's Sorrow," and Boynton and Miss Wheat rendered beautiful duets.

The orchestra was composed as follows: Miss Winifred Keech, violin; Miss Thompson, clarinet; Miss Lothrop, piano; Norman Gay, 'cello, and Ira Gay, flute. Selections from various comedies and light operas were played and the "Serenade" by Titl, a flute and 'cello duet, with orchestral accompaniment, were features.

The following officials of the Santa Fé, of which Mr. Maginnis is land and tax commissioner, with their wives, were in attendance: A. G. Wells, general manager; I. W. Hibbard, generau superintendent; John J. Byrne, general passenger agent; W. G. Barnwell, general freight agent; John R. Hitchcock, division superintendent; W. H. Brewer, assistant general manager; M. P. Hays, assistant general superintendent; E. W. Camp, solicitor; H. V. Clotfelter, law department; H. E. Van Gott, law department; R. H. Franklin, general claim agent; E. W. McGee, general ticket agent; S. L. Bean, superintendent of machinery; F. J. Herd, assistant passenger agent; E. C. Phillips, chief engineer; H. Isaacs, baggage master; Henry Westbrook, auditor's department; Messrs. Jones and Taggart, treasury department.

Other railroad men present were General Manager R. E. Wells of the Salt Lake and Superintendent H. V. Platt of the Southern Pacific.

The other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Wren, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar D. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Addison Lysle, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Smith, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Lord, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mowder, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Conant, Miss Jane Collins, Miss Anna Smith, the Misses Wheat, Mrs. C. W. Waterman, Mrs. Levi Harpham, W. E. Eversol, George Harpham and Richard Wallace.

CLERKS AT PLAY.

Employers of Hamburger Store Spend Their First Half-Holiday on the Seashore.

Yesterday inaugurated the half-holiday season at the Hamburger store, and practically everybody connected with the great merchandise establishment went to Playa del Rey for a picnic.

Soon after the store closed at noon, about 900 of the employés formed a procession, and, led by a brass band, marched to the Hill-street station of the Los Angeles-Pacific Railway. They carried orange-and-blue pennants, and a score or more of the men wore burlesque costumes, and acted as funmakers for the whole crowd, driving home their jokes with potato mashers.

They were taken to the beach in four trains of three cars each, and spent the day in all kinds of amusements, including a baseball game, handsome prizes being offered in every event.

In the evening there was a dance, at which all who wished enjoyed themselves, and the whole party returned to the city in good season. The picnic was given under the auspices of the Hamburger Employés' Benevolent Society, and all the employés of the store who are under legal age were guests of the society, which is maintained for mutual benefit.

FACT AND COMMENT.

IN SPITE of business slackness all over the country, the city of Los Angeles is growing in a very solid and healthy way. Take a trip in the western part of the city by way of the Sixth or Seventh-street lines or down as far as Pico or Washington street and you will find ocular demonstration of this solid and healthy growth of the city. A very large number of handsome and costly homes are being built week by week in the district lying between First and Adams streets west of Hoover. If you ask for a certificate of title from one of the standard companies you will be told to wait about two weeks because there is so much work ahead of your order. This is about the time one had to wait in the most active period from one to three years ago. The City Assessor has found occasion to make an addition of [illegible],000,000 to his assessment of improvements within the city limits.

Outside, Too.

The assessors of cities of all classes in this country and in others in Southern California are all footing up their books at the present time and from every one of them comes the same story of increased valuations, and the increases are mainly such as represent new improvements, inasmuch as the value of the realty proper has not advanced much in value during the last twelve months. There is no element of boom excitement in such facts as these. Naturally the value of real estate would enhance in any place where much improvement was going on, from the natural effect of an active demand for real property. If the building up of the cities takes place, with merely a firm market for realty, it indicates a conservative and healthy way of looking at things on the part of the public.

uburban Growth.

Outside of incorporated cities imme ately around Los Angeles there is a nsiderable amount of building of omes going on in what are called the uburbs. Later on this suburban and nterurban growth must have a reflex ction upon the city. The metropolis epends for its life upon the surround g country. With larger growth in the ities distant from half a dozen to fifty miles from Los Angeles and the inter urban spaces filling up, there must come a considerable increase in busi ness in every way in the city. Increased business will mean at a very near period further growth in popula tion.

ake the City Beautiful.

ne who visits strange cities will be ressed in their favor or otherwise rding to appearances. Only necess y would compel any one to live in th Chicago near where the stock rds are. There is not a tree and rcely a shrub often in miles of ets. On the contrary, in North cago once the cars get beyond the iness center, the streets become ry attractive, with their beautiful es, lawns and shrubs.

Artistic Section.

me twenty years ago the Wilshire levard was laid out in this city. was not a promising section. The was for the most part composed stiff clay. But the owners of the t incorporated several features h have resulted in making that of the most attractive residence ons of the city. In laying out hire boulevard westward from tlake Park a beautiful wide thor fare was planned, and this was fully planted with palms and of different kinds. All the ts of the tract were set out with varieties of street trees. At the of twenty years the wisdom of features incorporated into the t is very evident. The houses for most part are back some thirty from the street line and looking n these streets the effect is that a beautiful park.

New Tracts.

Those who lay out new tracts often not see the desirability of incor rating features like this. If it is t to those who purchase the lots separate parcels, uniformity is lost. e proper thing to do to secure a utiful section of the city is to pro e all these things when the tract first laid out. Every such tract ught to be carefully planted in the ginning with proper varieties of treet trees. In the old days we aligned the streets with eucalyptus and pepper trees. These grow to too great size. The roots become too large and lift up the sidewalks. The Grevillea was tried; but it also is too vigorous a grower and develops roots so large as to remove the sidewalks. Later we have taken to different varieties of palms. The old California fan palm is coarse and not particularly beautiful, but should be replaced with other varieties of less vigorous growth and more attractive shape.

Has a Mercantile Value.

It is like putting money in a savings bank to provide for this beautifying of the lots in any residence section of the city. As the trees grow and thus add to the attractiveness of the locality the value of the lots will rise so as to pay several hundred per cent. on the cost of planting trees and caring for them. This last is a very necessary matter. Often the trees re planted and then left to take care themselves. They become stunted d never make a handsome growth. rovision should be made in all s for caring for the trees on un d lots and unimproved lots until ome is established upon them, se ring the further care for the trees.

E. T. Hunter, formerly of the Van [illegible]-Hunter Realty Company, and [illegible] F. SPANISH RENAISSANCE IS STYLE OF WEST ADAMS STREET HOME.

Home of George F. Winter, in exclusive western section.

Set in a huge lot, 200x450 feet in size, on the rising ground just west of the end of the West Adams car line, the home of George F. Winter is one of the handsomest of the artistic dwellings in the western part of the city. It is another design from the offices of Myron Hunt and Elmer Grey, and like all this firm's jobs, is a harmonious adaptation of extraneous forms of architecture to local conditions. The general feeling of the architecture is Spanish renaissance, as the drawing shows. A fountain in the foreground lends an artistic touch to the entire building.

The exterior finish is of waterproof cement plaster over wire lath, the house being of heavy frame construction. It is two stories high, and is roofed with real red tile.

The interior contains twelve rooms of large size, and five baths. Commodious living rooms, a small reception hall, dining-room, and den are features of the lower floor. The entrance is from the reception hall directly into the large living-room. This has a large sun room opening onto the south and east, with an "L" shaped court also on this side. The principal porches look upon this court from the first and second floors, affording a pleasant place for spending the hot noonday hours, fanned by the western sea breeze. There are six bedrooms on the second floor, and several sleeping balconies.

The interior finish consists of rich old mohogany, with tastefully decorated walls and hardwood floors. Special electric fixtures are features of the interior finish also.

A large garage, one-story high, conforming in style of architecture with the house, is on the rear of the lot. The grounds slope gently toward the south, and will be beautified with shrubbery and trees.

DOING GOOD BUSINESS.

Report of Sales by Tatum Encouraging to Realty Men—Good Demand for Tract Lots.

C. C. C. Tatum reports a good business within the last few weeks. He has made the following sales: For M. Rieder and Arnold & Dodge to A. Frediani, a lot 59x117 feet on the east side of South Central avenue, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth streets, for $5000. The lot is vacant. The new owner is now having plans prepared for a two-story frame business block.

Fitz E. Beach sold to Mrs. Blanche E. Strohm, a five-room modern bungalow, and lot 50x135 feet, on the south side of Francis avenue, east of Vermont avenue, for $3500 cash. The buyer is a Chicago woman, who bought for a permanent home.

H. G. Cotton & Co., and C. C. C. Tatum report a good demand for the property known officially as tract No. 26, and commonly at South Park Avenue tract, on Seventy-ninth, Eightieth and Eighty-first streets, between South Park avenue and San Pedro street, inside the city limits. Within the last few weeks these firms have sold nineteen lots aggregating about $12,000 worth of property. Lots range in size from 40x130 feet to 45x135 feet, with corners 49x136 feet. Prices range from $350 to $750 each. The Title Insurance and Trust Company is trustee, thus insuring purchasers clear titles, and deeds to lots, when the latter are paid for.

PHYSICIAN BUYS HOME.

Gramercy Place Residence Sold to Newcomer from Pittsburgh—Sale on Woodlawn Avenue.

Dr. R. H. Updegraff of Pittsburgh has purchased, through the agency of Giles & Kells, of the Wright & Callender Company, the handsome two-story nine-room residence at No. 1414 Gramercy Place for $8750. The property was sold by J. O. Cashin. The lot is 73¾x178¼ feet in size, and is handsomely improved with trees and shrubbery. The buyer is a newcomer, and will make his home here.

Another sale made by Giles & Kells is the seven-room modern two-story residence at No. 3953 Woodlawn avenue for $4500. The grantor is James McNeely and the grantee Knute Thorson, who has been connected with the Hollenbeck Hotel for a number of years.

SELLS CARLOS HEIGHTS.

Consideration Two Hundred and Thirty Thousand Dollars—New Owners Will Begin Building.

The sale for $233,000 of the subdivision known as Carlos Heights, by Tracy C. Drake to a syndicate composed of H. D. Hubbard and other moneyed men of the city, was one of the feature transactions in realty last week.

The property consists of a tract of 160 acres on the Santa Monica car line, adjoining Brentwood Park, on the San Vicente boulevard. It occupies an elevated portion of mesa land, which commands a magnificent view of the surrounding country, with the mountains in the background, and the ocean and catalina Island on the west. Each lot is an acre or larger in size, and fronts on well-graded, curbed and sidewalked driveways and boulevards. Improvements to date have cost $65,000. The new owners plan further improvements in the way of a number of handsome residences, a casino for the locality, and numerous other attractive additions. The property is at present free of all incumbrance, and the new owners will take their own time in marketing the tract. Lots will be sold for between $2000 and $3000. W. B. Merwin & Co. made the sale. About $25,000 of the consideration was in real estate trade. There are 124 lots in the tract.

BIGGEST SALE OF YEAR.

Pacific Mutual Building Sold for Six Hundred Thousand Dollars—Neat Profit in Three Months.

The sale last week of the old Pacific Mutual building at the northeast corner of Third and Hill streets for $600,000 is the feature piece of real estate news recorded in several months. In fact this transaction is the largest of the year, since the sale of the same property about the middle of March for a sum just $57,000 less than that for which is sold last week.

Philip L. Wilson, well-known local capitalist, purchase the property not more than 100 days ago for $543,000 from the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company. He sold it to the Obera Investment Company for $600,000 last week, cleaning up a neat little profit in about three months. A small amount in real estate and the remainder in high-grade mortgages is the nature of the consideration, no cash changing hands. Mines & Farish and the Burck-Gwyn Company were the agents who negotiated the transaction, and also the previous one.

The property consists of a lot with a frontage of 115 feet on Third street and 120 feet on Hill street. It is improved with a six-story modern office building.

The building will be remodeled. Part of it has been occupied by the Santa Fé Railway Company, and these offices will be rearranged. The first floor will be fitted up as stores. Part of the building already has been rented.

ONTARIO SALES RECORD.

Town Lots and Orange Groves Change Hands—New Building Permits Ordinance in Effect.

ONTARIO July 11.—Real estate sales at this city have been fairly numerous within the last week. The demand for both town lots and small orange groves has been good, while numerous transfers of unimproved tracts of land near town are reported.

The new building permits ordinance, requiring the issuance of a permit before the commencement of work, has been in effect during the last week. Several important permits were granted.

Curran and Kelly, report the following sales: H. H. Philips to H. I. Ross, of New York City, a 10-acre orange grove on West "A" street for $10,500.

Harry Kelly sold three lots, 27x130 feet each, on the southeast corner of Euclid avenue and Nevada street to E. M. Smith for $650. E. M. Smith sold to Harry Kelly, two and one-half acres on East State street, unimproved, for $1100. Harry Kelly to Henri Maitral, two and one-half acres on East State street, with six-room cottage for $1550.

Chino Land & Water Company to J. W. Patton, eight and one-half acres, unimproved, on South Euclid avenue for $1700. The same company to Harry Kelly ten acres of unimproved land one mile southwest of Ontario for $1250.

W. H. Marks has sold a five-acre orange grove on Fifth street, east of Euclid avenue to M. E. Berger for $4250.

N. R. Richardson has sold to C. A. Crist, two lots, 24x150 feet each, on East Grove street for $250. N. R. Richardson to R. D. Crist, a five-room modern cottage and lot 50x150 feet on the northeast corner of Grove and Plum streets for $1850.

A building permit was issued to Christ Church for the erection of an addition to their church. The east part will be moved nearer the alley and the addition will be put up between the old part and the one moved. This is to make room for the new pipe organ. A permit also was issued to the Nazarenes for the erection of a church on "C" street and Lemon avenue. The new building will have a main auditorium 40x44 feet, a prayer room 20x30 feet, and anterooms 16x40 feet.

BUILDING BEACH BUNGALOWS.

An improvement on the tent city idea is carried out at Bay City, where a company has been organized to construct a large number of small wooden houses on the bungalow plan, on the ocean front below the pavilion.

There has been a large demand for cheap cottages, which the present facilities would not meet. The company, composed of Alonzo Bailey, R. D. Richards, J. C. Ord, C. F. Reeder, and others, was organized with a capital of $10,000.

Work has already begun. The new bungalow city will have water, electric lights, sewer and other modern facilities, and the bungalows will be made comfortable to live in the year round. All the cottages in Bay City are occupied and more could be rented if they were to be had. The tent city at Anaheim Landing is also full.

SALE ON BONNIE BRAE.

The Jones & Ryder Land Co. reports the sale of the nine-room, two-story residence on a lot 48.9x138 feet, at No. 1441 Bonnie Brae street, by William Blinn to William M. Hagadorn, for a consideration of $7500. Mr. Hagadorn is a prominent traveling salesman, and bought this place for a home.

TOWN BUILDING UP.

STEADY DEMAND AT SAN DIEGO.

VACANT LOTS AND IMPROVED LOCATIONS WANTED.

Contractors Report Much Work in Bungalow and Homes Building by the Bay—Numerous Small Real Estate Transactions Made by Agencies.

SAN DIEGO, July 11.—There has been a steady demand for building sites, unimproved lots and cottages, already erected, for homes. Building companies report no let up in the number of contracts for houses of the bungalow type and on nearly every choice location for homes men with saw and hammer are busily engaged.

One firm sold $9650 worth of real estate in one day, the sales representing property bought as investments. E. J. Swayne & Co. is the firm, the sales on Thursday being as follows: Ten feet of a lot in Horton's addition, on Third street, Florence Heights, was bought of Mrs. Charlotte B. Coyner by William G. Ely of Schenectady, N. Y., for $4000; M. K. Campbell of National City bought of Sarah F. Carroll, a lot 50x150 feet, on Fourth street, between Spruce and Thorn, for $[illegible]300; Charles C. Norris sold to L. M. White a five-room cottage at the corner of Twenty-second and Kearney streets, with two lots each 50x150 feet, for $1850; E. J. Swayne & Co. also sold for Joseph K. Schiller of Los Angeles, to John O'Marr of this city, ten acres of unimproved land in Lemon Grove for $2000. The purchaser will divide the tract into lots and place them on the market.

C. H. Baker bought a five-room cottage on Robinson avenue, west of Albatross street from J. Mapson for $3000. The lot has a frontage of 35 feet and is 150 feet deep.

Following are some of the week's sales by the Ralston Realty Company: To F. I. Lergner, three lots 50x150 feet, on University Heights, for $800; to J. H. Livesay of Lemon Grove, two lots 50x150 feet, on Normal Heights, for $550; Miss Nellie Parsons, one lot 50x150 feet, Normal Heights, for $300; Eudora D. Mayer of Columbus, O., two lots in same section, for $250; other purchasers of Normal Heights lots are E. F. Nettle, Jr., and Martha P. Williams.

Mrs. Mary Jenke to Burtel Peterson, a retired navy officer, two lots on Brooklyn Heights, for $2500. The lots are 50x150 feet and are improved with a modern cottage.

Amanda Peterson sold to August Anderson a seven-room residence and lot 100x100 feet at the northeast corner of Grand avenue and Thirty-second street for $2500.

Beilharz & Crowder are drawing plans for a two-story frame residence to be erected for B. J. Wandry, local manager for the F. W. Braund Drug Company. It will cost $3500 and will occupy a prominent site overlooking the bay and Point Loma.

E. E. Hubbell, a well-known attorney, has awarded to Arthur Love a contract for a bungalow on Fourth street between Brooks and Pennsylvania streets, to cost $2500.

Charles Engebretsen has begun excavating for the new post exchange and gymnasium buildings at Fort Rosecrans. The masonry work will cost $9294 and the entire structure $28,000.

SELL RESIDENCE PROPERTY.

Numerous Transactions in Houses and Lots—Forty-Acre Ranch Near Corcoran Exchanged.

Marshall Stimson has sold to Frank J. Sibley of Copper Creek, Ariz., the seven-room house at No. 1024 East Twenty-eighth street. The lot is 50x145 feet. The purchaser will make improvements and occupy as a home. The price was $6000.

To Thomas K. Hughes, the handsome five-room bungalow at No. 1062 Laguna avenue. The lot has a frontage of 110 feet. The purchaser will occupy as a home. Price $3500.

To J. B. Weaver, lot with a forty-three-foot frontage on the south side of Temple street, between Burlington and Bonnie Brae, for $1450.

To Harry G. Norton, two lots 80x125 on the corner of Santa Cruz and Casco streets for $2000.

To Thomas I. Robinson, a forty-acre tract one mile north of Corcoran, improved with house, barn, etc., for $6000. Part of the consideration being a seven-room house, owned by Mr. Robinson, on East Twenty-eighth street in this city.

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Tracy E. Shoults & Co. reports sales as follows: A lot 44x135 feet on Budlong avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first streets, to Frank McCabe, for $900. The buyer plans building a cosy bungalow. A lot 44x130 feet on Fiftieth street, between Raymond and Normandie avenues, to Katherine McCabe, for $800. A six-room bungalow and three lots on Forty-ninth street, between Budlong avenue and Kansas avenue, and two lots on Fiftieth street, between the same two streets, to H. B. Riggs, for a consideration of $6500. R. G. Ridgeway represented the seller.

ACTIVITY AT ANAHEIM.

ANAHEIM, July 11.—The five-acre place of Mr. Wilson, east of town, set to walnuts, was sold last week to M. A. Cook of Loara for $2000. Mrs. L. Schultz has sold her twenty-acre improved place southwest of town, to Mr. Williams of Pasadena, for $9000. Resh & Co. has purchased a five-acre tract east of town, set to walnuts, for $2000. L. Wingand of Pasadena has purchased four lots in the old Del Campo tract, and will improve the property. Mrs. Mary Wiley is erecting a $1200 cottage southwest of town. In all, over 100 new buildings were erected in this city in the past year.

WOMAN ARCHITECT DESIGNS RIVERSIDE HOUSE.

Residence of Harry Hawes, on Little Rubidoux Mountain, Riverside, in what is known as the River Crest Tract, and in a sightly section of Riverside. It was designed by Clara Content Alden, a young aspirant to architectural fame. The house has an unobstructed view of the surrounding country, with the mountains to the north and east. The house contains twelve rooms, has a basement, in which are storage rooms and a laundry. As the home was designed by a woman, comforts for the housewife have been especially looked to, and the house has exceptional closet room, and many conveniences in the kitchen and pantry. Modern fixtures, and the usual hardwood floors, etc., are incorporated. The house cost about $10,000. The designer is a Los Angeles woman.

GOOD.

AMONG BUILDERS AND ARCHITECTS.

GOOD BUILDING RECORD MADE IN EIGHT DAYS.

More Than Quarter of a Million for Two Hundred Permits—Operations for Year Reach Above Four and One Half Millions of Dollars—the Report.

Two hundred building permits, with a valuation of $250,336, have been granted by the department of buildings in the eight business days, July 1 to 10, inclusive. This record is compared with 211 permits, with a valuation of $314,393 in the same period a year ago.

Building operations in Los Angeles for the year to date reach a total of 3755 permits, with a gross valuation of $4,557,192.

The chief item in the classified report for July, to date, is the Class D one-story frame buildings, which number ninety-six, and have a value of $107,615. This is an average cost of $1120, showing a slight increase, compared with the average cost of the same buildings six months ago, when these generally were built at about $950. Lumber prices and labor are both getting slightly higher, and will continue to do so.

The Fifth Ward continues to hold the first place in both valuation and number of buildings erected, there being sixty-one permits, calling for $104,150, issued within the last week and a half. Following is the classified report:

	No. of permits.	Value.
Class C	1	$ 300
Class D, one-story	96	107,615
Class D, 1½-story	8	15,225
Class D, two-story	14	99,187
Class D, three-story	1	4,500
Sheds	15	1,466
Brick alterations	8	2,018
Frame alterations	56	19,975
Demolitions	1	50
Total	200	$250,336

Comparison with other years:

	No. of permits.	Value.
1907, from July 1 to July 10, inclusive	211	$314,393

Following is a report by wards from July 1 to July 10, inclusive:

	No. of permits.	Value.
First Ward	25	$ 45,422
Second Ward	20	14,695
Third Ward	5	550
Fourth Ward	21	28,179
Fifth Ward	61	104,150
Sixth Ward	41	31,230

Eighth Ward	3	820
Ninth Ward	19	12,756
Total	200	$250,338

BRIGHT AND INTERESTING.

Advantages of reinforced concrete construction are discussed in an able paper by Charles F. Whittlesey in Saturday's issue of the Southwest Contractor and Manufacturer. Several attractive illustrations help materially in impressing the facts on the reader. The article advances reasons for a belief that eventually this method will supersede all others in construction. This new trades paper has been well received by all interested in building and construction news of the Southwest. Saturday's copy was its ninth issue. In addition to several interesting and instructive articles on the building industry, a full line of classified construction news is printed. The paper also prints the official notices of the Engineers' and Architects' Association for the first time, it now being the official organ of that organization. George Lyons is publisher, Frank C. Ayars, editor, and George W. Ayars, business manager.

SAN DIMAS GROVE EXCHANGED.

The Horace G. Hamilton Company has sold to J. E. Calkins a 9¾-acre grove on the northwest corner of Ramona and Bonita avenues, San Dimas. About four acres are set to Valencia oranges, about four acres to navels, and the remainder to lemons. The grove is in full bearing, and being close to the railroad station and schoolhouse, makes it a desirable home place. There are no buildings on the grove. Mr. Calkins has already ordered material for a cottage. Ten shares of water stock and the Valencia crop were included in the transfer. Miss Emma Standefer receives in payment a six-room house on lot 40x130 feet, at No. 2252 West Thirtieth street, valued at $4500. The difference of $7500 was paid part in cash, and the balance in mortgage. Mr. Calkins until recently has been a resident of Davenport, Iowa, but, like many other visitors, found Southern California so delightful that he intends to make it his future home.

INTEREST IN CORCORAN.

For the past year the Corcoran district has been forcing itself more and more upon the attention of the public until, today, it is the most conspicuous agricultural section in the West.

The completion of the $1,000,000 beet-sugar factory that will spend a million dollars per year for operating expenses, the magnificent crops that have been produced this year, the flowing wells that furnish water in abundance, the natural gas for light and heat, and above all the air of prosperity and satisfaction worn by Corcoran farmers—are attracting to Corcoran hundreds of land-seekers every week. Weekly excursions from Los Angeles to Corcoran are made to the town.

RANCH FOR RESIDENCE.

Wisler, Moore & Co. report the following exchange between Lillian M. Woodward and Nannie Cornwell. The former exchanged a ten-acre orange ranch one-half mile northwest of Charter Oak station, unimproved with buildings, but having a fine water right, and valued at $8500, for the property at No. 1222 Ionica street, consisting of a lot 50x150 feet, improved with a two-story seven-room residence, valued at $5000. The difference was adjusted by a mortgage.

ARIZONA HOTEL LEASED.

Cason & Arnold, report the leasing of the Queen Hotel at Douglas, Ariz., to George D. Armstead of this city. C. A. Overlock is the lessor. The lease calls for the hotel completely furnished and is, for a term of three years. The hotel contains 60 rooms with dining room and bar and is one of the commercial houses of the city.

Let's just enumerate the things in this surprising property. Oak floors in the principal rooms and polished everywhere else. Seven rooms, 3 of which are bedrooms, or one may be used as a lovely library. There is also a breakfast-room which, if needed, would make a fine servant's room. The Flemish oak finish and the white enamel bedrooms are well done. The bath is extraordinary. The windows are large and there are many of them. There is a fine cemented basement, and furnace pipes throughout the house. The exterior is handsome in the extreme. The veranda is of cement with grey granite columns entirely across the front. We know this to be a splendid value for you today.

NEAR BERKELEY SQUARE.

Here is a 9-room modern house, hardwood floors throughout, furnace, beamed ceilings, paneled walls, elegant built-in seats, ingle nook, and other appointments; solid brass lighting fixtures, and every detail complete for an up-to-date modern residence. Only 2 years old, newly painted outside, walls and woodwork newly finished. The Flemish oak below stairs is Old English style, with satin surface, and the white enamel above stairs is all five-coat work.

There are 2 mantels and fireplaces. A cosy library-room, with its own fireplace and outside entrance. A large sleeping balcony, a small airing balcony. The four bedrooms are large with many windows and spacious closets.

If you do not recognize this as a remarkable bargain it will be because you are both blind and deaf. It has no peer on all of West Adams Heights.

BONNIE BRAE HOME.

$10,500.

In the heart of the Westlake district, a strictly modern home which is several thousand dollars under value. This property cost about thirteen thousand five hundred dollars, two years ago. It has nine large rooms, with hardwood floors throughout, and a finished attic, with servants' room; also a good furnace. Lot 50x150 to alley, and located between 7th and 9th sts. Very easy terms can be arranged.

BURLINGTON AVENUE HOME.

This is the bargain of the Westlake district, near Ninth st., east front, on one of the few 75x150 to alley lots in this desirable section. The lot alone is worth almost the price asked for the entire property, and the house is modern and up-to-date. There is an exceptionally large living-room with massive fireplace; the reception hall is a flood of sunlight; the dining-room is finished in ebony with a beautiful buffet built in; the kitchen is large, with two pantries and a fine screen porch, laundry, furnace, garage, etc.; four large bedrooms and bathroom upstairs. Let us show you this home.

WILSHIRE BOULEVARD MANSION.

This is one of the real homes in this desirable section; an east front, on lot 80x217 ft., highly improved with beautiful shrubs, over 200 varieties of roses. This house has been completed about 1 year, and was constructed with unusual care, being finished in hardwood throughout. The reception-room, hall and living-room on the first floor are finished in fumed oak; the dining-room is Peruvian mahogany, the den and library are curly birch, breakfast-room in English oak, and the kitchen, pantry, servant's room with bath in keeping with this beautiful home. The wall hangings are of imported silk tapestry, the fixtures of very heavy hammered brass. On the second floor are 5 large bedrooms finished in birch, with 7 coats of white enamel rubbed to a piano finish, with mahogany doors. There are 2 extra large tiled bathrooms with built-in shower and electric cabinet. All the closets are large and well lighted, 2 sun parlors on this floor. The third floor is finished and arranged for a ballroom. There is a cellar under the whole house, with laundry, servant's room, lavatory, Ruud heater, water filter for the whole house, furnace piped everywhere. Garage is not yet completed, there being only the cement work done. This property is a bargain at the above price, and the owners will consider a smaller property in exchange. Let us show you one of the finest homes in Los Angeles today.

FOR SALE—
JUST THE HOUSE YOU WANT.

Perhaps it's here. At any rate, read the list over carefully. Every one of the five houses mentioioned is NEW and strictly modern, and in a very choice location. At the price I don't think you can possibly fine anything better in the Wilshire-Westlake district, and I'm pretty familiar with it.

$5350—7 rooms, just one year old, slash grain and white enamel finish, hardwood floors, etc. Cost $4600 and lot is worth $2000. About half cash, balance 6 per cent.

$5750—This is a BEAUTY! And only ONE-FOURTH cash. On highest ground, near Eighth and Vermont; not quite completed; hardwood floors, weathered oak and white enamel finish, beam ceilings, artistic plumbing, piped for furnace; 7 rooms; 4 bedrooms. The view from front and rear is superb, and will not be cut off. Couldn't be duplicated for the money, but owner is forced to sell at once.

$7000—Near Vermont and Wilshire; 8 rooms, 4 bedrooms, hardwood floors, rich interior finish, furnace, etc. It's $500 less than cost a year ago.

$7000—You should see this by all means; 8 rooms, near Seventh and Coronado; hardwood floors, beam ceilings, very large living-room, den, large bedrooms, all artistically finished; many varieties fruits and flowers. A splendid value and a charming home.

$13,500—9 rooms and reception, built less than year ago; hardwood floors throughout, Flemish oak and white enamel finish, built-in bookcases, paneled dining-room; elevated site, with fine view on all four sides. Two-story barn and garage, cement floor, also $1000 worth cement work about house. MIGHT CONSIDER EXCHANGE for city or country, but it must be CHOICE.

BUSINESS INVESTMENT—

IT IS LIKE EATING YOUR CAKE AND then being served with a larger portion, for the syndicate I am forming to purchase machinery and plant and organize a company to manufacture by a NEW PROCESS a staple article in universal use and in great quantities. Exceptional opportunity is offered members of this syndicate, who will invest $2500 to $5000 each, as the enterprise has unlimited possibilities, and $500,000 can be earned the first year. Let me show you a legitimate money making business that you can enter on the ground floor and get a square deal. It is all right for you to be from Missouri, but don't answer this unless you have at least $2500 cash to invest, when you are shown that this is the biggest money maker ever put up to you. Address X, box 42, TIMES OFFICE. 12

FOR ONE-HALF ITS VALUE WE OFFER you the control of an industrial business that is paying in cash daily more than 25 per cent., also $300 monthly salary for superintendence. Product is consumed as fast as produced and business is a monopoly; clean, safe and eminently respectable. Complete inventory and full details given. See HUNTER, 417-418 Citizens' National Bank Bldg. 12

FOR MODERATE INVESTMENTS I CAN offer the best profit and best security in the stock of a corporation that is making big money and paying regular dividends. I have a few shares and need money, and will sell them much below real value as based on earnings. Address Z, box 128, TIMES OFFICE. 12

WE ARE STILL BUILDING THOSE WELL arranged

APARTMENT HOUSES AND FLATS.

For over ten years we have been designing and building houses in Los Angeles, and we do not hesitate to say that we know the requirements of buildings of the above class from cellar to garret; and another thing—

WE CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.

If you have a piece of vacant property that needs improvement, call and talk it over with us; let us give you the benefit of our experience.

IF YOU NEED MONEY,

we can furnish it for you at the prevailing interest. Building material of all kinds is cheaper now than it has been for years in Los Angeles, and it is your duty to take advantage of it.

FOR SALE—
Section 21, Twp. 5 south, Range 3 east, S. B. B. M., lying in the Johnson or Hurkee Canyon, in Riverside county, Cal., about three miles from either Idyllwild or Keen's Camp. This section is reached by good county road from Hemet, and a daily stage. It has a running stream through the whole section. About forty acres are inclosed and consists of rich meadow land, affording the best of hay and pasture. On the highest part of the section and adjacent to the meadow land are ever-flowing springs, grouped right together and furnishing about twenty inches of the most delicious cold, soft mountain water. It lies at the foot of Tauquitz Peak, the scenery is grand and picturesque and seldom surpassed. The whole section can be irrigated with the water on the same. An ideal spot for a camping ground or summer resort, or if you please, for a private resort for a dozen families owning it, and using it for their own pleasure. It is all good pasture and much of it covered with large timber, giving beautiful shade, where the tired and weary body may rest, and with the sparkling mountain water regain the strength of youth. This property is a part of the M. M. Onstott estate and must be sold. It would, in all probability, have been used long ere this for a popular summer resort, had not the deceased refused to sell. Also a quarter section of dry land, good for pasture or dry farming, in Diamond Valley, about five miles from Hemet.

LOMITA FARMS.
LOMITA FARMS.
LOMITA FARMS.

Go where crops are certain and where the land will make big money by increasing values.

Between Los Angeles and San Pedro.

Lomita Farms is right in the heart of the greatest development planned for this country. San Pedro will witness a wonderful forward movement from this time on. It is attracting national attention by reason of the colossal cost of improvements contemplated.

LOMITA FARMS IS CLOSE IN—SHELTERED BY THE SAN PEDRO HILLS.

It is only half a mile from the contemplated ship channel into Bixby slough, and close to electric line at Western street. It adjoins the popular shoestring strip where values are up to $1000 and more per acre. The proposed boulevard connecting the beach cities will pass directly through it. The soil is among the most fertile in the State. For vegetables, potatoes, tomatoes, fruits, berries, as well as alfalfa and grain, it has demonstrated its great fertility for years. It is superior also in its water supply, one well alone producing constantly 1275 gallons per minute. It is being sold now in small tracts, one to five and ten acres, at a price which will appear ridiculous a year from today.

FOR SALE—
VALENCIA ORANGES.
The Valencia orange harvest just closed
AT LINDSAY, has proven all that has ever been claimed for this WONDERFUL DISTRICT, and proves also that this district is far superior to any other portion of California for the growing of Valencia oranges, and
IT IS CONCEDED
by all parties familiar with orange culture that this district surpasses all others in growing navel oranges, which ripen in October and November, thus making two harvests per year from this district.
We have statements which are authentic and can easily be proven where $2000 PER ACRE
has been taken from Valencia groves the present season, and it is estimated that the average cost per acre does not exceed $50 over the entire district. There are NO FRUIT PESTS TO CONTEND WITH.
Oranges mature six to eight weeks earlier than in the South, which insures a ready market and top figures.
WE ARE OFFERING the finest orange lands in California at prices ranging from $75 to $100 PER ACRE, on the easiest possible terms.
FOOTHILL LOCATION.
Water cheap and easy to obtain. We will be pleased to show you over this district, and can easily demonstrate all that we have claimed for it.
Join our Excursion next Tuesday night and see the finest orange district in the world.

EAGLE ROCK.
ACREAGE—LOTS—HOUSES.

Come to headquarters, we do not solicit on or off the street cars, but sell more Eagle Rock property than all other agents combined. Our office is in the bank building, Eagle Rock, next to the bank, and is in charge of Mr. H. S. Bourne. Any information he may give you will be unexaggerated and reliable.

A WORD ABOUT ACREAGE.

Well located acreage is getting very scarce in Eagle Rock. Wherever you can find it at a reasonable price we advise you to buy it. Look over this list.

6 acres tableland, magnificent view, $3750.

3 acres splendid location, good 5-room house, outbuildings and trees, $6000.

11 acres; one of the grandest pieces of land in Eagle Rock, $5500.

12 acres, near Eagle Rock, large trees, water stock $5000.

14 acres, beautiful rolling land, with live oaks, per acre, $550.

25 acres, covered with live oaks, per acre, $450.

HERE IS THE FINEST SUBURBAN ESTATE WITHIN SIX MILES OF THE CITY.

Owing to an enforced change of residence, we are instructed by the owner to offer his beautiful home place of 28 acres for sale; new one-and-one-half-story bungalow of seven rooms, surrounded by splendid live oaks and sycamores; land is highly cultivated and has its own abundant water supply; the improvements cost over $5000; entire property of 28 acres can be purchased for $18,000, half cash, making the price of land $465 per acre; this is about half its real value.

A SURE THING.
—$1250—

This opportunity is unusual because the land should be worth $1000 an acre at the very least in three to four years. It is not like buying land in a location that may or may not develop. This property is in the midst of the most prosperous community in the State. It is surrounded with beautiful homes and within walking distance of two rapidly growing cities. It is in the famous Monte Vista tract, 60 minutes from Los Angeles on two transcontinental railways with an electric line surveyed. It is between the two big interior cities of Pomona and Ontario. It is only half a mile from the electric line, banks, stores, churches and schools of Ontario. Improved orange and lemon groves valued at $1000 to $2000 per acre surround it on four sides. It has ample water piped and a share of water stock goes with each acre.

MANHATTAN.

FOR SALE—

$10 CASH FOR YOU.

We will pay $10 cash for the best name suggested for our new Tract at Manhattan Beach.

We have installed, and are now operating at First street, Manhattan, the largest mechanical grading outfit ever used in the southwest. We shall move more yards of material than have been handled at Venice and Naples combined. With this immense plant we shall be able to level economically all of the remaining sand dunes in that territory, and fill all of the hollows so that every lot will be a sand lot and have a magnificent ocean view.

This is by far the largest and most important undertaking in the history of Manhattan Beach, and we want the name of the new tract to be something which will forever commemorate the event.

We shall place these lots on sale at once, on very easy terms, at about one-half of their actual value and a mere fraction of what they will be worth in five years' time.

There are no strings to this offer. You don't have to buy anything to compete for the $10. We simply want the BEST NAME for the tract, and we want it before 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning. If you are the first one to suggest the best name, we will gladly pay you $10 cash.

Mr. A. G. Gibbs will be on the ground Sunday to show visitors around.

Where Bargains Reign.

The past week was a busy one with us. Hundreds of people who had no idea of the extraordinary opportunities of buying slightly used furniture at prices in most cases at less than half original cost, were more than pleased at the money saving sale which has been progressing on our second floor for the past ten days.

Nowhere in the city of Los Angeles can be found such a vast assortment of furniture which we have mostly taken in exchange for new goods. All have been marked at prices that cannot but appeal to the most shrewd buyer.

WE NEED THE ROOM.

Below we mention just a few items which will give you a slight idea of the many bargains now to be had on our second floor. (Take elevator.)

JAMES COLGAN & CO., 711-713-715 S. [illegible]
Largest second-hand store in L. A.

We are overstocked and must make room. We bought out the contents of several fine residences of nice, clean, nearly new furniture last week, and are selling same at about half the price of new. Come early and pick out the best. First come first served.

If you intend to furnish a house come and give us a call, for we can furnish your house with "slightly used" furniture at about half the price of new.

And if you have not all the cash to pay down we can arrange terms to suit you.

We court comparison. Get others' prices, then come here.

It's no trouble for us to sell goods to those who are posted.

Don't buy then come here and find you're sorry that you bought.

Wait till you see our goods and get our prices before you close up any deal.

Remember, the more you buy the more you save.

$1.50 buys a good iron bed.

VERMONT AVENUE SQUARE

The Heart of the Great Southwest

IN BUYING REAL ESTATE, selecting the property and agreeing upon the price does not—at least it should not—cover the whole transaction. It is up to the owner or agent to see that the buyer is properly protected.

Purchasers of lots in VERMONT AVENUE SQUARE are not given mere warranty deeds. They receive grant, bargain and sale deeds, passing title forever.

The title to VERMONT AVENUE SQUARE was handed down by patent from the federal government and held by the original owner until a few years ago when it passed from him by will to his heirs from whom the Southwest Land Company purchased it.

An Unimpeachable Title is a Very Important Point

VERMONT AVENUE SQUARE has 125 homes and all modern facilities. It is only 23 minutes' ride with unsurpassed car service. Lots as low as $650, with easy terms and special inducements to those who will build.

To reach Vermont Avenue Square take Grand Avenue car carrying sign, "Vermont Square" or "West 48th St." direct to tract.

EXCELSIOR!

"WHAT NEXT" FOR OUR CITY?

Suggests Many Improvements at Club Luncheon.

More Water, Good Roads, Big Harbor Among Aims.

In an eloquent speech at the noon luncheon of the City Club at the Westminster yesterday, William D. Stephens, former member of the Chamber of Commerce, long-time resident and prominent business man of Los Angeles, painted a glowing picture of the future of the city, likewise reviewing its proud past, and suggesting plans of improvement. "What Next" was his topic. He said, in part:

"I am always a booster. Never a knocker. For more than twenty-one years have I held the faith, and preached it, too, in season and out of season.

"There is no other city that can compare with Los Angeles. No other county with such a capital and such beautiful sister cities. No other urban and interurban car lines that handle crowds so well. No snow-capped mountains and eternal summer seas, within an hour of each other and a Los Angeles between—no summer and winter climate half so comfortable.

"Los Angeles now is a large city. There are only eighteen as large or larger in the United States.

"We have not sufficiently concerned ourselves in municipal expenditures or municipal economies. I would not have Los Angeles close-fisted or penurious. Indeed, rather free-handed and liberal, but in the right direction.

"Our women and our newspapers are the best, our merchants, lawyers, preachers and bankers are among the very best, and those who earn their living by the 'sweat of the brow' are, generally speaking, the most sensible, the most refined of any in the United States. We have chosen from the first of every community in the United States, and as a whole, I believe our citizenship to be most intelligent, enthusiastic, capable, moral and honest.

"The men and women of Los Angeles have builded us to where we are and the question that is with some of us, and should be with most of us, all the time, is:

"'What more shall we do?'

"What more shall we do to increase the satisfaction our people have in living in Southern California?

"What more shall we do to please our tourists?

"What more shall we do to attract new home-builders to us?

POPULATION'S INCREASE.

"The Southern Pacific Railway came and our population grew. The Santa Fé landed its passengers here and we more than doubled. The Salt Lake was built, and we were multiplied by three. The Huntington system was created, then extended, and Los Angeles attained the three hundred thousand population mark. The Owens River water project and the Panama Canal are under way, and we will soon number half a million people.

"Again, what more shall we do?

"Above all we will need water. Water for our lawns, flowers, gardens and trees—for our streets and sewers and factories. Our Owens River water project, so emphatically indorsed, will amply provide for every possible water need. Constant encouragement must be given to those who have charge of the financing and the building. It is all in good hands. Our Board of Public Works and general superintendents directly in charge of this tremendous water scheme are honest, enthusiastic, capable and efficient, and will give us Owens River water before 1912.

"Good roads must be built from Los Angeles to every city and village in Southern California. It will cost us less to build them than not to build them.

"The King's highway will provide a royal road, and in its very name—El Camino Real—another sentimental attraction.

PAVING AND CLEANING.

"Our business district streets and alleys should all be paved with California asphaltum or fire brick and then washed and scrubbed every night. Carline streets should be oiled and planted to shade trees the entire length. Other residence streets should be narrowed as to roadways and broadened as to park effects. Thirty feet is sufficient width for all kinds of driving. Then why make roadways in streets free from car lines any wider than that? Why not have the curbs just that far apart?

"Would it not be better and prettier to have the balance of each street, twenty feet back of each curb to the sidewalk, both sides alike, in trees, flowers and grass? Have the roadways between the curbs taken care of, as now, by the street department, and the grass, trees and flowers along the sides cared for at public expense by the Park Commissioners.

"We should take down all front-yard partition fences. Plant to gardens, flowers, vines or grass all rear yards. Grade and pave or oil all alleys. Clean up and plant to geraniums, or the like, all vacant lots at house or lot owners' expense. Place all wires in underground conduits or else on poles in alleys. Wouldn't it be extraordinarily attractive? And it could all be accomplished so easily and so quickly—say, in five years.

"We must add largely and continuously to the natural beauties of Griffith and Elysian parks such artificial beauty as plenty of water, grass and flowers can give them.

"Make other parks and playgrounds in the city, and also here and there in the county outside the city. Trolley parks and public picnic places in the arroyos and cañons would be in constant use if parked and nicely kept. Provide good music often in both city and country parks.

AMUSEMENT COMMISSION.

"For vital reasons we should create a city and county amusement commission, with money from the public funds to spend. Have it encourage, subsidize or carry on theaters, museums and song festivals, fiestas, barbecues and picnics, tennis, basketball and golf, baseball, football and cricket, rowing, sailing and fishing, autoing, driving and riding, for the amusement of our own people and entertainment of our visitors.

"Today, tomorrow and for years and years the particular business—the largest and best-paying business—for this community, as a whole, is and will be the entertainment of tourists.

"Our summer and winter climate is our greatest asset, and our tourist crop one that will yield a thousand instead of a hundredfold if they are amused while here and sent away as the sailors were—satisfied and anxious to come again.

"Keep alive the local interest in the old missions. Care for and protect them from vandal hands. Their history and very existence is of wonderful value to us now. With all people beyond the Mississippi there is a stant longing to see, an ever desire to visit, the land of the sions and padres, where said and the angelus rung so long. The ripening yellow orange and the olive, the fig and palm, ever mocking birds that sing all day sweetly through the night have a timental value for us.

"We must continue to advertise climate. Of course, our Chamber of Commerce has done this every over the world, and done it well.

"We must not stop advertising each new day puts another people into the class that might to Los Angeles, if they only

CLIMATE BEST ASSET.

"Our climate is truly our asset, and our summers will to come attract even more than winters. Comparatively few people honestly acquainted with our climate. No murky, sticky, sic-at-your-stomach' heat day or night. Sunshine, never excessively or distressing. Shade, always cool. Nights lightful. Sleeping, every coverlid or blanket. Comfort ters always open. Very ping places for women. restaurants in abundance. know of any summer resort else in which you can be so comfortable? Wouldn't it much if our Chamber of would collect and distribute phlet form, say twenty from as many different ers, lawyers, doctors, sonally written and officially giving actual summer expe ing the summer months in Los les?

"We must hasten the day Angeles and the cities around bor shall be all one. One harbor, one for economy one for every measure that build it—yet one that shall erned as to preserve to today a satisfactory local

"We ask for only what to the people, fair to the A share of that great harbor Pedro, a part of its docks, privileges must be owned trolled (and perhaps operated people's corporation, for the Nothing more is wanted, will satisfy.

MEANS PROSPERITY.

"Such a harbor means for California, and Los Angeles particular, a limitless prosperity—steamship lines and South America, to Philippines and the Orient, northern coast and through mian Canal to all the trade merce of our Atlantic seaboard Europe.

"Build a broad highway heavy freight hauling may be tween this city and the take such other steps as shall regulate the toll of traffic two.

"Do not sell the river bed. uable now and will be imme uable later. A few years covered over with a structure support a tremendous freight senger traffic and yield the county a wonderful revenue.

"Create a statistics and commission with a paid sec assistants. Under its intell continuing effort having in favorable climatic condit tremendous electrical power ties, through the Owens delivery, and our inexhau of crude oil, manufactories small could be established this city or in it.

"This same commission terially assist in forming fraternal life, fire and surance and similar co would eventually keep insurance premiums at other millions here, and purchases of or loans California property and

EXPAND RELATION

"A closer relationship must vated with Imperial, Ante Joaquin valleys and with Santa Barbara counties, always our profitable Orange, Riverside, San Be San Diego counties.

"In some way an imme paign should be undertaken the truth told about financial tate and mercantile condition Angeles. Our jealous friends circulated some very damaging We know they are untrue. find some way to have the real truth. It's only the ask for.

"Encourage in every our crude oil development, mate mining enterprises.

"Believing that all this done at the expense of the ple, I would have a differently city. One managed and are some very large corpora competent, well-paid men. the commission plan would best and most satisfactory am sure men can be had (if paid) to manage the affairs great Los Angeles corporation plain business way. Men save enough to pay for all the sions required by us in our ment.

"Let us continue our work river water, good roads and harbor—start a new campaign municipal amusement com parking of our streets, the mate relationship with our tural, horticultural and min bors, and always advertise

VENTURA PORTLAND CEMENT CO.

A 10,000-barrel daily capacity cement plant will be ected in Ventura county.

A standard gauge electric line will be built from our arries via Nordhoff to tidewater at Ventura. Also a local e in the city of Ventura. Electric power plants producing 000 horsepower will be constructed to furnish power for e enterprise.

We have 50,000 inches of water available for domestic d irrigating purposes.

Who said we were over-capitalized? Our bond issue mands the amount of our capital. We are not building a ayhouse or a treadmill.

The enterprise is a large one, but not cumbersome. Every anch of it is of value and absolutely necessary to the ultiate success of the entire plan.

It is the purpose of this company to so equip itself with the cilities that it may be able to manufacture a first-class cement large quantities, at a minimum cost, so as to compete with y market in the world.

It is impossible at the present date for the cement manufacturers of the United States to supply the demand.

This demand is ever increasing. In 1880 there were 42,000 barrels of cement manufactured in the United States. In 1907 there were 55,000,000 barrels manufactured in the United States, an increase of 1,309 per cent., and yet last year there was a shortage of 16,000,000 barrels in the United States.

Taking into consideration the increase in demand, the shortage in addition to the increased uses of cement, when the commodity sells at a handsome profit, is there any chance to take in establishing a modern cement plant equipped with its power and transportation services to supply an already established demand?

We assert without fear of contradiction that nowhere in America is there an opportunity without hazardous risk for the manufacture, transportation, and sale of a standard commodity, such as we have in connection with our enterprise.

Our quarries, so high in quality, so near to tidewater, so large, equipped with transportation facilities, and furnished with power enables us to fulfill every condition.

We wish to inform those who are desirous of securing a first-class investment where their money will be well secured, where the profits will be large, that now is the time for them to secure the stock and nds they desire. All we ask is your careful investigation and the merits of our enterprise will prove to you its great value, and appeal inspection at our offices. Offices will be opened in San Francisco and Ventura at once. Write for prospectus and full information to you as an investor. Our engineers' and chemists' reports are open

LOAF CAKE.—(Mrs. B. E.
[illegible] avenue, Pasadena.) One-half cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 1½ cups sour milk, 1 scant teaspoon soda, 2½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves, 1 tablespoon ground chocolate or cocoa, 1 cup seeded raisins, pinch salt. Bake in slow oven 1 hour. Keeps moist.

FEATHER CAKE.—(Pearl Moore, No. 2020 Vermont avenue.) One cup sugar (white,) 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs, 2-3 cup milk, 1½ cups flour, 1 heaping teaspoon baking powder. Cream sugar, butter and eggs together, add milk, and then flour with baking powder sifted in, and last the white of 1 egg beaten to stiff froth, using other white in frosting. ICING: One cup brown sugar, butter size of walnut and just enough milk to wet it. Cook until forms a ball in cold water. Have ready whites of egg beaten to stiff froth, then put in sugar and whip until smooth.

FEATHER CAKE.—(Mrs. L. M. Stetson, No. 155 North Gates street.) Two cups sugar, ½ cup butter, 1 cup milk, 2½ cups flour, 3 eggs, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar. Flavor with vanilla or lemon. Bake in loaves or layers.

FIG CAKE.—(Mrs. Alice Watson, No. 133 Hill street.) Two cups sugar, 2-3 cup butter, 1 cup rich milk, 4 scant cups flour, 5 eggs, 2 teaspoons cream tartar and 1 of soda sifted with flour. Mix butter and sugar thoroughly, then add unbeaten yolks of eggs, add milk and flour alternately, and lastly, beaten whites of eggs. After cake is mixed, cut sufficient number of figs into small pieces to make 2 cups, flour them lightly and stir into cake. Bake quickly, and when cool, frost under side of cake.

FIG AND COCOANUT CAKE.—(Mrs. Charles C. Bell, R.F.D. No. 2, Norwalk.) Half cup butter, ½ cup cocoanut milk, 1 cup sugar, 1½ cups flour, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Cream butter and sugar; add well-beaten egg yolks, then add alternately 1 tablespoon each flour and cocoanut milk, adding baking powder to last ½ cup flour; add lastly stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in 2 layers. This cake can be used with other fillings by substituting water for cocoanut milk and adding any preferred flavoring. For filling, use ½ pound dried figs, 1 cup water (hot,) ½ cup sugar, 1 cup fresh grated cocoanut, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Chop figs fine; put in stewpan with sugar and water and bring slowly to boil; boil, stirring constantly, until thick enough to spread; add cocoanut and lemon juice; remove from fire and beat briskly until cool. Spread between layer and on top of cake, sprinkling liberally with grated cocoanut. Desiccated cocoanut may be used, but is not so good.

FILBERT CAKE.—(Mrs. Alice Watson, No. 133 Hill street.) Take 6 eggs, 6 tablespoons sugar, 6 tablespoons chopped filberts, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder. Beat whites, add sugar, then beaten yolks, nuts, flour and baking powder sifted together. Bake in 2 layers. Between layers and on top of cake put this filling: Whip 1 cup cream, add 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons grated chocolate, 4 tablespoons chopped filberts.

FILLINGS FOR LAYER CAKES.—(Mrs. E. L. Ariand, No. 1046 East Fifty-sixth street.) VANILLA CUSTARD: One pint milk, ½ cup sugar, yolk of 1 egg, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons corn starch. Cook in double boiler till thick, then add vanilla. LEMON FILLING: Grate rind from 1 lemon, add juice, 1 big spoon water, ½ cup sugar, piece butter size of walnut, and 1 beaten egg. Beat all together and cook in double boiler till thickens. FIG FILLING: One-half pound chopped figs, 1-3 cup sugar, 1-3 cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Cook till thick. CHOCOLATE FILLING: Two and one-half squares Baker's chocolate (melted,) 1 cup pulverized sugar, 3 tablespoons sweet milk, yolk of 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cook in double boiler. CARAMEL FILLING: One-half pound dark brown sugar, ½ pound maple sugar, ½ cup hot water. Put on fire and cook till it coats spoon quite thick. Beat up 2 eggs and gradually beat into syrup. Beat until cool and smooth enough to spread. CHOCOLATE ICING: One ounce bakers' chocolate, 6 tablespoons milk. Cook till chocolate is melted, then add scant cup sugar and boil briskly 4 minutes from time it first begins to boil. Just before taking off fire, stir in butter size of walnut. Stir till nearly cool. UNCOOKED ICING: Two tablespoons cream and enough pulverized sugar to make thick paste, and any desired flavoring. Will not crack. FONDANT ICING: Two cups sugar, ¼ cup water. Put in saucepan and stir till it melts. Then put over fire and boil 6 minutes from time it begins to boil. Take off and let cool, then beat till white and thick. Set pan in hot water and flavor, pour over cake.

FORTUNE CAKE.—(Mrs. Alice Watson, No. 133 Hill street.) Cream cup butter, add 1½ cups sugar, 6 unbeaten eggs, 1 cup milk, alternately with 4 cups flour, sifted with 1 teaspoon soda, 4 level teaspoons cream tartar, and a little mace. Flavor with vanilla. At baking, insert in mixture a ring, a dime, and a thimble.

FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. Charles C. Bell, R. R., No. 2, Norwalk.) Three cups dark brown sugar, 2 scant cups butter, 6 eggs (whites and yolks beaten separately,) 1 pound seeded raisins, 1 pound washed currants, ½ pound shredded citron, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup sour milk, ½ nutmeg (grated,) 1 teaspoon each cloves and mace, 1 wine glass brandy, 4 cups sifted flour, 1 level teaspoon soda. Cream butter and sugar, add spices, sour milk and molasses; beat well; add egg yolks and brandy, and beat again; add alternately beaten whites of eggs and flour; add soda dissolved in a little warm water; beat well; next add fruit, having first stirred it into 2 heaping tablespoons flour; beat again. Line deep baking pan (which is greased) with greased paper, put cake in this and bake in moderate oven for a little over 2 hours.

FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. E. M. H., No. 112 East Fifty-ninth Place.) Three pounds dry flour, 1 pound sweet butter, 1 pound sugar, 3 pounds seeded raisins, 2 pounds currants, 2 pounds seedless Sultana raisins, ⅝ pound sweet almonds, blanched, 1 pound citron, 12 eggs, 1 tablespoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cloves, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 2 nutmegs, grated, 1 wine glass wine, 1 wine glass brandy, or 2 of each if desired. Beat eggs lightly. Beat butter and sugar to cream, add eggs, then flour and 3 or 4 teaspoons baking powder and spices; add fruit, well floured, and wine and brandy. Bake 3 or 4 hours, according to thickness of cake, with steady heat. Ice when cold. A fine wedding cake. For a larger cake, double quantities.

FRUIT CAKE.—(Louise C. Holmes, No. 236 West Jefferson street.) Three eggs, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 cup molasses, ½ cup butter, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon soda, flour enough to make like ordinary cake dough, then add cinnamon, cloves and allspice to taste, ½ pound seeded raisins, 1 pound English currants (chopped fine,) ½ pound chopped walnuts, ½ pound sliced citron, 1 wine glass of sherry, 1 tablespoon brandy.

FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. V. A. Costa, 1811 East Eighth street.) One cup sugar, 1 cup molasses, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup coffee (strong,) 3 cups flour, ½ teaspoon soda, added to molasses, 2 even teaspoons baking powder, 1 pound raisins, seeded, 1 pound currants, 1 cup citron, lemon and orange peel mixed, 4 tablespoons grated or ground chocolate, 1 large cup chopped walnuts, 1 tablespoon each rose water and vanilla, 2 tablespoons brandy. Dredge raisins, currants, citron and peel with flour and pour over, brandy, vanilla and rose water, the day before baking. Also brown flour day before, so as to be cool.

FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. C. G. McComber, No. 1101 North Main street.) One pound flour, 1 pound brown sugar, 14 ounces butter, 10 eggs, 3 pounds raisins, 3 pounds currants, 2 pounds citron, 1 wine glass wine, 1 brandy, 1 milk, 1 tablespoon molasses, and 1 of cinnamon (ground,) 1 teaspoon saleratus, 1 teaspoon cloves, ¼ ounce mace or 1 nutmeg. Cream sugar and butter, beat eggs to stiff froth and stir in. Mix flour gradually with butter and sugar, then add molasses and spice. Dissolve soda in milk, strain it and mix with brandy and wine to curdle. Stir whole into cake. Just before baking, add fruit gradually, a handful of each alternately. If baked in thick loaves, it will require from 2½ to 3 hours.

FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. R. C. Walsh, Glendale.) Cream 3 cups sugar with 1½ cups butter; beat 6 eggs well and add to sugar and butter; then add 1½ cups sour cream, 2 teaspoons soda, dissolved in a little warm water, and juice and grated rind of 1 orange. Make this mixture quite thick with flour. Cut ¾ pound raisins in halves, dredge with flour and mix in, also dredge ½ pound currants and add; and 1 grated nutmeg. Mix well and when putting in pans, add ¼ pound chopped citron, distributed evenly. Bake about 1 hour in moderate oven.

FRUIT CAKE by measure.—(Emma Gatzke, Ventura.) Two scant teacups butter, 2 cups dark brown sugar, 6 eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, 1 pound raisins, seeded, 1 of currants, washed and dried, and ½ pound citron, cut in thin strips; also ½ cup cooking molasses, and ¼ cup sour milk. Stir butter and sugar to cream, add to that ½ grated nutmeg, 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon mace; add molasses and sour milk. Stir all well, then put in beaten yolks of eggs, a wine glass of brandy; stir again all thoroughly, and then add 4 cups sifted flour alternately with beaten whites of eggs. Now dissolve level teaspoon soda and stir in thoroughly. Mix fruit together, and stir into it 2 heaping tablespoons flour; then stir it in cake. Butter 2 common-sized baking tins carefully, line with letter paper, well buttered, and bake in moderate oven 2 hours. After it is baked, let cool in pan. Afterward put it into tight can, or let remain in pans and cover tightly.

FRUIT CAKE that will keep.—(Mina Kitching, Oceanside.) Six eggs, beaten separately, 7 cups flour, 3 cups sugar, 2 cups sour milk, 1½ cups butter, 1 cup fruit syrup, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and allspice, 1 pond each raisins, dates and figs, ½ pound each currants and citron, ¼ pound candied orange peel. Cream butter and sugar, add milk, egg yolks and fruit syrup. Gradually add 2 cups flour, the spices and whites of eggs. Dust fruit with flour and add remainder of flour. Beat for 5 minutes and lastly add the soda dissolved in as little water as possible. Pour into greased pan and instead of baking, steam for 6 hours, then place in quick oven for 15 or 20 minutes.

FRUIT BUTTER CAKE.—(Mrs. A. B. Moody, No. 921½ South Hill street.) One cup sugar, 1-3 cup butter, ½ cup sweet milk, 2 eggs, 2-3 cup apricot or any fruit butter, ½ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg; small pinch ground cloves, 2 cups flour, sifted, with 1 teaspoon soda. Bake in 2 layers and put together with following ICING—1½ cups sugar, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon fruit butter. Boil until it threads, then pour slowly on well beaten white of egg, stirring constantly until thick and creamy. Fruit butter keeps icing very creamy and smooth.

BLACK FRUIT CAKE.—(Miss Tenie T. Bush, No. 4216 Pasadena avenue.) One lb. butter, 1 lb. sugar, 1 1-4 lbs. whole wheat flour, 12 eggs, 3 lbs. raisins, 1 lb. currants, 1½ lbs. citron, 2 teaspoons cloves, 2 of ginger, 2 of cinnamon, 1 pint molasses, 1 of wine. Bake in slow oven 6 hours.

EGGLESS FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. O'Brien, Palms.) One cup sugar, ½ cup butter, or not quite ½ cup lard, 1 teaspoon salt, if lard is used; 1 cup sour milk, 2 cups sifted flour, ½ cup raisins, 1 level teaspoon soda, 1 level teaspoon cinnamon, ½ level teaspoon cloves, ¼ level teaspoon grated nutmeg. Bake in loaf tin in moderate oven.

ENTIRE WHITE FRUIT CAKE.—(Miss Emilia Lundberg, Coronado.) Five cups entire wheat flour, (measured before sifting,) 1 cup molasses, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups sweet milk, 1 tablespoon soda, saltspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, 1 lb. seeded raisins. Dust raisins with flour and mix in with flour sifted. Bake in deep tins 1 hour. Improves if not cut for 2 or 3 days.

INEXPENSIVE FRUIT AND NUT LAYER CAKE.—(Mrs. C. F. Montgomery, No. 1652 West Twelfth street.) For cake part take 1 cup white sugar, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs. Cream butter, sugar and eggs together. Two cups flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder, sifted with flour, ½ cup sweet milk. Stir milk and flour into other ingredients alternately. For filling take ½ cup finely-chopped dried figs or raisins also ½ cup walnuts, chopped fine. Mix fruits and nuts with boiled frosting and spread between layers.

RAISED FRUIT CAKE.—(Miss Emilia Lundberg, Coronado.) Set aside on baking day a cup of dough that has had second rising. Work into cream made by stirring together cup butter, with one of brown sugar. Have at hand a cup of raisins and currants dredged with flour, and an equal quantity of the shredded citron. Mix through fruit, half teaspoon cinnamon and pinch powdered mace, and work well into dough. This done, beat 2 eggs very light, yolks and whites together, and knead them into mass until it is very light; 5 minutes should be enough. Finally mould into 2 loaves and raise for 20 minutes before baking.

RIBBON FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. Charles C. Bell, R. R. No. 2, Norwalk, Cal. Black part: One and one-half cups sugar, ½ cup butter, ½ cup browned flour, yolks of 6 eggs, 1½ lbs. raisins, (seeded,) 1 lb. currants (washed,) ½ lb. shredded citron, 1-4 lb. finely chopped nuts, 2-3 cup whisky, 1 teaspoon soda, dissolved in hot water, ½ teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice. Cream butter and sugar; add other ingredients in order named; bake in 1 layer. WHITE PART: Whites 6 eggs, 1 cup white sugar, ½ cup butter, ½ cup sweet cream, 2½ cups white flour, 1 lb. blanched and finely chopped almonds, ½ lb. shredded citron, ½ lb. grated cocoanut, 1 teaspoon rosewater, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 small slice candied orange peel, cut fine. Flour fruit; cream butter, sugar; beat in egg whites after adding cream; add flour and baking powder; then fruit and lastly extracts. Bake in 2 layers. Fill with marshmallow filling. If preferred it may be baked as a loaf; line bottom of deep baking pan with greased paper; put in first layer of white, then of black, repeating until pan is 2-3 full. Bake for more than an hour in moderate oven. Put away wrapped first in paraffine paper, then in common wrapping paper.

WEDDING FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. L. M. Stetson, No. 155 N. Gates street.) Two lbs. raisins, 2 lbs. currants, 1 lb. citron, 1 lb. nuts, 1 lb. figs. Chop and soak over night in 1 goblet sherry or port, and ½ goblet brandy or whisky. One lb. brown sugar, 1 lb. butter, yolks of 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons mace, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 2 grated nutmegs, 1 lb. browned flour. Add beaten whites of 12 eggs, alternately with flour. Add 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in a little water, just before adding fruit. Bake 3 hrs. in slow oven.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE.—(Miss A. J. Osburn, No. 101 Worcester avenue, Pasadena.) One lb. white sugar, 2-3 lb. butter, ½ pint milk, whites of 6 eggs, 12 ounces flour, 1 lb. raisins, ½ lb. figs, ½ lb. dates, ½ lb. almonds, 4 ounces citron. Work sugar and butter to a cream. Stir in whites of eggs. Beat smooth. Sift in flour. Stir until light. Stir in fruit lightly dusted with flour.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. C. G. McOmber, No. 101 North Main street.) Take 1 cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 2½ cups flour, 7 eggs, (whites only,) 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 lb. figs, 1 lb. dates, 1 lb. almonds, 1 lb. raisins, ¾ lb. citron. Rub butter and sugar to cream. Chop fruit rather coarsely, keeping each separate from others while chopping, and afterward mixing all lightly together with fingers. Sift some of flour over fruit, place powder in rest of flour, and sift flour again to mix thoroughly. Then add flour to butter and sugar; stir in fruit, and lastly add beaten whites of eggs. Bake slowly in 2 medium-sized tins for 1½ hours. Line tins with buttered paper.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. J. O. Vosburg, box 13, Santa Monica.) Two cups sugar, ¾ cup butter, 3 cups flour before sifting, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 even teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup raisins chopped fine, ½ cup nuts chopped fine, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon brandy. Put whites of eggs over raisins and nuts, and beat well; then add sugar, butter and milk.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE.—(Mrs. F. F. Greene, No. 127 South Johnston street.) Blanch and cut in shreds 2 pounds almonds, cut in thin strips 2 pounds citron, grate 1 large cocoanut, add 1 teaspoon soda and 2 teaspoons cream tartar to 4 cups flour before sifting. Then cream 2 cups sugar and ½ pound butter, add well-beaten whites of 12 eggs, then gradually add flour. When all are well mixed, add 1-3 of fruit, reserving remainder in layers as you put batter in large tube pan. Bake slowly and carefully as other fruit cake. When cool, spread thickly with boiled icing and sprinkle thickly with grated cocoanut. Flavor with rose water.

FUDGE CAKE.—(Mrs. L. M. Stetson, No. 155 North Gates street.) One cup sugar, 2-3 cup butter, 3 eggs, 1 cup milk, 2½ cups flour, 1 heaping teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup English walnuts. Cream butter and sugar, add cup milk, stir in lightly flour and baking powder, add chocolate and nuts, lastly the eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately. FUDGE FROSTING: One and one-half tablespoons butter, ½ cup grated chocolate, 1½ cups confectioners' sugar, few grains salt, ¼ cup milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Melt butter, add chocolate, sugar, salt and milk. Boil about 8 minutes; remove from fire and beat till creamy, add vanilla and pour over cake to ¼ inch depth.

JELLY ROLL.—(Mrs. L. M. Stetson, No. 155 North Gates street.) Two eggs, beaten together, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup flour, pinch salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder. Bake in shallow pan; spread with jelly; roll quickly JELLY ROLL.—(Mrs. Alice Watson, No. 133 Hill street.) Beat 3 eggs very light, add ½ cup brown sugar, and 5 teaspoons flour, sifted with teaspoon baking powder. Bake in sheet in broad, shallow tin, well greased. While hot, spread with jelly, and roll.

JELLY ROLL CAKE.—(Mrs. J. Harlan Purdy, No. 411 North Avenue 26.) One cup sugar and yolks of 3 eggs, beaten till creamy. Beat whites very stiff and add; then put in 3 tablespoons milk (do not stir until 1 cup flour with 1 teaspoon baking powder has been sifted in,) then stir lightly together, and pour into long buttered pan. Bake in moderate oven. When done, turn out on a cloth and spread with jelly quickly and roll. Fold the cloth over lightly to hold in shape.

JELLY ROLL.—(Mrs. A. B. Moody, No. 921½ South Hill street.) Four eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon water, 1 cup flour, sifted with pinch salt and 1 heaping teaspoon baking powder, added gradually; flavor to taste. Bake in long, shallow biscuit tin, well buttered and floured. Turn out on damp towel, cover with jelly and roll quickly while warm.

ROLL JELLY CAKE.—(E. B. C. Matheson, Glendora.) Mix ½ teaspoon baking powder in 1 cup flour. Add 1 cup sugar and 4 eggs. Bake in shallow pan in moderate oven, turn out on clean towel, having cakes upside down; spread with jelly and roll quickly while warm.

JENNY LIND CAKE.—(Miss Emilia Lundberg, Coronado.) White part: Whites of 5 eggs, well beaten, 1 cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, sifted with flour. Dark part: One cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon cloves, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup currants, 1 cup citron, lemon and orange peel to taste. Yolks of 5 eggs. Bake in layers and put together alternately with frosting, with jelly cut up in that between layers.

LADY BALTIMORE CAKE.—(Mabel A. De Mars, Florence.) Cream 1 cup butter, using wooden cake spoon, then add gradually, while beating constantly, 2 cups fine granulated sugar. When very creamy, add 1 cup milk alternately with 3½ cups pastry flour, mixed and sifted with 2 teaspoons baking powder; then add 1 teaspoon vanilla and whites of 6 eggs, beaten until stiff and dry. Bake in 3 buttered and floured shallow square cake tins and put between and on top the following filling: Put 3 cups sugar and 1 cup water in saucepan, heat gradually to boiling point, and boil without stirring until syrup will thread when dropped from tip of spoon. Pour syrup gradually on beaten whites of 3 eggs, beating mixture constantly, and continue beating until right consistency to spread. Then add 1 cup chopped pecan nut meats, 1 cup chopped seeded raisins, and 5 figs, cut in thin strips. Crease frosting as soon as firm.

LAWN TENNIS CAKE.—(Mrs. Alice Watson, No. 133 South Hill.) Beat cup butter to cream, add gradually 1½ cups fine granulated sugar, and, in order given, the beaten yolks of 4 eggs, ½ cup milk, 2 cups sifted flour, sifted again with 1 level teaspoon baking powder, and whites of 4 eggs, beaten dry. Flavor. Decorate with ornamental frosting.

LAWN TENNIS CAKE.—(Mrs. S. J. Morrison, No. 1302 South Hoover street.) Work together till creamy ¼ pound butter, and finely chopped rind of a lemon, add 2 ounces fine sugar and pinch ground cinnamon and work again for a few minutes; add by degrees 5 ounces sifted warm flour, a wine glass of Maraschino, a little vanilla essence and 3 yolks of eggs, 1 at a time, alternating with dry ingredients. Whip whites of eggs to stiff froth, work them in lightly, mix in an ounce of Sultanas, ¼ pound glace cherries, cut up, and ½ teaspoon baking powder. Butter a mould, dust it over with castor sugar and fine flour, line with buttered paper and bake for 1½ hours. When cold, ice with white glaze flavored with Maraschino and ornament with dried cherries. MARASCHINO GLAZE: Put into stewpan ¾ pound icing sugar, 3 tablespoons Maraschino, stir over fire till just warm, and use.

LAYER CAKE.—(Mrs. Robert Maher, La Casa Grande, Pasadena.) Two cups sugar, 3 eggs, 1 cup milk, ½ cup butter, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

LEMON LAYER CAKE.—(Mrs. M. D. R., Long Beach.) One-third cup butter, 1 1-3 cups sugar, 2 eggs, beaten, separately, 2-3 cup milk, 2 cups flour, well sifted, with 2 teaspoons baking powder. Cream butter and sugar, add eggs, then other ingredients. FILLING: One cup sugar, ½ cup water, 2 eggs, well beaten, 3 tablespoons corn starch, juice and grated rind of 2 lemons. Boil sugar and water; add egg, corn starch and lemon. Let cook about 5 minutes and cool before spreading between layers.

LOAF CAKE.—(Mrs. Robert Maher, La Casa Grande, Pasadena.) One cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 3 cups flour, 4 eggs, ½ cup milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Flavor cake with rose and frosting with lemon.

LOAF NUT CAKE.—(Mrs. E. L. Ariand, No. 1046 East Fifty-sixth street.) One-half cup butter, 1½ cups granulated sugar, 2 eggs beaten separately, ¾ cup milk, 2 cups flour, ¾ cup chopped walnuts, 2 teaspoons baking powder, flavoring. Bake 45 minutes in loaf tin. Can be made with cocoanut if no nuts on hand.

MADEIRA CAKE.—(Mrs. Rose Ashley, Newport Beach.) One pound butter, 1½ pounds flour, ¾ pound powdered sugar, grated rind 1 lemon, 2 ounces candied peel, 9 eggs. Beat butter to cream, dredge in flour and sugar; then grated lemon rind. Whisk eggs and add, beat well and put into tin lined with greased paper. Garnish top with peel cut into thin slices, and bake in moderate oven 1½ to 2 hours.

MADEIRA CAKE.—(Miss H. Schutte, No. 1424 Arapahoe street.) One cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 4 eggs beaten separately, 1 cup milk, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup citron peel, pinch salt. Flavor with lemon or sherry.

MARBLE CAKE.—(Alice Reynolds, Long Beach.) Light part: One and one-half cups sugar creamed with ½ cup butter, ½ cup sweet milk in which 1 teaspoon soda is dissolved, 1 teaspoon cream tartar sifted with 2½ cups flour, whites 4 eggs. Dark part: One cup brown sugar, ½ cup butter, ¾ cup molasses, ½ cup sour milk sweetened with 1 teaspoon soda; 2½ cups flour sifted with 1 teaspoon each cinnamon and cloves, yolks of 4 eggs. Put in pan, alternate layer of dark and light. Cover with chocolate icing.

MARGUERITE CAKE.—(Mrs. S. J. Morrison, No. 1302 South Hoover street.) Put into basin ½ pound butter and work to creamy state; add peel of 10 lemons chopped fine, ¼ pound castor sugar, ¼ pound dried sweet cocoanut that has been baked a deep-brown color, and a teaspoon vanilla essence; then add by degrees 7 ounces fine flour sifted, 6 whole raw eggs, a tablespoon coffee essence, 2 ounces grated chocolate and ½ teaspoon baking powder. Put into a deep saute pan that has been brushed over with warm butter and lined with buttered paper dusted over with castor sugar and fine flour mixed in equal quantities, and bake in moderate oven for 40 minutes, then turn out of pan and glaze with chocolate glaze and ornament with any pretty pink and white sweetmeats. CHOCOLATE GLAZE: Put into stewpan 4 ounces grated chocolate and ¼ pint warm water and boil till quite smooth. Mix ¾ pound icing sugar with 3 tablespoons prepared chocolate and ½ tablespoon warm water, stir over fire till warm, and use.

THE MARKETS.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The week closed with a good demand for all fruits and vegetables but prices were low, as the result of the big supply. Strawberries, for the first time in weeks, sold well and were all gone before noon. Peaches were all sold by the same hour. The prevailing price on these was 65 cents a lug box. The call for cantaloupes and watermelons was slow.

Egg receipts were very light, 251 cases. The demand was limited, but offerings were held high. Very few storage or eastern eggs of any grade were offered.

A weak butter market prevailed although there were no declines. A case of creamery extra was sold. Cooking butter was offered below usual quotations and 50 pounds were sold on 'change. Receipts were a trifle lower than usual—15,872 pounds.

Northern cream cheese was the only variety offered in quantity and the market showed a trifle more firmness than Friday. Receipts of all varieties were 3696 pounds.

Fine white potatoes from the north arrived and sold at $1.25 per cwt., while second grades went for $1. Offerings were light on 'change, but quotations were all firm. Receipts were 617 sacks.

The onion market was very active and on 'change 119 sacks of yellow Bermudas were disposed of. They came from Texas and brought an average of $1 per cwt. Silverskins were plentiful and northern reds also well represented.

Bean arrivals were 5 sacks. Bayou beans, small white and pink all had a share in the offerings, but there was little demand for them. There was a good call for dried fruits, particularly apples.

Hungarian prune plums made their initial appearance yesterday. They sold at $1 a 20-pound box. Silver plums also were receipts, but sold slowly. Prunus Symonas were scarce and as a result jumped to $1, while Tragedies remained at that figure. Grapes were plentiful, but in little demand. Cherries were hard to obtain at any price.

Sweet corn sold well. Local tomatoes were firm at $1.25 a lug box. Carrots, beets, parsnips and other bunch vegetables went begging because of the many other varieties of vegetables on the market. There was an actual famine of peas and the few on hand sold quickly at 4 cents a pound. Beans remained unchanged.

The meat market has been fluctuating considerably and there was a rise of more than a cent on pork products. Hams and bacons of all brands sold at from 1 to 2 cents higher. Beef is firm and livestock prices are unchanged.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

GOOD BUSINESS FOR SATURDAY.

SHARP BIDDING FOR NUMBER OF INVESTMENT ISSUES.

Considerable "Off Board" Trading Reported—Thirty Shares of Home Telephone Preferred Change Hands. Nothing Doing in Oil List or Bank Stocks.

Trading on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange was of fairly good volume for a Saturday. Bidding for many of the investment stocks was sharp and there were reports of considerable "off board" business.

Thirty shares of Home Telephone preferred changed hands. The opening sale was at 46.00 flat, and the final one at 47.75. The closing quotations were 47.62½@47.87 1-2. The remainder of the industrial list was unchanged.

The oil list was quiet as far as trading was concerned, but there were some changes in closing quotations.

Union Oil, while losing ½ a point in the bid, gained two full points in the asked price, closing in good demand at 225.00@230.00. Union Provident is rapidly climbing to a position equal to that of the parent company. It closed at 224.00@227.00 yesterday, showing a gain of three points in the bid and a loss of one point in the holding price. One point was gained in the bid for United Petroleum, which closed at 236.00, with none offered.

Associated was slightly weaker at 27.00@27.50. Amalgamated was not offered, but closed with a firm bid of 63.00. Central and Columbia closed unchanged, the former at 80@1.00, and the latter at 70 bid. Rice Ranch was offered down to 62½, but found no takers.

The bond list was sluggish. Associated Oil bonds were lower, at 74½@80. A bid of 77 was recorded for Home First mortgage bonds, which were offered at 85. The First Refundings were on the market at 72½, but closed without a bid. Mission Transportations were one point higher in the bid at 87, and were offered down to 94. Union Transportations closed at 85¼@90, off 1 1-2 and 1 point respectively.

The bank stocks were practically unchanged. Clark Copper was again the feature of the mining call, but trading was not of as great volume as on Friday, only 11,000 shares changing hands. Prices fluctuated within a five-point range, and closed weaker than on the preceding day. Sales opened at 18, at which price 6000 shares were disposed of. A rise to 20 and a drop to 15, followed by another advance to 20, were recorded, with the final sale at 16. The close was at 15 1-8@16 7-8.

Consolidated Mines was handled to the extent of 6000 shares at 1¼.

GOLDFIELD LEADERS FIRM.

Bidding on Los Angeles-Nevada Mining Exchange Active But Trade Volume Small.

Little of importance happened on the Los Angeles-Nevada Mining Exchange yesterday. Trading was carried on only in the cheaper class of stocks. Bidding for many of the Goldfield leaders was firm, but few of these changed hands.

Daisy was a trader at 81@80, to the extent of 300 shares. The close was firm at 80@82.

Four hundred shares of Jim Butler sold at 23, and the close was firm at 22 bid, with none in the market. One hundred shares of Montana Tonopah went at 1.25, the lowest price recorded on this stock for months. The close was at 1.25 bid, with none offered.

Bidding for Goldfield Consolidated was firm but prices were shaded, the close being at 5.80@5.85, compared with 5.85@5.90 on Friday. None was sold. Florence lost 2½ points in the bid, closing at 3.12½@3.20. None of this stock was handled. Florence Extension sold at 15@15 1-4 cash, and closed firm at 15 bid.

Jumbo Extension sold at 38 and closed at 37@39, off one point in each quotation. Sales totaled 2000 shares. Red Hills was handled at 19¼ and Sandstorm at 27. Homestake was a trader at 43, to the extent of 1500 shares.

There was minor trading in Bullfrog Mining at 4; Eureka at 5.00 a thousand shares; Mayflower Consolidated at 6, and Milltown Fraction at 9.00 a thousand.

QUITS TILL FALL.

The Los Angeles Stock Brokerage Company has decided, on account of the dullness of the market, to discontinue business until fall, and will give up its quarters in the Citizens' National Bank building.

SHARES AND MONEY.

FLUCTUATIONS ARE UNCERTAIN.

SPECULATIVE TONE OF MARKET LACKS DECISION.

Traders Shift Their Operations from One Side to the Other—Berlin Still Offering Extra Inducements to Secure Gold—Bonds Irregular.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—The speculative tone today lacked decision, and the fluctuations of price were uncertain as the room traders shifted their operations from one side to the other of the markets.

The early advance revealed the needs of the bears, who put out short contracts yesterday on a large scale when they detected the volume of the profit-taking sales. When prices rallied today with the help of the shorts covering the sales to take profits, the bears, perceiving this, renewed their short sales. The motive underlying the selling was the realizing on account of the adjournment of the Democratic convention, earlier purchases having been made in anticipation of a new demand for securities with the completion of the work of the two conventions.

There was little news bearing on values. The money market came in for additional consideration, a feature being some increase in the demand for six months' loans carrying over the end of the year. While the present nominal rate for call loans offers an attraction for these day-today accommodations, apparently the 3½ per cent. rate for six-months' loans seems sufficiently reasonable to induce some provision against needs for that period in consideration of a possible tightening of the money market during the fall.

The firm tone of the foreign exchange market at a rate near the gold export level and the knowledge that Berlin is still offering extra inducements to secure gold kept alive the question of a renewal of the gold outgo.

The strength in the grain markets militated against the stock market, and there was no effective recovery from the weakness.

Intimations of a decline in the banking surplus to be shown by the bank statement were heard before the market closed.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,456,000.

United States 2's have declined ⅛ per cent. on call during the week.

Weekly Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, JULY 11.—The statement of the clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $47,053,250 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent. reserve rule. This is a decrease of $7,642,050 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week. The statement follows:

Loans, $1,255,712,800. Increase, $14,616,300.
Deposits, $1,328,300,200. Increase, $7,829,400.
Circulation, $56,189,500. Decrease, $270,400.
Legal Tenders, $77,636,400. Decrease, $553,000.
Specie, $301,491,900. Decrease, $5,131,700.
Reserve, $379,128,300. Decrease, $5,684,700.
Reserve required, $332,075,050. Increase, $1,957,350.
Surplus, $47,053,250. Decrease, $7,642,050.
Ex-U. S. Deposits, $50,232,250. Decrease, $8,968,425.

The percentage of actual reserve of the clearing house banks at the close of business yesterday was 28.97.

The statement of banks and trust companies of Greater New York, not members of the clearing house, shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $991,948,800. Total cash on hand, $97,713,300 and loans amounting to $905,746,100.

ACTIVE TRADING IN WHEAT PIT.

MARKET IS NERVOUS AND SENTIMENT IS BULLISH.

Chief Factors in Day's Situation Are Dry, Hot Weather in Northwest and Higher Prices at Liverpool—Rain Prospects Add to Unsettled Conditions.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—Trade in the wheat pit was active and the market was nervous the greater part of the day. Sentiment throughout the session was bullish. The chief factor in the situation was the continuation of the dry hot weather in the northwest, particularly in North Dakota. Higher prices at Liverpool, however, had considerable influence. The possibility that rains might dispel before Monday the torrid wave in the spring wheat country brought out liberal "evening up" sales by local holders. This had a tendency to keep the market in an unsettled condition. September wheat opened 1-2@5-8 to 7-8@1c higher at 90 to 90 3-8, sold off to 89 5-8@3-4 and then advanced to 90 5-8 and closed 1-2@5-8 higher at 90.

September corn opened 1-4@5-8 to 1@1 1-8c higher at 74 1-8 to 74 7-8, sold between 74 and 75 and closed at 74 3-4.

September oats opened 1-4@3-8 higher at 41 to 41⅛, advanced to 44 1-4 and closed at 41 7-8.

Extremely small receipts of live hogs at western packing centers brought out an active demand for provisions. At the close September pork was up 27½c, lard was a shade higher and ribs 7½@10c higher.

Cash quotations were as follows: Flour was firm; winter patents, 4.20@4.65; straights, 3.90@4.35; spring patents, 5.20@5.40; straights, 4.60@4.90; bakers, 2.90@4.00; No. 2 spring wheat, 1.12; No. 3, 95@1.05; No. 2 red, 90@91; No. 2 corn, 74¼@75; No. 2 yellow, 76¼@77; No. 2 oats, 53¾; No. 3 white, 54@56¼; No. 2 rye, 73; fair to choice malting barley, 68@74; No. 1 northwestern flaxseed, 1.24½; short ribs, sides (loose,) 8.75@9.12½; mess pork, per bbl., 16.20@16.25; lard, per 100 lbs., 9.57½; short clear sides (boxed,) 9.00@9.25; whisky, basis of high wines, 1.35.

New York Cotton Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO FRED DORR.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—Liverpool was slightly below parity today and the weather map was favorable. It showed clear in the South and moderate temperatures in Southwest. Local trade sold early on the theory that yesterday's advance eliminated the short interest, something we don't think likely. The demand for new crop after 11 o'clock found few offerings and the market moved up. Traders were not inclined to go short heavily over Saturday. There was some demand and a moderate supply.

Following is the range of prices today:

Yesterday's Forecast and Report.

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, July 11.—[Reported by W. D. Fuller, Observer.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.92; at 5 p.m., 29.85. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 61 deg. and 72 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 93 per cent.; 5 p.m., 51 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., west, velocity 1 mile; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 8 miles. Maximum temperature, 78 deg.; minimum, 61 deg. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Weather Conditions.—Very little precipitation is reported east of the Mississippi River within the last twenty-four hours, only light amounts having fallen in Florida and Virginia. Higher temperature generally is noted in the Eastern States. On the Pacific Slope, pressure conditions have been somewhat unsettled, and light sprinkles of rain fell yesterday at Los Angeles, in the Colorado Valley and the interior of California, also in Central and Northern Arizona, Utah and Nevada. Owing to this somewhat unsettled condition, while the weather in Los Angeles and vicinity will probably continue fair tonight and Sunday, there will be more or less cloudiness, with slight temperature changes.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday; variable winds.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—The weather is somewhat unsettled in California and Nevada. Light rain has fallen at Summit and at Fresno, and thunderstorms are reported at Reno, Flagstaff, Independence, Tonopah, Winnemucca and Phoenix. It is cooler in the Sacramento Valley and is slightly cooler in the Sierras and the San Joaquin Valley. Forecast:

San Francisco and vicinity: Cloudy, unsettled, Sunday; possibly light showers; fresh southwest winds.

Santa Clara Valley: Cloudy, unsettled, Sunday; possibly light showers; fresh south winds.

Sacramento Valley: Cloudy Sunday; possibly light showers; light south winds.

San Joaquin Valley: Cloudy Sunday; possibly light showers; fresh south winds.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Cloudy Sunday; possibly showers in the mountains; light southwest winds.

Arizona: Local showers Sunday; cooler in north portion.

Yesterday's Forecast and Report.

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, July 11.—[Reported by W. B. Fuller, Observer.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.92; at 5 p.m., 29.85. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 61 deg. and 73 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 88 per cent.; 5 p.m., 51 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., west, velocity 1 mile; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 8 miles. Maximum temperature, 80 deg.; minimum, 61 deg. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Weather Conditions.—Very little precipitation is reported east of the Mississippi River within the last twenty-four hours, only light amounts having fallen in Florida and Virginia. Higher temperature generally is noted in the Eastern States. On the Pacific Slope pressure conditions have been somewhat unsettled, and light sprinkles of rain fell yesterday at Los Angeles, in the Colorado Valley and the interior of California, also in Central and Northern Arizona, Utah and Nevada. Owing to this somewhat unsettled condition, while the weather in Los Angeles and vicinity will probably continue fair tonight and Sunday, there will be more or less cloudiness, with slight temperature changes.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday; variable winds.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—The weather is somewhat unsettled in California and Nevada. Light rain has fallen at Summit and at Truckee, and thunderstorms are reported at Flagstaff, Independence, Tonopah, Winnemucca and Phoenix. It is cooler in the Sacramento Valley and is slightly cooler in the Sierras and the San Joaquin Valley. Forecast:

San Francisco and vicinity: Cloudy, unsettled Sunday; possibly light showers; fresh southwest winds.

Santa Clara Valley: Cloudy, unsettled, Sunday; possibly light showers; fresh south winds.

Sacramento Valley: Cloudy Sunday; possibly light showers; light south winds.

San Joaquin Valley: Cloudy Sunday; possibly light showers; fresh south winds.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Cloudy Sunday; possibly showers in the mountains; light southwest winds.

Arizona: Local showers Sunday; cooler in north portion.

COSTLY BRIDGE IS ACCEPTED.

NEW STRUCTURE AT PARKER NOW OPEN FOR TRAFFIC.

Santa Fe Pays Seven Hundred Thousand for It—Melon Market Disappointing—Auto Races to Be Feature of Territorial Fair—Indian Wedding.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) July 10.—The new Santa Fe bridge at Parker has just been formally accepted by the railroad company, and the contractors have shipped ten carloads of machinery back to their headquarters at Leavenworth, Kan. The contract price is understood to have been $700,000. Though the work was started late, it was finished well within the contract limit, 300 men having been employed for a large part of the time in the placing of 2400 tons of structural steel and 20,000 cubic yards of cement. Deliveries of freight are being made across the river to the California side.

Construction on the ninety miles of track to be laid to Bengal, on the main line, will not be begun till cooler weather. The work has been ordered, but no funds have been provided for it. On account of the heat and the lack of water, tracklaying is to be kept up with the grading, a procedure that may delay to some extent, but the line is expected to be ready for traffic by next March. Through train service will then be established between Phoenix and Los Angeles, probably in conjunction with the train service now in operation to Los Angeles from the Tonopah and Tidewater road. Local officials believe the schedule between here and Los Angeles will be about fourteen hours, as high speed can be maintained for the greater part of the distance, owing to the lack of grades and curves east of Cajon Pass.

MELON GROWERS SAD.

Heavy shipments of cantaloupes are being made daily from Phoenix, Glendale, Tempe and Mesa to Chicago and other eastern cities. The season is disappointing to the local growers, as the eastern market had been flooded with the earlier Imperial melons, and the price has dropped far below the minimum figure expected. There has been trouble with icing on the main line, and the eastern commission merchants have failed to produce the advance payments contracted for with the valley growers. The crop will be light, owing to the lack of irrigating water from Salt River. The railroads have helped materially this year, not only by supplying an ample number of cars, but by quick service and by lowered rates. By the new rates this valley has been given the Arizona market for its own. A flat rate of $7 a ton, for instance, has been given by the Southern Pacific on melon shipments to El Paso and Nogales, and intermediate points. The rate heretofore had been as high as $20 a ton.

Today the shippers determined to cut out all shipments of "pony" size melons, which means that about 60 per cent. of the local product has been barred, and must be locally marketed or rot in the field. At Glendale the situation is better, fully 85 per cent. of the crop being standards.

A number of expert packers from Southern California have arrived in Mesa to handle the maturing crop of seedless grapes. The crop in quantity and quality never was better.

COMPREHENSIVE ORDINANCE.

The Maricopa Commercial Club, not satisfied with its successful campaign for the lowering of railroad freight rates, has petitioned the City Council to pass an ordinance governing the price to be charged for electric and gas lighting, telephone service, etc., and for the appointment of an inspector of weights, measures, scales and meters. In the petition, specific reference was made to the bonded indebtedness of the local lighting corporation, apparently with the intention to influence the Council not to consider a large part of the interest charge in fixing the maximum rates for lighting and power. This move on the part of the Commercial Club follows the attack lately made by the organization upon the contract made last year between the government and the lighting company, for the delivery to the company in Phoenix of about 2000 horsepower of electric current.

FAIR PREPARATIONS.

Preparations are under way for the next Territorial Fair. It will be in charge of Commissioners J. C. Adams, of Phoenix, B. A. Packard, of Douglas, and H. C. Lockett of Flagstaff, who lately appointed R. A. Kirk of Bisbee, as secretary. The fair is to be held about the second week in November. Owing to the reputation secured by the local track as the fastest winter track in the United States, there will be no lack of good horses, but a special feature will be an automobile section. Prizes and trophies are to be offered for motor car races on the track, which is notably high on the turns and well suited to such sport. President George P. Bullard, of the Phoenix Automobile Association, has been in Los Angeles for a couple of weeks, hoping to work up a race from that city to Phoenix, to terminate on the fair grounds in November, but has been unsuccessful. The dealers on the Coast do not care to risk their machines on the desert roads. Yet assurances were given that a large number of machines would be shipped to the fair, for exhibition and for track racing. It is expected that a motor car race can be arranged from Tucson, from which point the roads are comparatively good. One of the special attractions will be an airship exhibition, if one can be arranged.

Shipment of $25,000 in United States bonds has just been made by the Territorial Treasurer to New York, where they will be sold. The bonds were deposited with the Treasurer as security for a deposit of territorial money, by the First National Bank of Bisbee, which failed during the late panic. As the bank's receiver has failed to return the deposit and redeem the bonds, the Treasurer will sell the securities and turn the surplus over to the receiver.

A $50,000 issue of bonds of the Tempe High School District has been awarded to the Tempe National Bank, which bid 5 per cent. for the amount.

PROJECTED FARMERS' LINE.

A general franchise has been granted by the Maricopa County Supervisors to the People's Independent Telephone Company, an organization of farmers, designed to give telephonic communication with Phoenix from all parts of the cultivated area of the valley.

A letter just received at Mesa from the large Mormon settlement near Casas Grandes, Chihuahua, states that the men are preparing for service in the field against the bandits that have been ravaging the district of late, their assistance being demanded by the Mexican government. About 100 of the Guerrillas have been captured and thrust into prison at Casas Grandes, yet small bands still continue to harass the region, raiding detached ranches.

INTER-TRIBAL MARRIAGE.

An inter-tribal marriage took place this week at the Indian school, when Chester Johnny, a Klamath Indian, wedded Lilly Sacahonk, a Hopi from Northern Arizona. Johnny, formerly a student in the local school, came all the way from Siskiyou county to claim his bride. The couple have gone on a bridal tour to the Moqui reservation, to visit the bride's parents.

REAL MAN UNDER HER BED.

Woman Screams and He Runs Away and Hides in Barn Until Arrested.

E. E. Field of No. 1710 East Twenty-first street was arraigned before Justice Chambers yesterday on a charge of burglary, preferred by Mrs. R. D. Brown of No. 427 East Twenty-eighth street.

The plaintiff alleges that when she entered her home Friday evening she saw the prisoner under her bed. She screamed and he crawled out, escaped by the rear door, jumped fences and finally hid in a barn, a block away.

Field was placed under a $1500 bond to await trial.

SCARES CAR CREW.

Charged with having terrorized the crew of car No. 163 of the Los Angeles Railway by flourishing a revolver and compelling the motorman to run the coach at full speed, N. Salvatori was arrigned before Justice Chambers yesterday. He pleaded not guilty, and his trial was set for late in September.

CARELESS CAR INSPECTOR.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday in the case of Alexander Stack, a Santa Fé car inspector, who was crushed between two cars Friday night. At the inquest, which was held at the Bresee morgue, a brother testified that no one but the victim was responsible for the accident. Stack was 55 years old.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

After an inquest over the remains of Gilberto Navallo at the Pierce morgue yesterday a verdict of accidental death was returned. Navallo was killed Thursday evening, while walking on the right of way of the Pacific Electric line, south of Lord street. Witnesses stated that he became confused and stepped in front of the car.

AUTO KNOCKS BOY DOWN.

Glenn Hurd, 6 years old, of Glendale, was painfully injured yesterday morning, at Seventh street and Broadway, when a touring car knocked him down. He was treated at the Receiving Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained numerous bruises and a slight concussion of the brain.

MEN, YOU CAN BE CURED

Why Suffer from a Single Ailment in the List of Men's Maladies?
Why Be Less Than a Perfect, Strong and Well Man?
Why Walk the Streets an Old Young Man, Always Conscious of Your Weakness?

DR. TAYLOR
The Leading Specialist

Strength, Vim, Happiness and Ability to Fight Life's Battles Are Before You. Will You Take Them, or Will You Go On in Your Imperfection and Weakness?

I feel that I have a right to speak emphatically in regard to the diseases and disorders that constitute my specialty—all the ailments peculiar to men. Twenty-five years' experience in curing diseases of men have given me a knowledge of this line of ailments that enables me to make direct and definite statements, and it furnishes me with incontrovertible proof that my statements are correct.

I say that you can be cured. I stand ready to back up this statement with positive proof. I ask you to call at my office and talk with me about it. Examination and consultation will cost you nothing, and I will explain to you my methods of curing. The methods I will tell you about are unlike those employed by any other doctor. They are, in their chief essentials, methods of my own devising. They are founded upon a knowledge of the truth in regard to the diseases of men. That's why they cure, and why they are the only methods that can soundly and thoroughly cure.

My Fees Are Always the Lowest, and Not a Dollar Need Be Paid Till You Are Perfectly Cured.

Weakness

I have completely demonstrated the fact that derangement of the masculine functions is a curable ailment. By the closest observations in thousands of cases, I have ascertained that only in rare instances is the nervous system or general constitution involved to any noticeable degree whatever, and that weakness in all its phases is merely a symptom of local disorder. In by far the greater number of cases I find the condition entirely due to a state of inflammation or lingering as a result of some contracted disorder. Such cases may show temporary improvement under stimulating processes of treatment, but ultimate relapse and injury are certain to follow all such methods. The only radical cure is the absolute removal of the abnormal conditions responsible for the functional disorder, and this I accomplish through carefully directed local measures.

My treatment is entirely distinctive and original. No other physician employs like methods, nor approaches my success in curing. The results I obtain are thorough and lasting and strength and vigor are restored in the full and normal degree.

Contracted Diseases

Fully one-fourth of the cases of organic weakness with which I come in contact are a direct result of the improper treatment of some contracted disease. This should be sufficient warning against patent nostrums, and other uncertain methods. I never dismiss a patient until I know that every possibility of relapse or evil result has been removed.

The remedies I employ are known to myself alone, and I have reason to regard them as the surest and safest ever devised for the cure of contracted diseases.

Varicocele

My treatment for varicocele is a painless one, and in most instances the patient need not be detained a single day from his business. Even in advanced cases, a cure by my method is a matter of but a very few days. There is no doubt or guesswork, but absolute certainty of a thorough and lasting cure, with complete return of that degree of health and vigor that existed before the disease began.

If you cannot call, write for advice. All correspondence strictly confidential.

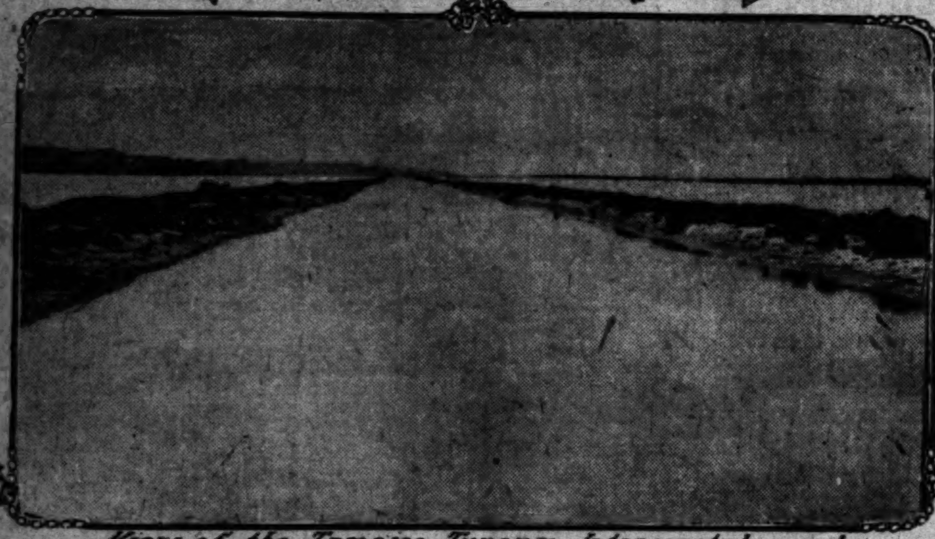
Mexico's Intercoastal Canal.

INLAND WATERWAY BETWEEN TWO IMPORTANT PORTS ON THE GULF.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]



View of the Tampico Tuxpam Intercoastal canal.

Small canal boats at the Tampico terminus.

THE Mexican government is building an inland canal 104 miles long to connect the ports of Tampico and Tuxpam. This inland waterway is now about one-half finished and the contract was recently let for the construction of the remaining portion. It is estimated that the canal will have cost when completed about $5,000,000 Mexican money, which is equivalent to $2,500,000 gold. It is seventy-five feet wide and has an uniform depth of 10½ feet. The first division of sixty-six miles of the canal is now practically finished and is open for traffic for the many small boats which ply between Lake Tamiahua and Tampico. It will take five or six years to finish the canal to the Tuxpam River at a point two miles above Tuxpam, but it is expected that the waterway will be opened all the way through and contain enough water for small boats within two years. There are still a few reefs to be removed from the first division.

This inland waterway is intercoastal in its position to the Gulf of Mexico. It runs within two to five miles of the waters of the gulf along its whole length. It is a project similar to that which is proposed by the United States government along the coasts of Louisiana and Texas. The intercoastal canal that is to be constructed in the United States is to run from the Mississippi River to the Rio Grande. It is stated that it is possible to continue the Tampico-Tuxpam canal north from Tampico to the Rio Grande, a distance of about 350 miles, although some very heavy work would be encountered at places along this proposed upper division.

The necessity for an intercoastal canal between Tuxpam and Tampico grew out of the fact that there are frequently days at a time when small boats engaged in coastwise trade are unable to weather the rough water of the gulf and that there is insufficient water over the bar at the mouth of the Tuxpam River at times to enable the boats to reach the harbor at Tuxpam. Another great incentive that led to the building of the canal was that it would be the means of developing a broad scope of agricultural country that has heretofore been badly lacking in transportation facilities for its various products.

The Tampico-Tuxpam canal follows the route of an inland waterway that has been in use for more than three-quarters of a century. In 1847 an effort was made to improve this canal. It was made eight feet wide and three feet deep for a portion of the distance between the two ports. In 1867 additional improvements were made, but there ware places where boats could not travel and the portage of boats and their contents had to be made. It is related that in 1869 Gen. Porfirio Diaz, now President of Mexico, made a trip through the little waterway and he remarked at the time to his companion, Maj. Garusch, that that region would be greatly benefited by converting the narrow and shallow canal into a navigable water course for larger boats. He saw the needs of the improvement of that trip and many years later he had the idea put into execution. As the years went by the little waterway filled with sand and decayed vegetation and it finally became of little use. It often took two weeks to make the trip from Tampico to Tuxpam by the small boats. Between the two ports is Lake Tamiahua which is seventy-nine miles long and four to twenty miles wide. The small boats had to cross this body of water and if the wind was high they had to lay up in some cove until the gale abated or run the risk of being sent aground in the shallow waters of the lake. The canal is now being dredged through this lake and its course is well marked so that the boats are assured of deep water at all times.

Capt. Charles Shillaber of Chicago is constructing the canal for the Mexican government on a percentage basis. It was quite by chance that he became interested in the project. He had made a comfortable fortune out of his business as a drainage contractor in the United States and had retired, and was living in Chicago about ten years ago. He had just reached his sixtieth year of age and had planned to spend the remainder of his life in comfort and enjoyment. He says that he had been out of active business only a few weeks when he became restless. One day an old friend met him on the street and suggested that they take a trip to Mobile, just as a pleasure jaunt. Capt. Shillaber agreed to the proposition and they landed in Mobile in due time. A vessel bound for Tampico, Mex., was in port and the two men decided to make a trip on her to that port. They landed in Tampico on November 9, 1898. Capt. Shillaber was preparing to return home after spending a few days in Tampico when some one suggested that he ought to see the Tuxpam Valley country before he left Mexico. Not having anything else to do, Capt. Shillaber decided to visit Tuxpam. He made the trip through the narrow little canal and it took him two weeks to get through it. He was quick to see the possibilities of a canal of greater size and when he reached Tuxpam he talked with some of the business men about the project. His talk aroused considerable interest and a meeting was held to discuss the project. Capt. Shillaber explained what work was needed to open the canal. At that time it was his plan to clean out the existing waterway and to make it possible for boats of small size to ply between the two ports without so much portaging having to be done. Some one at the meeting suggested that it was the government's duty to take hold of the project and that there was no need of it being done by private capital. It was decided at the meeting to lay the matter before the Federal government. This was done and in a short time Capt. Shillaber received an invitation to go to the City of Mexico and confer with the government officials in regard to the project. As an outcome of that conference he was induced to take hold of the project on behalf of the government. He has been in Mexico ever since and expects to remain in charge of the canal work until it is finished. The government enlarged upon his original plans and instead of a canal costing a few hundred thousand dollars, as was first contemplated, it will run well up into the millions. It took some time to arrange the preliminary plans. Surveys and estimates had to be made and submitted to the government for approval. Dredges were then built at Tampico under the direction of Capt. Shillaber, and on March 12, 1902, the construction of the waterway was begun. It has been going on without interruption ever since. The chief engineer is A. B. Hitchman, who lives in a houseboat at the scene of the dredging operations.

The canal enters the Panuco River at a point about three miles below the city of Tampico. The Panuco River has a uniform depth of fifty feet and is utilized as the harbor for Tampico. The first four miles of the canal are through an earth and shell cut. It then enters a chain of shallow lakes. Its course for the most part is well marked by the newly-made land which its building has caused to be created. It has served as a drainage course as well as a canal, and considerable bodies of water which formerly adjoined it have disappeared and the land is reclaimed for agricultural purposes. The canal is bordered for fourteen miles by what is known as La Rivera. The land is exceedingly rich and is in a high state of cultivation. The pineapple, banana and zapute plantations run down to the shore of the lake, and here and there are little villages and beautiful homes. The scene is very beautiful. The heaviest piece of construction work that has been encountered so far on the canal is a deep rock cut which is located about eight miles from the Panuco River. The banks of the canal through the lakes are bordered with tule plants which were planted with the combined idea of ornamentation and usefulness. Their roots prevent the banks from caving. Young cork trees have been planted along the banks on some parts of the canal. These trees are of beautiful appearance and are of comparatively quick growth.

An enormous amount of traffic is already constantly pouring through the completed portion of the canal. Fleets of boats, loaded with pineapples, oranges, bananas, vanilla and other tropical products use the new waterway to reach the market at Tampico. They come from the shores of Lake Tamiahua and the other smaller bodies of water with which the canal connects. Lake Tamiahua has a connection with the gulf and its water is salty. Five rivers empty into the lake. These streams are La Laja, the Cuchara, the San Geronimo, the Tancochin and the Tampeche. All of these streams are navigable for some distance. The larger lake steamers are able to make runs up the Cuchara River for a distance of thirty-five miles. This stream is about 300 yards wide where it empties into Lake Tamiahua. The territory reached by these rivers is very rich and the opening of the first division of the canal brings it into close touch with Tampico where a local as well as an export market is afforded for the various products raised on the plantations. There are a number of flourishing towns in this territory. One of them is Tantima which has a population of about 1800 people.

When the canal is finished to Tuxpam it will be the means of opening up to development the rich Tuxpam River valley. This valley has long been known as one of the most productive parts of Mexico. It is situated more than 100 miles from the nearest railroad, and the lack of deep water and harbor facilities at Tuxpam has prevented it from keeping pace with other and less-favored portions of Mexico in the matter of development. The people of the Tuxpam Valley gain an easy living out of the soil. It is the home of the vanilla, corn, beans, sugar cane, pineapples, bananas and many other products. In the foothills back from the river coffee is grown. It is noted as a honey-producing region. One of the first American colonies in Mexico was established about eighteen years ago at Metlaltoyuca, situated back from the Tuxpam River eighteen miles and about thirty miles from the town of Tuxpam. A number of the original colonists are still living there. They have made a success growing coffee and other tropical products. It is a region of cheap prices for native products. Pineapples retail at 30 to 50 cents Mexican money per dozen, fresh from the plantation. A five-gallon can of pure strained honey can be purchased for 25 cents Mexican money, with the can thrown in. The Zapatal River which empties into the Tuxpam River eight miles above Tuxpam is a stream of importance. It is navigable for some distance, and extending back from its banks are many cultivated plantations. Some of the choicest of these properties are owned by Americans.

The town of Tuxpam has a population of about 15,000 people, including a number of Americans. The town is strung out along the Tuxpam River for some distance. It is equipped with good wharves and warehouses. The removal of the bar at the mouth of the Tuxpam River is all that is lacking to make Tuxpam a first-class deep-water harbor. The water over the bar is only six and a half feet deep. The depth of the water in Tuxpam River is thirty feet. The situation at Tuxpam is much the same as it was at Tampico before the Federal government removed the bar at the mouth of the Panuco River and constructed jetties, by which means Tampico was converted into a deep-water port.

Capt. Shillaber is now building a large dredge at Tampico. It will soon be finished and set to work on the Tuxpam end of the canal. The Tanguijo River is at present the only outlet of Lake Tamiahua into the Gulf. This river is about eighteen miles long. It flows from the extreme southern end of the lake. The matter of throwing a dam across this river at the point where it leaves the lake and diverting the flow of water through the lower end of the canal and into the Tuxpam River is now under consideration. This would give a constant flow of water in the lower division of the canal and would prevent any bar from forming at the point where it empties into the Tuxpam River. The construction of a big cut from the point where the Tanguijo River now leaves Lake Tamiahua to the Tuxpam River is necessary and it is for this work that the large dredge is being built.

It is stated that greater difficulties were in the way of building this intercoastal canal between Tampico than exist in the lagoons along the Louisiana and Texas coast where it is proposed to construct a waterway of similar character.

UNIONITES ARRAY THEMSELVES ALONGSIDE THE SALOONS IN THE PROHIBITION MOVEMENT.

SOME clergymen and other moral workers about the country have ostentatiously allied themselves with the union-labor movement, and have sought to help their controversy with their employers by such alliance. How have the unionists repaid the action of such men? Wherever it has been possible every saloon has been unionized, and wherever the prohibition movement has been introduced, possibly endangering the existence of the saloons, the unionites have promptly announced their support of the saloon provided preference be given to union labor by the saloon-keepers. Reference has previously been made to this matter in these columns, but the subject is brought to the front by the action of the unionites of Chicago. There the gauntlet has been deliberately thrown down to the saloon-keepers by the adoption of a resolution by the Federation of Labor declaring that unless union employés are engaged by saloon-keepers and hotel and restaurant proprietors in Chicago they can expect no assistance from labor organizations in the fall prohibition campaign. The resolutions say:

"Sunday closing and anti-saloon legislation undoubtedly will be a prominent proposition in the fall election and unless these employers show by actual endeavor that they are favorable to organized labor by the employment of union people, vending union label goods and helping the organized labor movement, the union workingmen of Chicago cannot conscientiously aid them in any fight they may engage in in the future."

This it will be noticed, is carrying the matter further than the employment of union labor in the saloons: it demands the sale of only union-made goods, and the employment of union teamsters for the delivery of articles sold. It also embraces not only the saloonists but also hotel-keepers, the proprietors of restaurants and others who hold licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors.

It is a good time for Chicago to turn down the unionites and let them understand that the majority rules in this country. The demands of unionites have become preposterous in every direction with no resulting benefit to employers in any direction. The city is threatened with strikes in several departments of industry, and the controversy has got to come to a head at some time, and it might as well be in the approaching campaign as to be delayed to some future time.

Employers Have Rights.

A Cincinnati justice has put the matter in a nutshell, as it were. Four men were before him accused of an effort to cause disturbances in an attempted strike of traction company employés, and though their cases were continued, the judge put them on their good behavior in the course of which he said:

"You men have rights, but you must not do anything against the law. You must remember also that the traction company, even though it is a corporation, has its rights that must be respected. There must be no more disorder; it is dangerous and you gentlemen must see to it."

Open Shop for Shipbuilders.

The Coast Shipbuilders' Association has declared for the open shop, and will operate all their yards accordingly. This association includes practically all the ship yards of the Pacific Coast, says the West Coast Lumberman. John Lindstrom, Aberdeen, Wash., is president; George Billings, San Francisco, vice-president, and George Mathews, Hoquiam, Wash., secretary and treasurer. The directors are: C. M. Nelson, Portland; Frank Stone, San Francisco; D. A. Dickie, Raymond, Wash., and L. D. Kruse, North Bend, Or. Recently all the men employed at the Mathews ship yards, Hoquiam, Wash., walked out because the company declared that hereafter they would run their business on open-shop principles. The firm at the present time is none too busy, as the shipbuilding industry has received a setback in the past year, and the walkout is likely to develop disastrously for the workmen.

Labor and Shipbuilding.

According to Rear-Admiral Melville, the United States ship yards lost the $50,000,000 contract for building the new Brazilian warships because of the scarcity of skilled labor. The cost of labor of this class is 40 per cent. higher in this country than that of the competitive ship yards abroad, and restrictions upon apprentices, says the admiral, add to the difficulty. The rules of the labor organizations to limit the number of apprentices for the sake of restricting labor and thus creating better prices have seemingly worked admirably. But when the other side of the subject is viewed it is doubtful whether labor itself has gained in the end. If, as the admiral declares, the United States has lost in one instance a $50,000,000 contract it might very well have gotten, then there was this much diminution of labor at a time when labor was being curtailed through slackened industry. It would be easy to figure out that a large part of the $50,000,000 lost was lost to the wage-earner.

Cheap labor is not to be advocated, but it is an open question whether the curtailment of labor below the actual need does not express a fear of curtailed wages that would not be justified. The country should have a full supply of skilled mechanics. Surely, there ought to be a reasonable principle followed in those industries in which there is international competition. If the Brazilian warships were building here, there would be more shipbuilding labor employed and at a higher wage than could be offered those who are kept at work under conditions of slackened industry. The basic principle of labor is work. Give this and wages will take care of themselves.

The more serious aspect of unnatural restrictions placed upon the freedom of labor is that this is one of the factors that tends to prevent the upbuilding of a merchant marine.

The Courts Vindicated.

Congressman Littlefield contributes to American Industries a review of the laborite demands for legislation that shall limit the power of the courts on all labor questions. He says:

"Under the circumstances I do not hesitate to say that 'the committee cannot itself perceive that there have been instances of abuse in the granting of injunctions.' I submit with entire confidence that it seems to me that when we have called upon the attorney for the American Federation of Labor for instances and specifications and he fails to furnish them; when we have called upon the head of the organization itself for the same information and he furnishes information without calling attention to any criticism; when we have made a thorough and exhaustive investigation of the reported decisions of the courts; when we have applied to the Department of Justice and ascertained that they have no information in relation thereto; when the gentleman from Michigan has made his independent and disinterested search and found nothing; when the Supreme Court, though not referring specifically to labor controversies, says that the judges have exercised due care; and when there has never been from any quarter, prior to the letter of the President, the slightest intimation upon the part of men representing the labor organizations that any abuse of the writ of injunction amounting to a high crime and a misdemeanor has ever been committed—and I think it is hardly necessary to suggest that the gentlemen who appeared before our committee for the promotion of legislation of that character have never been backward in their assaults upon the judiciary, it appears that we have, with reasonable diligence at least, exhausted every available source of inquiry. I feel certain that the President has been deliberately misinformed as to the facts as they exist in connection with this question, because, in my judgment, there are no facts that warrant the suggestion or the intimation, at least since 1893, that a single judge, anywhere, at any time, in any place, under any stress, has been guilty of any abuse of the judicial power in issuing either a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction.

"In considering a question of this character it must be borne distinctly in mind that so long as juries render verdicts and so long as judges enter up judgments, disappointed litigants and exasperated attorneys will abuse the jury and denounce the court, and the proceedings of the court in the administration of the equity power cannot and will not be immune from this prevailing tendency upon the part of the losing suitor to criticise the tribunal in which he receives an adverse determination."

A Labor Anachronism.

For some eight months there has been a strong refluent tide of immigration, more immigrants by some 200,000 having gone back to Europe than have come to the United States. The cause for this has been the depressed business conditions which have prevailed in this country. While this movement has removed so many competitors from the labor market, the fact must also not be lost sight of that it has removed so many consumers of the products of this country. Speaking along this line, Mr. Sargent, the Commissioner-General of Immigration, says:

"The fact that the United States pays higher wages than any other country on earth brings immigrants here." Of the truth of the statement there can be no doubt. Some of our immigrants come for other reasons, but the inducement to the great majority is the possibility of getting $2 a day instead of $2 a week. If our business slackens and wages fall the tide of immigration shows at once the close watch which the immigrant keeps on the American wage scale. The number of arrivals lessens and many of those of earlier arrival go home with a little bundle of savings. Labor fights steadily for higher wages and almost as steadily opposes immigration. It puts up the premium and strives to beat back the hands which reach out to seize it. Labor's ideal is monopoly of the labor market. It would limit the number of workers and so force from the community a higher wage than that compelled by competition. It may be only a coincidence and it may be the operation of an economic law, but the fact is that never in our history have wages been so high as during the last few years, the period of our heaviest immigration. Labor is disposed to overlook the fact that immigrants bring mouths to feed and backs to clothe as well as brawn. It appears not to see that the producers who frighten it are also consumers to keep it busy.

Taft, Lid Holder.

That irate old lady who turned upon Roosevelt, after he, though unbidden, had assisted her onto the car and said: "Don't you git too fresh, young man," was surpassed in her vigorous American democracy by another old woman the other day. This time Taft was the victim.

It was at a rural railway where the train had stopped for ten minutes, and the secretary he would go out on the depot and stretch his legs. He had about two turns when he was upon by a charming, but hasty lady, who grabbed him by the arm dragged him over to the baggage-

"You're the very feller I'm for," she began at the rate of a a second.

Taft tried to murmur gentle when he was stopped short in a trunk. The trunk was as large small house and filled to over with wearing apparel, some of was boiling out of the top.

"Thar," said the old lady turning to the rattled baggage "I'll bet if you set on it we it shet!"—[Exchange.

I Cure Weak Men

DR. MILES
The Master Specialist

No matter if you have been pronounced incurable by any other physicians, don't on account hesitate to come to me for treatment. I have cured hundreds of men who been told that they were incurable. Remember that my methods will cure cases practically incurable by any other treatment. My methods are original with me, and the result of many years' experience in medical practice. I effect a cure in every I take for treatment, because my treatment is adjusted to the needs of each patient scientific precision. I leave nothing to guesswork. I KNOW when I begin treating tient that I will perform a complete and permanent CURE. Such a cure by my is just as certain as that two and two make four.

I claim that nothing less than a complete eradication of the disease from the is a real cure. I treat to completely remove the disease, and not merely the toms. I drive out every root and fiber of the ailment and effect a cure that will you strong and vigorous for a lifetime.

The cures I effect are the result of my thorough knowledge of every phase of the cases I treat and to the fact that I apply individual treatment to each case. In instance I know the ailment, and I know the cure for it. The fact that I agree for my fee until you are cured is proof of my confidence in my ability to cure case. Some physicians assert that certain diseases of men are incurable. I deny that stand ready to PROVE that by my methods there is no disease peculiar to men that be cured.

You Can Pay Me When You Are Cured

Varicocele

Under my treatment the most aggravated cases of Varicocele are cured in a few days' time. There is no pain, and it is seldom necessary that the patient be detained from his occupation. Normal circulation is at once restored throughout all the organs and their natural processes of waste and repair are again established. If you are afflicted with varicocele, consult me at once. Delay can bring on aggravated conditions, and nervous complications and involve the general health.

No other physician employs a like treatment, and so thorough is my work that there need not be the slightest fear of a relapse into old conditions.

"Weakness"

I am confident that I have cured more cases of so-called "weakness" than any other physician. There may be doctors in the large eastern cities who have treated more cases than I, but they cling to the old and ineffective practice of dosing with tonics. "Weakness" is merely a symptom of local disorder that requires local treatment. This is a truth that I have discovered and that has been fully established by my success in effecting permanent cures. My method is original with myself and is employed by no other physician.

Free Consultation

To judge my ability without personal consultation may be an injustice to yourself that will cost a lifetime of suffering. Consultation is free and confidential and you place yourself under no obligation to me whatever by coming to talk with me about your case.

Stricture

My treatment for stricture removes the necessity for surgical operations even in severe cases of long standing. I do no cutting or dilating. No other physician employs my methods of overcoming this disorder, so that the service I offer you is original and distinctive. Do not give up hope because others have failed. I will cure you and the cure will be a prompt and painless one. My treatment dissolves the stricture, subdues all inflammation, relieves all irritation or congestion that may exist in the kidneys or bladder and restores health and tone in all organs affected by the disease.

All medicines are prepared in my own private laboratory and are absolutely fresh and pure.

My Fee is $10

El Pizmo Beach—Where It Is and What It Is

El Pizmo Beach is situated on the coast line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, midway between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

It is par excellence the grandest beach on the coast. No other such stretch of smooth, level beach is to be found anywhere, its only rival being the world-famed Ormond Beach in Florida, and those familiar with both have no hesitancy in giving the palm to El Pizmo.

Fancy a beach seventeen miles long and so wide that twenty massive racing automobiles may run abreast.

It is an established resort. Foreordained to be a success from its natural advantages, it is a success because live, energetic men of affairs have taken in hand the development of its natural beauties.

And You'll Be Satisfied

like you to buy a lot with the intention of building a summer home; whether you buy with that intention or as an investment, we are posi- you will be satisfied and will reap a rich profit.

Why You Should Buy Lots at El Pizmo Beach

No. 1. When making an investment, the most important part to investigate is the people in back of the proposition.

No. 2. Pizmo Beach is owned by Thomas S. Wadsworth, 320 Douglas Bldg. He also owns and runs the hotel and resort. Is also the owner outright of the water, electric light plants and all franchises; so when Mr. Wadsworth makes a statement, you can depend upon it that it is so. Remember, it's the owner handling his own property, and there are no agents to make false statements.

No. 3. The Southern Pacific Company has spent more than ten thousand dollars in grading and fixing up around the depot, and is doing all in its power to boost Pizmo.

No. 4. There are two railroads already surveyed from the San Joaquin Valley and Bakersfield to Pizmo. When these are completed property at Pizmo will sell for ten times the prices now.

No. 5. Pizmo being the nearest point to the Great Tiber oil fields will be eventually a great shipping point.

No. 6. The two-million-dollar plant of the California Petroleum Co., limited, is located about three miles from Pizmo, and is expected to open up within the next sixty days. This will give employment to at least five hundred men, who will bring in their families. This means a large amount of money to be spent in Pizmo, as Pizmo is the nearest station to this big plant.

Don't Forget That History Repeats Itself and Now is Your Opportunity to Get Rich as the majority of others have, that is to say, get in when property is cheap and only buy where there is a chance to make big profits and quick returns. Dozens of people have made big money by investing in Pizmo lots, as there is always an open market for them. Just think! Only 1200 available lots, and just imagine what these lots will sell for when the two railroads from the valleys are completed, putting Pizmo in touch with 250,000 valley folks.

Again History Repeats Itself

Hard to Look Back at, But It's So!

Fifteen years ago a lot at Atlantic City could be bought for $50. The same lot today is worth $10,000. A little fishing hamlet, where now there are hundreds of hotels.

Let's get close to home. At Long Beach six years ago a lot could be bought for $100 that today you would have to pay $3000 for. Ocean Park, Redondo, San Pedro, and in fact most any beach you can mention, had you bought in the right time, would have made you rich.

NOW FOR PIZMO BEACH. DON'T LET THIS SLIP BY.

You owe it to yourself and to your family to take time to investigate. We know if you will only do this you will double your money in a short time. Hundreds got rich by investing in beach property at the right time. Now, when opportunity knocks at your door, don't chase him away until you see what he has for you. Don't forget history repeats itself. Don't wait until it is too late. Pizmo lots will take a big jump very shortly and you will have to pay $100 more at least for a Pizmo lot.

can you buy a beautiful beach lot, with pure water piped to your lot, and electricity and telephone, and in fact all the conveniences of a city home for $200? We don't want you to take our word that Pizmo is the finest beach on the Coast, and just the place for to enjoy your summers, and at the same time have your investment earning you big profits. We want you to see Pizmo Beach.

, you are not buying a lot in a new townsite, but in an established beach town, and in one that will leave Atlantic City in the shade within the next two years. Now on the Road of a Thousand Wonders, the Southern Pacific Coast Line, and with the of two new roads within two years from the valley, which will put Pizmo in touch with about 250,000 local valley folk, who are anxious to get to Pizmo Beach for the summer. Don't wait until it is too late to get in on the ground floor. Come in and see once. Pick out your lot, pay down 10 per cent., and go with us on our grand excursion July 18. If you find things not as represented your money will be cheerfully refunded. Remember this trip is absolutely free to you.

BUILDING HOMES ABOUT GLENDORA.

CHARMING FOOTHILL TOWN IS GROWING RAPIDLY.

Twenty - Thousand - Dollar Bank Building Erected This Year—Advent of Pacific Electric Lends Impetus to Improvement Spirit—Cosy Bungalows and Ranch-Houses Built.

Building has been active at Glendora within the last few months. Since the charmingly-situated suburban city is reached by the Pacific Electric Railway, impetus has been given to the improvement of the entire section. Numerous small business houses have been built, and many cosy bungalows and more pretentious two-story homes, both in the town and on the near-by ranches.

The First National Bank building is, perhaps, the most important job of the year. This building is of reinforced concrete, and cost $20,000. It is on the main street of the town, a few feet from the terminus of the electric line, completed to the city last winter. The building houses the First National Bank, the Savings Bank of Glendora and the Hall drug store on the lower floor. The second story is occupied by a large hall, used for entertainments, which is said to be the best equipped of any outside the larger cities of Southern California. There are several offices for lawyers, doctors and dentists on the second floor.

The bank is one of the most prosperous in the suburban districts. It has been in operation a year, and has deposits of $57,000. It is equipped with modern vaults, safe deposit boxes, burglar alarm system, etc.

The home of C. H. Converse, on a twenty-acre orange grove, three-quarters of a mile from the center of the town, is one of the newest and most attractive homes in the vicinity. It is two stories high, and is built of cobble stones and frame. It is 61x63 feet over all, has a cement basement, and contains ten large rooms. The first story is faced with field stone, and the roof columns are of San Gabriel River boulders, the porte cochere also being supported by similar pillars. There is a large porch on the front, from which a magnificent view of the surrounding country can be had.

One of the typical bungalows of the city is that just completed by J. M. Baker, on one of the sightly corners near the center of the town. It is a cosy place, with wide verandas, sweeping eaves, and commodious interior, which can be built at a reasonable cost, lot and all.

ARCHITECTS PLAN MORE WORK.

Local Architects and Contractors Doing Work Over Entire Southwest. Library at Long Beach.

The following items of building and improvement news is another proof of the general activity in building and construction throughout the Southwest. Los Angeles architects and contractors obtain numerous important jobs away from home, adding to the revenue of the city. The Southwest Contractor and Manufacturer furnishes these:

Plans by Norman F. Marsh and by E. R. Greeth and Metcalf & Lockridge, Long Beach, were selected by the Long Beach library board for further consideration; seven plans were submitted.

Thornton Fitzhugh is closing bids for the construction of a reinforced concrete business block to be built at Mesa, Ariz., for Dr. A. J. Chandler and the Mesa Realty Company. It will cost about $26,000.

Thornton Fitzhugh has plans for a reinforced concrete hospital to be erected by the Territorial government on the outskirts of Phoenix, Ariz.

A. B. Benton has plans for the Henderson School for Boys at Riverside; one building is to be constructed as soon as title to the site is settled up, others will follow some time in the future.

Architect Benson also has plans and is taking bids for the construction of a parsonage and chapel on the grounds of the Church of the Messiah on West Washington street.

Bids are being taken for the construction of the new grammar school at Glendale, plans for which are being completed by Charles E. Shattuck.

Bids have been called for by the Board of Education for the construction of the Fourteenth-street school. First bids were opened some days ago, but changes in the specifications necessitated readvertising.

Morgan & Wells have plans prepared for a four-story and basement Class B building for Sanborn, Vail & Co., to be erected on Broadway, between Seventh and Eighth streets. Pressed brick, galvanized iron cornices, composition roof, sanitary plumbing, electric wiring, plate glass, prism glass, passenger and freight elevators, etc., are specified.

Kelly & Newberry have plans on the boards for residences for A. C. Way of the First National Bank and for C. P. Tolley.

Paul Martin has taken bids for the construction of an eight-room residence for J. B. P. Crosby. It will be built on Kenwood avenue, near West Adams street.

C. H. Russell is preparing plans for remodeling the old lake bath-house at Venice, which will be utilized for hotel purposes by the Abbott Kinney Company.

Plans for a seven-room bungalow have been prepared for Mrs. Alica E. Longley by Frank M. Tyler, at Forty-ninth street and Moneta avenue. The same architect is drawing plans for a six-room house at Alhambra for George Rice, Jr., and for a six-room cottage for T. C. DeLisle on Magnolia avenue, near Washington street.

Work will be resumed this month on the Crestmore cement plant of the Southern California Cement Company, according to a statement of Manager W. W. Poole. The company has already spent $750,000.

Plans are being prepared for utilizing the waste waters of the storage reservoir at Escondido for power purposes. The estimated cost of installation is $30,000. The reservoir was recently completed, at a cost of $350,000.

A special bond election will be held at San Pedro August 3 to provide funds of at least $16,000 for completing and furnishing the City Hall, and $10,000 for an up-to-date fire alarm system.

Bonds amounting to $15,000 were voted at Santa Paula for acquiring a site, building and furnishing a combined City Hall and public library. An offer to donate $10,000 additional for the building fund was accepted from a private individual.

The Y.M.C.A. of Santa Ana has been offered a site on Broadway as a donation by Dr. J. C. Baily, for the new building to cost $20,000. Funds are now being raised.

The City Trustees of Hollywood will call an election July 28, for voting on a bond issue to enlarge the present City Hall. This will include also $4000 for the street work promised in the settlement of the storm water suit with former Senator Cole. The latter work will include for grading, graveling and curbing Grand avenue south of Wilson street.

Property at Eighth and Lemon streets, Riverside, has been purchased for the erection of a new clubhouse.

The Belvedere Hospital at San José, has taken out a permit to build a three-story fourteen-room frame addition at No. 152 North Third street, at that city. It will cost about $5299. The David Jacks Company is repairing and altering its three-story brick building at the corner of First and Fountain streets, same town, at a cost of $4093.

The hotel at Redwood Retreat, ten miles north of Gilroy in the Santa Clara Mountains, burned to the ground loss $10,000. It will be replaced.

S. B. Zimmer is preparing plans for a modern hospital for Imperial. Three lots have been secured as a site.

Spencer and Powers, Chicago, have prepared plans for a bungalow for J. S. Grepe of East Highland, to cost $16,000. It will be two stories, 45x120 feet, frame and plaster, with redwood finish, hardwood floors, designed mantels, gas and electric fixtures, lavatories, furnace.

Plans are under way for the building of a $12,000 residence at Fourteenth and Lime streets, Riverside, by Harwood Robbins of that city.

G. W. Lane has purchased a two-acre lot on South Towne avenue, Santa Ana, and will improve it with a bungalow to cost $2500 or $3000.

Prof. W. P. Russell intends building a new residence on Sixth street, near Blanchard Park, Claremont.

Mrs. E. Hartmann has taken out a permit to build a two-story twelve-room frame residence on the northwest corner of First and Hobson streets, San José, to cost $6996. Other work planned in the same city is as follows: Mission Realty Company, for a two-story seven-room frame residence on Fifth between St. James and Julian streets, $3000; Mrs. Mary Cook for a frame addition to a two-story residence on Third between San Fernando and San Antonio streets, $2000; I. O. Jacks for a two-story six-room residence, St. John between Seventh and Eighth streets, $2500; W. H. Jones, one-story six-room residence, No. 211 South Thirteenth street, $2200; I. Elliaser for a one-story five-room cottage on Julian between Tenth and Eleventh streets, $2000; C. S. Rhea for a six-room cottage on Ninth between Virginia and Margaret, $2000; L. T. Clark for a five-room cottage on Whitley between Julian and St. James street, $1850; Mrs. C. Cline for a five-room cottage at the corner of Crittenden and Washington streets, $1700; Mrs. H. Phillips for a six-room cottage southeast corner of Clayton avenue and Terraine street, $1600; John P. Gomez, for a five-room cottage on Eleventh between Keyes and Humboldt streets, $1400; Henry Butler for a five-room cottage at No. 169 Clayton avenue, $1200.

A special school bond election will be held at Covina July 17, to vote on issuing $60,000 bonds for the erection of of high-school building.

F. S. Allen has been commissioned to prepare plans for the proposed industrial school at San Bernardino. Bonds for the erection of the building are to be voted upon August 11. The building will cost $35,000.

The school trustees of Cochise county, Ariz., closed the competition Saturday for the plans and specifications and estimates of cost of a high-school building not to exceed $60,000 in cost.

At the special election at Brawley the people voted favorably on the proposition of issuing $25,000 bonds for the erection of a new school.

The school trustees of Colegrove have decided to build another pavilion in the school grounds and make other needed improvements.

The board of school trustees of Santa Ynez, accepted plans for the new high and grammar school. It will be modern in every particular, stone or reinforced concrete, front elevation in mission style. Ample room for both teachers and pupils has been provided.

The contract for additions to the Douglas (Ariz.) school buildings has been let to C. D. Parsons, for $17,000.

BUYS GARAGE SITE.

Hope Street Location Chosen by Rambler People for New Stand—Four Hundred a Foot for Lot.

W. K. Kowan, Southern California agent for the Rambler automobile, has purchased from Alexander Keating, through the agency of Edwards and Wildey Company, a lot on the east side of Hope street, 150 feet north of Twelfth street. The property has a frontage of fifty feet on Hope, and is 156 feet deep to a twenty-foot alley. The purchase price is reported at $21,500, or a trifle over $400 per front foot.

Plans for a modern garage building to occupy the entire lot are now being prepared by S. Tilden Norton. The building will be of pressed brick, with plate-glass front, and will contain all the conveniences of a modern garage, such as ladies' and gentlemen's lounging rooms, chauffeurs' room, offices, stock rooms, battery room, a large and completely equipped repair and assembling room and commodious show rooms. The roof will be of truss construction, allowing a clear floor space 50x156 feet without posts to interfere with the movement of cars. The estimated cost of the garage building is $6000, including interior fittings.

CENTRAL AVENUE LEASE.

The Jones & Ryder Land Co. reports the sale of the lease on the Glenwood, a twenty-room apartment-house, at No. 720 Central avenue, for a term of three years. This lease was sold for Edwards & Wildey to Mrs. Edna Russell for $2130.

PAVING COMPANY BUYS LOT.

The Barber Asphalt Paving Company purchased the triangular lot adjoining its Date-street refinery from the Pacific Light and Power Company and Henry S. Woolner, for a consideration of about $10,000. The sale was made through the office of E. P. Vernon & Co. C. Sumner Kent and Frank W. Creswell represented the buyer. The property consists of a third of an acre, fronting on Alhambra avenue, with 119 feet on Date street, and the main line of the Southern Pacific traversing it.

E. P. Vernon & Co. also has sold for Dr. A. J. Petter to George Roessel the property at No. 2222 Sunset boulevard, consisting of a five-room cottage, and lot 50x162 feet, for $2600.

ON EASTERN TRIP.

A. T. Jergins was one of the number of Los Angeles people who left Wednesday night on the special train to attend the Elks' convention at Dallas, Tex. It is the intention of the Los Angeles representatives to capture the convention for Los Angeles in 1909.

After the closing of the convention Mr. Jergins will make an extended eastern trip, visiting Galveston, New Orleans, Key West, New York, Niagara Falls, Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, Banff, Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. His object in making the trip is to study real estate conditions in the various cities. He will be absent about three months.

ONE HUNDRED AN ACRE.

In reporting the sale of a 640-acre tract near Corona last week for $64,000, or $1000 an acre, the price should have been stated as $100 an acre, as the property is raw land, and is not set out to oranges or other trees. The sale was made by Walter S. McKee, and not by H. S. McKee, as the item read. The former was connected with the Wright & Callender company for some time, but has severed his connection with that firm, and has opened offices for himself.

TRADES FOR CITY HOUSE.

A. H. Merwin reports the exchange for J. N. Nopper to J. J. Michaud of a twenty-acre alfalfa ranch between Buena Park and Cypress Station, in Orange county, valued at $5500, for the property at No. 129 Avenue 39, valued at $3000. The difference was adjusted by a mortgage. The ranch is improved with a good house, flowing well and pumping plant. The property on Avenue 39 consists of a lot 50x150 feet, improved with a five-room cottage.

AGAIN AT HIS DESK.

George W. Dickinson, of Strong & Dickinson, who was operated on some three weeks ago for appendicitis, is again at his office.

Including Water Stock in the Palo Verde Mutual Water Company

Success is assured at Blythe Ranch.

The soil is there—an inexhaustible sediment, constantly renewed and enriched by the fertile waters of the Colorado.

The water is there—it is brought to the land in unlimited quantities from the Colorado River. 17 miles of riparian rights on the Colorado insures an abundant supply for all time to come.

The climate is there—an early growing season brings crops to maturity in time for the early market—6 to 8 weeks in advance of other localities.

The attention of the settler from every part of the nation has been directed to the rich valleys along the Colorado. President Roosevelt says this is destined to become the richest and most thickly settled agricultural section in the United States.

Fortunes have been made in this section during the past few years and many fortunes are still to be made by those who invest now.

DEER AND DOVE Season Opens July 15th.

Are you ready to get your share? Just a few suggestions from our stock will help.

For doves, an L. C. Smith at $20.00 and up; or a Parker Bros., $32.50 to $425; or a New Remington, Model '08, hammerless repeating shot gun, at $22.75.

For deer, an auto-loading Remington rifle, .30-30, .32 or .35 Cal., at $35.00; or an auto-loading Winchester, .32, .35 or .351 Cal., at $32.90; or a .30-30 Winchester or Marlin at $15.55.

Don't forget a box of Hoxicized cartridges. They are extremely accurate and long range; they will insure either a fatal wound or heavy blood trail. In the smaller calibers they are much more effective than larger calibers when loaded with ordinary soft nose bullets. You can save in weight of gun and ammunition, and above all you are sure of your game if you hit it.

HARD WORK.

THIRD DAY IS HARDEST YET.

Glidden Tourists Toil Over Mountain Roads.

Touring Cars Get Through Without Penalty.

Three Contestants for Hower Trophy Lose Points.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BEDFORD SPRINGS (Pa.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Gliddenites experienced the roughest road thus far in the tour in the third day's run of 106 miles from Pittsburgh to Bedford Springs over the Allegheny Mountains. In spite of this, however, the schedule of seven hours was beaten by many cars.

The Pierce-Arrow cars arrived first in a bunch again at 1:15 o'clock, forty five minutes ahead of time. The Peerless, Franklin, Studebaker, Reo, Haynes, Premier, Goeth, Thomas, Ranier, Stevens-Duryea, Marmon, Garford, Seldon and Moline touring cars and roadsters made good records in arriving ahead of schedule. At 3:15 o'clock all the touring cars except Garford 29 had reported in. The roadsters that had not yet arrived were Stoddard-Dayton No. 109, A. C. Miller, driver; Overland No. 111, C. P. Forth, driver, and Gyroscope No. 113, A. L. Kull, driver.

Overland runabout No. 52 broke an oiler and arrived ten minutes late. The Pierce car, of which Teddy Day is driver, experienced tire trouble a great deal of the time but got through all right. A tire came off Premier No. 8, Joseph Moore, driver, but no one was injured. The Reo Confetti car ran out of batteries and was delayed. Garford touring car No. 29, which had a wheel smashed yesterday and replaced it, continued with the tour today, though out of the contest for the trophy.

The route today with a schedule of seven hours is considered one of the hardest courses ever marked out for an automobile contest, the roads being decidedly rougher than last year over the same course.

In climbing hills second speed was generally used. The tourists will remain here over Sunday and enjoy a much needed rest.

The contestants expressed themselves as highly pleased with the roads between Buffalo and Pittsburgh. Hopes are entertained that east of Pittsburgh good roads will prevail but it is believed as in former years, that when the mountain district is reached, considerable trouble will be experienced. Up to the present time excellent averages are being maintained and a majority of the contestants are confident that they will be in the race at the finish which will be at Saratoga, July 23.

A green touring car containing four men and a woman was wrecked on the north side of Pittsburgh by colliding with a telegraph pole. It is said the car and its occupants were from Norristown, Pa., and were following the Glidden tourists. None of the party was seriously hurt.

AMERICANS ARE CONFIDENT.

Trainer Murphy Is Pleased With Conditions of His Boys Before Olympic Games.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

LONDON, July 11.—The American athletes who have come to London to compete against the world at the Olympic meeting which will open on Monday, are full of confidence as to their ability to do more than hold their own against the representatives of other nations.

Trainer Murphy said today: "None of the men is overtrained, but, on the other hand, some of them have not had enough work, and the climate of England will not permit the forcing of work upon them."

Vacation by Automobile.

A party of four automobilists, consisting of E. G. Julian, George Daniels, Charles Coleman and F. P. Harris, have just returned from a ten days' trip in the San Bernardino and Temescal Mountains. The trip was made with two 1904 autocars, and in all the party covered about 400 miles without the slightest trouble with their four-year-old Autocar runabouts. Good fishing was enjoyed in Cold Water Cañon.

LEAD THE WORLD.

AMERICANS WIN GREAT MATCH.

Riflemen and Reovlver Team Defeat All Comers.

Bisley Shoot Is Successful for Yankee Experts.

Remarkable Scores Made Under the Conditions.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BISLEY (England) July 11.—The great international team match shoot, the most important event of the Olympic rifle contests, has been won by America, and the American marksmen thus become the champions of the world. The American aggregate score was 2553; that of the British team, 2486, while the Canadian score was 2439.

Starting with a lead at the end of the first range, the Americans never were displaced, and with the exception of the contest at the 600-yard range, they scored higher totals for each of the six distances than the finest teams that Canada and all Europe could put in the field.

In the individual aggregate, the Americans always were prominent, first Lueshner and then Martin leading all the world's crack riflemen. Many experts consider the outcome a victory, not only for the men, but for the rifles. They declare that the short-barreled new Springfield rifle proved itself a far better arm than the new short-barreled Lee-Enfield in use in the British service.

In the team revolver competition, which occupied most of the day, the Americans scored another fine victory. They defeated the teams, composed of four men each, of the United Kingdom, Sweden, France, Belgium, Holland and Greece. The American revolver team was composed of Gorman, Axtell, Calkins and Dietz. With a grand individual aggregate of 501, Gorman had the satisfaction of beating the Belgian, Van Aebrock.

The aggregate team scores were: American, 1914; Belgium, 1816, and England, 1816.

The protest of Gorman, American, against a miss with which he was credited in the individual revolver contest has been disallowed. The gold, silver and bronze medals in this contest were officially awarded respectively as follows: Van Aebrock, Belgium, with 490; Storms, Belgium, with 487; Axtell, America, with 480.

As a consequence of the dispute, the American and Belgium revolver teams are endeavoring to fix up a pistol match, to be shot at Brussels.

The team firing at the last range, 1000 yards, was held under favorable auspices. The American and British teams each had around them a large crowd of admirers and interested spectators.

The Crown Prince of Sweden watched the work of the Swedish marksmen for a while and then, walking down the line, accompanied by the Swedish Minister and Lord Cheylesmoore, president of the National Rifle Association, he took up a position behind the chair of Gen. Drain, the leader of the American team. From this point he followed with obvious interest the fortunes of Casey and Winder, the only two Americans who were then shooting. They were both steadily hitting the bullseye, while the British team, their nearest competitor, was losing ground.

Winder and Casey finished with 69 each, as against the score of 65 and 67 made by the first two English marksmen at the finish. Immediately the American victory was announced the Swedish Crown Prince shook Gen. Drain's hand heartily, and congratulated him upon the work of the team.

The British team finished before the American. The last man to fire at the American target was Benedict, who made the lowest aggregate for the team, 467. The other individual aggregates for the team were Martin and Lueshner, with 430 each, constituting the highest individual score of the match—Winder with 429, Casey with 423 and Eastman with 421.

According to shooting etiquette, the honor of the highest individual score goes to W. F. Lueshner of New York, who scored the greatest number of points up to the longest distance than Maj. W. B. Martin of New Jersey, who tied him on the thousand-yard range.

The gold medal in the 300-yard individual went to Helger of Norway, who scored 904; the silver medal to Lieut. Semon of Ohio, with 886, and the bronze medal to Sather of Norway with 879.

TOO EASY.

ANGELS DEFEAT SAPLESS OAKS.

Northerners Outclassed in Hard-Hitting Game.

Hen Berry's Green Lid Acts as Mascot for Team.

Smith and Ellis Again Start the Run-Getting.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Los Angeles won an easy victory from the Commuters at Recreation Park this afternoon. Although the size of score, 10 to 6, might indicate that the Oaks had a chance, they were hopelessly outclassed and after more than two hours of play, they finally gave up trying. Hardy, for the Commuters, was plentiful with his walks and the Angels hit him freely. In addition, Oakland's errors were expensive and all told the southerners didn't have much trouble.

Henry Berry appeared on the scene decked out in a new green lid of pronounced coloring and maybe that had something to do with the way his aggregation swatted the ball. Toward the close, when they had the game cinched Hosp slackened up a bit and took things more easily, which had something to do with the final Oakland tallying.

Jimmy Smith was in anything but form out in left field and his errors assisted largely in the onward march of the Los Angeles contingent. All told, Hardy walked nine men and most of his walks counted in the run-getting.

The Angels started the run column working in the second inning, when Jud Smith hit to center, was sacrificed by Ellis and scored by Delmas's two-bagger. In the third, the Commuters came back strong. A pass by Hosp, an error by the dentist, another error by Delmas and a single and Heitmuller's double contributed to the festivity of the occasion and they were in the lead 3 to 2.

Los Angeles tied it up in the fifth and waited until the seventh when they PEORIA (Ill.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Carlokin, a California horse, won in straight heats the Brewery stakes of $2000 for 2:14 class trotters from a fair field in the closing card of the Great Western races here today.

Minor Heir, after winning the first and second heats of the 2:25 pace in slow drives, was driven by Dean to beat his 2:05 1-4 in the third mile. He went well to the three-quarter pole and had a new mark cinched but he broke in the stretch and finished in 2:05¾.

Nilmah had an easy race in the 2:17 pace. The summaries:

DEMMITT IS CLOSE SECOND IN SHOOT OF SEVENTH.

Adjt.-Gen. Lauck and Brig.-Gen. Wankowski Witness Shooting. Rigid Requirements of State Officials May Make Difference in Size of Team.

The regimental competition of the Seventh Regiment ended yesterday with Lieut. John I. Sellinger in the lead with a grand total of 349, and Lieut. Bert T. Demmitt second with 346.

Private Rolla P. Umsted led at 200 yards, with 80, and also at 500 yards with 86. Lieut. Sellinger had high score of 90 at 200 yards rapid-fire, and Lieut. Demmitt led in the skirmish runs with 109.

Two possibles were made during the competition; that of Demmitt in the skirmish run of the first round, when he made 25 at 200 yards at the "pappoose," as the prone silhouette is designated by riflemen, and that of Lieut. Campbell in the second round, when he made 25 at rapid fire, and incidentally scored high for the day at that event, with 48.

The other high scores of the second round were made by Private Alfred Hansen at 200 yards slow fire, with 43, and at 500 yards slow fire with 45, and by Lieut. H. O. Higgins in the skirmish run with 53.

The required total of 325, being 65 per cent. of the possible 500, was made by only two men, Sellinger and Demmitt, though several others nearly accomplished the hard-sought qualification for the State shoot in August. Some showed their ability after putting themselves out of the running.

Col. Schrieber attributes the failure of so many excellent marksmen to GREAT JUMP BY AMERICAN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, July 11.—At the stadium this evening, H. S. Porter, one of the American Olympic contestants, cleared six feet one inch in an exhibition high jump. This is two inches better than the jump made by Leahy, one of the British entrants, at the championship meet last week.

LONG TOUR.

FROM ELKHART TO ANGEL CITY.

Motor Car Covers Nearly Four Thousand Miles.

Sagebrush, Rocks, Washouts Bar the Way.

High Mountain Ranges Are Safely Crossed.

C. G. Conn and Arthur A. Wilson reached Los Angeles Friday night, after traveling 3706 miles across the continent from Elkhart, Ind., their home. The remarkable tour was made without mishap, and although the party was obliged to stop many days near Ogden because of rain, which made the roads impassable, the trip was enjoyable throughout. The journey was made in comfortable stages, and the tourists reached here in high spirits and ready to take another trip of equal length.

Mr. Conn was formerly Congressman from Indiana, and is a well-known politician. He is, perhaps, better known as a manufacturer of fine musical instruments, the cornets which bear his name being known and used all over the world. He is an enthusiastic motorist, and drove the big American Simplex over the entire long run.

On April 28 the party left Elkhart for the Pacific Coast. Besides Conn and Wilson, there was a mechanician, Walter Woods, and a fourth member, who was dropped at Ogden. The three men then continued the journey to San Francisco, reaching the city by the Golden Gate June 24.

After a stay in San Francisco, the tourists drove to Paso Robles, thence to Santa Barbara, and on Friday chugged leisurely down the coast from the Channel City, reaching here at dusk. Their headquarters is at the Alexandria, and they will remain here for ten days. They may return as they came, by motor car.

Now that trans-continental tours have ceased to be a novelty, the long run of the Simplex car and its party is remarkable for the hazardous journey across mountain and plain. There was, of course, the usual amount of hard work, but the party suffered no privation, and were always able to find comfortable quarters.

Road conditions were not of the best. After the delay at Ogden, where the tourists waited for the roads to dry, the car was started again, and a day out of Ogden alkali flats barred the way. The big machine sank to the pan in the slimy ooze, and it was necessary to secure a block and tackle to lift the car out of the mire. Then a road was built, and the Simplex proceeded for about 100 yards, only to sink in the slush again.

On reaching Kelton Flats, where practically no road exists, it was necessary to take to the railroad track. The big Simplex slid over the ties comfortably, and good time was made along the railroad right of way. It was necessary to keep a sharp lookout for trains, and while Woods and Wilson watched the tracks from either direction, Conn drove carefully for five miles.

Bad roads stretched for miles ahead of the party after leaving Kelton. On the third day a washout almost put them out of commission. Conn sent his car through, and in attempting to cross the machine almost turned turtle. When the engine was stopped the car settled comfortably into the sand, and another block and tackle effort was necessary.

Sand and sagebrush, rocks and washouts tell the story of the journey across Nevada. On cattle trails, which are only an excuse for roads, the car chugged along without complaint. As long as the wheels of the motorcar had traction, ravines and gullies, cañons, alkali flats and bogs all looked easy to the intrepid crew of the Simplex.

Time and again, when the drive wheels buried themselves in the soft sand of a river bed, the travelers would have to wade into the water and mud, rig the block and tackle and get to work. There are good roads in Nevada, says Mr. Conn, but he found very few of them.

Near Beowawe, Nev., a peculiar accident delayed the travelers. One of the lamps became loosened by the jar of the machine and the mechanician crawled along the hood to adjust it. Conn took the wheel and continued to drive. He was unable to see a washout in the road because the body of the mechanician prevented him from looking directly in front of the car. The Simplex dropped into the hole and the spokes of the front wheel were smashed. It was necessary to remove the wheel and take it back to Ogden for repairs.

With the car crippled by the damaged spokes the seventeen-mile drive to Beowawe was made under great difficulties. Then the travelers waited while the wheel was taken back and repaired.

An almost insurmountable mountain range near Winnemucca, Nev., was crossed in safety. The famous Truckee Pass, was also crossed. The travelers were warned against trying to climb the range but they essayed the journey and crossed in safety.

When the travelers reached California they were struck at once with the beauty of the country through which they passed. They spent a day at Lake Tahoe and then rolled down to San Francisco. The tour down the coast was enjoyable.

The itinerary shows that after leaving Elkhart they spent two and a half days in Chicago, three days in Omaha, a day in Laramie, Wyo., two days at Rock Springs, Wyo., twenty-one days in Ogden and vicinity, where they waited because of the wretched road conditions, three days at the T. S. Ranch in Nevada, and a day at Lake Tahoe.

The entire journey occupied fifty-five days from Elknart to the Coast. The car was run only during the day time and the tourists always aimed to reach a town where good hotel accommodations could be had.

QUEER SPEED BODIES.

English Are Designing Unusual Forms to Fit to High-Powered Chasis for Road Work.

The craze for high-powered cars with lightweight bodies is not confined to America alone, as some of the designs turned out by English bodymakers amply testify. The "toy tonneau" idea has hit England also, but in a different form from that in which it appealed to Guy Vaughn, who has the credit of originating the American type.

One of the latest types is after the design of a well-known English motorist, F. A. Bolton of Oakamoor. In this there is a decided slope backward, which gives a unique effect. The front seat measures only twenty-six inches from the floor to the top of the back and the back seat is only thirty-five inches. The top of the back seat is ten inches farther to the rear than the seat level, so that passengers in the little tonneau can come very near reclining.

MODERN ADVENTURE.

DRIVE ACROSS THREE RANGES.

MOTORISTS PENETRATE SAN JACINTO RESERVE.

Go Thirty-two Miles Into Forest Over Roads Never Before Traveled by Automobiles—Half-Wild Cattle Dispute Right of Way Until Siren Sends Them to Woods.

Thirty-two miles into the San Jacinto forest reserve, over roads never before traveled by a motor car and through a district where there roam at will thousands of half-wild cattle, unaccustomed to the sight of human beings other than Indian vaqueros, was the record run made last week by Dudley Harvey-Elder of Whittier in his twelve-horse-power Franklin touring car, stripped of the tonneau and carrying one person beside the driver.

The start up the incline was made at the Pauba ranch, six miles east of Temecula. Grades of fully 30 per cent. were encountered in the course of the climb, and the sandy condition of the trail made it necessary on several occasions for one of the occupants of the machine to alight and steady the back of the car in order to give traction.

The first grade encountered furnished considerable difficulty owing to the dangerous turns in the trail. Sliding sand made it necessary to run at minimum speed to prevent the car from slipping off the trail into the depths, several hundred feet below.

The trail through the second mountain range was found to be in excellent shape, however, and, but for the heavy grade of the incline, the run would have been an easy one. The chief use of the roadway has been to haul supplies to the various stations of the Pauba ranch, established by the vaqueros in the confines of the forest reserves.

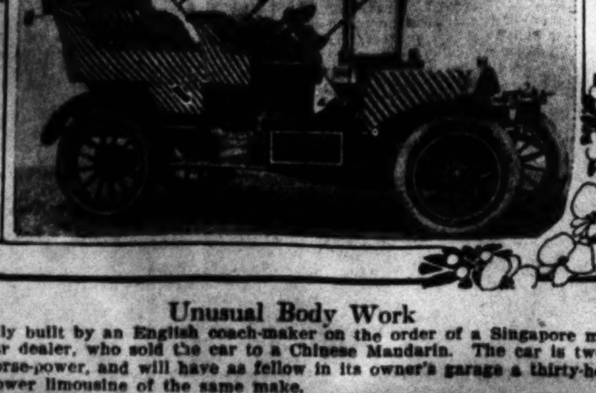
Hundreds of head of wild cattle, marked with the —P, the brand of the great Pauba ranch, were encountered upon the way. Many of them showed a desire to dispute the passage of the autoists, but the shriek of the siren was enough to send them scurrying into the mountain fastnesses in terror.

Beyond the second range of mountains a long stretch of excellent roadway was found, but the third grade dispelled any idea that the worst had been passed.

It was the intention to run through to the edge of the desert, hitting the Warner ranch road, but the inability to get a fresh gasoline supply made it necessary to turn back.

The precipitous grade made it impossible to travel on other than low speed along the greater part of the incline, and the engine was taxed to its utmost. In spite of the hot weather not the least inconvenience was experienced from overheating, however.

QUAINTLY FINISHED TO DELIGHT CHINESE EYES.



Unusual Body Work

PLEASED WITH PROSPECTS.

Earle C. Anthony Returns from Trip to Factories, Where Activity Shows Improved Conditions.

Earl C. Anthony of the Western Motor Car Company has returned from the East enthusiastic over the prospects for 1909. Mr. Anthony visited the Buick, Packard, Chalmers Detroit and Stevens-Duryea factories and found much activity.

Mr. Anthony was so pleased with the new Chalmers Detroit car that he placed a large order and has contracts for the shipping of thirty cars during August and September, and another large shipment in October. The first two of these cars will leave the factory for Los Angeles this month.

"In connection with this new Chalmers there seems to be a mistaken impression that the new car is to replace the former Thomas Detroit," says Mr. Anthony. "This is a mistake as the Chalmers Forty will be continued with no changes. At present practically the entire Chalmers plant is being given over to the new car, which is very Frenchy in appearance.

"I found busy times at the Packard factory, where the first batch of the 1909 Packards are being put through. This car is well under way and my demonstrator will leave the factory July 21 and will be here less than two weeks later. There was not an '08 car on the floor when I arrived at the Packard factory.

"The Buick factory is where you get your surprises. I never saw such a busy scene. A great force of workmen are kept busy day and night. The day I left the factory 153 automobiles were delivered, 139 of which were four-cylinder runabouts. Two thousand Buick cars were delivered during June, half of which were four-cylinder runabouts. Thus far this season the Buick has turned out 7000 cars."

While in Detroit, Mr. Anthony participated in the Detroit Club's Reliability run. Roy Chapin, the general manager of the Chalmers Company, drove the car, a Chalmers Forty. This car, as well as one of the smaller Chalmers cars, finished with perfect scores.

Mr. Anthony found conditions greatly improved in the East and says all signs of the recent flurry have disappeared and every dealer is preparing for a big business this coming season.

WILL RUN UP CANYON.

Los Angeles Motorcycle Club's Regular Outing Will Include Stiff Mountain Climb.

The regular pleasure run of the Los Angeles Motorcycle Club today will be to San Antonio Cañon. The riders will leave the clubhouse, at the corner of San Pedro and Twenty-second streets, this morning at 8 o'clock. The regular road along the Foothill boulevard will be followed to a point about half way between Claremont and Upland, where the route turns at right angles toward the mountains.

The road up the cañon is private, and a toll is charged to travelers, but through the kindness of B. H. Sheply the Motorcycle Club has been invited to make the trip. The road is excellent, with the exception of a small distance, where grading is being done. The grade is very steep, however, at the "Hogback" above the first camp.

HELPING HAND.

GOOD ROADS IS THEIR SLOGAN.

AUTO DEALERS IN LINE FOR BETTER COUNTY HIGHWAYS.

Will Meet Tuesday Night to Plan Ways and Means to Press the Campaign Among the Outlying Districts. Officers of the Association Promise Aid—All Are Boosters.

Auto dealers who are ready for the good roads campaign will meet Tuesday night at H. O. Harrison's garage to perfect their plans. President W. E. Bush met with the Good Roads Campaign Committee yesterday, and the plans for the work were gone over. The committee told Mr. Bush what was expected of the auto dealers, and Mr. Bush agreed to do all in his power to aid the movement. The auto dealers will profit if good road bonds are voted, and they will thoroughly organize a campaign among themselves, and their associates in the smaller cities in the county, to proclaim the gospel of good roads. On election day the autoists will see to it that every machine they own or control is out hustling voters to the polls and taking them home again. Especially is this necessary in the smaller towns, where often the voter is detained by his work on the ranch, and has no time to hitch up a team and drive in, or walk in, to vote.

Much campaign publicity work is thrown upon them, too, in that they can help mightily in conveying speakers about and in distributing material. Mr. Bush is confident that the dealers will gladly respond to these requests, and that in no small measure will the success of the bond issue be attributable to them.

"The fact is," said Mr. Bush yesterday, "we have to vote those bonds, and we are going to do it alone, if no one helps us. Gasoline row is lined with good roads boomers, and the little button is everywhere. We are a unit in favor of decent highways, and we know what a profit they will be to the entire county. Watch us hustle."

The auto dealers find that their business is seriously hampered by poor roads, and are in earnest in advocating permanent highways. Too many tourist visitors who would ordinarily bring their machines out here for the winter are prevented by the execrable excuses for roads to be found in this county. It is their aim to fetch this class of tourists here, and keep them all winter, and good roads are a prime requisite.

Another point the auto dealers make is that touring in a machine will be safer on a good road. Meetings with teams will be possible without danger to horse or machine, on broad level rock roads, where as on some of the present highways such meetings are dangerous. Much of the prejudice of the farmer against autos will thus be removed, and the touring will be looked upon with much more favor in the rural districts.

In Europe fine rock roads make such touring perfectly safe and an unalloyed pleasure. Thus the good roads advocates find firm friends in the auto dealers, and it is assured that on Tuesday night the dealers' association will be emphatic in its indorsement of the good roads movement.

New Battleship's Engine.

Automobile engineers are deeply interested in the internal combustion engines with which the new 20,000-ton British battleship is to be equipped. It seems probable that the suction gas producer will be tried. This consists of a coal burner which boils water. The resulting steam is passed through the fire, where it mixes with coal carbonate. The suction engine draws this gaseous mixture through a scrubber, which cleans and cools the gases. By this process, it is asserted, only one-half pound of coal per horse-power per hour is needed.

GOING AHEAD.

TO OPEN VALLEY TO MOTORISTS.

SAN DIEGO COUNTY PLANNING GREAT ROAD WORK.

New Highway Commission Centering Attention on Needs of Imperial Section, and Will Run Road East to Meet New County's Highway. Other Improvements.

San Diego county seems to be keenly alive to the value of good roads, and the officials are going ahead with plans for many improvements. Leon T. Shettler, who has just returned from a trip to San Diego, is enthusiastic over the prospects of new territory to be opened for pleasure trips to the automobiles of Southern California.

"In the first place," said Mr. Shettler yesterday, "San Diego county will undoubtedly vote bonds for not less than a million dollars for the immediate improvement of the roads. Mr. Scripps, Mr. Spalding and Mr. Spreckels have been appointed as a Highway Commission by the Supervisors. Mr. Scripps is a public-spirited man who has already built and paid for many miles of road himself, and he has agreed to finance the bonds if the people will vote them.

"The new Highway Commission has appointed George Cook as chief engineer, and have instructed him to bend every effort to put through the road to Imperial, and lay out the coast road to Capistrano. Other county roads will come later.

"The Imperial road is, I think, the most important highway under consideration in the State at the present time. Imperial Valley simply must have a good outlet, which it has not got. It is almost a certainty that the pass south of Mountain Springs will be used, providing that Imperial county can meet the San Diego people there, and it is understood that it will be as easy for Imperial county to run the road there as any place. There is naturally a little jealousy among some of the towns in the valley, but the importance of the road will override any local considerations.

"By the proposed new route, the odometer shows just 127 miles from San Diego to Imperial. The road has been practically impassible up to the present time. Almost no teaming has been done over it, and no automobiles have been through except two two-cylinder Reo light touring cars, which made the round trip.

"The shortest cut that could be made from Imperial to Los Angeles would be about 250 miles. When the road improvements are carried out, it will make a fine run for motorists. San Diego is going ahead to improve the highway from that city to San Juan Capistrano, and the road from the mission to Santa Ana is already in good shape. I talked with one of the Orange county Supervisors, who told me that they are going to improve the road from Santa Ana to Los Angeles immediately.

"This begins to look like business. It will open up to the motorists of Southern California as fine a trip as could be taken anywhere in the country, fifty or sixty miles of it being right along the bluffs overlooking the Pacific Ocean."

WAR IS ON AGAIN.

Licensed Association Fires Opening Gun in Another Battle Against Unlicensed Agents.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Several of the prominent automobile manufacturers and sales managers who are touring with the Gliddenists were astounded tonight, when announcement was made that the licensed association had quietly started a vigorous campaign against unlicensed agents.

The opening gun in the latest battle is an attempt to compel the Olds Motor Works, the Peerless and the Cadillac companies to cancel their contracts with the Centaur Automobile Company of Buffalo. This concern handles a large number of both licensed and unlicensed cars, as do many agencies throughout the country. If the lines are drawn closely in all large cities the merry war which has been going on for two or three years will be renewed, and with an impetus which is likely to make several changes in the motor-car industry.

One or two of the sales managers contemplate leaving the Glidden tour to get in touch with the situation, as it pertains to their own concerns.

OUT FOR AMERICAN RECORD.

Marquis de Dion to Send Two of His Cars in Fall to Try for Coast to Coast Record.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dissatisfied with the showing made in the New York-Paris race when the contesting cars were running across the American continent, Marquis de Dion, maker of the De Dion, one of the French machines, is planning another demonstration to recover the lost prestige of the foreign car.

This was the statement today by Emanuel Lascaris of the Chicago Motor Club, who was a member of the De Dion crew from Chicago to Vladivostok and who returned from Paris last week. According to Lascaris the Marquis intends trying for the coast-to-coast record next fall with Autran and Lascaris as drivers of the two French cars that will be sent over for the demonstration.

PREPARE FOR GRAND PRIZE.

Savannah Automobile Club Has First Meeting—Question of Light Car Race Undecided.

The Executive Committee of the Savannah Automobile Club, which has charge of the arrangements for the grand prize race to be held Thanksgiving Day at Savannah, recently held its first business meeting. The same gentlemen who guaranteed the success of the March races will underwrite the races in November. They have issued a statement agreeing to take care of any deficit that may be caused by the races and agreeing to give all the profits to a fund to advertise Savannah.

The question of holding a race for light cars a few days before the big race on Thanksgiving Day was not definitely decided. It will be considered further after there has been some additional correspondence with the Automobile Club of America. The offer of the Advertising Club of Savannah to extend its aid toward making the race a success was accepted and the five committeemen they name will be added to the Publicity Committee.

Maps of the course were shown to the members of the committee and are now prepared for distribution. If the light car races are decided upon, they will be run over a shorter course, about ten miles to each lap.

The committee leaned that the Isotta Company will [illegible] will probably have Trucco, the greatest driver in Italy, to pilot one of them. It is also understood that Al Poole and Louis Strang have already been engaged to drive cars in the grand prize race.

CROSS-COUNTRY RUN.

TO SPOKANE IN SCORE OF DAYS.

ANAHEIM MOTORISTS ARRIVE SAFELY IN NORTH.

With Two-Cylinder Car They Cover Eighteen Hundred Miles in Twenty-seven Days Total, of Which Twenty Were Spent on Road. Going Bad in Places.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) July 6.—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Andrews and son of Anaheim, Cal., arrived in Spokane July 3, after making a cross-country run of more than 1800 miles from their home, twenty-five miles southeast of Los Angeles, since June 6. Seven days were spent in stopovers. They carried 350 pounds of baggage in the two-cylinder machine, which covered the trip without mishap.

They will leave for Anaconda, Helena and other points in Montana in a few days, going as far East as Fargo, N. D., and return to California by the southern route, and arrive at Anaheim about the middle of August. Mr. Andrews said of the trip to Spokane:

"We found all kinds of roads. Through Southern California they were excellent, but in Northern California and Southern Oregon we encountered hard going. We found the roads in good condition for the last ninety miles into Spokane. The actual time occupied in traveling from Anaheim to Spokane was less than twenty days.

"We have had a pleasant trip and expect to spend nearly a week in Spokane, looking over some of the beauty spots in this part of the country, after which we will leave for Helena, terminating the trip at Fargo. We have not tried for records or anything of that sort, but made the trip for the pleasure there is in it, and I can assure you we are more than repaid for the little inconveniences and delays."

MAY GIVE GREATER FREEDOM.

Santa Monica Realizing That Numerous Arrests Have Not Endeared City to Automobilists.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SANTA MONICA, July 11.—Although it has been only about two months since Santa Monica has undertaken the systematic enforcement of the ordinance proposing to regulate the speed at which automobiles should travel the paved streets of the city, considerable ill feeling has already been developed. Numerous arrests have been made, but in practically all cases the accused have forfeited a nominal bail, and refused to appear in court for trial. Not so, however, with P. D. Mason of Los Angeles. It was about the time of the rubber men's picnic that he was arrested along with a number of alleged violators of the law. The hearing of his case has been postponed from time to time; but has finally been set for trial next Monday. Mason proposes to fight the case to the bitter end.

Santa Monica is already realizing that the numerous arrests are not endearing the city in the ranks of the automobilists, and Mayor Dudley has recommended that the chug wagons be given greater freedom. The city believes that the paying to a special officer of a commission for the arrest of every offender whose conviction is secured is a bad practice, and this may be abandoned in favor of a regulation placing an officer in uniform to warn drivers against fast riding. The contention of the automobilists is that it is unfair to have a plain clothes man lie in wait for them and nab them unawares. On the other hand, Santa Monica feels it her duty to protect the lives of pedestrians and others against the racing of irresponsible drivers of machines, but with her elegant oiled roads and boulevards she much dislikes the thought of offending her automobile visitors.

How the French Do It.

M. Lepine, Prefect of Police in Paris, devised a method of dealing with the problem of automobiles on the road about a year ago that has been very successful. While the plan has worked out well on the wide Champs Elysées, it is not certain that it would be equally successful on narrower streets or on thoroughfares that have more traffic. The avenue is divided into three sections, the center one being used entirely for automobiles, with horse-drawn vehicles limited to using the two side stretches. One interesting result of the plan is visible proof that the rubber shod wheels of motor cars damage a road surface much less than horses and steel-shod wagons and carriages.

Two Clubs Admit Women.

The Long Island Automobile Club decided recently to admit women motorists to membership, and the example of the Brooklyn organization has been followed by the Minneapolis Automobile Club, which recently officially decided upon the matter. The officers will waive the initiation fee of $25 for women applicants, and it is expected that a number of the fifty women in Minneapolis who own cars will join the organization.

Sick Man Must Not Drive.

A sick man has no right to run a motor car, according to the dictum of Magistrate Kirk of Jenkinton, Pa., who holds that illness of the operator increases the danger to the public. He delivered the ruling after an arrested motorist had been carried into his office, being too ill to walk.

Not Connected With Track.

Many motorcyclists are under the impression that the Los Angeles Motorcycle Club is connected in some way with the Seal Garden saucer track. The officials of the club announce that any use of its name in connection with the track is unwarranted.

SUNDAY SAUCER TRACK EVENTS.

Weekly Feature to Begin today at Seal Gardens.

Professionals and Amateurs Entered in Contests.

Australian Pursuit Race to Be Inaugurated.

The first of the weekly Sunday wheel and motor-cycle racing cards to be given through the summer months at the new saucer track at Seal Gardens includes for today six amateur and professional races, consisting of fifteen events.

Since the opening programme a week ago a large number of the first-day riders and many new wheelmen have daily trained on the saucer boards, and the local enthusiasts seem to regard the new venture already on a permanent basis. Visiting patrons of the Salt Palace and kindred tracks of the Mormon City declare the local velodrome the best of its kind in the country, and predict many records will go by the boards when the crack riders become more accustomed to the oval.

The feature event on today's card promises to be the five-mile motorcycle race, in which are entered Erwin Knappe, Frank Loge, M. J. Graves and Raymond Seymour. The latter rider is but a youngster in years, but rides the speedway in veteran fashion, and his admirers predict he will give Knappe and Graves a close race to land the honors. Loge captured an event in the initial meet, although Graves was handicapped in the race through trouble with his spark plug, and eventually won from his opponent. The entire quartette has been riding faithfully on the track all week, and fast time is expected.

PROFESSIONAL RIDERS.

In the one mile professional bicycle event, Frank Hoffman, Bill Furman and Ray Duer, the trio who furnished the most thrilling race in the bicycle events last week, will again ride in competition with the added entry, Jack Burris, a dark horse from Salt Lake. Burris has not been in regular training for some weeks, but is conceded a good chance to give the other riders severe competition, and the event should be exceedingly close.

The two-mile lap race will be repeated, and will doubtless prove interesting. The desire for the riders to win a part of the prize money—a small sum being given the winner of each lap—often urges the participants to a greater speed than is consistent with a long race, and the man who keeps his head and holds his own pace invariably has a better chance to win in the finish on a strong spurt.

The Australian pursuit race will be a unique attraction of the programme, and a dozen fast amateur racers are entered for the event.

LIST OF ENTRIES.

The bicycle races will be run in two heats, with a final, while the motorcycle race will be but one heat, making fifteen events, arranged as follows:

One mile novice bicycle race—W. J. Long, Fred E. Jones, George E. Smith, H. Peterson, H. Graham, F. P. Wright.

Two-mile amateur bicycle handicap race—F. Florentine, Frank Pearne, Walter Bryson, Joseph McNeil, W. W. Anthony, W. J. Long, Fred Jones, George Smith, H. Peterson, H. Graham, R. Williams, Rob Backrath, F. P. Wright.

One mile professional bicycle handicap—W. L. Furman, J. P. Gunn, Ray Deur, Frank Hoffman, Jack Burris.

Amateur Australian pursuit race—F. Florentine, Frank Pearne, Walter Bryson, Joseph McNeil, W. W. Anthony, W. J. Long, George Smith, H. Peterson, H. Graham, R. Williams, Rob Backrath, F. P. Wright.

Two-mile lap professional race—W. L. Furman, J. P. Gunn, Ray Deur, F. Hoffman, Jack Burris.

Five-mile amateur motorcycle (F.A.M. rules)—Edwin Knappe, Frank Loge, M. J. Graves, Raymond Seymour.

Suitable prizes will be awarded the winners of the amateur events, and cash awards will be given the professional winners. The programme will commence at 1:30 o'clock.

DERKUM SIGNS TO RACE AT CORONADO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CORONADO, July 11.—The management of the Coronado Country Club on Friday afternoon signed Paul J. Derkum to appear here in a series of races on July 19.

Derkum holds nineteen world's records from one to ten minutes on a flat track and also holds several hill-climbing records, and on the 4th of July he added the world's five-mile track record to his string.

Besides the appearance of Derkum, the manager has arranged a programme in which many local riders will compete, and several motorists from Los Angeles will come. Shepard, a local rider, who rode a mile a minute at Ascot on July 4, is very fast, and hopes to land in the prize money.

Derkum's manager viewed the track at Coronado, and pronounced it one of the best he has seen this season, and predicts that Derkum would make an attempt to break existing records.

Derkum will arrive not later than Friday, and will begin training Monday.

"WHITE SQUADRON" SAILS.

Will Follow Coast to Topango Canyon, Stop There for Mess, and Return Via Calabasas.

Today the "White Squadron" sails for a short day cruise by land over water, real salty water, too. At nine o'clock the flagship, "Black Bess," at the head of the line of good ships of the line that will lift anchor at the White Garage and slowly steam down Broadway to Main street and then out Adams street to the open sea by the Palms, finally reaching the shores of Venice and Ocean Park, the first anchorage being at Pier avenue in the latter port where another "ship of the line" will be added to the squadron.

The rear of the squadron will be the Steamer "Vandergrift," in charge of Chief Mechanic Witterauer, and is the repair ship but will also carry passengers, guests of the "White Squadron."

From the Ocean Park anchorage the entire squadron will steam at uniform speed to Port Los Angeles (Santa Monica canyon) and anchor there a while before cruising up the coast to the harbor of Topanga. Here mess will be served.

The afternoon voyage of the White Squadron will be through the Straights of Topanga to the port of Calabasas thence along the shores of the San Fernando to Toluca and Hollywood.

Rear Admiral F. C. Fenner, who is also Colonel Fenner of the White Garage during the week, will be on the bridge of the "Black Bess," his good ship, which has already some 58,000 miles of voyage to its credit. His chief flag officer, Charles Fuller Gates, will also be on the flagship.

Captain H. M. Fuller will be in charge of White Steamer "San Diego," which gets its name from breaking the round trip record to San Diego recently.

Captain Jack Heyser is the commander of the "Nevada," a steamer of the first class, carrying big guns of the local press.

One of the seasoned battleships is the "Canejo," commanded by Dr. Hilliker, otherwist Admiral in command of the third division. While showing some of its well earned battle scars the Canejo is a brave craft.

Others steamers in the squadron are those of Captains, H. E. Bixby, George B. Upp, F. A. Marcher, Thos. W. Roulp.

The first-class steamer, "Arizona," under command of Vice-Admiral John Brockman, heads a division of fine auxiliary steamers built for pleasure as well as work.

Erwin Knappe, Motorcycle Rider, who is to meet Raymond Seymour on the saucer track at Seal Gardens today.

GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW.

There is a happy smile on the face of Roy Forsyth. He holds the banner for sales to date. Here they are: H. C. Bingham, an Auburn touring car; D. J. Craig, an Auburn touring car; E. R. Osborne, a touring car; John D. Frink of Redlands, an Auburn touring car, and J. J. Houser, a touring car. Thomas O. Fewell bought an Auburn roadster.

George Bill and wife, and Mrs. John T. Bill, are in the San Gabriel Cañon for a ten days' vacation., George expects to kill a deer while he is away. John T. Bill will join the party in about a week.

Joseph Tansy, general representative of the Michelin Tire Company, left Los Angeles Friday, after a brief visit.

J. N. Edge, representing the Eldridge Instrument Company of Springfield, Mass., is in the city, visiting the auto supply men.

Therion R. Palmer, manager of the Continental Rubber Company of Erie, Pa., made a flying trip to this city on Friday. He remained here only a few hours.

The Western Motor Car Company received a shipment of Stevens touring cars and Buick runabouts last week.

R. L. Forsyth will drive his Auburn to San Diego Monday. He will return later in the week.

A. R. Davis made a trip around the "Kite" last week in an Auburn touring car. Mr. Davis is looking after the out-of-town business for the Central Motor Car Company and has placed numerous agencies.

H. O. Harrison announced yesterday that the 1909 Peerless demonstrator would leave the factory for Los Angeles July 25, and would be here in August. Standard Peerless features will be retained in the new model, with only slight changes. Mr. Harrison saw the new car while East and says he is greatly pleased with it.

Ralph C. Hamlin reports the sale during the past week of Franklin runabouts to W. S. McCay and Dr. E. M. Fly of San Diego.

The John T. Bill Company have received mail orders for motorcycles from Williams, Ariz., and from Phoenix, Ariz. Reading-Standard and Royal motorcycles have been sold in the Arizona towns. There is a constantly increasing demand for the bikes, says Mr. Bill.

George Thompson, formerly connected with the San Francisco branch of the Fisk Tire Company, has resigned his position of manager and has become assistant general manager of the Michelin Tire Company. He was in Los Angeles Friday and has gone to San Francisco.

The A. W. Gump Automobile Company have just received a carload of Jackson roadsters.

A.C.A. IS SUPREME.

Recognition by Dieppe Congress Is Followed by Statement of Rights and Reasons.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In view of the recent action of the International Association of Recognized Automobile Clubs at Dieppe, July 6, in which the position of the Automobile Club of America, as the representative body in this country, was sustained, the Automobile Club of America has issued a detailed statement of its rights to represent American autoists in international affairs.

In connection with this statement, it also states its reason for the organization of the grand prize race, to be run at Savannah, Ga., on next Thanksgiving Day. This race, it is mentioned, would not have been organized if the American Automobile Association had made the rules for the Vanderbilt cup event accord with the international code of racing rules.

SEASIDE TALES.

CATALINA GIRLS LOVE THE SEA.

MORNING PLUNGE IN BAY ONE OF KEEN PLEASURE.

Summer Water Nymphs Are Excellent Divers and Swimmers and Pass Many Hours of the Day in the Water—Youngsters of Avalon Make Business of Coin Diving.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

AVALON, July 11.—The cold plunge's the thing! Every morning now about 6 o'clock a band of maidens, clad in bathing suits, wend their way to the beach and, amid the shivering shrieks of "Oh—Ah—Wow—but isn't it cold?" plunge into the arms of old ocean for a morning bath. A few strong, swift strokes and the pretty swimmers forget all about the sunrise chill of the waters and by the time they have reached the first raft are warm as toast.

There are any number of pretty girl swimmers on the island. Miss Howard Mathews, a charming, Titian-haired Southern girl, who learned to swim when she was four years old, and who can dive like a fish, is one of the most graceful aquatic athletes here. From her childhood Miss Mathews has passed her summers at Atlantic resorts, running the gauntlet from Old Point Comfort to the Maine coast, and she is as much at home in the water as in pacing the board walk.

The Misses Coatsworth are two charming and expert water nymphs. Before coming to Pasadena to reside a year ago, they lived in Buffalo, N. Y., and every summer passed the hot season at their summer home at Bay City, a pretty resort on Lake Erie, near Crystal Beach. It was there they learned to swim and dive like veritable fish. Miss Elizabeth easily swims to the big raft and her sister Margaret frequently bears her company.

Miss Helen Goodall, the bright young daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Goodall of Oakland, is another expert human fish. The Goodalls have been coming to Catalina every summer since Miss Helen was four years old and she is as much at home in the water as in her own bed, swimming, diving, floating like a veritable mermaid. Frequently seen with her in the water are the two young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Doran of Los Angeles, Misses Margaret and Gertrude, who have been coming to Catalina every season since they were babies. With them this year are their San Francisco cousins, the Misses Alberta and Anna Sutton, who are both great water lovers. These five young girls form a happy coterie every fine morning, leaping and splashing in the sea.

The pleasure pier next the Tuna Clubhouse is being put in shape and there is talk of anchoring a large lighter near by for the convenience of bathers who prefer that end of the beach to the sandy shore near the bath house on the other side of the big wharf..

The divers who, the moment the steamers approaches the wharf at Avalon beseech the passengers to toss out their nickles and dimes and watch them dive for the coins, are the feature of Catalina life. Probably there are a dozen or more of these young fellows, with smooth, bare arms and legs, which shine like polished mahogany as they splash into the water intent on seizing the silver before it touches the bottom. Some of them fish up several dollars a day and find it a very profitable employment.

The smallest of them is popular little Pete Adarga—a native born Catalinan. Pete is just nine years old and he has six brothers and sisters, his oldest sister bearing the name Catalina. Pete is a perfect picture of an ideal fisher boy.

Last season Pete fished up $27 in nickels and dimes—"Enough to pay for my shoes and clothes and school books," he proudly tells you, for Pete is a scholar as well as a water sprite. He's in the third grade of the Avalon public school and very proud of the fact. When the steamer is sighted Pete climbs into a skiff and prepares for action. Owing to his small size, Pete is not allowed to venture out as far as the adult divers but contents himself with closer-in dives.

MONEY JINGLE IN AUTO WORLD.

H. O. Harrison Paints Roseate Trade Picture.

Business Conditions in East Better Than Ever.

Angeleno Declares We Are to Get Our Share.

"Conditions which prevail today in the automobile world prove conclusively that we are about to enjoy an era of the greatest prosperity in business lines. Buyers are anxious, the eastern market is feeling the impetus of the new trade life, and the West is to get its share of this great increase in business."

This is the cheering statement of H. O. Harrison, who has just returned from a five weeks' journey through the large cities and the automobile factories of the East. Mr. Harrison is a conservative judge, and went East for the purpose of viewing the situation carefully. He declares he was agreeably surprised to note the increased interest both of the manufacturers and the buyers.

After leaving Los Angeles, Harrison went to San Francisco, where he found conditions much the same as in Los Angeles. He was not encouraged, he says as things are somewhat dead in the city by the Golden Gate. He found the same complaints among the dealers there that is heard in Los Angeles. At Portland business conditions were not much improved, and the dealers were complaining. The road race there had stirred things somewhat, but they are not what they should be, says Mr. Harrison. He found Spokane and Seattle in the same condition.

From the Coast he journeyed to Milwaukee, and here he was struck at once with the change. The first thing he noticed was the increased activity along all lines. The dealers met him with a smile, he says, and spoke encouragingly of what they are doing, and of their plans for the future. They were making sales every day. Dull times had passed.

"There were more purchasers in the field in Milwaukee I was told," said Mr. Harrison, "than ever before in the history of the game. The dealers there declared a new era of business activity had dawned. They were not only enthusiastic but jubilant over the prospects for business.

"This spirit of jubilancy seemed to permeate the entire Middle West. Wherever I went there was no complaint. I noted particularly the difference from what I had found on the Pacific Coast. One enthusiastic individual, when I told him of the contrast, remarked:

"'Never mind, you just wait, you fellows will get yours. This is going to be the greatest automobile year ever.'

"With the slogan of good times ringing in my ears I went on to Chicago and here again I found a lot of enthusiastic boosters. Money was plentiful and the automobile men were handling a lot of it. There was something doing on automobile row every minute and the dealers were busy all the time.

"One thing that I remarked in Chicago, and in other of the large cities, is that the auto business is not conducted in the downtown center, but outside of the heart of the city. The auto men are clannish and have a little automobile world of their own, where their customers come to them, and where they transact their business. This is particularly marked in Chicago.

"When I reached Lansing, Mich., I found that I had not been misled when told that trade conditions were becoming better than ever. After spending two days at the Oldsmobile factory, and seeing them swamped with orders they cannot fill, I was willing to admit that the automobile industry is one of the greatest in this country, and is going to be greater.

"With the manager I inspected the great plant, where I found 6000 men working day and night, in three shifts of 2000 each, to get out the orders which have piled up during the last sixty days. There in that factory, where I could walk for five miles under roofs where nothing but Oldsmobiles were made, I found a city of men working away to supply the trade. They told me it will be impossible to supply the demand. They proved to me how far they are behind their orders. Then I realized how hard it had been for me to get cars.

"When the output was cut from 1400 cars a year, to 800, because of the dull times in September last, the trade conditions reversed themselves so quickly that with the end of this month the factory will have put out 1200 cars.

"After visiting Detroit, that greatest automobile center, where so many cars are built, I went to Cleveland, and visited the Peerless factory. They are cleaned out of 1908 cars. They have not had one machine in the place since May 19, with the exception of the three which are now on the Glidden tour. These three cars, finished in red, white and blue, were kept purposely for the great tour.

"If I was required to give a resumé of conditions in the East, it would be the most encouraging report that I had ever given. I could truthfully say that the prospects are brighter now than they have ever been before.

"There are cities where the high-priced cars seem to sell exclusively, then there are other places where the low-priced cars find a ready market. In all the eastern cities the sale of cars goes on steadily.

"What would we think here of having our places swamped with prospective buyers, with having scores of people anxious to know all about the different makes of cars, with hundreds of inquiries a day, and with a thousand other queries pouring in? All these things obtain in the East at the present.

"Though conditions there are so much better than here, I think I can see quite clearly where we are going to get a large slice of this prosperity. This same increase in business is to strike up with an even steadier up growth. Let the two hottest summer months pass, and we will have conditions here which now prevail in the East. It behooves the dealers to plan to receive their shipments early in order to be ready for the rush."

NEWS OF LIVE MOTOR CLUBS.

The Niagara Falls Automobile Club has begun a movement to enforce the State law prescribing the use of wide tires on horse-drawn vehicles.

The New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club has erected a garage at the rear of the organization's new headquarters in Newark, into which the club has just moved. The garage is to be used exclusively by members of the club yhen they are visiting the clubhouse and no cars are to be stored there permanently.

When asked by members to take steps to curb the oppressive aggressions of the police, officers of the Montclair (N. J.) Automobile Club advised them to keep within the law. Whenever there is a clear case of oppression, however, the members were told that the organization would back them in the courts.

President Frank B. Hower's Automobile Club of Buffalo made another new record on its recent orphans' day, when 1577 children were taken out riding in 227 cars. It was the fourth annual celebration of the Buffalo motoring organization, and the members of the club are declaring without much danger of successful contradiction that they cared for more children that day than any other club ever did before.

Officers of the Automobile Association of Great Britain have appointed a committee to devise ways of stopping reckless driving. When automobile association members still persist in driving recklessly, after having been warned, they will be requested to resign from the organization. Automobilists who are not members of the A.A. also will be warned when they drive recklessly. Those who are members of clubs or societies will be reported to their organizations, and those who are unattached will be reported to the police.

The authorities of Middleboro, Mass., have reached at least a temporary solution of the speed problem. When strangers in motor cars arrive at the town limits they are confronted by large signs which convey the information that twelve miles an hour is the legal speed maximum; but instead of coupling this with a threat of fine or imprisonment, the legend goes on to say: "We give you a square deal. Give us one." And it is signed by the name of the Middleboro Automobile Club, whose members prevailed on the local officials to permit them to use this method of appealing to the sense of fair play on the part of motorists.

The budget commission of the German government has decided to report favorably on a bill to authorize a fund of about $500,000 to provide for the organization of an automobile transport corps for the army.

Daytona, Fla., which possesses the famous racing beach, is one of the greatest automobile towns for its size in the world, possessing 400 machines, 150 of which are owned by residents and 250 on an average by northern visitors.

Although England has made some experiments with automobile barges on her northern canals, the honor appears to belong to France of first seeking to supplant the leisurely horse from the towpath of the inland waterways. The first tractor of this kind is employed on the Bourgogne canal connecting the River Seine with the Saone and thus linking up the channel port of Havre with the Mediterranean naval station of Marseilles.

clinched affairs. With one down, Brashear singled and Smith was safe when they tried to get Brash at second. Ellis walked and Brashear scored on Delmas's long fly to center.

Hogan's two bagger scored two more and Hosp finally sent Hogan around the circuit.

There were three more Angel runs in the ninth when Jimmy Smith dropped an easy fly. Oakland picked up a couple of runs in the last of the ninth but they were too far outdistanced for the feat to raise a cheer. Certainly, they played a poor game. The score:

GOES ELEVEN INNINGS.

ERRORS FIGURE IN SCORE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Portland took today's game in eleven innings, the score being 5 to 4. After Groom was chief donor in a gift party in the ninth, Berry and Williams refused to be outdone in generosity, and contributed a couple of errors that gave McCredie a chance to register the needed run.

Groom's willingness in the ninth inning was damaging. He handed out four wide ones to Berry with the sacks full and the score 4 to 3. Hildebrand came home, making the number of runs even.

Mohler protested the game in the seventh inning because he claimed Casey had interfered with him in fielding a batted ball. Mohler comes in for a roast locally for his kick, as the bunch in the press box say Mohler quit cold when Cooney's bounder took an off-side shoot and he saw he could get neither Bassey nor McCredie at the plate.

Bassey pulled off a fluke home run in the second. He hammered the ball against the left garden wall, and it settled between the two fences. The clout was good for two bases any time, and as McCredie leaned against the next ball pitched, the run would have counted, in any event.

In the fourth, Groom walked Curtis. McArdle was an easy out, but Lalonge shot one to second, and Curtis went to third on Casey's bad heave. Salisbury was passed by Groom, and Mohler's single chased two runs home. Groom messed up Hildebrand's bunt, and again filled the sacks. Zeider hit a sharp one to Groom, and a fast double, Groom to Whaling to Johnson, retired the side. Melchior scored in the fifth on a double steal when Whaling fumbled Cooney's return to the plate. Johnson slammed one for three cushions in the sixth, and raced home on Raftery's hit.

In the seventh the home team got busy and took the lead. Bassey and McCredie came home, and then Mohler protested that Casey had interfered in the fielding of a ball. O'Connell did not agree with him.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

SIXTEEN-INNING CONTEST.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—The Chicago Americans today played their second sixteen-inning game in successive days, winning, 5 to 4. Jones scored the deciding run on his two-bagger, Vickers's failure to cover first base on Isbell's grounder and Dougherty's sacrifice fly. It had been intended to play a double-header, but only one game was attempted. Vickers and Walsh had superb control. Score:

Chicago, 5; hits, 11; errors, 0.
Philadelphia, 4; hits, 15; errors, 2.
Batteries—Walsh and Sullivan; Vickers and Schreck.

DONOVAN HARD HIT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BOSTON, July 11.—Donovan was batted hard by the locals today and Boston won the first game of the series handily. Burchell's pitching and a catch by Thoney were features. Score:

Boston, 7; hits, 13; errors, 2.
Detroit, 3; hits, 4; errors, 2.
Batteries—Burchell and Criger; Donovan and Payne, Schmidt.

HUGHES IS PUZZLE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Washington batted Dineen out of the box in the third inning and defeated St. Louis. Bailey was effective. Hughes was a puzzle. Score:

Washington, 4; hits, 6; errors, 2.
St. Louis, 2; hits, 5; errors, 0.
Batteries—Hughes and Warner; Dineen, Bailey and Spencer.

YANKEES WAKE UP.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—New York won both games of a double-header from Cleveland today. Scores.

First game:
Cleveland, 2; hits, 2; errors, 2.
New York, 3; hits, 7; errors, 1.
Batteries—Liebhardt and Bemis; Hogg and Sweeney.
Second game:
Cleveland, 2; hits, 7; errors, 3.
New York, 3; hits, 6; errors, 3.
Batteries—Berger and Clarke; Lake and Kleinow.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

PHILLIES POUND REULBACH.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, July 11.—Philadelphia pounded Reulbach for two triples and two singles in the second inning and on four bunched hits in the third. Score:

Chicago, 2; hits, 11; errors, 0.
Philadelphia, 6; hits, 12; errors, 0.
Batteries—Reulbach, Overall, Lundgren and Moran; McQuillen, Dooin and Jacklitsch.

PIRATES WIN EASILY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PITTSBURGH, July 11.—Pittsburgh won easily from New York. Score:

Pittsburgh, 6; hits, 8; errors, 0.
New York, 2; hits, 1; errors, 1.
Batteries—Willis and Gibson; Taylor and Bresnahan.
Umpires—Klem and O'Day.

REDS TAKE CLOSE ONE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CINCINNATI, July 11.—Spade was hit hard and gave six bases on balls, but good support kept down the visitors' runs. Score:

Cincinnati, 3; hits, 6; errors, 0.
Boston, 2; hits, 9; errors, 2.
Batteries—Spade and Schlei; Lindaman and Smith.

WILHELM BEATS BUGS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ST. LOUIS, July 11.—Brooklyn made it two straight shut-outs over St. Louis today. Raymond and Wilhelm seemed about even in pitching. Score:

St. Louis, 0; hits, 4; errors, 0.
Brooklyn, 1; hits, 6; errors, 2.
Batteries—Raymond and Ludwig; Wilhelm and Bergen.
Umpire—Rigler.

LEAGUE MEETING.

TO GRANT FRANCHISE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Pres. J. Cal Ewing of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, has called a special meeting of the directors to be held in San Francisco next Wednesday evening, at which time it is announced that applications for franchises from Southern California and from Sacramento will be considered and awarded.

Henry Berry brought the news of an application from the Southern California Athletic Association for a franchise either in Venice or Ocean Park, but he refused to divulge the names of the interested parties. "They don't care to be known in the matter just at present," said Berry, "but they are business men and have ample backing."

Ed. Kripps, of course, is the applicant from Sacramento. These clubs want to be assured of franchises in 1909 before they spend money, which is the reason for the special session.

An impromptu baseball field day was held before the Saturday afternoon game started, with various members of the Oakland and Los Angeles teams as the contestants. The Oakland boys carried off all the honors of the afternoon, winning every event that took place.

W. Hogan, Oakland first baseman, was easily the crack sprinter. Van Haltren the most accurate thrower, and Cook the best on long distance work. Results were as follows:

Fifty-yard dash—Won by W. Hogan of Oakland; Heitmuller of Oakland, second; time, 5 3-4 sec. Hale, Altman, Ellis and Oakes also participated.

The seventy-five yard dash—Won by W. Hogan of Oakland, Heitmuller second, Oakes third; time, 7 1-4 sec.

Accuracy throwing at a mark—Won by George Van Haltren, Oakland; George Wheeler, Los Angeles, second.

Long distance throwing—Won by Jimmy Cook of Oakland, distance 343 feet, 7 inches; W. Hogan, Oakland, second, 3458 feet, 2 inches. Danzig's record last week was 238 feet.

BIG FIELD MEET.

GAME AT CHUTES PARK.

A large number of players for the baseball field meet to be held at Chutes Park this afternoon, and an excellent programme is assured. The contests will mark the first big attraction of its kind presented on the Coast, and the interest which local ball players have shown in the various events gives promise of several exciting contests.

The card includes fungo batting, throwing for distance, throwing to bases, throwing to plate, sprinting to first, running the bases, relaying the ball around the diamond by infields of playing teams, sliding for distance.

The events will begin at 1:30 o'clock. Baseball writers will be appointed officials, and the meet will be run off under strictly amateur rules so that competing players may have no fear of losing their amateur standing.

Records will be noted of the winners in the different events and will be open to challengers in succeeding programmes to be given at regular intervals.

The Edisons and Salt Lakes will cross bats in a regular contest of the California League game directly following the meet, and the wrestling bouts will be given in the Chutes Theater after the baseball game.

Amateur Game.

The baseball team of Pease Bros. defeated the Stockwell-Haley nine at Praeger Park yesterday afternoon by the score of 11 to 7. Colby and Rosshard of the winning aggregation each circled the diamond for home runs.

CALIFORNIA LEAGUE.

TWO GAMES AND FIELD MEET.

Two games will be played in the California League today, both contests to be given in the city. The Athletics of Boyle Heights, the latest acquisition to the league catalogue, will play the Hoegees in their first game at the Boyle Heights Athletic Park, while the Edisons and Salt Lakes will cross bats at Chutes Park.

The latter contest will be preceded by the first real baseball field meet ever presented in the State, and a score of entries already received for the various events insures a programme of unique interest.

BUY THE BEST

ELMORE Valveless Two Cycle

Don't be deceived by the way advertisements read. A good car cannot be built in one year or even two. You know that it has taken years to perfect the best cars. Our cars have been built along the same lines for eight years; no radical changes. Today it stands perfected—a tried car, one that has proven itself reliable. Why buy a car because its cost is cheap and then spend the difference between the really good car and the cheap one experimenting, just to try a manufacture.

Our 1908 allotment is sold. 1909 deliveries will be early some time. Investigate this valveless, two-cycle Elmore, the car that is talked of in the auto world today.

Buy an Oldsmobile!

WHEN you know a car is a good car, with its reputation for roadability and reliability firmly established there is no reason for delay in making a purchase. The Oldsmobile is a car with a pedigree.

THE CAR OF THE YEAR

Roadability

The OLDSMOBILE is the car in which boulevard appearance has been coupled with roadability. The OLDSMOBILE is made to travel all roads with all comers and the car purchased today will be covering these roads just as well a year from today as when taken out of the salesroom.

In a series of the severest tests in the history of the motor car the OLDSMOBILE has demonstrated its roadability and dependability to the motoring public of the world.

Hundreds of victories have been scored by OLDSMOBILES during the past year. In Southern California an OLDSMOBILE won the Altadena hill climb, scored decisively in the race from Los Angeles to San Francisco and now holds the Fresno and Santa Barbara road records.

Style and Comfort

The Model M OLDSMOBILE is not only a powerful machine, capable of defeating any car in contests of all kinds, but it is an ideal family car, combining comfort and style with speed and power.

Close attention to finish and small details, as well as to the mechanical construction of a machine distinguishes the OLDSMOBILE from the inferior grade of cars.

No automobile made surpasses the OLDSMOBILE in richness and elegance. It is one car that can be truly called "the clean car," every precaution having been taken to prevent the occupant coming in contact with grease or oil.

The car is large and roomy and rides like a drifting cloud. The ease of operation makes driving a pleasure in the OLDSMOBILE.

The Oldsmobile Model M, at $2900, F. O. B., Los Angeles, is the Logical Car at the Logical Price. The Lowest Price at Which a Strictly High-Grade Car, Embodying Style, Comfort and Roadability Can Be Made.

MAYOR CATCHES CREEL OF BASS.

Vies With Jeffries in Landing Finest Fish.

Party Visits the Matthewson Ranch in Auto.

Beach Fishing Proves Better in Warm Weather.

A fine string of bass was caught by Jeffries, Mayor Harper and party, including John Cline, Bill Stebbins, Bronson, H. B. Woodill and Cline, in the artificial lake on the Matthewson ranch above Calabasas recently.

Twenty-eight bass were taken from the lake in about six hours' fishing, the fish being of good size. The party went to the mountain lake in an automobile, stopping on the way at Bill Stebbins's ranch, and put in the greater part of the early morning and afternoon in casting for fish.

The lake was artificially filled in at an expense of $100,000 several years ago and well stocked with bass three years back, so the fish have had plenty of time in which to multiply, with the result that excellent sport rewards the anglers for their long jaunt. At present the warm weather has caused the bass to bite less freely, as heat becomes intense at times in the enclosed mountain recesses.

Beach fishing and shore angling has improved slightly the past week, although the high tides and swift currents greatly interfere with the feeding habits of the fish, and good sport is not always dependable at many of the resorts.

Trolling is beginning to be productive of the usual July run of results, and at present the best fishing is to be found outside in the kelp beds and out there a few miles, where yellowtail, albacore and bonita have been seen breaking frequently. The warm weather has sent the yellowtail closer to shore, and occasional barracuda have also been reported at Redondo and west-coast piers.

OFF POINT VINCENT.

From Point Firmin north to Point Vincent yellowtail have been noticed in numbers by sailors of the incoming coastwise schooners, while south of Newport to Arch beach bass have been breaking in tempting play. Trollers are planning to avail themselves of the prospective sport and several boatloads of local anglers will drag their spoons through the rolling swells of the fishing banks. A visiting party of sportsmen from Nevada and Arizona, guests of the Cainezona Club, will try their luck off Point Firmin today, and Newport fishermen are expecting to pass the day on the banks.

Pompano and sea trout were caught in numbers at Del Rey and Ocean Park the latter part of the week, and smelt have also been running strong in the principal western waters.

O. Stephens, P. Stephens, E. and C. Lidell were members of a midweek party who cast their lines off Ocean Park when the croakers were plentiful, and fourteen fish, ranging from eight to twelve inches in length, were caught within an hour and a half. A few sea trout were also taken.

H. M. Bruce and W. Wallace fished all night Wednesday from wharf No. 3 at Redondo, and proffered the remark that others were catching sea trout and herring, but returned themselves with an empty basket.

J. C. Hill left yesterday afternoon for Escondido, where he will join his family, and pass a fortnight fishing for bass, and will later try the beach fishing at Oceanside, where the small fry have been reported as biting unusually well.

Midweekers at Long Beach and Craig's, down Terminal way, were rewarded for their faithful patience with fair-sized catches of pompano, and jack smelt and surf were also hooked during the evening. With the moon nearly full, and the evening tides rising, many fishermen will try their favorite resorts today.

Last Thursday quite a number of Angeleños went to Sunset Beach, and each caught a good string of surf. Sebastian Simmons, a Sunset fisherman, caught forty-two, a number weighing six and seven pounds.

Balbao rodsters enjoyed fine catches of rock bass at the Rocky Point pier last Sunday, and surf and yellowfin were freely taken by beach casters and pier anglers. Charles Lippincott of Hollywood daily connected with a good string of surf.

Croakers of two to four-pound size and a few bass were pulled in by bay fishers. Perch have appeared in large numbers, M. L. Bailey bringing in some good strings the first of the week.

Charles Luckenback was rewarded with a full basket of bass and yellowfin—one five-pounder.

W. H. Holland has been fishing with good results. H. A. Foreman has some fine croakers to his credit, fishing off the floats at the pavilion.

G. O. Wells landed a good creel of yellowfin.

Several oil sharks were landed, one of them, a four-foot fish, showed plenty of fight.

Quite a number of jack smelt were gotten during the week.

Halibut were caught Wednesday near Old Newport Landing (Port Orange,) but were small.

Several Pasadenans have some good catches of surf to their credit.

On the outside good hauls of sea bass and barracuda have been made. A. Sappora, I. Stauss and R. Shafer report good sport with the big fellows.

At Newport sportsmen have brought in aplenty of king fish all the week. Halibut are being caught, but are not numerous.

qualify after their past practice records partially to the circumstance that they were rgidly held in this competition to the conditions provided in the order of the War Department of last February, under which the national matches at Camp Perry will be conducted, while they may have been more or less easy in their previous contests and practice. The rigid rulings of Col. Schreiber as range officer are commended, not only on their merits, but for the reason that the men who qualify under them have nothing to fear in the conditions of the State contest or at Camp Perry.

Demmitt was the loser of nine points by reason of firing at the wrong target twice. This circumstance decided against him the friendly rivalry with Sellinger for first place.

Yesterday's weather conditions were more favorable than those of Friday, though for a part of the forenoon, a wind, which varied from 8 to 10 o'clock, kept the men guessing. The heat was less, and events proved faster, the round being finished at 3 o'clock.

Col. Schreiber briefly addressed the men, cautioning them to hold themselves in future practice strictly to time limits and other rules, and after inviting them to attend the battalion school at the armory in the evening, where Adjt.-Gen. Lauck was to deliever an address upon the duties of a soldier, ordered camp struck. Officers and men turned to and accomplished the task in half an hour, and this year's regimental shoot had gone into the history of the organization.

Among the spectators were Adjt.-Gen. Lauck and Brig.-Gen. Wankowski.

The score of the second round, with grand totals for the two rounds, was as follows:

OLDEST SHOOTER.

JACOBY AT SCHUETZEN PARK.

Philo Jacoby of San Francisco, probably the oldest expert rifle shooter of the country, and the only living member of the famous California rifle team that won the national centennial shoot in 1877, arrived in the city yesterday and will be the guest of the Turners' Rifle Bund, in a special shoot to be given this afternoon at Schuetzen Park.

Jacoby made the highest individual score in the famous centennial gunners' celebration, and led the Golden State contingent in capturing the team honors for the State. The Turners are at present holding but one monthly shoot, with practice tryouts twice a month.

Shoot at Redondo.

The Southern California Rifles will practice at the Redondo range today, using three ranges, 200, 300 and 600 yards. T. J. Weddington will act as range officer and will have complete charge of the shooting. E. D. Neff will act as officer of the day.

COMBINED GAMES OF CHESS AND CHECKERS STARTED.

Pelouze and Richardson Engage in Interesting Contest Which May Establish Precedent in Court Street Chess and Checker Club—World's Championship Match.

Two informal matches played recently at the Court Street Chess and Checker Club give promise of inaugurating a new style of contests—combined chess and checker matches.

The two matches were between F. Pelouze and C. E. Richardson, in each of which five games of chess and five of checkers were played, the winner of the largest total to be declared winner of the match. In both matches Richardson proved superior at checkers, but lost out at chess, both results being close.

In the first match the scores were: Pelouze, checkers, 2; chess, 4; total, 6; Richardson, checkers, 3; chess, 1; total, 4. In the second, played a few days later, three games of chess were drawn, and the won games stood as follows: Pelouze, checkers, 2; chess, 2; total, 4; Richardson, checkers, 3; chess, 0; total, 3. Mr. Pelouze formerly was a member of the Chicago Chess Club, and Mr. Richardson is from Sacramento.

Negotiations are pending for a series of games between George Hallwegan, winner of the match with Aitch a few weeks ago, and Jones, a strong visiting player. Such a contest would prove of much interest in the local clubs.

Some journals speak with confidence of the "coming match for the world's championship." Chess men hope that the conditions prescribed in the tentative agreement signed by Lasker will be met, and that the match may begin on August 15. The wager is to be $2000 a side, with a compensation of $125 for the winner of each game. Lasker thinks Tarrasch may waive his claim for such compensation, in return for the match being played in Germany, as desired by the latter.

NOTES BY J. D. SEGUIN.

(a) In a game against Tarrasch, some years ago, Schlechter here varied with 9...Kt—QR4, the continuation being: 10 B—B2, P—QB4; 11 P—Q4, Kt—B3; 12 QKT—Q2, R—K; 13 Kt—B, P—KR3; 14 B—K3, B—B; 15 Kt—Kt3, K—B2, with a better game, we think, than that attained in the text.

(b) 15 QxP, instead, would not have avoided the isolated RP, and would have been otherwise inferior; for then 15...Q—Q2; 16 P—QR3, P—QR4! menacing P—Kt5! etc.

(c) 18...QP—Kt, instead, would have tended to strengthen the adverse center in a position in which white already has the superiority.

(d) An ill-timed advance, 22 RxR was an essential preliminary. If then 22...PxR; 23 B—B4! threatening 24 P—K6, with a promising attack.

(e) By which the positorial advantage shifts to Black, who now menaces at the first opportune moment a telling advance of QRP and QKtP.

(f) Feeble in itself, and finely turned to account by Black. 25 Q—KB5, and if 25...R—KB; 26 Q—Kt4, intending 27 B—B4! etc., would at least have lessened the coming dangers.

(g) The winning coup, though somewhat reconditely so.

(h) A miscalculation that merely speeds the loss of the game, but he has no saving move. 27 R—R5 is unavailing, because then 27...P—KKt3; 28 R—R6, Q—K2; 29 Q—Kt4, R—K! and wins the adverse KP and the game as a little examination will show that White has no drawing resource in 30 RxKtPch, etc. Nor would 27 R—B5 do, for Black answers—not with 27...BxPch, which would lose by 28 PxB, RxR; 29 P—K7!—but simply with 27...R—K; 28 B—B4, RxP; 29 BxQ, RxQ; 30 RxP, RxRP, etc.

NOT IN THE TRUST.

PLAYERS SHANGHAIED BY OUTLAW LEAGUE.

CALIFORNIA harbors one of the few so-called "outlaw" baseball leagues, and the organization, known as the California State League, contains some of the best players in the country, men who made reputations in the big leagues and in minor aggregations, especially the Pacific Coast League.

The term "outlaw" is applied by "organized" baseball interests, and the fans who attend the big league games, but the only crime usually committed by these leagues is the theft of players in causing them to jump contracts by the offer of more money, which is heartily reciprocated by managers of organized baseball, whenever an opportunity offers to snatch up a good man.

The biggest trust in the country, in everything but actual money valuations, is organized baseball, but because of its public character, the abuses are minimized, and as a general rule players and public are satisfied.

The greatest fault displayed by the baseball trust is its spleen against those who desire to conduct independent professional baseball. Some of this is justified, when the independents seek to cause players to "jump." Otherwise it is pure selfishness in the desire to grab all the profits to be made out of the game. The real remedy is to make contracts legally ironclad, so that if a player jumps, he may be brought back to fulfill his contract. As it is, a player is blacklisted, or prevented from playing organized baseball, instead of being compelled by law to play with the club with which he has contracted to serve for a stipulated amount.

More than a score of Coast League players are with the outlaw State League in California, while many stars of the big leagues also are playing in its ranks. In most cases the managers have selected men who have but a few more years' service in them, and these men likely will stick, and it would not pay the big leagues to outbid for their contracts.

Foremost among the stars are Elmer Stricklett, captain and pitcher for San José, who for years pitched for the Brooklyn National League Club; and Joe Nealon, first baseman for Sacramento, who held down the initial sack for the Pittsburgh National League Club. These men still have long service before them, but believe they can pass their days on the Coast near home and make as much money as in the big leagues.

Other former big leaguers are Fred Raymer, formerly of Boston, and the Tri-State League, now second baseman for Sacramento; Roscoe Miller, formerly with the New York Americans, and afterward of several minor leagues—lately of the Coast League, and now of Fresno; Harry Wolter, last year of Pittsburgh and St. Louis, now pitcher and outfielder for San José; Jimmy Whalen, tried out by the New York Americans and afterward sent to Montreal of the Eastern League; and several others.

Among the former Coast Leaguers are Mott, second baseman for Fresno, who formerly played third for Portland; Kennedy, first baseman for Fresno, formerly of Portland; Phil Knell, an old timer who is captain and second baseman for the San Francisco team; "Spider" Baum, who used to pitch for Los Angeles and then went to the Pennsylvania outlaws and now is pitcher and manager for Fresno; Fay Streib, shortstop for San José, formerly of San Francisco and Oakland; Bobby Eager, catcher for San José, formerly of Los Angeles; Pitcher Schimpff of Santa Cruz, formerly of Portland; "Brick" Devereaux, formerly of Oakland and now third sacker for Santa Cruz; "Bull" Croll, left fielder for Fresno, formerly of Portland; Jimmy Byrnes, catcher for Sacramento, formerly of Oakland and Portland; Lou Schwartz, shortstop for the Oakland outlaws, formerly of Portland and the Southern and Eastern Leagues; Happy Harry Smith, right fielder for San José, formerly of Oakland and many others.

The California outlaws have the advantage of small expense in railroad fares and relatively can pay good salaries. Santa Cruz, recently showed inability to pay expenses, but arrangements have been made to run to the end of the season. Otherwise the league affairs seem to be in fair condition.

It usually has been the experience of the outlaw leagues to become defunct in one or two seasons or less, usually because the big league raids are costly and because they have rather poor territory to work in. The strongest organization since the institution of the American League to fight the old Nationals was the Tri-State League in Pennsylvania, which last year joined the trust. The Atlantic League is flourishing, but recently the new Union League organized this spring went out of existence.

Probabilities are that the State League will retain its identity chiefly because of winter ball and the equitable climate of California where players like to make their home.

TURNVEREIN ASSEMBLES.

Forty Thousand Gymnasts at Frankfort to Take Part in Great Tournament.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, July 11.—Four hundred German-American gymnasts, accompanied by a large number of relatives and friends, arrived here today to take part in the international gymnastic tournament and festivities that opened here today and lasts until July 22.

No less than 40,000 gymnasts are to take part in these contests for which a large number of prizes have been offered. The preliminary festivities and the Gala Banquet are to be held today. Tomorrow there will be a procession through the city. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week there will be a series of gymnastic exhibitions, while the tournament proper will be held on July [illegible] 21 and 22. At the conclusion of the tournament there will be a number of celebrations and excursions to points of interest.

There was an accident to an electric car here today in which Ross [illegible] of Chicago, one of the visitors, sustained serious injuries on the [illegible]. Several other passengers, all local residents, were slightly hurt.

RACING AT PIZMO BEACH.

Low Tide a Week from Today [illegible] Bare Ocean Sands for Speedy Cars.

Pizmo Beach will have races on the low tide of July 19 and two cars are already at the beach tuning up. The beach is 220 miles north of Los Angeles by the coast road and about the same distance from the San Francisco Bay country. In August the San Francisco dealers hold their [illegible] run and have arranged to stop at Pizmo and run some races there at that time.

Next Sunday's races will be against time and President Wadsworth of the beach company says that he expects several fast cars from San Francisco to take part, including the White steamer that has won victories at Fresno, San Francisco, Santa [illegible] and Sacramento. Al Piepenburg will probably drive this car, which has already made a mile in a minute on a circular horse track, and should make many seconds better on the smooth hard straight beach with flying start.

The present mile record at Pizmo, made officially, is held by Henry [illegible]ard's El Valiente, a 24-horse-power Pope-Toledo, driven by Stone, and was only 1:04. There are at present many stock cars in this city which can beat this time and it is quite probable that a number of cars will be driven up from this city next Saturday so that local motorists can see the racing in the early morning on Pizmo Beach next Sunday.

The tent city there has 125 tent houses, which are nearly all taken by motorists from the San Joaquin Valley and the back country. The garage at Pizmo will hold about fifty cars and has an average of about four going each way daily.

San Luis Obispo is only twelve miles from Pizmo and Pizmo is the beach for that city and Paso Robles and all the back country and most of the travel from these points to the beach is by motor cars.

It was recently mentioned in The Times that Dr. Tom [illegible] one of the best known Chinese physicians in the United States, had been charged with practicing medicine without a license. The doctor is a graduate of one of the [illegible] colleges of medicine in China. He came to this country many years ago. En route [illegible] broke out on the ship. The vessel's physician was unable to cope with it, but [illegible] said that Dr. Tom saved every case. He was retained by the steamship company and served on Oriental lines for several years. He then began to practice among his countrymen in San Francisco, but after the earthquake came to Los Angeles. In view of the fact that a majority of plague cases in San Francisco have proved fatal under the care of white physicians, it might not be a [illegible] idea to get Dr. Bin to go up there and see what he can do."

POTTER TENNIS COURTS READY.

Southern Players Entered in Annual Tourney.

Bundy Looked Upon as Challenger for Trophy.

Long and Gardner Promise to Defend Honors.

Tennis enthusiasts are taking a lively interest in the fifth annual tournament on the Potter courts at Santa Barbara, which is to begin Thursday, July 16, ending Saturday, July 18. The courts are in excellent shape.

Melville Long and Carl Gardner, the northern champions, and also Coast doubles champions, are to be on hand to defend their titles. Some doubt was expressed as to whether the Bay City team would be able to compete, but a telegram received Friday by Simpson Sinsabaugh from Long gave assurance that both Gardner and Long will enter the Santa Barbara tourney. McLoughlin will be unable to be present owing to engagements in the Northwest championship tourneys. McLoughlin won the challenge match in the men's singles at the Santa Barbara tourney last year, while Long and Gardner took the men's doubles.

Miss Hazel Hotchkiss of Berkeley, who is ranked as one of the strongest players of the northern courts, is expected to appear in time to compete in the ladies' events.

The Channel City tourney will be the final preliminary games leading to the championship matches announced to be held at the Virginia courts at Long Beach, July 27 to August 1, inclusive, and the contesting players are eager to brush up in a final effort against the likely candidates for the Southern California honors in the latter tourney.

Much discussion developed in the selection of the location for the championship tourney. For three years the tournament has been held at Venice, but the Long Beach courts were considered superior for the purpose.

ALL TAKE A HAND.

With the exception of Low Freeman, all of the local experts will be entered in the Santa Barbara tourney, and with the fast courts available at the northern resort, better play than in the recent tournament is expected. Freeman has journeyed north to the Puget Sound section, where he will contest in several of the Northwest championship tourneys, including events at Seattle, Portland and Everett.

The events will be gentlemen's singles and doubles, ladies' singles (handicap) and doubles, junior singles, and mixed doubles. The ladies' singles will probably be divided into two divisions, giving the less experienced players a chance to compete for a special prize. Entries for all singles events close Wednesday, and entries to all doubles events close Thursday. The gentlemen's and junior singles will begin Thursday morning and the ladies' singles Thursday afternoon, while the gentlemen's and the mixed doubles will commence Friday morning, with the finals of all events to be concluded Saturday.

There is a keen rivalry existing among the players for the possession of the trophy cup. Alphonso E. Bell, T. Spaulding, Harold Braly and Melville Long have each won a leg on the "Potter" cup for gentlemen's singles and a close contest is expected between Long, the Coast singles champion, and Bundy, Brown, Bell and Sinsabaugh for a share in the coveted emblem. The trophy only becomes the permanent possession of the player who wins it three times, and should Bell decide to enter the singles events he will undoubtedly put forth a strong effort to annex leg number two. Tom Bundy has forged to the front in surprising fashion this season, and is the most likely Southern candidate for the [illegible]

JUNIORS ON HAND.

Interesting competition is also looked forward to in the contest between the junior players for the Press cup. Ward Dawson captured the first leg on the trophy last year, and so far has demonstrated his superiority over the rival juniors in several close matches in the preliminary tourneys. Winnie Mace and Harry Rogers are both playing in excellent form, and Mace, especially, will play in his best form, he says, in the week's events and promises to give Dawson a hard contest. Johnnie Holmes, Arthur [illegible] and Paul Radir, are also worthy opponents whom Dawson and Mace will have to defeat in their race for the cup.

The large number of junior players in this class insures a coterie of likely entrants who are expected to break into the senior open events in the course of another season, and the enthusiasts are jubilant over the prospect of the infusion of new blood into the ranks of the senior class, and the consequent added uncertainty in the championships of the future tourneys.

Among the probable entries for the week's play are Misses May and Florence Sutton, Mrs. Farquhar, Mrs. [illegible], Fanny Rownan, Elisabeth Ryland, Misses Peralta, Parker, Yoch, [illegible], West, Archer, A. Scott, Daniels, [illegible], Shoemaker, Halsted; Messrs. Bundy, Bell, Sinsabaugh, Way, Dawson, Hooper, C. Rogers, H. Rogers, [illegible], W. Mace, Horrell, Nebecker, [illegible], Galusha, Blakeslee, Morphy, [illegible] Smith, Waldeck, Duncan, Lacy, [illegible].

RITCHIE WINS MEDAL.

MRS. CHAMBERS IS BEST.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

WIMBLEDON, July 11.—The singles in the lawn tennis match in connection with the Olympic games was concluded here today. J. C. Ritchie, the English player, won the gold medal and Froitzheim, Germany, the silver medal. Ritchie's score was 3-0.

Mrs. Lambert Chambers, who was defeated in 1907 by May Sutton of California for the British championship, won the gold medal in the ladies' singles.

Americans Win in Cricket.

WORCESTER (Eng.,) July 11.—The American cricket teams representing the "Gentlemen of Philadelphia" won the match here today from Worcestershire by 95 runs. This is the second time the visitors have played since their arrival. The first match was at Cardiff, where they were also victorious.

ADOPT NEW WHIST RULES.

Los Angeles Club Proposes to Make Games More Aggressive and Interesting.

The Los Angeles Whist Club is preparing for an active season of play and is planning a tournament for this fall. In order to obtain better results, the Rules Committee has gisted the various sets of rules as advocated by certain masters and prepared a set of rules for club members to follow. It [illegible]

ADOPT NEW WHIST RULES.

Angeles Club Proposes to Make Game More Aggressive and Interesting.

Los Angeles Whist Club is pre- [illegible] to adopt a new system of play and [illegible] fall. [illegible], the [illegible] vari- [illegible] cer- [illegible] set of [illegible] members to follow. It [illegible] in every evening's play. The new rules provide for an aggressive as well as defensive game and puts the "short suiters" on the run. The rules:

FIRST HAND.

Opening, lead from best suit if it contains five or more. If it contains only four cards and no more, open it, or a two or three-card suit headed by jack, ten or nine, as you may prefer.

From ace, king and three small lead ace.

From ace, queen, jack lead ace.

From ace and four small lead fourth best.

From ace and five small, optional.

From ace, king and two small, lead king.

From king, queen and two small, optional.

From queen and two honors in sequence (10 is an honor), lead queen.

From all other combinations lead fourth best.

Having lead fourth best, hold up lowest until suit is established.

Play of fifth best on return invites trump lead. Lead of jack or 10 denies a five-card suit. After leading a supporting card, play down and out.

After trumps are exhausted, from ace, king and three or more, play king, ace; from ace, king, jack and one or more, play ace, king.

SECOND HAND.

Cover any honor lead if you have less than four in suit.

Play one or two high cards in sequence.

With king, queen only, play king.

With king, queen and one or more, play queen.

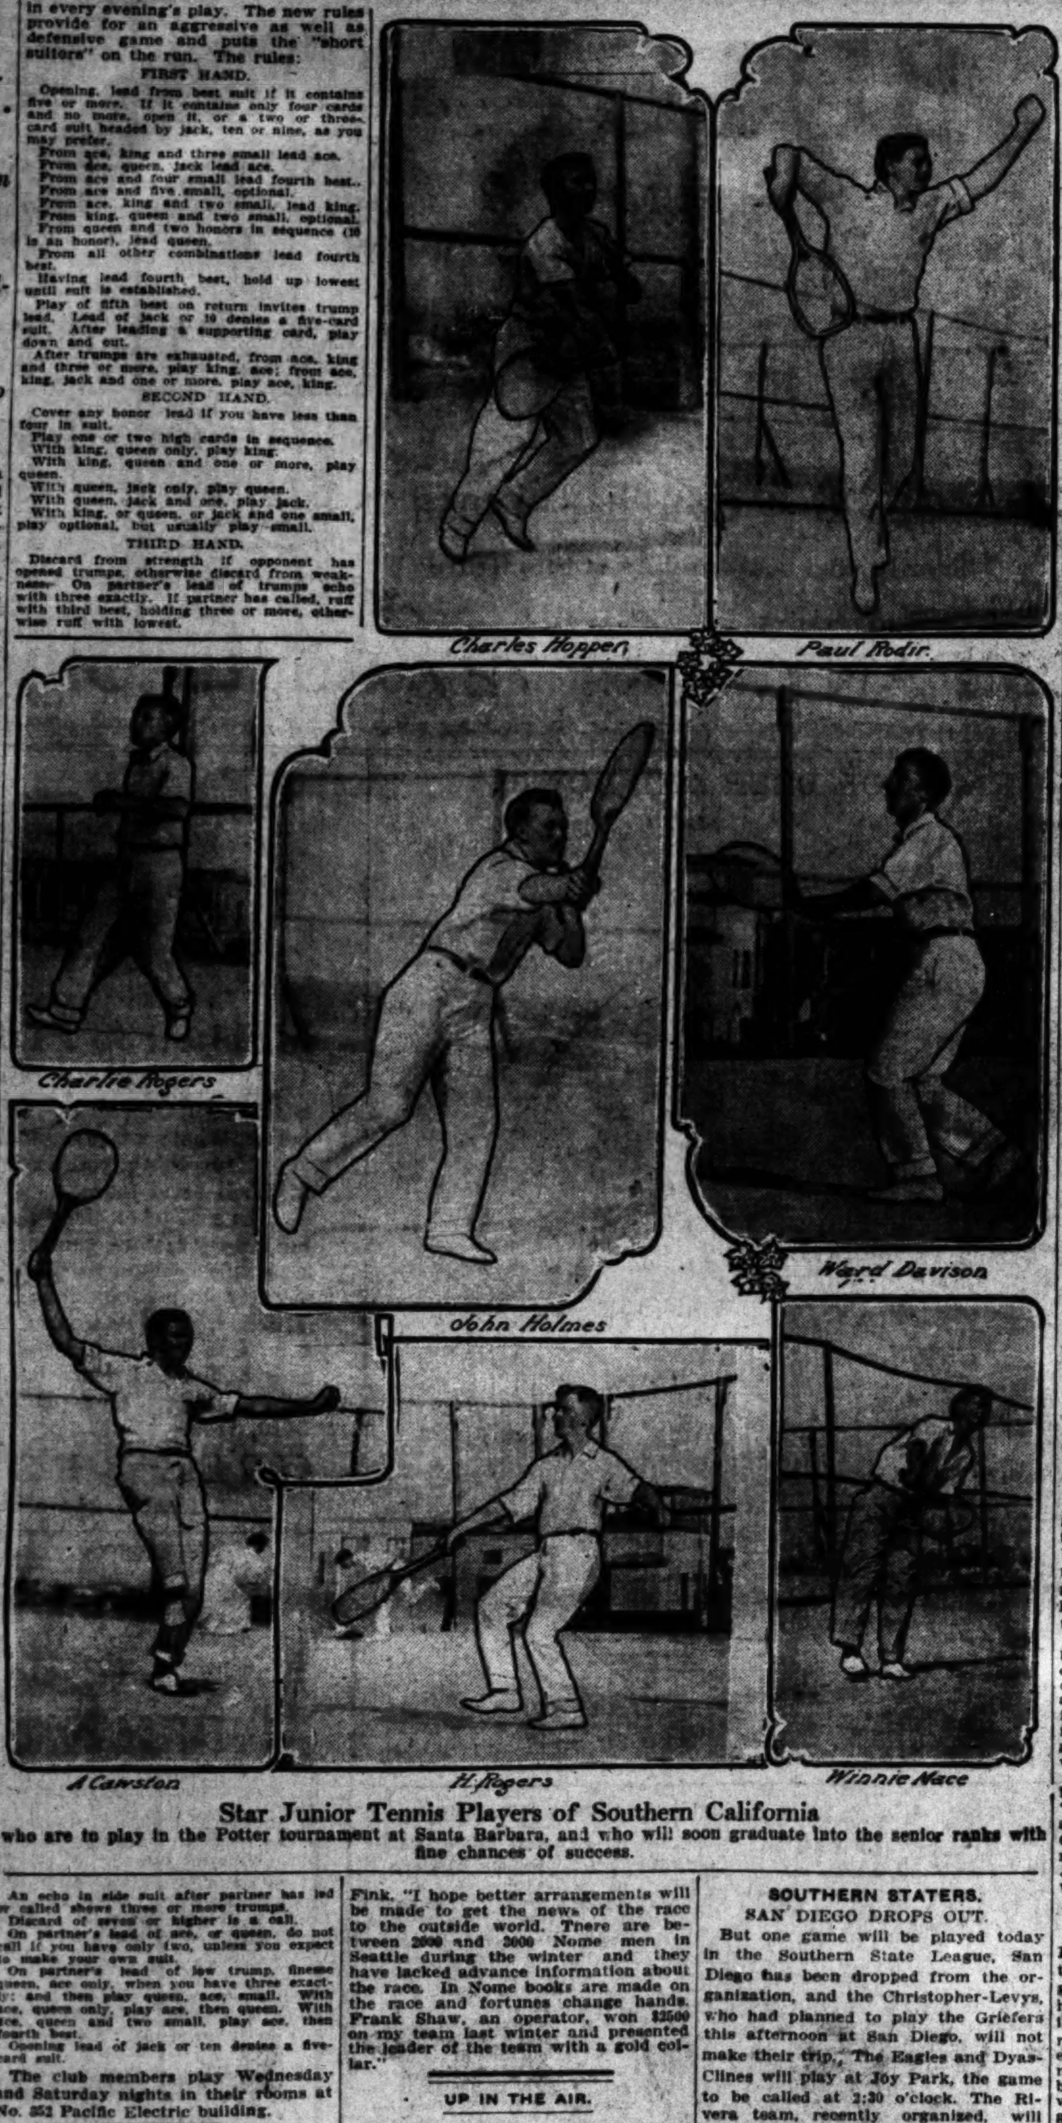
With queen, jack only, play queen.

With queen, jack and one, play jack.

With king, or queen, or jack and one small, play optional, but usually play small.

THIRD HAND.

Discard from strength if opponent has opened trumps, otherwise discard from weakness. On partner's lead of trumps echo with three exactly. If partner has called, ruff with third best, holding three or more, otherwise ruff with lowest.



Star Junior Tennis Players of Southern California who are to play in the Potter tournament at Santa Barbara, and who will soon graduate into the senior ranks with fine chances of success.

An echo in side suit after partner has led or called shows three or more trumps.

Discard of seven or higher is a call.

On partner's lead of ace, or queen, do not call if you have only two, unless you expect to make your own suit.

On partner's lead of low trump, finesse queen, ace only, when you have three exactly; and then play queen, ace, small. With ace, queen only, play ace, then queen. With ace, queen and two small, play ace, then fourth best.

Opening lead of jack or ten denies a five-card suit.

The club members play Wednesday and Saturday nights in their rooms at No. 352 Pacific Electric building.

ANNUAL DOG TEAM RACE.

From Behring Sea to the Arctic Is Course of Route Laid Out.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ten thousand dollars is to be the prize hung up for the annual dog-team race from Behring Sea to the Arctic and return next winter, usually known as the Nome Candle Race. The purse is provided by the Nome Kennel Club, which will pay $2500 to the second place team and $1000 to the third.

Albert Fink, the Nome attorney, whose team won the race last winter, is here on his way to San Francisco. When he returns he may bring with him one or two new dogs to be broken into the team.

"Before next winter's race," said Fink, "I hope better arrangements will be made to get the news of the race to the outside world. There are between 2000 and 3000 Nome men in Seattle during the winter and they have lacked advance information about the race. In Nome books are made on the race and fortunes change hands. Frank Shaw, an operator, won $2500 on my team last winter and presented the leader of the team with a gold collar."

TO BAR WOMEN FROM FIGHTS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is very likely that next Monday, when the application of Sam Berger for a September permits comes up for ratification at the meeting of the Board of Supervisors, Dr. Giannini, a member of the board, will request promoters in the future to exclude all women from witnessing the contests that may take place. There has been considerable agitation of late against allowing women to attend boxing contests, and with the spectacle of a week ago still fresh in mind, the Supervisors will doubtless act promptly. Dr. Giannini said:

"I think a simple request to the promoters to exclude all women spectators will be sufficient. I do not think it will be necessary to enact any city ordinance. I don't want to do anything freakish, but I believe a majority even of the fight-goers will approve such a move."

HURDITCH MAKES TOP SCORE OF THE MATCH.

Walker Again Carries Out His Bat for a Carefully Compiled 22—J. W. Heavens Makes a Great Stand, While Bamford, Rock and Hardwicke Do Good Work With Willow.

The cricket match between Santa Monica and the Pilgrims was left drawn yesterday afternoon, the latter team scoring 147 to the beach team's 93 for four wickets.

C. P. Hurditch and J. W. Heavens put on 68 runs before the fall of the second wicket, while T. D. Bamford made 25 in his usual careful and hard hitting style, Morris, Heavens and Brown also made good stands and gave the Beach trundlers a great deal of trouble before being dismissed.

Walker as usual made a capital stand and carried out his bat for 22. He was ably supported by Rock, Hardwicke and Le Bas who each reached double figures. The extras on each side seemed rather high, and it is questionable if the Pilgrims could have staved off defeat.

Following is the full score and fall of wickets:

SOUTHERN STATERS.

SAN DIEGO DROPS OUT.

But one game will be played today in the Southern State League, San Diego has been dropped from the organization, and the Christopher-Levys, who had planned to play the Griefers this afternoon at San Diego, will not make their trip. The Eagles and Dyas-Clines will play at Joy Park, the game to be called at 2:30 o'clock. The Rivera team, recently organized, will likely become the fourth team of the league. Line-up at Joy Pork:

Eagles.		Dyas-Clines.

IN THE RING.

LENNON WORKS HARD FOR WIND.

LITTLE SAN FRANCISCO BOY TRAINS FOR KUTCHOS.

Two to One Match Looked Upon as Cinch for Long End, But Greek Only Smiles Knowingly—Story of Kaufman's Presence Here Proves Untrue—Coming Wednesday.

Eddie Lennon is settled down to put the finishing touches on his training for his go with Kutchos next Tuesday evening at McCarey's pavilion, when four bouts will be staged. Lennon has not been seen since he lost the decision to the Jap, but he has been getting in shape ever since, expecting to be placed on with one of the local boys. Lennon will go on first against the Greek, and then Austin will finish up on the second six rounds.

Every one who sees Billy Morris train believes that he will either knock the Turk out in their six-round bout, or that he will win the decision. Morris has the style of Battling Nelson, boring in constantly and delivering short-arm blows, which are forceful enough to hurt his opponent. The Turk is admittedly a hard nut to crack, and he has not fears of the outcome of the battle with Morris.

Holbrook is finishing his training at Santa Anita for his second contest with Jim Cameron, and declares that he will be able to make a much better showing in the ring Tuesday evening. Cameron is working out at the pavilion, and is constantly improving in his form.

Jim Konkel and Willie Fairbanks will probably put up a good scrap Tuesday night. Konkel has shown up even better in his practice work than he did with Clarence English, and Fairbanks is also getting back to his old shape.

Al Kaufman and Billy Delaney will reach Los Angeles from the North Wednesday morning, and Kaufman will go into immediate training for his battle with Johnson.

Battling Johnson began his regular training Saturday at San Pedro. He weighs nearly 200 pounds, having spent the past two weeks in fishing and swimming along the beach. Manager Gaines will secure Jim Cameron to spar with the Russian, beginning next Wednesday.

Kid Murray of Newark, N. J., issues a challenge to fight Jimmy Carroll before the Jeffries Athletic Club at 115 pounds, and is willing to mix at any time. Mike Kutchos yesterday withdrew his agreement to meet Carroll, and Murray is anxious to take it up.

Murray secured recent decisions over Kid Martin and Kid Adams in ten-round preliminaries before the San Pedro Club. The latter match was decidedly one-sided, and Murray handily overcame the advantage of twenty pounds extra weight of his opponent, easily outpointing Adams.

WRESTLING CARD TODAY.

Vander Priem Outweighed by Hogan but Will Take a Chance With the New Man.

William Vander Priem and Jack Hogan will wrestle at Chutes Park after the ball game tomorrow. The men are both in fair condition, and the match may be one of the best pulled off. Hogan is heavier than Priem, but the latter expects to give Hogan the wrestle of his life.

This is not the first time Priem has been seen on the mat here. Last Sunday he wrestled Biel, and although outweighed, he made a fine showing against him. The management tried for some time to match Hogan with a man of his weight, but failing, Priem agreed to wrestle the big man at catch weights.

The card will be opened with a preliminary by "Swede" Johnston and the "Terrible" Greek. Both of these men are good welters, and although the Greek is some heavier than his opponent, they are about an even break, as Johnston is recognized as a clever wrestler.

Haas-Baruch's Win.

Haas-Baruch baseball team beat the Pacific Mutual nine by a score of 6 to 2, yesterday. It was an interesting game, but the Baruch team proved too handy with the stick and succeeded in hitting Jessen, the Pacific's pitcher, many times. Near the close of the eighth inning, Leahy, Baruch's best man with the bat, hit one for three bags, thus scoring the feature stick work of the day. This is the eighth game the winning nine has played this season, and so far have been undefeated.

The line up was as follows:

Haas-Baruch.		Pacific Mutual.
Mountain	3 base	Martin
Smith	1 base	Matthews
Leahy	catcher	Abbort
Wilson	shortstop	Abe
Houlsby	pitcher	Jessen
Cohon	center field	Gates
B. Johnson	right field	McCabe
M. Shitfflet	left field	Clark
D. Shitfflet	second base	Goodwin

WE HAVE NO COMPETITORS

DR. HARRISON,
The Leading Specialist.

It is a fact that as high-class, legitimate, down-to-date advertising specialists for men only, we have no competitors in Los Angeles. This is a bold statement, but none the less true, and any interested person can easily verify its truthfulness by a careful investigation of our superb and unexcelled equipment for treating successfully the most complex and complicated ailments peculiar to men.

For sixteen years we have been located right here in Los Angeles and dozens of the most prominent business men will gladly vouch for our character and ability. We have no branch offices. For the ailing man in search of a genuine specialist, who eagerly scans the advertising pages of the daily papers, estimating the ability and reputation of the specialists solely by the size of his ad, or the amount of palpably false and brazen misstatements and misrepresentations it contains, or who is influenced by the promise of a worthless guarantee, or the promise of a refunding of the fee if the promised cure is not effected, we have only a feeling of pity.

Every day ailing men consult us who have been "up against" incompetent and unreliable specialists and bemoan the fact that they did not exercise common sense and prudence before parting with their money and purchasing the proverbial lemon.

The Only Cure for Weakness

In a public announcement of this kind it is unnecessary for us to explain in detail the essential points of difference between our modern, down to date, scientific and eminently successful methods in treating weakness and those in use by imitators and would-be specialists. Our Prostatic theory of weakness, which we first elaborated and announced in the L. A. Times over ten years ago, as reference to the files of that paper will prove, has since been copied by hundreds of specialists all over the United States.

Functional weakness associated with loss of power and prematureness usually symptomatic of some abnormal local condition in some vital point in the pelvic region. Congestion, inflammation and enlargement of the prostate gland; stricture, varicocele, hydrocele, rupture, neglected or improperly treated cases of contracted disorders are the most common causes of weakness. To attempt to cure weakness by stomach drugging or by wearing electric belts is just as sensible as it would be to wear a set of harness to cure corns on the feet.

We will cheerfully pay One Thousand dollars to any physician or layman who can produce a case of weakness occurring in any man of good habits under the age of 65, not complicated by any organic disease of the heart, liver or kidneys or by the sequalae of chronic venereal disease, that we cannot completely cure in from four to six weeks by our new and improved method of local treatment. The local treatment is entirely painless and does not involve the use of "instillations, suppositories," etc. We will effect the cure without prescribing a single drop of medicine and without using a single pill, tablet or granule. In the treatment of the more obscure forms of weakness which may be classed as Psychopathic, Neuropathic, Congenital and Traumatic we offer a modern and eminently successful line of treatment.

Psychopathic weakness is usually due to some form of mental aberration; Neuropathic weakness is due to diseases of the brain and spinal cord; Congenital weakness is due usually to mechanical organic impediments; Traumatic weakness is due to local inflammation due to abuse, venereal infection or injuries. Asthenic weakness usually follows exhausting diseases of various kinds.

Theory and Practice

Failure to harmonize theory and practice, particularly on the part of those infallible specialists whose loud boastings are as the sounding brass and tinkling cymbal, has done more than anything else to discredit advertising specialists for men only, in the eyes of a discriminating public.

The cynic naturally queries, why is it that with the bright array of medical talent adorning the advertising pages of the daily press, that there is such a large number of uncured men in Los Angeles. There are hundreds of men walking the streets of this city who would sell the shirt off their back to get cured of their ailment.

After a man has been fed on a lemon diet for several months and discovered by bitter and expensive experience that an alluring and smoothly written advertisement often conceals a physician of very ordinary ability and questionable business methods, he is very apt to become skeptical concerning all physicians, particularly those who advertise.

It is to this large class of disappointed and discouraged men who have lost faith and quit trying to get well, that we appeal. Our clean business methods, our new and unexcelled methods of treatment, our offer to let you personally interview a number of our cured patients by their kind permission, our absolutely bona-fide offer to let you pay when well and without making any charges for medicines, and our offer to cure any simple, uncomplicated cases free are certainly excellent reasons why you should call and have a friendly talk with us. This will not obligate you in any way to take treatment and you will not be asked for your name or address or importuned in any way to take treatment.

Varicocele

One many in every four has some degree of varicocele; three-fourths of all cases of varicocele have been up against doctors who advertise to cure without an operation, which is an absolute impossibility. We have been curing varicocele in Los Angeles for sixteen years and can show business men here in the city by the score who will be more than glad to tell any man who is afflicted with varicocele all about their experience with our certain and absolute cure of our strictly painless operation. Now we wish to ask any man who has varicocele if he would like to be cured. If so, will he go to a specialist who will introduce him to any number of first-class leading business men here in the city who have been cured, or will he hand over his money to a would-be specialist who carries a bombastic advertisement saying he can cure without operation, and who cannot show a single cured man whom he has cured? Read this over and think about it.

Kidney and Bladder Trouble

Dr. Harrison & Co. are phenomenally successful in these troubles, every case that comes to them is carefully examined and the true cause found for existing conditions. It is then easy for us to treat the case understandingly. Not all cases are easily understood. Not all men know how to treat them. Our success in curing demonstrates the positive proof of our ability.

Stricture

Pain is entirely eliminated under treatment we have developed and perfected for the absolute cure of stricture by our new improved PAINLESS METHODS WE HAVE CURED MANY CASES THAT RESISTED ALL OTHER FORMS OF TREATMENT. CALL AND INVESTIGATE. BY PERMISION WE CAN REFER YOU TO MANY CURED CASES IN TOWN. We do not pretend to work miracles and cannot claim the almost supernatural skill of some of our would-be competitors, such as "dissolving" strictures as easily as the warm rays of the rising sun dissolves the snow.

Contagious Blood Diseases

May be inherited or contracted. When the system becomes tainted with the poison it may manifest itself in many ways, ulcers, sores, scrofula, eczema, stiff and painful joints, eruptions, copper-colored spots on the body. Little ulcers in the mouth, swollen or inflamed tonsils, loss of hair, decay of flesh and bone. If your symptoms are any of these, we invite you to take advantage of the treatment we offer, which will completely eradicate the last taint of poison from the system. You are cordially invited to consult us in person and we will give you such advice as will be for the betterment of your condition. Our treatment has been acquired through 25 years' arduous work. It contains no injurious drugs and goes to the very core of the disease.

WE NEVER TRY TO SCARE OUR PATIENTS. THE EXACT NATURE, PROBABLE DURATION, PERIOD OF CONTAGION AND THE DIFFERENT METHODS OF TREATMENT ARE CAREFULLY EXPLAINED TO EACH PATIENT. We also explain the differential diagnosis of purely local infection and constitutional infection.

To meet the exigencies of the times, and place a perfect cure within the reach of ailing men who have squandered money and wasted precious time on poor treatment, we will cure Simple, Uncomplicated Cases Free.

THIRTY-THIRTIES.

BUCKS SCARCE, WEATHER HOT.

Prospects for Deer-Hunting Are Not the Best.

Certain Favored Localities Promise Fine Sport.

Mountain Tops Harbor Game at This Season.

With bucks scarce, and the "dough" wherewith to hunt the long-pronged animals of the hills still less plentiful; with hot weather and an unusual amount of brush and undergrowth coating the mountainsides and cañon vents, the prospects for a large turnout of deer hunters is far from probable.

For the last two years conditions have been exceedingly favorable for the breeding of deer; the water holes were numerous, and the ranges covered with thick brush making the access to the deer haunts quite difficult; the large number of watering and feeding places scattered the attentions of the huntsmen, affording added protection to the deer.

Yet rangers and trout fishermen returning from the higher reaches and ranges of the coast mountains have not reported the number of deer signs as numerous as expected in the existing circumstances, and sportsmen are at a loss to explain the apparent absence of game. Some attribute the scarcity of deer to the wave of hot weather which has hung over the section of the country lately. The game, they say, has retreated to the highest and coolest fastnesses of the upper ranges of the mountains, where the water is still more plentiful, with an abundance of fresh forage. Certain it is that a tramp in the right direction and the observance of the proper caution should take the gunner to productive territory, and several parties at least have faith to believe a determined and well planned excursion to the known deer haunts will bring the desired reward.

A number of the more experienced hunters will delay their operations in search of game until the weather is more inviting, and rest on the assertion that the damage done by early season sportsmen will not materially affect the game market.

ON OLD BALDY.

The east side of Old Baldy has long been famous with the hunters after buck, and many gunners doubtless will be tracking the ragged slopes of this rugged peak. An occasional climber or trout scouter returning from the high places has remarked favorably on signs of deer, and wild cats are also abundant.

A wide wagon road winds a greater part of the ascent to the high point, and a fairly good path leads the tramper to the edge of the timber line, where the deer tracks have been noticed more frequently.

The West Fork of the San Gabriel leading to the eastern ranges of the Sierra Madre mountains have in former seasons disclosed an occasional buck. Pine Flats, on the summit of the second range, is an ideal spot for deer, and likewise a most attractive camping location, and the early visitors should find signs of game in that region.

Away east in the upper ranges of the San Bernardino hills, in the vicinity of Big Bear Lake, the game wardens on recent rounds of inspection have come across deer signs, and ready access to the secluded ranges is made possible by excellent accommodation at the Bear Lake resorts. Elsinore and Murrieta hills are also favored points with the gunners, and will doubtless draw many sportsmen of the southern and eastern counties.

NEAR-BY RANGES.

For local hunters, however, the Santa Monica ranges afford the most likely deer haunts as well as being of quickest access. Plenty of deer have been killed there for many seasons, and although no definite word has been received as to this year's supply of game, a number of gunners are anxious to try their luck in their accustomed locations among the coast range hills. The blanket camper has here been most numerous, and a comparatively small pack of food and supplies will easily provide for the wants of the average hunter during a few days' sojourn in the hills.

Further to the north, in the Big Tejunga pass, and to the east in the Antelope Valley, the limits have been secured by persistent sportsmen during the last three years, and those who have the time and leisure to pass a fortnight or longer in search of game will probably find satisfaction tracking the signs in these locations.

A small bore rifle is effective in dropping the game if hit in the right spot. Flannel underwear has been found especially serviceable for all kinds of weather and wear. The soft-muscled hunter very often contracts serious colds in the heat and sudden change of temperature on a chase, and unless provided with suitable clothing often contracts dangerous maladies. For a change of clothing a suit of khaki will be useful to put on in the middle of the day. Well chosen foodstuffs, including a simple assortment of canned goods and condensed tablets, are as a rule preferable to a more elaborate stock of grub.

PARTIES FORMED.

AFTER THE DOVE AND DEER.

Among those who will take advantage of the opening day's shooting are many parties of local gunners, a majority of whom, however, will hunt doves, although the dual attraction of doves and deer will be sought by those who elect to go to the hills and have plenty of time at their disposal.

Dr. Rae Smith, Dr. Clarence Moore and Adoplh Schwarz left Friday for a two weeks' trip to the north side of Baldy, where they will get the limit of deer.

Ed. Bronson, Clarence Edwards, Ed. Salisbury and George Cline leave Tuesday for an extended hunting and fishing jaunt to Mendocino county, where deer and trout are plentiful. Many side trips for game will be taken near Calabasas and Monterey.

Oscar Giddings and William J. Schmidt left last night in an auto on a six weeks' hunting and fishing trip to the mountain region of San Louis Obispo County.

Joe Banning, Frank McCormick and John Cline make up a party of Angeleños who will try their luck in the mountain fastnesses of Mendocino county hunting for deer.

Ward Heller leaves tomorrow to join Sherman Powell at his camp on Snow Creek, Oregon. F. W. Allendar and wife will leave the 28 inst. and will journey by auto to spend a month with Powell also. Powell has an envious reputation as a deer hunter, and can be relied upon to locate the deer when wanted.

H. D. Fletcher and F. Morrow will spend a week in Bear Valley, where fishing and hunting will be combined.

J. G. Young, Frank Young and F. O. Cruthers are bound for the Sespe, where trout are famous for their size, and where doves can be easily secured.

Earl Clark and H. D. Becker leave tomorrow for Bear Valley on a ten days' fishing and hunting trip.

Ed. Mitchell, Guy Lovelace and Bert Travers are out for deer in earnest, and will confine their activities near Lovelace's San Joaquin ranch for two weeks.

Game Warden Pritchard of Santa Monica, expects to start tomorrow on a ranging trip, but refuses to define the base of his operations.

Ed. Tufts and Louis Breer will shoot for dove near Pacoima on the opening morn.

Bernal Dyas and Nick Beall will join a large party of Angeleños who are invited to spend the opening day on the Hellman and Garvey ranch near Alhambra. Dyas expects to have little difficulty in dropping the dove limit for he will use his new Greener imported English gun, specially designed by Joe Singer.

I. N. Huntsberger, George E. Huntsberger, Ernest B. Rivers, Rev. Dr. McNinch and Glen and Harold, the sons of George Huntsberger, are members of a party who will spend a few weeks on the Rindge preserve near Calabasas. Paraphernalia will be taken for both deer and trout. Last year deer were encountered in fair numbers, and prospects point to continued good sport this season.

Gail B. Johnson, Dr. Johnson and a party of friends are expecting to go after doves on Wednesday in the vicinity of De Camp's ranch near Burbank.

Jim Jeffries, Ed Herwick, Ed Maier and "Wild" Bill Reuss will take a machine for a selected spot where the doves are thick, and will be on hand the dawn of the opening day.

Gen. C. F. A. Last and party will hunt for doves in the Fernando Valley, and later in the season will take a week off to enjoy the fine sport to be had on the private preserve of the Lux Land and Water Co. near Encinitas in San Diego county.

A. J. Wallace will devote a few early morning hours hunting for doves near his Glendale home, and says he is too busy with the hearing of the equalization tax the coming week to attempt any extended trip.

D. M. Green and M. E. Cratsenby leave today for a two months' deer hunting excursion in the mountains near Malibu.

The following sportsmen will scatter their hunting operations in the Santa Monica and Bear Valley hills: I. J. Boothe, J. B. Bouett, W. E. Derrick, R. W. Sayre, H. A. Bonyonge, A. L. Gardiner, Charles R. Gibbs, J. H. Adair, J. W. Black, S. E. Gentry, H. Reeves, J. F. Allen, L. C. Dale, Overton Walsh, G. A. Cummings, W. C. Woodward.

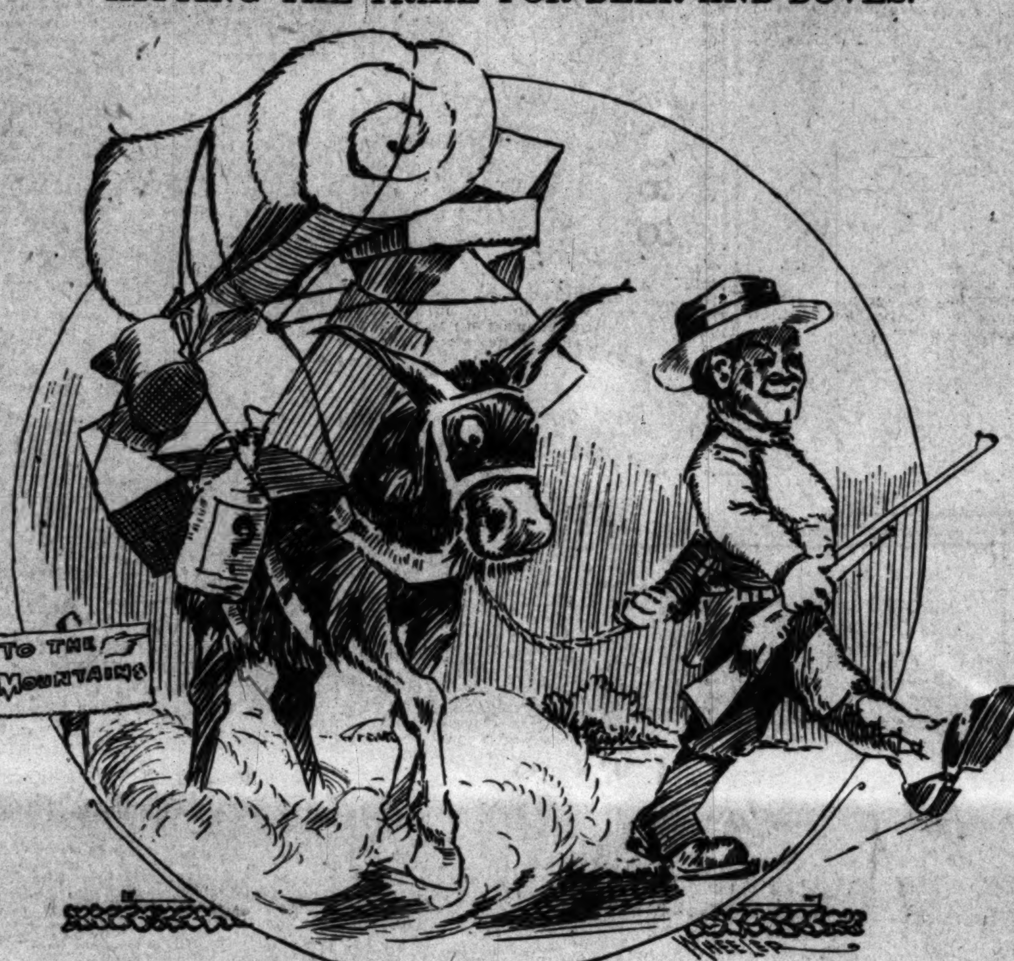
Prepare for Big Race.

Members of the South Coast Yacht Club are at present enjoying a lull season preceding the next big race for The Times cup, arranged for July 25. A number of the boats will sail forth on trips of pleasure only today, and the various skippers of the boats entered for the coming events are granted liberty to further try out their yachts without the possibility of losing points in the season's count for honors in the different classes.

Annandale Golf Winner.

C. S. Dyintton won the Annandale golf tournament yesterday by defeating S. Stewart. The tourney was begun July 4, but as Dyintton and Stewart tied for the cup honors, the match was played off yesterday. The men played the holes against bogy.

HITTING THE TRAIL FOR DEER AND DOVES.



GOOD SHOOTING.

PLENTY OF FINE BIRDS FOR THE DOVE SEASON.

THE dove season legally is to open Wednesday morning a half hour before sunrise, and a large number of local sportsmen have been locating the bird flights within easy distance of the city and are mapping out the first day excursions.

From the current reports of rangers, ranchers, and motorists the doves have been breeding freely and large flocks have been seen along the less frequented country thoroughfares. The large crops of barley and grain, and the richly bearing fruit orchards in the vicinity of the city have been unusually favorable to drawing the birds from the hills and cañons, and the consensus of opinion among the regular gunners is that the present season will hold its own with the run of luck encountered in former years.

While some of the more accessible flights have been pretty well shattered by the constant visitations of hunters during the last few seasons, and further, the ever-advancing boundaries of civilization are steadily encroaching on the more favored domains of the birds, there are yet numerous sequestered spots in the many cañons and arroyos of the nearby foothills where birds may be found to insure ample returns to the early season hunter.

The limit of twenty-five should fall to the lot of a majority of the experienced gunners of nearly any of the many good flights near the city, and gives little excuse for taking long trips or enduring unnecessary hardships so early in the season. As a rule the cream of dove shooting is to be had in the early evening, and a visit after 4 o'clock in the direction of the Fernando foothills, Verdugo Cañon, West Hollywood, Inglewood and Gardena orchards, or the Puente peaks east of Whittier should be productive of satisfactory bags.

The hot weather will doubtless prove a drawback to many hunters who had planned to pass a number of days in quest of the game, but many parties of hunters who possess motor cars will avail themselves of the superior hunting to be had in rather remote locations. Fernando Valley, the pathway for the numerous touring parties along the coast route to the North, have encountered many birds on the large wheat ranches of the valley, and those who are fortunate to secure access to the heavy grain fields count on bagging the limit very quickly.

Probably the most favored location of local sportsmen is the Big Tejunga section of the San Fernando Valley, and the orchards will undoubtedly furnish some excellent sport this week. The valley has been thoroughly prospected by advance parties on bass fishing trips to Russell's Lake, who by their reticence in giving the exact locations of the flights evidently are expecting to bag a few pot loads themselves.

The birds migrate at regular periods in the day from the foothills to the grain fields, stopping at the water holes for refreshments, and towards the middle of the day, seek the gum groves and fruit trees for rest. There are at least a dozen productive flights to the south of Calabasas, where the river gives rise to the occasional cañons of the hills, and good shots can be obtained from the bluffs at the pocket vents.

Nearer the city in the vicinity of Burbank, Tropico and Glendale the flights are not quite so plentiful as in former seasons, still fair sport may be encountered along the fringing willow groves at the foot of Cahuenga hills, the river bottoms, and northward to West Glendale. Verdugo Cañon is also favored by local gunners, and will be well patronized the opening days.

The Puente Hills and El Monte sections will be the vantage points for many of the sportsmen, and good flights have been noticed in the riverbed and adjacent hills. The birds are numerous, and limit bags should be secured by the average gunner who knows where to reach the flights. The Puente Hills are good for dove flights from Pomona to Whittier, and the Hondo country traversed by the Salt Lake road to the east is marked by the gunners as favorable ground.

Several parties who depend on the cars and have but a few hours at their disposal for the sport will try the numerous orchards adjacent to the car lines running to the beaches, where groves and dove-weed patches will furnish brief sport for the observing gunner.

In the mesas back of Palms on northwest to the Santa Monica foothills many flights have been feeding lately, and an hour's walk from the car line will land the hunter in likely territory for good shooting.

Again the Redondo car travels through some productive fields, especially to the west of Gardena and Inglewood.

The Palos Verdes shelter several well watered cañons, and San Pedro sportsmen assert fair returns can be obtained as long as the birds hold out. The vast stretches of hills ranging north from the Verdes are covered with great grain fields, and it is upon these that the doves secure their feed, retiring to the cañons for the midday rest.

Norwalk has in the past given productive returns and several parties will try their luck in the groves there.

Orange county men will divide sport with some local gunners who plan to pass their opening shoots in the hills near Fullerton, Placentia and La Habra. The walnut groves are secluding a good many flights according to the reports of the ranchers, and the birds have been breeding rapidly and late. Further south in the Santiago hills back of Santa Ana are many good flights.

Etiwanda continues to be a likely spot for doves, and the flights are said to be as good as ever, and a few local gunners are arranging to swell the number of San Bernardino sportsmen who will pass the first day there.

NEW COACH AT POMONA.

Stanton of Dickenson College Comes With Good Athletic and Teaching Record.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, July 11.—William Layton Stanton has been engaged to coach the Pomona College athletic teams for the coming year. Coach Stanton comes from the East with a long athletic record.

In his preparatory school days Stanton played for a year on the football team of the Drexel Institute of Philadelphia, then went to the Pennington Normal School where he played on the baseball, football and track teams, being captain of the football team for three years. At Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., where he graduated in 1903, Stanton was again a member of football, baseball and track teams, besides running on the relay team of the college. For four years he held the college record for the quarter-mile. During his senior year Stanton captained the football team. His record in the high jump was 5ft. 7½in.

Stanton served through the Spanish-American War, having charge of the setting up exercises of his company. He was elected captain of his regimental football team, which defeated the University of Georgia team under his leadership.

Since graduation Stanton had been engaged in coaching in various eastern institutions. For one year he was head coach at the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, and for one year gym instructor and coach at the Morristown school in Morristown, N. J. For the last two years he has been the athletic instructor in Hamilton Institute, New York. Stanton received his athletic training under Dr. Hutchins, now coach at the University of Wisconsin.

Stanton will come to Pomona from New Hampshire, where he is passing the summer as councillor in the Contoocook boys' camp, at Henniker. At Claremont he will have part of the gymnasium and athletic instruction that during the last seasons fell to Instructor Braden, in addition to holding the position of head coach.

Attell and Kid Scaler.

SPOKANE (Wash.) July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Abe Attell, bantamweight champion of the world, and "Kid" Scaler of Spokane are to be brought together for a six-round fight here, July 17. Jack Kearns and his associates are back of the game, and assert that both men have posted forfeits and say the boys will fight at 132 pounds. Kearns says he is counting on Prosecuting Attorney Barnhart's statement to permit six-round contests. The promoters are counting on pulling off the match in the Spokane theater, but so far the management has not been approached, nor has a permit been issued for the battle.

Kelley Is Coming West.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Promoter Luke Marisch, who will stage the Ketchel-Hugo Kelly fight July 31, received the following dispatch tonight from Sylvie Feretti, manager of Kelly: "Leave Tuesday and will arrive in San Francisco Friday. Select training quarters for us."

SYMPHONY

The Finest Instrument Known to Musical Science

Artistically, musically and intrinsically, there is no piano equal to the Steinway. For over half a century the greatest musical authorities have regarded it as the finest instrument known to musical science.

No other piano so nearly approaches perfection in every respect—no other piano possesses a tone of such beauty and permanency, of such delicacy and such tremendous reserve power. No other piano possesses such intrinsic worth—for the actual market value of even after years of use, far exceeds that of any other make.

From any point of view—musically or commercially—the Steinway is the best piano investment. Steinway value is strikingly demonstrated in the Miniature Grand at $800, and the Vertegrand (an upright) at $550—in ebonized cases.

Each instrument is the World's Standard for its respective class, and represents the highest piano value to be obtained anywhere for every dollar expended.

Why Steinway & Sons Advertise Prices

The Steinway is the highest priced piano in the world—but to the retailer it nets a smaller margin of profit than any other instrument. In every advertisement published by Steinway & Sons, appear prices of one or more styles. This is done to force the retailer to sell at figures stipulated by Steinway & Sons. Were these prices omitted, many dealers would be tempted to charge from two to three hundred dollars more — and thereby reap a profit on Steinway Pianos equal to that on inferior instruments.

Steinway & Sons advertise the Vertegrand at $550, the Miniature Grand at $800—we charge $575 and $850, respectively — the extra charge barely covering the actual cost of freight and handling to the Coast.

The Steinway is the safest piano to buy—no matter where or when you buy, you are charged actual New York prices, no more, no less. In the advertising of other pianos, prices are conspicuous by their absence.

ENERGETIC.

OUT FOR ALL VOTES IN ROADS CAMPAIGN.

Three Hundred Workers Representing All Parts of the County Will Conduct Whirlwind Movement Until Bond Ballots Are In.

STRONG indorsement of the men and the plans of the Los Angeles County Highway Commission was given yesterday at a rousing meeting of ranchers and city folk at Blanchard Hall, when active steps were taken for the organization of a campaign committee in every town. Already there are sixty of these committees. Within a few days the plans for getting out a full vote at the bond election on the 30th inst. will be completed, and actual field work begun.

HALL OF RECORDS SOON.

Supervisors Await Only the Decision of Court Before Acquiring Site for New Building.

Only one thing is holding up immediate action by the Board of Supervisors to start work on the proposed new Hall of Records for the county, adjoining the Courthouse. That is the final decision of Judge James settling the claims of ownership i.. the site, which runs through from North Broadway to New High street.

The money—$60,000 for the New High-street frontage and about $70,000 for the rest—is up and ready to be paid as soon as title is cleared. The Supervisors are anxious to get the annext to the Courthouse built as soon as possible and so save over $30,000 in rent yearly to the county, now paid for outside quarters.

The Supervisors said yesterday that they are ready to figure on the new building the moment this important decision is handed down. They intend to make a levy for the building in the tax roll which will be fixed in September.

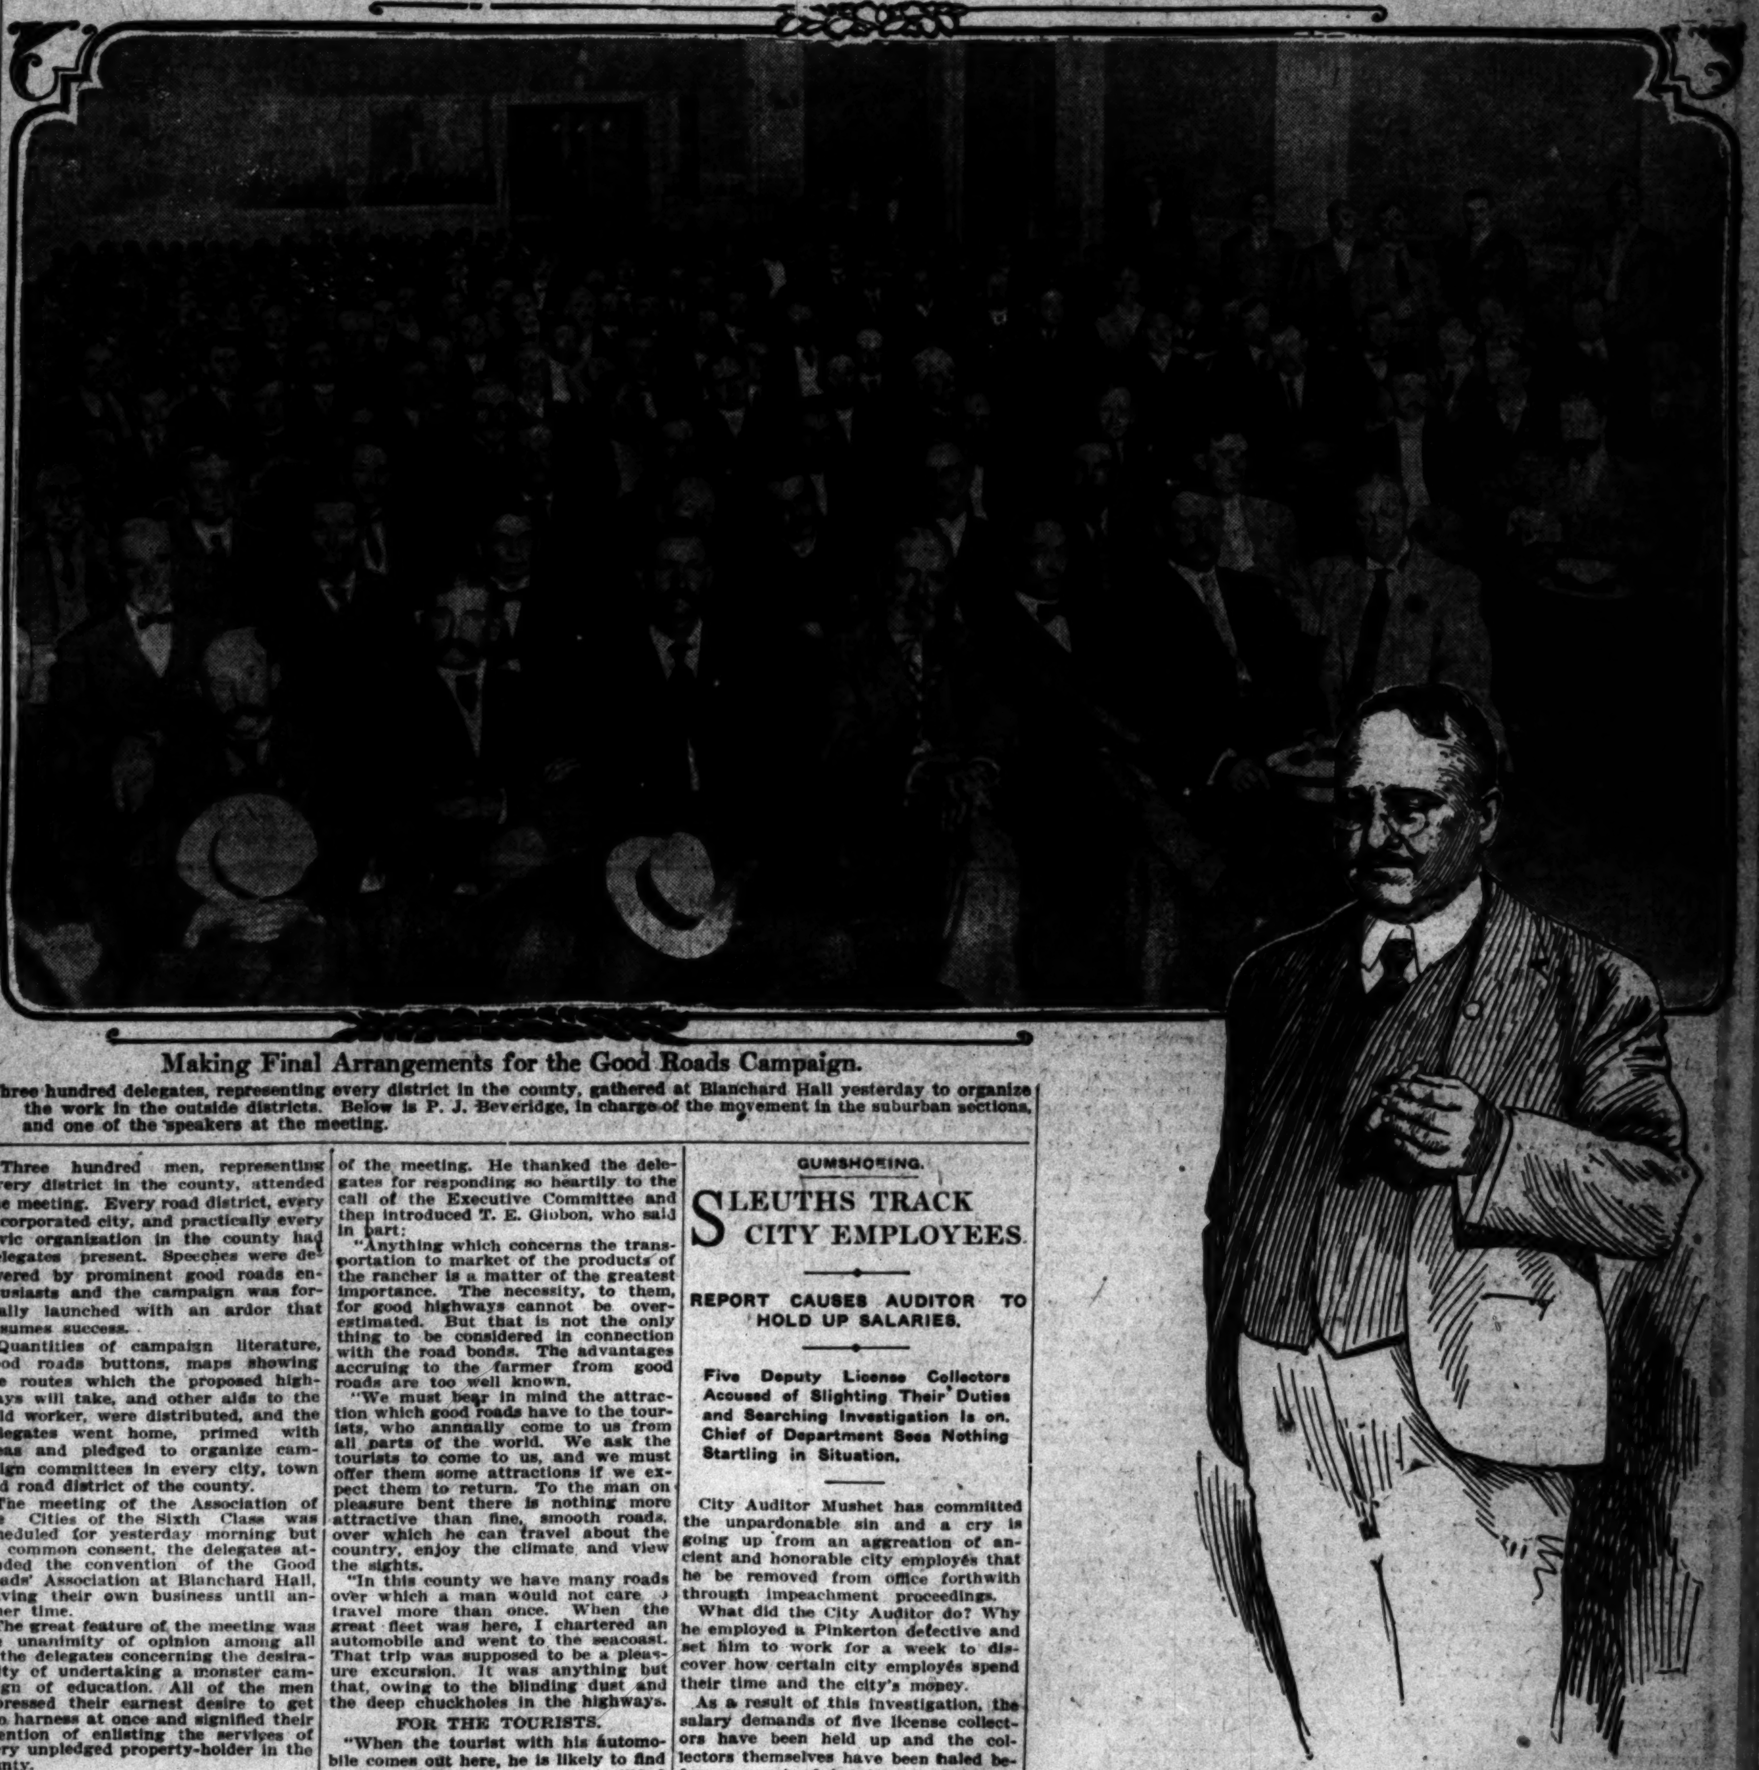
The county's need for more room than is afforded by its great courthouse has been pressing for some time.

IMMENSE.

MONSTER 'COT CROP HARVEST AT HEIGHT.

Million and Quarter for Growers of Luscious Fruit, One San Fernando Valley Ranch Producing Eight Hundred Tons.

WITH trees bending under the burden of the heaviest crop in years—perhaps the greatest in the history of the State—the harvest of apricots in California is at its height. It is estimated that the green crop will total 120,000 tons and that the return to growers will be $1,250,000. The pie and sauce possibilities are appalling. Because of rapidity of ripening, possibly 10 per cent. of the crop will not be gathered. The fruit is exceptionally luscious.



Making Final Arrangements for the Good Roads Campaign.

Three hundred delegates, representing every district in the county, gathered at Blanchard Hall yesterday to organize the work in the outside districts. Below is P. J. Beveridge, in charge of the movement in the suburban sections, and one of the speakers at the meeting.

Three hundred men, representing every district in the county, attended the meeting. Every road district, every incorporated city, and practically every civic organization in the county had delegates present. Speeches were delivered by prominent good roads enthusiasts and the campaign was formally launched with an ardor that assumes success.

Quantities of campaign literature, good roads buttons, maps showing the routes which the proposed highways will take, and other aids to the field worker, were distributed, and the delegates went home, primed with ideas and pledged to organize campaign committees in every city, town and road district of the county.

The meeting of the Association of the Cities of the Sixth Class was scheduled for yesterday morning but by common consent, the delegates attended the convention of the Good Roads' Association at Blanchard Hall, leaving their own business until another time.

The great feature of the meeting was the unanimity of opinion among all of the delegates concerning the desirability of undertaking a monster campaign of education. All of the men expressed their earnest desire to get into harness at once and signified their intention of enlisting the services of every unpledged property-holder in the county.

PLANS FOR CAMPAIGNS.

P. J. Beveridge, superintendent of the campaign work in the outside districts, was on hand with his lieutenants, ready to report on the progress which he has made and with plans for a boosting crusade of promising proportions. He delivered a strong address, calling on every delegate from the outside districts to put his shoulder to the wheel. He said:

"Now is the time to get to work and push matters along. Within the past few days we have appointed sixty campaign committees in the outside towns. We must not stop there but must continue the work until we have a live, hustling committee in every town.

"I am informed that there are in this hall representatives from many districts where we are not yet represented. If any man from such district will come to me after the meeting I shall take pleasure in talking over and arranging for a committee with him.

"On Monday morning there must be in every city, town and road district, an active campaign committee, provided with the necessary maps, literature and buttons, to take up this work in earnest. This is not the time to shirk work and every committee must be put upon a basis which promises success.

"I am satisfied that the great majority of the people are in favor of this movement, but we must not allow overconfidence to blind us to the necessity for good, hard work—work of the kind that counts when it comes to summing up the results of the balloting.

"The present status of affairs is most promising but we must not rest where we are now. We all realize the urgent necessity for carrying that bond election, which means that we all realize the need for securing promises of votes."

F. W. Blanchard acted as chairman of the meeting. He thanked the delegates for responding so heartily to the call of the Executive Committee and then introduced T. E. Giobon, who said in part:

"Anything which concerns the transportation to market of the products of the rancher is a matter of the greatest importance. The necessity, to them, for good highways cannot be overestimated. But that is not the only thing to be considered in connection with the road bonds. The advantages accruing to the farmer from good roads are too well known.

"We must bear in mind the attraction which good roads have to the tourists, who annually come to us from all parts of the world. We ask the tourists to come to us, and we must offer them some attractions if we expect them to return. To the man on pleasure bent there is nothing more attractive than fine, smooth roads, over which he can travel about the country, enjoy the climate and view the sights.

"In this county we have many roads over which a man would not care to travel more than once. When the great fleet was here, I chartered an automobile and went to the seacoast. That trip was supposed to be a pleasure excursion. It was anything but that, owing to the blinding dust and the deep chuckholes in the highways.

FOR THE TOURISTS.

"When the tourist with his automobile comes out here, he is likely to find all his plans for enjoyment nullified by the condition of the roads. Is it not right that we take into consideration the people who annually spend more money in our midst than the total amount of the bond issue which we are working for?

"Then there is another matter to be considered. The question of freight rates between here and the harbor at San Pedro has been bothering people. All sorts of remedies have been suggested. A good highway between here and San Pedro will do more toward regulating freight rates than any other agent. [applause.]

"When the Panama Canal is completed, much of our produce which now goes East by rail will be shipped by boat. The question of getting that produce to San Pedro will have to be taken into consideration. That highway will solve the problem.

"A wholesaler of this city told me yesterday that, with a fine turnpike between here and San Pedro, he would be able to convey merchandise by motor truck, from the docks at San Pedro for little more than it now costs him to convey it from the railway depot in this city to his store.

"The development of the motor truck will mean that much freightage will be done by means of it, providing that there are good, smooth roadways. This fact alone should induce the people of this city to lend their support to the good roads movement."

Hon. Thomas Earley, Mayor of Pasadena, and one of the first men to take up the good roads movement, presented the following resolution, indorsing the report of the Highway Commission:

Resolved, by the Los Angeles County Good Roads Association, in special meeting assembled,

First, that we do hereby unqualifiedly

SLEUTHS TRACK CITY EMPLOYEES.

REPORT CAUSES AUDITOR TO HOLD UP SALARIES.

Five Deputy License Collectors Accused of Slighting Their Duties and Searching Investigation Is on. Chief of Department Sees Nothing Startling in Situation.

City Auditor Mushet has committed the unpardonable sin and a cry is going up from an aggreation of ancient and honorable city employés that he be removed from office forthwith through impeachment proceedings.

What did the City Auditor do? Why he employed a Pinkerton detective and set him to work for a week to discover how certain city employés spend their time and the city's money.

As a result of this investigation, the salary demands of five license collectors have been held up and the collectors themselves have been haled before a court of inquiry consisting of the Finance Committee, the Auditor and a Deputy City Attorney.

During the last three days starchamber sessions have been held by the investigators in the inquisition room in the City Hall garret; the indignation meetings have been held by the employés of other departments at a booze emporium on Spring street. If the Auditor is to be permitted to place Pinkerton detectives on the trail of civil service employés, the regiment of inspectors in the health department might as well disband. An official who would do that would vote a split ticket, they say.

Here are the five deputies whose demands for the month of June are held by the Auditor pending the findings of the Investigating Committee: Guy T. Hill, J. N. Simmons, E. S. Miles, A. T. Leonard and J. O. D. Shearon. They are employed as license collectors under Tax Collector Johnson.

For more than a year the Auditor has protested to the Council against the manner in which licenses are collected; he says the system places a premium on license dodging.

Two weeks ago he secured the services of a Pinkerton detective to discover how the deputies spend their time. When the Auditor received the report he promptly held back the demands of these employés for June salaries and laid the report before the City Attorney and the Finance Committee.

A clause in the charter provides that the Auditor may decline to audit a demand or the city to pay a claim if it can be proved that an employé has not served the city during the whole time named in the demand. The report made by the detective shows that the deputies did not overwork themselves during the last ten days of June.

"The collectors bring in little money

A gross product of 22,000 tons, dried, is worth to the apricot growers, it is estimated, about $1,250,000. This is less than it has been worth in the past when the crop was less, but may be regarded as a minimum for the future, as the crop this year, according to those who have watched it, has had the benefit of little pruning. Consequently it is small in individual size, though first-class in other particulars, in fact its lusciousness seems greater.

Three and a half weeks is the period in which the apricot crop may be gathered. And this year, owing to the late spring coldness, the crop is maturing about four weeks later than ordinarily. This has brought it within the period of a great heat wave and consequently the picking must be prosecuted with celerity if the rapidly ripening fruit is to be brought to the cutters before it spoils.

MARKET WANTS BEST.

The tightness of money during the winter had effect on the apricot crop. The trees were not pruned as was necessary, and consequently the trees are overladen with the golden fruit, and its marketable quality is less than for many years. The commercial world knows the California apricot by four grades—standards, choice, extra choice and fancy. This year the market will have to take standards and choice, although the demand is invariably for extra choice and fancy. As size is the key to the grading and as all the fruit this year is under the normal, the prices will, of course, be for the grades produced. Green fruit, bought by the canners, has brought $15 to $20 a ton. The dried product, which represents one-fifth of the green product because the curing and evaporation reduce it in that proportion, is selling at from 5 to 6 cents a pound and it is on this selling basis that the estimate of $1,250,000 is made on an estimated gross product of 22,000 tons.

The producing region in California (it is the only one in the world of commercial importance) extends from near Sacramento to the southern end of the State. A new feature of the production this season is the fact that very few orchards were sold in May on the trees, as has been the custom heretofore, and the canners have not made large purchases. This season the growers have been required to pick, cut, cure and dry their entire crops, and in the San Joaquin Valley many have permitted their crops to go largely to waste because they did not choose to engage in this work.

ONE OF LARGE RANCHES.

One of the largest growers of Southern California is the Orchardale Fruit Ranch, three and one-half miles west of Pacoima, in the San Fernando Valley. It contains 340 acres of fruit, one-half of which is apricots and which is now being brought to its commercial conditions by 324 persons in the employ of Dr. F. A. Bizzell, proprietor of the ranch. Dr. Bizzell has used every available person in this work and as a result there is near his ranch house a city of ever fifty tents, besides a large permanent bunkhouse to accommodate the employés.

But this is nothing for Dr. Bissell. For many years he was one of the biggest cotton planters in Mississippi, in the delta of that great river near Greenville, where, on 5600 acres, he employed 800 negroes in planting and picking his annual crop. Dr. Bissell came to Los Angeles four years ago and after disposing of his cotton interests

It Takes Them All "Off the Perch."

Interesting views of society riding the human roulette wheel at Redondo, and that "next morning" feeling.

"Oof, oof."

The fat party with the checkered vest relieved his feelings with two grunts that would have done justice to a sea lion. Then he gently rubbed the part of his anatomy that gets hurt most when anything happens.

Then he looked about him. The air was filled with flying humanity. Limbs, twigs and branches were much in evidence. Los Angeles society was having its fling on the human roulette wheel at Redondo Beach, and the fat party forgot his aches as he watched the scene about him.

Of all the wild, dizzy, exciting games of the summer, the roulette wheel has all other forms of amusement beaten a mile.

Old Los Angeles and young Los Angeles have taken to the human wheel with a passion bordering on frenzy. Little trips to the beach are planned and successfully executed by members of the elite during the nights of the week.

"Have you hit the wheel?" says the young man to his girl.

"No," she answers with a blush.

"You'll never learn any younger," he replies, and they start for the beach.

There is a decided directoire gown atmosphere surrounding that wheel. A sheath gown on Broadway would look as lonesome as a Swede sailor at a pink tea compared with the sights on the wheel.

LIKES THE SENSATION.

Once the fever of the wheel, and the victim is lost. He gets the dizzy, shifting sensation deep down in his heart and he can't let go. That is, he can't let go the feeling. He lets go of the wheel every time he hits it, but he likes that sensation.

A smooth, polished wheel, twenty feet in diameter, is in the center of the building. The lights shine directly on that wheel, like the arc lights over a prize-fight ring. Visitors ride the wheel at their own risk. The edge of the big disc rests against a gentle slope. This slope descends to a trough and padded cushions surround the entire ring.

It looks simple enough, but, oh, my, just try it once. The wheel moves slowly, the light, moving and shifting from its polished surface, hypnotizing its victims and drawing them on like a great magnet. You cannot resist. You are like a man standing on a high building and wanting to jump off. You know you have something coming to you, and yet, like a silly little fly, you hold out for a moment or two. Then you jump madly at the wheel.

They all pile on. Gay young men in evening clothes, sun-burned ranchmen, with high-heeled cowhide boots; pretty young women with summery, fluffy clothes, picture hats and eyes full of fun.

THE SLIDING BEGINS.

The wheel begins to move slowly. The victims sit in the middle like a lot of survivors on a barren island. The wheel moves faster. A man slides ever so little from the charmed circle. He is lost. Out toward the edge of the wheel he goes. He tries to hold on. His fingers clutch at the smooth, polished surface of the wheel. No use. He rolls and twists and lies flat on the board. He grunts and opens his eyes wide, and then the wheel shoots him out into space. He lands on the polished surface of the slide and down into the trough.

How he lands is a question to be answered by fate alone. He is sure of getting out with little or no injury. If he lands solid, it is ten to one he eats off the mantelpiece for the next few days.

He generally rolls, lands on his head or on his stomach, and jumps back again.

By that time the charmed circle is broken. The victims are flying in every direction. An old grand-dad, with spectacles perched near the point of his nose, is grasping at the surface of the wheel, while his long beard is executing a war dance among the feet of other victims.

They pile up singly and in bunches. When they bunch, sights are to be seen. The wheel is no respecter of formality.

MANY THINGS BREAK.

If a young woman goes flying, the directoire effect looms into reality. Corset strings break with a pop. Hair pins drop into the trough. Combs and ribbons go sailing into the air, and the young person lands in the trough with her face red and her hair tumbled. She sits there for a moment in bewilderment, and then, with a leap, lands on the wheel again.

A portly woman hit the wheel the other night. She landed in a large-sized chunk. As she landed something broke. She grasped frantically at the wheel, while her eyes started and her mouth opened and shut like a big fish taking water. She held on with a set look of horror in her eyes, but steadily and relentlessly she swung toward the edge of the wheel, and with a last grunt, landed in the trough. Her lingerie had become loosened, and sympathetic young women surrounded her until she got things back in place again.

Spectators with cold feet sit on the outside of the ring and watch and watch and watch. What are they looking at? Are they watching the fat man and the lean man? Are they watching the old grand-dad or the electric lights?

No, dear reader, they are not looking at the fat man or his male friends. They are looking at swishing masses of dimity and linen and dainty slippers and trim-turned ankles, and hoping that the last car won't leave before 2 o'clock.

AUTO VICTIMS KNOWN.

Sufferers in San Fernando Road Accident Were Guests of Chauffeur on Stolen Ride.

The victims of the automobile wreck on the San Fernando road near the city limits, Thursday night, are slowly recovering from their numerous injuries. Though members of the party tried to conceal their identity, the names of the occupants of the car were learned by the police.

Miss Minnie Grace, a vaudeville actress, was one, and was the most severely injured, sustaining a compound fracture of the left leg and other injuries, which will keep her in bed at her apartments, No. 1333 South Hill street, for some time.

According to the story of Miss Grace, she was invited to attend a little riding party Thursday night. C. L. French, a chauffeur in the employ of George I. Cochran, president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, called for the party. D. H. Christie, Miss Alma Christie, his sister, Frank Dolan and another couple went along.

They took a spin out in the country, and on the return the car collided with a telegraph pole and turned turtle. Miss Grace was pinned beneath the tonneau of the car and the automobile had to be jacked up before she was released. Christie sustained a fractured pelvis, and his sister was badly bruised on the face and head. The others escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. Cochran was at the theater, and French, the chauffeur, took the car without his consent. French was hurrying to reach the theater in time to take Mr. Cochran and his family home. The driver was discharged, and Mr. Cochran may prosecute him.

TIRES OF JAIL LIFE.

One of Four Women Socialists Leaves Under Bonds Rather Than Stay for Trial.

Weary of the monotony of jail life, and shocked at the moving things other than human beings she alleges she found in her cell, Mrs. Margaret Bacon, a socialist, awaiting trial on a charge of speaking on the public streets without a permit, yesterday left the jail under bonds.

Mrs. Bacon was one of four women who said they would "rot in jail" rather than put up bail while awaiting trial. Their trials have been set for late in October. Mrs. Bacon is a chronic invalid, and was unable to stand the strain, giving up after three days of prison life.

Mrs. Cloudsley Johns, Mrs. Alice V. Holloway and Mrs. Bertha M. Dailey are the other socialists in jail awaiting trial. They declare they will be there at the finish.

SIXTH-CLASS CITIES.

As chairman of the Organization Committee of a league of sixth-class cities, R. W. Pridham yesterday made his report at a meeting of representatives of the league in the Chamber of Commerce. The report proposes the systematic collection of information on municipal affairs, the exchange of suggestions and to influence legislation for the benefit of municipalities. Another meeting will be held next week to take action on the report.

LOCAL MONEY TO SINALOA.

Company Formed to Take Over Lanphar Ranch, a Plantation in Operation Forty Years.

As a sign of the interest which is taken locally in the fertile lands of Sonora and Sinaloa, the productive coast States of the Mexican republic, the Mexico Mescal & Fiber Company, with a capital of $450,000, has formed by Los Angeles people to acquire the famous old Lanphar plantation, on the south bank of the Fuerte River, in northern Sinaloa. The capital stock is divided into 4500 hundred-dollar shares, of which 3000 are common stock and 1500 six-per-cent. cumulative preferred. The incorporators are David R. Smith, Jr., who has spent the past ten years in the Republic; Dr. Frank M. Connor, of Philadelphia, who has resided here for the past few years and J. C. Odell, formerly of Spokane and Colorado Springs.

The history of the Lanphar plantation dates back forty years, at which time it was acquired by the man whose name it takes, and who has made his periodical home in Los Angeles for many years. Within the time covered by his operations the plantation has gradually been increased to 15,000 acres, divided into table lands suitable for the cultivation of the mescal plant, woodlands, pasture and small farms. The woodlands are covered with mesquite and a variety of other fuel woods, there are hundreds of cattle and livestock on the pastures, while the farms are operated on shares by the natives. An actual survey shows 2,000,000 mescal-fiber plants under cultivation and 750,000 of this number fully matured. A mescal factory with a capacity of 300 gallons a day is in operation on the estate, two fiber machines are running with a daily capacity of 1000 pounds, a general merchandise store is operated in connection with the business and the place is thoroughly equipped with buildings.

Interest in the western Mexican States has been stimulated in a marked degree by the railroad developments which are now opening some of the finest agricultural land in the world to the markets.

A party, consisting of David R. Smith, Dr. Frand M. Connor and J. C. Odell left on the Southern Pacific yesterday afternoon to make the initial arrangements for the improvements which will be undertaken on the Lanphar property.

SCIENTIST OF NOTE HERE.

Head of Massachusetts "Tech" Engineering Department Visits City.

Prof. George F. Swain and wife of Boston registered at the Westminster, yesterday, but left early in the day for Long Beach. The professor for the past twenty-one years has been in charge of the civil engineering department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and consequently is known intimately to hundreds of former pupils, now scattered over the globe. Many of them are holding responsible places on the Pacific slope.

Prof. Swain, who is among America's noted men, has during a busy professional career, written on such difficult subjects as the theory of structure, water-power and forestry. He is known likewise as a bridge builder, his achievements in this line spanning the Connecticut and the Merrimac rivers. Perhaps his most noted services have been in connection with the problem of rapid transit in Boston, an extremely difficult one because of the crooked streets and the complexity of transfer systems. In street-crossing problems Prof. Swain is also an authority. The professor was born in San Francisco, but early went to Berlin—and he never got out of the globe-trotting habit.

THREE OF THIRTEEN.

The Federal grand jury was dismissed by Judge Wellborn in the United States Court yesterday. Three of the thirteen persons indicted were arrested. Most of the indictments are for selling liquor to Indians and for postal frauds. Those arrested are Barney Eckles and Sam Johnson for smuggling liquor over the Mexican border to Indians, and Marie R. Rios for selling liquor to Indians on a reservation.

ANTI-CIGARETTE MEETING.

The Anti-Cigarette Club will hold a sacred song service in a tent at Avenue 61, Garvanza, at 2:30 this afternoon. Persons desiring to attend may take either red or yellow Garvanza cars to Avenue 61.

AMIBITIOUS REPORT OF THE NEW COMMISSION.

Details of Important Proposals for Boulevards in San Diego County. Banker Walker Still at Ensenada. Man Responsible for Big Fire Gives Himself Up.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, July 10.—The newly-created highway commission, in submitting its first report to the Board of Supervisors, unfolds a detailed plan to build a network of boulevards in San Diego county, with the city as the hub from which highways are to radiate through all important sections of the county, including two to connect with Los Angeles.

The report also shows that good progress is being made toward making surveys and estimates. One of the most important highways to be constructed is the coast route direct to Orange county, by way of Rose Cañon, Del Mar, Oceanside and El Toro. The other route selected is by way of Escondido, Bonsall, Fallbrook to Temecula in Riverside county. This road will connect with an improved highway to be built by the Riverside county commission.

Another important link is the construction of a highway to Imperial county by way of the new mining camp of Dulzura and Campo. From the latter place a road will be constructed along the mountain ridges, by way of Descanso, Julian, Ramona, Escondido and on to Oceanside, composing the outer rim of the semi-circle, with the connecting links between spreading out from San Diego. The commission expects to have the surveys completed and all estimates prepared in order to have the matter of bonding the county put up to the Supervisors by November.

NO WALKER.

When the steamer St. Denis arrived from Ensenada this morning, an expectant group awaited it, anticipating that a Pinkerton man would bring up W. F. Walker, the New Britain, Ct., bank treasurer, wanted for absconding. But Walker was not aboard. It is now given out that Walker will be brought here by automobile.

DISCUSS CHARTER CHANGES.

It was the general opinion of business men at a meeting this afternoon that a radical change in the governing powers of the municipality is necessary. The commission plan is favored.

WILL EXHIBIT.

Through efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, at the solicitation of the immigration department of the Santa Fé Railroad, an exhibit of San Diego county products will be made at the National Irrigation Congress to be held at Albuquerque, N. M., September 29 to October 3.

GIVES HIMSELF UP.

Harry Rummel, charged with being responsible for starting a fire which spread for two days over the woods in the valley east of Ramona, today gave himself up to the Federal authorities. He is an employé of Jacobs's apiary and in starting a "smoker" the fire got away from him.

BOTH WANT RIGHT OF WAY.

A clash of interests is to be averted by a conference between Col. Ed. Fletcher and W. A. Kerckhoff, representing the Keller-Kerckhoff railway being constructed to La Jolla; A. G. Spaulding, representing the County Highway Commission, and Councilman Percy Woods and George McNeill, representing the city, who are to settle a dispute as to who controls the right of way on Valley Forge avenue, Morena.

TO INSPECT ARMY POST.

Col. George W. Anderson, inspecting officer for the Department of California, U.S.A., this morning began annual inspection of the post at Fort Rosecrans, which will require three or four days.

THE SUMMER BOY.

They prate about the summer girl,
And illustrate her winnings
With score of wights upon a string,
But now I'll have my innings;
And all this glad leap year I shall
Just prance about with joy—
The summer girl goes back and out,
For I'm the summer boy.
Oh, joy, joy, joy—one year in four
To reign the summer boy!

I'll get me many costumes fine,
Of styles both new and pretty,
And stroll in them upon the beach
When I'm not in the city.
Though skirts grow scant, my trousers shall Take on in each dimension;
A fold about the foot will show
A trail's not my intention.

I'll break the hearts both right and left,
Of all the gay young creatures,
And with a sweetly sorry look
Spread out upon my features,
Will say, when they propose to me,
"I'm sorry that you've spoken;
Our friendship was so sweet a thing
I hate to have it broken."

I'll hie away to practice now
The phrases I'll be using,
When all the joys the season holds
Shall be mine for the choosing.
"This ice cream's lovely"—how is that?
"Oh, yes, Miss Fashion, surely,
I dote on parties—yes, I'll go,"
I'll answer so demurely.

Oh, let me go and pack my trunk
And cram it good and full;
The season's on in this glad year
That gives the boys a pull.
And while I jump upon the lid
Till all my corns are sore,
I'll bless the saints who caused leap year
To come once out of four.

PERLE BLANK.

Los Angeles.

SUDERMAN AND HAUPTMAN.

Dr. Richard Burton spoke yesterday morning at Cumnock Hall on the German playwrights, Suderman and Hauptman. Suderman he classified as a man of letters, skillful in technique, a dramatist primarily, subduing the ethical and spiritual to his art, yet strongly developed on both sides. "Madga," "The Fires of St. John," and "The Joy of Living," he chose to illustrate the versatility of the playwright. Hauptman, Dr. Burton said, was a poet, dreamer, ex-clergyman, and a man of large mental vision. The four great plays of which he spoke individually were "The Weavers," a presentation of the workingman; "Lonesome Lives," which deals with dissolute idlers; "The Sunken Bell," a wonderful fairy play, and "Hannele," the dream play, from which he gave a brief reading.

MOISTURE-TESTER LATEST FOR TRUCK FARMERS.

Local Gardener at Work on Instrument Designed to Measure Wetness of Soil and Thus Determine Necessity for Irrigation—Will Present Plan to Government.

Has Los Angeles a rival of Wizard Burbank of Santa Rosa? It would seem so, if the claims made by Henry Stenerson prove all that on their face they now appear. He has invented a "moisture-tester," he says, so simple in construction that any farmer may make one for himself, and by means of this delicate instrument and a table of moistures at which crops thrive best, under various conditions, the farmer may be assured of double the yield now possible by the ordinary methods of irrigation and fertilization.

Mr. Stenerson has been a lifelong student of agriculture, and is in addition a skillful mechanic, with a bent for invention. He has already had considerable success in the mechanical field, but this is his first effort to reduce truck farming to a science.

"All the land in Southern California, now used for truck farming, is easily worth $2 for $1, if farmed according to the plan that I have in mind," is Stenerson's startling remark. "For many years," he continued, "I have been a patient observer of soils, crops and all that, and delight in nothing more than to see what the gardeners are doing. I have made careful notes of what I have seen, and finally hit on an idea of the 'moisture-farming.'

"There is no reason why farming should be always hit and miss, as it is throughout the world. And of course the truck farmers of Southern California are in the same old rut as are the agriculturists elsewhere. Briefly, my plan is based on the use of the moisture-tester, an invention of my own. As the thermometer is used for measuring heat and cold, so mine is for determining the amount of water in various kinds of soil. So simple is the instrument that in five minutes you may determine accurately the moisture to a depth of six feet.

"No, the instrument is not patented and I have nothing to sell, not at all. It is for the good of agriculture. I never thought of making money out of it, and expect to lay my full plans before the Agricultural Department, at Washington. No doubt the work will be widely commented on, and adopted generally.

"By means of the moisture-tester, a knowledge of soils and amounts of moisture, which I am now studying out, and setting down in the form of comparative tables, it will be possible for any farmer to double his crops without going into expensive fertilizer or anything like that.

"My invention has made it possible absolutely to control the growth of crops and to double their productiveness. Take an experiment I had with potatoes. From one and a half pounds of seed, I raised ninety pounds of excellent potatoes, which is more than twice the usual yield.

"I find that 20 per cent. of moisture is the right amount for potatoes, and without going into technicalities it is enough to say, at this time, that the only care for the farmer is to make moisture tests and to see that the proper amount is in the ground at all times. For radishes I find that 15 per cent. is sufficient and for cabbage about the same amount.

"I have also made another important discovery, in regard to creating a large amount of sugar in plants and fruits. I find that it is not, after all, from the earth, but from the air; and so the problem is simply to provide enough circulation of air. By means of the moisture-tester the problem of farming in Southern California ought to be solved. I am still experimenting on my tables of moisture, and when finished I shall see that they are placed in the hands of the government."

Stenerson says that the amount of moisture varies greatly, even within the distance of half a mile, or less, and too much confidence must not be placed in the actual appearance of the soil. One with 10 per cent. may look very wet, while another soil with 20 per cent. may appear very dry. He is now making careful investigations along this line, also.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

THE STANDARD AT SAN PEDRO.

UNION TO HAVE COMPETITION IN SEA TRADE.

Rockefeller Going More and More After Fuel Business, While Union Invades Refining Field, But Conciliation, Not Antagonism of Producers, Is the Rule.

The Standard Oil Company's 55,000-barrel steel tank at San Pedro from which vessels are to receive fuel, is another evidence of the movement of the great corporation to enter the fuel market in California in direct competition with its rivals, the Union and Associated, in this region particularly with the Union. The latter has hitherto had a monopoly at San Pedro through its pipe line and storage tanks, supplying crude from the southern fields. The Standard will bring residuum from Point Richmond.

In the north the Standard's inroads in the fuel business have been noticed of late. The attention attracted is due not so much to any bad effects upon the business of its opponents, the demand is too great now for that, as to the fact that the Standard should be active at all in that field. For years it left the fuel market very largely to its rivals, selling only small quantities of residuum. A few years ago it came into more direct competition with the Union and a trade war started, since which time the Standard has encroached more and more upon the fuel market, and the Union more and more upon the manufacture and sale of refined products.

POLICY OF FRIENDLINESS.

In all this movement to enter the field hitherto neglected, and left to big rivals the Standard is showing a disposition of friendliness and conciliation toward the producers and the public. Instead of antagonizing it works to get closer to the oil men. With the results of its former policy manifest all over the country in the acts of legislatures, courts and State and national executives, with a steadily growing demand for oil with which the supply above ground is hardly keeping up, and with such a rival as the Union, that is equipped for all competition and that cannot be induced to sell, the Standard evidently realizes that it cannot afford to be too independent. The producer is certain to be one of the most important factors by far in the oil business in California. No company

I find that it is not, after all, from the earth, but from the air; and so the problem is simply to provide enough circulation of air. By means of the moisture-tester the problem of farming in Southern California ought to be solved. I am still experimenting on my tables of moisture, and when finished I shall see that they are placed in the hands of the government."

Stenerson says that the amount of moisture varies greatly, even within the distance of half a mile, or less, so too much confidence must not be placed in the actual appearance of the soil. One with 10 per cent. may look very wet, while another soil with 20 per cent. may appear very dry. He is now making careful investigations along this line, also.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

THE STANDARD AT SAN PEDRO.

UNION TO HAVE COMPETITION IN SEA TRADE.

Rockefeller Going More and More After Fuel Business, While Union Invades Refining Field, But Conciliation, Not Antagonism of Producers, Is the Rule.

The Standard Oil Company's 55,000-barrel steel tank at San Pedro from which vessels are to receive fuel, is another evidence of the movement of the great corporation to enter the fuel market in California in direct competition with its rivals, the Union and Associated, in this region particularly with the Union. The latter has hitherto had a monopoly at San Pedro through its pipe line and storage tanks, supplying crude from the southern fields. The Standard will bring residuum from Point Richmond.

In the north the Standard's inroads in the fuel business have been noticed of late. The attention attracted is due not so much to any bad effects upon the business of its opponents, the demand is too great now for that, as to the fact that the Standard should be active at all in that field. For years it left the fuel market very largely to its rivals, selling only small quantities of residuum. A few years ago it came into more direct competition with the Union and a trade war started, since which time the Standard has encroached more and more upon the fuel market, and the Union more and more upon the manufacture and sale of refined products.

POLICY OF FRIENDLINESS.

In all this movement to enter the field hitherto neglected, and left to big rivals the Standard is showing a disposition of friendliness and conciliation toward the producers and the public. Instead of antagonizing it works to get closer to the oil men. With the results of its former policy manifest all over the country in the acts of legislatures, courts and State and national executives, with a steadily growing demand for oil with which the supply above ground is hardly keeping up, and with such a rival as the Union, that is equipped for all competition and that cannot be induced to sell, the Standard evidently realizes that it cannot afford to be too independent. The producer is certain to be one of the most important factors by far in the oil business in California. No company expecting to do business can ignore him any longer.

The changed conditions referred to all tend, in the minds of most people, to cast renewed doubt upon the idea that the Standard has been recently resorting to trickery to injure properties in order to depreciate their value and then buy them up at cut rates. If it has, it is playing a dangerous game, one that ill fits its professions in other instances. Whatever may have been the case in years gone by the Standard must know that times have changed, and its tactics must change, too. California fuel oil moreover is not and never was like the eastern refining product.

MONEY FOR TEACHERS.

At last the money for the public school teachers of the city of Los Angeles is ready. There are over 1100, and owing to a shortage of the school funds their pay was held up last month. But tomorrow their warrants will be ready, and this will be good news for those who have been delaying their vacations until funds were forthcoming.

TAFT AND SHERMAN.

For President. For Vice-President.

Editorial Pen Points

Bryan's nomination makes things look all the better for John A. Johnson in 1912.

It is too soon to be happy. We still must face the county and other local conventions.

You are to take notice that if your flag does not contain forty-six stars it is not up to date.

Judge Parker said "he would be damned if he'd go to the Denver convention." And he was.

Mr. Bryan was nominated by acclamation and he will be defeated in much the same manner.

The flagstaff on the proposed 909-foot skyscraper in New York will be handy for the airships to tie to.

If Bryan needed a hoodoo (and the good Lord knows he did not,) the nomination of Kern furnished it.

Aside from the noise that Mr. Bryan must be expected to make, this ought to prove a very quiet campaign.

With the Owens River bond issue sold, Los Angeles has no reason or desire to longer postpone prosperity.

The trouble is that most of the boys born this year will be christened William and afterward called "Bill."

Women lawyers may now be pronounced a success. One of them in Chicago recently collected a $30,000 fee.

We will have no war with Venezuela, but we may be compelled to go down there and take Gen. Castro in hand.

There will be no lack of volunteers for the Venezuelan war, for the reason that there will not be a Venezuelan war.

A great many young men hesitate to marry because of the fear that their wives may turn out to be suffragettes.

One of the queerest situations in history is furnished by Venezuela, where a little man is holding back a big country.

A magazine writer says: "A woman must be a diplomat if she hopes to manage her husband." Either a diplomat or an athlete.

John W. Gates has gone to Europe; probably for the purpose of placing a million-dollar bet that Anna Gould will not stay married.

It is said that Mr. Taft never tips any one. But his friends and admirers are giving out a few friendly tips on Mr. Taft's behalf.

There are forty different kinds of whales. There is probably a greater variety of sharks, not to speak of those that inhabit the land.

A fisherman at Gloucester, N. J., in drawing his nets one day last week, pulled up two kegs of beer. Is this what is called "fisherman's luck?"

An eastern scientist announces that he expects to kill off all the houseflies in the world, and yet nobody seems to be paying any attention to him.

The Portland Oregonian says, "The flag stands for memory;" but the trouble is there are so many Americans whose memory cannot go back very far.

It is perfectly proper to speak of "the man of the hour," taking into consideration the fact that he usually does not last much longer, no matter who he is.

Mr. Bryan says he can be elected without the electoral vote of New York State. Mr. Bryan thought the same thing twice before only to wake up later on.

Having kicked the everlasting daylights out of Roger Sullivan and Col. Guffey, Mr. Bryan is now more enthusiastic in the cause of peace than he has ever been.

A prominent Los Angeles business man declines to be a candidate for Congress because it costs too much money. It seems that it is a job that a man must buy.

A new fraternal organization has been formed called the "Benign Brotherhood of Bats." The difference is that the new organization candidly makes the acknowledgment.

Jim Hill's folks announce that they are tired of Europe and propose to live at home hereafter. They will find it much pleasanter to spend their winters in Southern California.

France has two distinct cinches on prosperity which are in themselves sufficient to make a nation rich. One is the fashion in women's clothes and the other is the brand of French champagne.

After having done what he did to the Sullivans and the Guffeys, and also adding to the insult by calling himself Bryan instead of O'Brien—which is really his right name—we don't see where the "Peerless Leader" expects to figure with the Irish vote.

A GREAT SCHOOL CENTER.

Flaming mesas bright with golden poppy cups, orange groves rich in luscious fruits, and similar products of the sun and the soil are not all these lands of invigorating air and blue skies have to boast of. Men grow stronger, women fairer under these favoring influences than elsewhere. Figs, honey and wine were not the things that made Athens famous. The old poetic mountains of Greece breathed inspiration from their changeless, ever-changing peaks. The myriad smiles of the blue Aegean not only made the fig trees bear abundantly, but they also compelled Homer to write his solemn spondees and Sappho to sing in her light trochees the passion of the heart. The bees of Mt. Hymettus still hum; but we turn to the days when the agora echoed to the voice of Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and Sophocles.

The roses still bloom on the walls of Paestum, down south of Naples, but we know more of Italy when Virgil and Horace sang, when Cicero and Tacitus wrote. The verses of the poets, the fiery oratory of the declaimers, the picturesque prose of Livy, all reflect the golden summer days of Italy.

The same influences tinged the brushes of the great painters of Greece and Italy. Isaiah and John the Divine could not have composed their books in the fogs of Boeotia, nor in those of London. Michaelangelo would not have left such rich colorings from his brush if he had lived in Iceland or in Patagonia.

What Greece and Italy were to the ancient and medieval periods of history, California will be to the twentieth century and to America. "The Isles of Greece," which Byron sings about, have no inspiration in overbending sky, in surrounding sea, in uplifted height, that is not renewed here along the golden shores in these lands of the setting sun. Excepting for the "rime of age," Naples and its bay are in no respect more attractive that the coasts of glory that lie all along the calm Pacific, where "league-long rollers" break in music on the strands.

There is an instinctive knowledge of these conditions which is actively at work impressing the civilization just budding into promise in Southern California. There is no community in America, even among the oldest of them, where more attention is paid to intellectual culture. Among our richest possessions already are our private schools and colleges. They are found everywhere fairly crowding one another, yet all prosperous. There is scarcely a religious body that is not represented in Southern California by one or more schools of learning. Some denominations have a complete system of schools from the most elementary kindergarten to the most elaborately equipped university. There are in these connections normal schools where the training of teachers for all the grades is carried on with the same scientific attention to every detail as in the State establishments.

There is hardly a branch of art that is not well represented here in special schools. There are establishments in which special attention is given to teaching on every musical instrument, and the instruction is by masters of high repute. Vocalization receives as much attention as instrumentation. Physiologists claim that the atmosphere of California is tending to a modification of the vocal organs which will make the native sons and daughters of California, and those whose youth is spent here, a race of singers.

There are schools where the dramatic art in all its branches may be learned, and the atmospheric influence which makes the high soprano and the lyric tenor will influence in the same way the voice of the speaker, declaimer and reciter. Greece gave the world Demosthenes and Lysias. Italy gave Cicero. The actors of these countries were no less renowned than the orators. The native sons of California have already won high honors as orators and we have given the world several famous singers. The stage has been enriched by many Californians.

Los Angeles boasts distinction from her noted painters and sculptors. The artistic temperament is very rapidly developed and the number who are seeking to break into the hall of fame by and by is increasing in a geometrical ratio.

Demand always calls out supply. No branch of art lacks its school here, and the teachers are recognized for their great ability. The patronage is so great that it enables these schools to secure the best talent, and the competition is so great that it compels enterprise.

The private schools of Los Angeles and of all Southern California reach out widely for patronage. The inter-mountain States, with their prosperous communities, are not supplied with the elaborate educational systems of older communities. Hundreds of pupils come to Los Angeles to enjoy the high privileges which abound here. From the far-away East come thousands of children in delicate health who are not strong enough to pursue a severe course in study, and whose lives are in jeopardy from excessive cold in winter and heat in summer. This lovely land of ever-temperate climate, sunny skies and balmy air attracts these children from all parts of the country. They come here and become robust, acquire energy and take hold of their studies with vigor, achieving marked success.

These splendid schools of general learning and of special branches of art are destined to make California more famous in the future than the State is now. They will give the coming generation the statesmen, the successful business men, the actors, singers, speakers, authors of the day. The Southern California people will lead all others in their highly developed mental faculties, in their grasp of art and in their skill.

RAIN IN ARIZONA.

The rainfall in Arizona has begun at last, late and much needed. The range cattle have suffered for two months or more. Many have died. The drought has been general all over the Territory. The northern portion has just had a big rain; and now that the wet season has opened, it is probable that there will be rain in the southern portion, too.

It is pitiful to see the dead animals along the railway tracks. The loss to stockmen is great at a time when beef is so dear. Down in the Texas panhandle steers are selling at from $5 to $6.25 per 100 pounds.

GOOD LESSON TO LEARN.

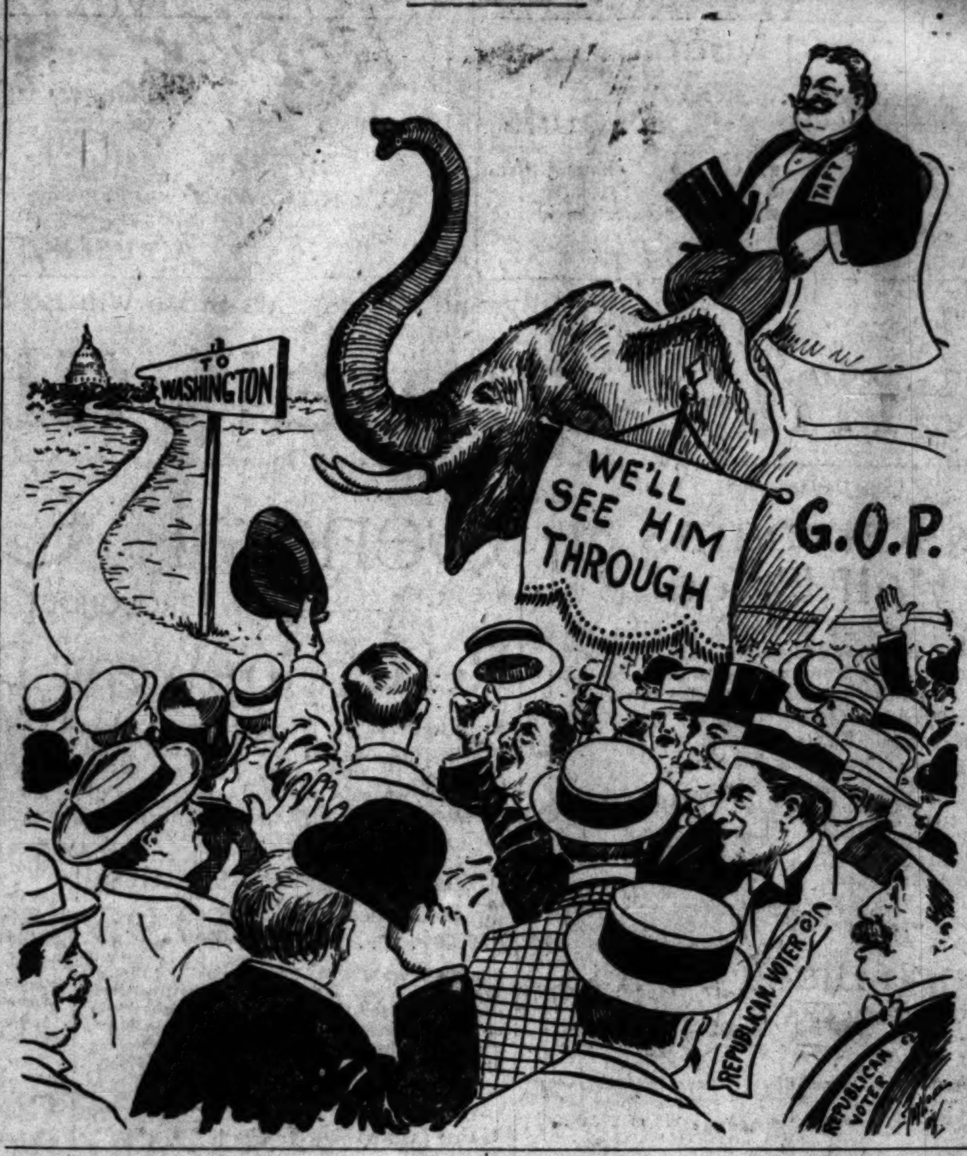
The fundamental cause of the flurry we have been suffering from was typical American extravagance. We were making money fast and spending it faster. Nearly every business man was trying to do five dollars' worth of business with each dollar of capital he had. In our household and personal expenses we were much too lavish.

Now the spendthrifts have to learn the value of money. About one-half of the people who formerly rushed over to Europe are going this year. They are better off in their own country and it costs less to travel here. Many of those who go to Europe would get more pleasure and benefit by coming to California, and it would cost them less money.

The business of the country will be on a sounder basis after we learn that doing business on borrowed money is not so safe as on our own capital, and that due limits should be set to running in debt. In family life we can be just as happy if we live modestly, and our happiness will last longer.

A great many people in the town where she is now sojourning are doubtless disappointed that Carrie Nation did not carry out her threat to tear off the first sheath gown she met.

NOW!



THE GLAMOUR GONE.

While it is doubtless a necessity of the extremely practical age in which we live that the high office of President of the United States has come to be regarded simply as a position to be filled only by a man equipped both mentally and physically for hard work, we regret that it is so. It was different in other days, and they were the days when the country was glorious with achievement.

It is un-American, of course, that the Presidency should be surrounded by any trappings or gewgaws of royalty, and no one desires anything like that, but there was a day when the occupant of the White House was looked upon as a man apart from other men and entitled to a respect that the dignity of his position called for. It never was necessary for the plainest citizen to humble himself before the President, neither was he compelled to pass through lines of troops to reach the Chief Executive of the nation, and yet, in those days, no citizen approached the head of the nation without what might almost be called a feeling of awe.

Gen. Washington, the first President, was a man of stately dignity. His birth and training were quite aristocratic. At the same time he was intensely democratic and no man was farther from the thought of permitting this country to drift into anything approaching a monarchy than he was. As a matter of fact, the first President could, without a very great effort, have declared himself King and there would have been no really serious opposition to the step.

Following Gen. Washington, down the long line of Presidents until these later times, the men who occupied the White House were invariably men who had a keen sense of the honor which the position they held bestowed upon their persons. Even Jefferson, who was democratic almost to bareness, was a stately man and held the dignity of the Presidency with jealous care.

This was as it should be, for the reason that nothing could create a greater exaltation than that one man should be chosen by the free will of all his countrymen to preside over the destinies of the land. It is a dignity far exceeding that which comes to Kings, who acquire the purple by the mere accident of birth. The voice of the people is the voice of God, and when that voice calls one man from among all other men to sit in the seats of the mighty in the chief seat of them all, divinity itself becomes his portion.

It may be all for the best that the Presidents of the future shall appear in the glare of publicity, plain and unadorned; but when this happens we have also lost something which was worth keeping. The American boy of the future who will be reared to look upon the Presidency of the United States merely as a hard-worked man's job, instead of being reared, as his forefathers were, to look upon it as a gift from God such as He conferred upon David in the days of old, is in a manner robbed of a heritage which the Fathers of the republic surely meant to hand down to us.

DOWN ON SUCCESS

One thing at least in the Bryan platform is typical. It is the declaration that any corporation doing an interstate commerce which measures up to a certain percentage of all that business in the United States should be subjected to espionage more or less hostile. This is a peculiar way of dealing with business. In the same school of politics there is a disposition to bear down on any corporation which does half of all a given line of business. So in the income tax law, if one is ever passed, all incomes of less than about $4000 will be exempt.

Those who take these views are strong against fortunes after they reach a certain figure. The amount of wealth which may be held and remain honest is fixed arbitrarily and all above the line is to be made by statute law to bear the mark, "tainted."

You hear it asserted every day by persons of these peculiar ways of construing the commandments and writing on political economy that no person can make a given sum of money in an honest way. If the talents of the speaker are few and he is generally in the "down and out" class he will be sure to put the figure at not over $1,000,000. It is often asserted that no man should be permitted to amass more wealth than this. If the speaker enjoys a great reputation as a defeated candidate for office and is a high-price celebrity on the lecture platform; if he has a weekly paper which will net him $50,000 annually and he is a millionaire political candidate for office, he will move to amend by setting the limit at $5,000,000 or $10,000,000, for the amount of wealth which shall be declared honest by act of Congress.

Some years ago a railroad found its bonded indebtedness in a bad shape. An official took up the matter with a banker and asked him what he would charge to refund the bonds into one issue at a low rate of interest. He said one-eighth of one per cent. The fee came to about a quarter of a million. The railroad man balked. But the president of the road, a man of broad views, thinking the charge more than reasonable, ordered the thing done. In a month the banker collected his fee. His standing in the business world, earned by thirty years of success, made it possible. Why was he not entitled to his fee? Was that money not honest? Four such deals would make a million.

Thirty years ago a business man of this State began to bore for oil in Pico Cañon, near Newhall. He spent a quarter of a million dollars sinking "dry holes," and at last found the oil with his last $10,000 at stake. He made a million out of the field. If he had failed and "gone broke" he would have been honest. Was he dishonest because he succeeded?

An eastern man years ago went into Montana and bought what was thought to be a gold mine. He sank all his money in the venture and found no gold to speak of. With about the last blow of the pick he could finance, a vein of copper of marvelous richness was uncovered. It made the owner a millionaire several times over. Had the mine been a failure and left the owner a beggar he would have been an honest man, a model of all the virtues! He has used his money to build railroads over desert wastes, and in other enterprises which have given many an opportunity to earn their bread. But because he has succeeded he has to be branded as an "undesirable citizen" and a "menace to our civilization."

Ten years ago two citizens of Los Angeles, successful developers of oil in the local field, went into the San Joaquin Valley and sank a fortune boring for oil in the Coalinga field. They failed and were honest men. Later, a man who knew nothing about oil sank a hole and "struck it rich" the first time. He and his associates made more than a million. Is their fortune tainted just because they succeeded?

Ten men go into the retail grocery business and nine of them lack persistence, or energy, or business skill, and fail. The other sticks to his business, does it right and prospers. The city grows and his business becomes large. He makes $50,000 a year. He puts a few thousand into an oil field with others and it makes millions. The nine failures are admirable people, the salt of the earth, worthy of all honor and confidence. The tenth is to be branded as a dangerous person, because he has succeeded.

Such sentiments are natural in the minds of Debs and other socialists. They are abominable and dangerous coming from men who claim to stand for the laws of the country, and for what is right and sane. The "Appeal to Reason" may preach doctrines like this; but when newspapers that profess to stand for the highest there is in our civilization talk such rot the public mind is in danger of being poisoned. Emma Goldman may mouth this false doctrine; but it does the cause of Christianity much injury when preachers stand up in pulpits and preach this "doctrine of devils."

HOROSCOPE.

Sunday, July 12, 1908.

By none but kindly constellations blest
In peace serene should pass the day of rest.

Harmonious and fitting peace is betokened for this 194th day by the happy configuration of kindly planets. The moon, at its lowest, is on the descending node. Mars enters Gemini victoriously.

Placidity is all that the skies hold. There is neither promise for endeavor nor inducement for enterprise or undertakings of any great magnitude. All influences, save those for peace and rest, are negative.

Short journeys, friendly visits, modest amusements are all under the favoring mild signs of the period.

This day, however, ushers in a period of turmoil that will last till the end of the moon. During its rule, there is menace of serious unrest to the east of the United States. Storms on the Atlantic Ocean and political disturbances in Europe appear in the signs.

This is a favorable time for "feathers and fins."

Women with this birthdate should have a happy, comfortable year, gain some new and delightful friends, and enjoy good health.

Benefits from strangers and profits from an unexpected happening should come to men with this birthdate.

Children born today are under a sign that is held to foreshadow disappointment in love but prosperity in worldly concerns. Girls will probably gain the respect of great and influential people and enjoy unusual prosperity in their 19th and 27th years. If they marry, it will probably be in their 19th or 24th year. Boys will meet with success in their 27th, 33rd and 39th year. They will gain through the good will of others, but only if they have prepared themselves well for great responsibilities.

GOD IN ALL THINGS.

[From "California: Where Sets the Sun."]

O God in all things! We may see
His glory in the sky and tree,
In mountain heights that round us rise
As they were kindred with the skies;
In the wide vales below them spread,
In the vast Ocean which is fed
By countless rivers which do run
From every clime beneath the Sun
To fill its deeps. All things we see
Are voiceful of the Deity.

How wondrous is each tiny blade
Of grass which God's own Hand hath made
How perfect is each swaying leaf,
How marvelous the golden sheaf
Of ripened grain; like diamonds rare
The shining dewdrops everywhere;
And then the bird-song and the flowers,
The glorious sunlighted hours,
And afterward the starlight Night
Which opes immensity to sight.

And Man! The image of his maker he,
The offspring of the Deity!
His deathless and undying I
Unfolding through Eternity.
Oh, to be Godlike, to be true!
It is the highest he can do.
And through this way his pathway lies
Towards life's own high infinities.
Child of Today, yet he at last Shall know the fullness of th' endless Vast.

"THERE is more owing her than is paid; and more shall be paid her than demand."

Anna Gould is unquestionably a little craft that drifted into turbid waters because she had no steady to anchor to. To prophesy her future, one would not need a horoscope so much as that of the man she ties to. If the Prince for her, she will enjoy the sunny of life with him; if it is Jay money for which he cares, her with him may be reckoned the rise and fall in value of the she represents. But whatever her faults or her foolishness, are many who wish her well as she goes bumping along over life's with her strange foreign craft. gone by once, when Yellow entered a certain southern city master, Death, Jay Gould, not a citizen of the place, forward generously with thousands of dollars for the people in their and so there will always good wishes for his children—and hopes that Anna will find in her marriage the happiness she had since her girlhood days.

in the Children's Playground.

There is no measure probably touching the welfare of our city that should better results than the generous purposed for children's public playgrounds.

To insure these good results, I while yet most of these playgrounds are in perspective, that a watch be kept to insure their from certain restrictions that likely to be attempted by a class who are always ready, and willin' to get on such committees, and who are usually irreverently alluded to as "old hens"— by the way, are not limited to feminine gender, and who will rest, if given a say-so, until have imposed such strict rules regulations that only the Prissy and the embryo prigs will be enjoy themselves in the playgrounds.

A hint of what might be expected, time ago certain kindly souls got an entertainment for the Los Angeles newsboys. A short-sighted donor a few cakes of chewing gum of confections for the occasion. The howl of indignant protest by certain of the committee in should be sufficient enlightenment as to what changes a real live boy would have to make in himself to muster with such people. The they would impose, from I know of boys, would be about pleasant to the average youngster a straitjacket. The experiment has proven that if the old have their way, the boys will show themselves dissatisfied with in the appointed playgrounds, and seek places where there liberty.

Laws.

From a mathematical standpoint, is said to offer the only example wherein one from one makes Whatever the financial outlook be, however, the divorce mill grinds steadily on, never seeming to know a dull season, never lacking grist either in the number of people unhappily joined together, or the number of causes alleged for their separation. I cannot but smile sometimes at the of the bigwigs both of forum and pulpit who, in foolish protest against divorce, clamor for more stringent laws. From what oblique angle they get the idea that unhappy marriages can be made happy, or his regard for its obligations both husband and wife to strive for the other's happiness and the comfort and peace of the family, can be and corrected by such I fail to understand. It seems to me it would be as sane for a to rivet the irons on his criminals an effort to improve the morals of community.

The remedy lies far deeper than the of a law. Do you suppose that the laws Congress could pass or uphold would have made the cats of Kilkenny become peaceable and loving inmates of the same Yet the framing of laws the Kilkenny cats would be as effective as if framed contentious, quarrelsome, law- humans.

That he does not as he did not in the days when made his record for pure charity, go spliced fore and aft between proclaiming his good intentions.

The Automobile and the Pedestrian.

An automobile on a rampage is a menace to the life and safety of the people along the public thoroughfares, needing only a reckless to arouse fear, create panic, leave death in its wake. Yes, without doubt an awful thing for people who certainly have a to be on the streets, to be hurt And yet—— afternoon about 6 o'clock, a came tooting along in his big car on Fourth street toward Broadway from Spring. He was plainly in a hurry, looking neither to right to left, but threading his way as as he could through the crowded thoroughfare, until he stopped at Broadway beside a street car from which passengers were alighting, and though his manner showed his eagerness to be on his way, a couple of ladies of the kind I am sure who "never forget their manners," who got off the car with a basket, stopped right in front of him and stood there each insisting, a la Gaston and Alphonse, on carrying the little basket, that a puppy could have trotted off with, in spite of his insistent toot-toots and the convenience of other passengers who made a detour around them to get on and the car, until under a belated inspiration each grabbed the handle and turned toward the sidewalk. Meanwhile the sympathy of the smiling crowd would have been with the chauffeur if he had not too bumptiously bumped into them. All of which to the theory that perhaps automobiles have two sides like everything else.

How Do You Pronounce Los Angeles?

Thank goodness, Mr. Lummis hasn't the spelling of the name of our city, which I have been afraid to aloud for a month, lest the con- of some zealous partisan be to wordy rebellion, and he proceed to spring a new way of pronouncing the Los or the Ang, the el, or the I don't like to fight, especially in hot weather, but this thing got to be settled in some way for the sake of the mental and moral health of the citizens and sojourners.

Self-preservation is the first law of nature, if it is a devilish mean one, and when The Times kindly promised to add to the deluge "opinions from many more very high sources," I made up my mind to go to the beach. But realizing that it wouldn't do a bit of good to go anywhere with wheels in one's head, I threaded the labyrinth as far as my thread would go, and have fully decided to throw in my lot with no less a personage than Prof. Aurelio Espinoza, and on his authority will henceforth leave the "o open" and refrain from using the "pure velar n," all of which I am sure is perfectly proper. Please remember that I have put my thumb to this, and if anybody near my size attempts to hand me a single word that look argumentary on the subject, I shall promptly hand him one.

Every Tub on Its Own Bottom.

The Times Magazine in a recent issue, in quoting Dr. S. Wier Mitchell as saying that he saw nothing of "Eddyism" in the success of several "imperative suggestions" he had noted, struck the keynote of the opposition I have long expected orthodox Christianity to offer against the religion introduced to the public by its able founder under the catchy title "Christian Science," which has probably as many devotees already as if it were in sober verity the spiritual evolution, or science, of Christianity, that its name purports it to be.

I have never understood why no leader among the orthodox Christians has instituted the method that would be the first to suggest itself to a business man whose long established business was seriously interfered with by a new enterprise which had assumed his firm name and was offering goods with all sorts of attractive premiums in his territory. He might or might not investigate the quality of the goods offered by his rival, but he would so bestir himself to stop the use of his name.

Without bias, I regard the name "Eddyism" as not only due to its founder, but as the only name heretofore suggested under which Mrs. Eddy's rules for mental healing could, without fraud or willful deception, claim a place among the approximately six thousand religions that have followers among the sons of earth.

RUEF AT LIBERTY—AND WHY.

[From the Argonaut.]

It is not often these days that we have a chance to commend anything appearing in the Call. It is therefore with especial satisfaction that we call attention to a cartoon which appeared on the editorial page of that paper on Tuesday morning of the current week with reference to the release of Abraham Ruef from the County Jail under bail. The drawing depicts the outlet of a sewer, from the depths of which a slimy and unclean cat connected by a frayed rope about its neck to a brick has been lifted by a scavenger's bucket. The cat, along with other marks of loathsome import, bears a distinct likeness to Ruef. "Bailed Out" is the caption of this very striking picture.

The circumstance is, indeed, sufficiently suggestive to inspire an expression instinct with many forms of disgust. It is all the more offensive when it is remembered that the securities put in pledge to secure Ruef's liberty are chiefly the product of his notoriously infamous career. Out of the loot gathered by this unspeakable scoundrel, apparently, he has safely stowed away something more than a round million of dollars. And this money now enables him to buy his release from jail.

Who is to blame for the fact that after two years of pretentious procedure this vile criminal is again at liberty? Not Judge Murasky, for he only followed the law. Not the law, for its provisions are a product of time-tested and time-honored principles essential to the protection of innocence. The responsibility lies rather with those who, seeking private and malicious ends by means outside the law, have so botched and butchered this whole case as in effect to nullify the plainest provisions of the law. If the pretended prosecutors had cut out private malice, if they had not trafficked with Ruef for incriminating evidence against others, if they had not bargained with him for immunity and in fact given him many months' exemption from imprisonment—if they had proceeded against him promptly and vigorously when time and tide served—he would long before now have been behind the bars at San Quentin, and there would have been no discreditable breakdown of justice as evidenced today by the circumstance that Abraham Ruef, with all his crimes on his head, walks the streets of San Francisco a free man. The breakdown of the prosecution as related to Ruef, the arch scoundrel in this whole vast scheme of corruption and infamy, is a direct result of that system of pretense, falsehood and chicane which has marked this procedure from the beginning.

As they behold Abraham Ruef walking the streets of San Francisco, Messrs. Spreckels, Phelan and Heney, if they have in them any capacity to see things in their true meaning, will hang their heads in shame, for it is due to them that he is free. It is they who have brought about this outrageous consequence. It was they who, with the fullest possible knowledge of his guilt and with the fullest evidence against him in hand, pledged him immunity from final punishment with assurances that he should not be confined "in any prison" and that he should have leave to retain the loot which now serves to guarantee his freedom. The newspaper organs of this precious trio are making much of Ruef's release under bail as a gross outrage. Gross outrage it is; but is Ruef's release under bail a grosser outrage than that grant of immunity pledged under private contract over the signatures of the prosecution and about which the prosecutors lied and lied in private and in public? Was Ruef less guilty, was he less worthy of clemency, in May, 1907, when the immunity contract was signed and sealed, than today? Is immunity as a private and secret arrangement, contracted for in the spirit of bribery and denied in the spirit of fraud, a more grievous outrage against justice than release under bail by process of law?

Really, this whole wretched business seems less excusable the more it is analyzed. There is no aspect of it at which decency does not heave in rage and revolt.

For Sprained Ankle.

As usually treated, a sprained ankle will disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may be effected in many cases in less than one week's time. This liniment is a most remarkable preparation. Try it for a sprain or bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords.—[Adv.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The city has finished the fiscal year with a surplus of $100,000 in the treasury; this will go for permanent improvements in the fire department.

The latest proceeding in seventeen months' litigation over a bill for $51 was the examination of Will C. Prather as a judgment debtor in Judge Monroe's court yesterday.

Mrs. Edna L. Wright, a daughter of Prof. T. S. C. Lowe, appeared in Judge Monroe's court yesterday to secure a divorce from E. R. Wright on the ground of non-support.

Attorneys J. C. Calhain and Gesner Williams were fined by Justice Pierce yesterday for contempt of court, after a fist fight.

AT THE CITY HALL.

SURPLUS FOR FISCAL YEAR.

HUNDRED THOUSAND NEST EGG IN TREASURY.

Money Will Be Devoted to Building and Equipping Fire Houses. Health Department Expenses for Year About Double the Budget Appropriation—Retrenchment?

The city has finished the fiscal year with a surplus estimated at $100,000; it is beginning the new year unhandicapped by a $350,000 deficit in the outfall sewer fund, as was the case last year, and the estimated revenue from taxes and licenses alone is $3,500,000. Al this money can be used for current revenue expenses, but it is expected that at least $150,000 of it will go for permanent improvements for the fire department.

The records in the office of the Auditor show that the municipal departments have kept nearer within their appropriations this year than ever before. This is due to the new system of accounting now used in the Auditor's office, and to the team work of the Auditor and the Finance Committee in keeping the departments within due bounds.

As usual, it is the health department that has broken away farther than any of the others; the expenses of this department for the year are just about twice the budget appropriation. For half of this the department is not to blame, as an expense of $21,000 was incurred under direction of the Council for last winter's clean-up crusade.

The appropriation for the year was $58,000, and the expenses will total about $116,000. The Council was forced to set aside an additional $4320 last Monday to pay bills in the health department.

Three other departments received additional appropriations Monday to fill holes in cash drawers; these appropriations were as follows:

Police departmeint, $5568.51, street department, $2489; garbage, $2360. The total appropriations for depleted funds last week were $14.584.

WAITS FOR HARPER.

PEASE NO KNIGHT ERRANT.

Acting Mayor Pease declined yesterday to start any reform crusades during the few weeks that he will be in the Mayor's chair. He received a communication from City Prosecutor Woolwine addressed to "Mayor A. C. Harper," and promptly turned it over to Secretary Kennedy to guard until Mayor Harper returns home from his trip East.

The Mayor secured a three weeks' leave of absence to attend the Elk carnival at Dallas, Tex. He expected to return in two weeks, but it now appears that he may be in the East a month.

The Board of Public Works wants to get hold of the money for the bonds sold Friday just as soon as possible. The bond certificates are now being printed in New York City, and the Mayor has been requested by telegraph to proceed to New York direct from Dallas in order to sign the bonds there. As the securities are to be delivered to the bond syndicate in New York, this will mean a saving of about three weeks in time.

LIKE TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT.

HUNDREDS SPENT AND BLOOD LET FOR SMALL BILL.

Fifty-one-Dollar Account Responsible for Seventeen Months of Litigation, Fist Fight, Fine and Much Ill Feeling, and End Not Yet in Sight.

A perjury charge made in open court, a fist fight at the door of Judg Monroe's courtroom, Friday afternoon, between Attorney George H. Kelch and Will C. Prather, a consequent battery charge in the Police Court Saturday morning, when Kelch paid $5 fine, seven court hearings in seventeen months at an expense of hundreds of dollars, much ill-feeling and more court hearings in prospect—these are some of the results of an attempt by the Carpenter & Biles Mill and Lumber Company to make Will C. Prather pay a bill of $51 for building material. He refuses to be held responsible.

Prather and his wife were summoned to appear before Judge Monroe Friday afternoon for examination as judgment debtors, and Mrs. Prather did not appear. Her husband stated that she had not been informed by the court at the continuance, three weeks ago, that she must be present. He was informed that her appearance was implied in the proceedings against her.

Then Prather stated that the judgment against him had been obtained by perjured testimony, and he intimated that Attorney Kelch, who has conducted the litigation against him for seventeen months, had a hand in the matter. The court refused to hear anything further on this line and granted a continuance until Saturday morning, notifying Prather to see that his wife appeared at that time.

As Prather and Kelch left the court room, words were exchanged between them outside the door, and Kelch admitted in Police Court yesterday, when he pleaded guilty to a battery charge, that he gave Prather several punches on the head. Prather grabbed a spittoon, and rushing into the courtroom with this article in his hand and blood on his face, appealed to the court for protection, saying that Kelch had assaulted him. Judge Monroe advised him to apply to the District Attorney, who sent him to the Police Court.

Prather stated yesterday that he has no property; that his wife's sister, Kate P. Smith, in whose name stands a Meadow Park lot, went to Washington in December and has not been in Los Angeles since; that Mrs. Mary A. McDonald, who deeded the lot to W. R. Green, who deeded it to Kate P. Smith, was the same person as Mrs. Smith.

When his attention was called to a $2000 mortgage placed on the lot by Mrs. Smith, acknowledged and bearing Prather's notarial seal, dated April, he said that he had sent the document to Washington for Mrs. Smith's signature.

In August, 1907, the Carpenter & Biles Mill and Lumber Company got $51 judgment in Justice Stephens's court against Prather on a bill for building material, furnished and used in his house in November, 1906. His written guarantee of the bill was produced in court. He asserted that he had paid for the stuff through a contracting firm, one of whose members denied this.

The case was appealed to the Superior Court, and Judge Monroe, in October, 1907, decided adversely to Prather. Then the latter's sureties on his appeal bond were sued in the justice court and also examined in supplementary proceedings, but without financial result.

LAWYERS USE FISTS.

PAY FINES FOR CONTEMPT.

An argument between Attorneys J. C. Calhain and Gesner Williams over a question of law developed into a fist fight in Justice Pierce's court yesterday. Each delivered three good punches before four deputy constables separated them.

Deputy Constable H. G. Wright received a blow in the back and a rap on the head with a chair, but was not hurt by the "love taps."

The controversy arose in the examination of a witness in supplementary proceedings. A citation had been issued at Calhain's instance for two of his debtors, and it was suggested that a garnishment should have been issued against them instead.

Calhain remarked that he would bring another action and give Williams a chance to earn another fee, to which Williams retorted that if Calhain is in the habit of following such a "diabolical practice" as bringing a multitude of actions to increase litigation, he is not.

"I am not either," interjected Calhain.

"You are a —— liar," retorted Williams. Then the fight began.

When order had been restored, Justice Pierce fined each attorney $10 for contempt, and remarked: "If you think that this place is an arena for prize fights, you are mistaken. But if you men want to settle this difficulty outside after court proceedings are over, the court will act as referee."

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE.

DAUGHTER OF PROF. LOWE.

Mrs. Edna L. Wright, a daughter of Prof. T. S. C. Lowe, appeared before Judge Monroe, yesterday, to secure a divorce from E. R. Wright, a New York broker, with whom she has not lived for the past four years.

The plaintiff testified that, four years ago, her relatives in California paid her fare to the West as she was in ill-health. She said that for some time her husband sent her a monthly allowance but that he long since ceased to contribute to the support of herself or of their two children, whose custody she asked. The Lowe family has provided for her and the children.

Plaintiff's counsel stated that Wright is addicted to the moderate use of liquor.

The court continued the hearing until Monday morning, that corroborative evidence may be introduced.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

RECOVERS. A jury in Judge Monroe's court, yesterday, returned a verdict for the plaintiff in Frank X. Neher's suit against Homer A. Hansen, former president of the Humboldt Brewing Company of Arizona, to recover $1650, which, Neher said, he had invested in stock on Hansen's fraudulent representations.

MINING EXCHANGE SUED. J. P. Coyne, as assignee of the Los Angeles Planing Mill Company, yesterday filed in the Superior Court a suit against the Los Angeles-Nevada Mining Exchange to recover $1257, alleged unpaid balance on material for the refitting of the quarters in the H. W. Hellman building.

EQUALIZATION. Representatives of the Western Fuel Gas and Power Company appeared before the Board of Equalisation, yesterday, and asked that the assessment of $5040 on its plant and franchise be reduced to $1790. The matter was submitted. John D. Hooker was allowed a 10 per cent. reduction on a $90,000 valuation on two lots in the Downey tract.

INCORPORATIONS. Articles of incorporation were filed with the County Clerk, yesterday, by the Sanitary Compartment Washing Machine Company, capital stock, $25,000; the Port Orange Oil Company, capital stock, $200,000, and the Western Mechanical Works, capital stock, $25,000.

LIVELY LIFE. Mrs. Anna Pohl was granted a divorce from Harry B. Pohl on the ground of cruelty in Judge Monroe's court, yesterday. She testified that frequently, since her marriage in 1904, he had beaten her and she had been compelled to leave him. One evening, a few weeks ago, he came to her mother's house intoxicated, routed her out of bed, beat and choked her in the hall, and raised a neighborhood disturbance. Chasing her with a butcher knife, threats to kill and charges against her character were incidents of their home life, according to the woman's story. She was granted a decree.

FALSE PRETENSES. After two hours' deliberation, John La Pique was adjudged guilty by a jury in Judge Jamison's court, yesterday, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from Baptiste Camgros. The latter paid $100 on a lot in the Corcoran tract on La Pique's false representation that he was agent for the property. The defendant, who acted as his own attorney, conducted his case with unusual adroitness. He will be sentenced Friday.

ALL EYES ON TAFT.

Popular With Congress.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Mr. Taft is likely to have more personal influence with Congress than President Roosevelt has. He is not likely to handicap himself by his mannerism. On the contrary his poise, self-control and geniality have already made him personally popular with Congress. He is known to be determined and not to be moved when occasion demands, and he has proved on more than one occasion his persistence. But he is patient and tolerant and tactful. Where Roosevelt has afforded opportunities for charges of encroachment and officiousness Taft will be likely to escape such accusations, not only because his methods will be less irritating to Congressional pride but because his respect for constitutional limitations will be assumed. His methods will be rather those of McKinley and of Lincoln. He is in fact likely to grow in popularity with Congress with each succeeding year of his administration, as he will with the country, as his exceptional strength and sweetness of character, his companionableness and his remarkable ability become more widely known and appreciated. A President possessed of the wisdom and force that Taft has displayed, popular with Congress, and backed by popularity in the country at large, ought to accomplish great things.

Admirably Prepared.

Kansas City Times: Never before has any party in this country named for the Presidency a man more admirably prepared for office by training and experience or more strongly backed by accomplishments than is Secretary Taft. He is a great judge. He is a great diplomat. He is a great executive. He understands business and business conditions. He has done great things, and he has done them easily, expeditiously and without friction.

Is Not Afraid.

St. Paul Dispatch: The Secretary of War has made the name of Taft seem a synonym for tact, but that quality, which is simply the use of a cool head, is only one of the reasons for his success and popularity. He has not been afraid to do what he thinks right, as in the 1905 Ohio campaign, when he fought the machine politicians of his own party and seemed to put himself out of the reckoning for future honors.

A Good American.

St. Louis Times (Ind.): "Taft the Builder" is a good Republican, but he is first of all a good American, trained statesman, tried and true executive, optimist extraordinary.

A Man Who Will Grow.

Senator Depew: Taft is a man who will grow on the country as few nominees for the office of President have ever done. The country has not yet grasped the two wonderful elements of this man's character—his winning personality and his thorough equipment for the office. He is a past master in colonial policy, which is our weak point, and has discussed this policy with foreign potentates. In the management of the friars' land question in the Philippines he displayed a high conception of diplomacy, and his administration of the islands was a measure of executive ability which has not been exceeded. In this respect Lord Cromer stands at the head of diplomats, by reason of his work in Egypt, but Taft accomplished the same thing in less time and with a more difficult people.

Will Not Be Hurried.

Boston Transcript: Mr. Taft is not one likely to be hurried from mature consideration by a "popular noise." Neither is he apt to confound a "popular noise" with a justifiable popular demand. Elected President, we are confident that he will prove himself a most acceptable Executive, respectful of the Constitution and of the great precedents of American action.

Compared With Bryan.

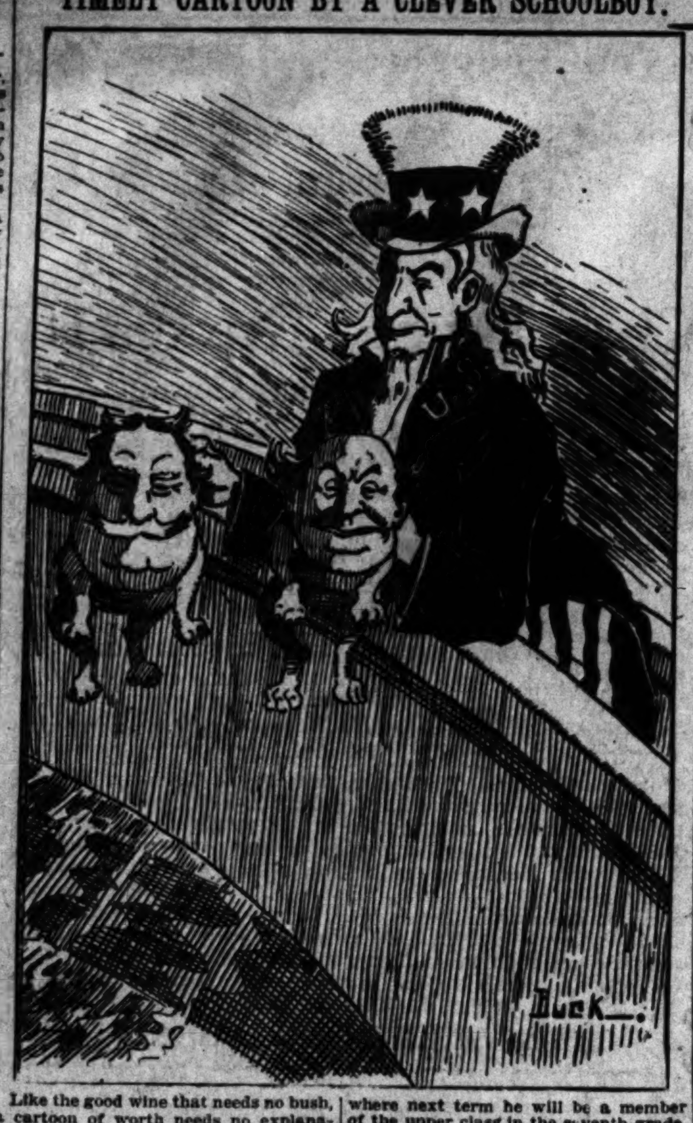
Washington Star: Mr. Bryan's experience in office is limited to two terms in the House of Representatives. He failed at the bar. He achieved no distinction in journalism. His only success has been as a platform speaker. His power over a crowd is extraordinary, but passes immediately. His words do not linger and compel hearers to action. And this is the man the State would put in the highest seat of the mighty.

Judge Taft, but a year or so older than Mr. Bryan, has served as a judge of the State Court in Ohio, as collector of internal revenue, as Solicitor-General of the United States, as a Circuit Judge of the United States, as Governor-General of the Philippines, and as Secretary of War. He is one of the best lawyers in America. Not a failure is charged against him, while his successes have been so signal he is regarded as his party's best asset.

Races.

Bicycle and motor races every Sunday, 1:30 prompt. Seal Garden. General admission, 25c.

TIMELY CARTOON BY A CLEVER SCHOOLBOY.



Like the good wine that needs no bush, a cartoon of worth needs no explanatory lines, and the accompanying effort tells its own tale. Earl has seized upon the nomination of Taft and Bryan by their respective parties, and, as his cartoon shows, pictures each candidate as a newly-born puppy. Uncle Sam holds them fondly, pondering as to which shall be drowned in the pool, and which shall be retained. But the clever picture story would be incomplete if something were not told of the one responsible for it. The cartoon is the work of Earl Buck, a 15-year-old schoolboy of No. 701 East Sixth street, who attends the Boyd-street school, where next term he will be a member of the upper class in the seventh grade.

Earl is unusually apt at drawing, as the cartoon indicates, and, what is more, his young mind is fertile with ideas, the real point of any cartoon. With this rare combination of ideas and an ability to draw, he has produced much excellent work, though this is the first of his efforts to appear in a newspaper. Experienced artists who have gone over the boy's productions with a critical eye are amazed at the progress he has made with no training in this special branch and they predict a bright future for him in the event that he continues his study and practice.

Protect Your Furs and Woolens

In a Moth-Proof Cedar Chest, Chiffonier or Wardrobe Couch

It is the most practical and economical way of all---for besides providing absolute protection from moths, such a piece of furniture is useful and in fact, indispensable in the home every day in the year.

THE CHIFFONIERS are specially made for storage purposes. The drawers are cedar-lined and absolutely moth-proof and are made extra deep, and long enough to admit a full length dress skirt without folding.

The chiffonier here illustrated may be had in bird's eye maple, mahogany or golden oak.

THE MOTH-PROOF CHESTS are substantially made of solid cedar, beautifully finished. We have them in various sizes priced all the way from $7.50 to $28.50.

THE CEDAR-LINED WARDROBE COUCHES are exceedingly practical. They have all the comfort and beauty o the exclusive couch and at the same time, afford commodious storage capacity that is positively moth-proof.

Our collection of these moth-proof pieces is so complete as to meet every demand and the values we offer are thoroughly typical of this establishment. Every price is as low as the quality can possibly allow.

A few of these pieces are shown in one of our windows this week.

SARTORIAL.

ENGLISH COUSINS ILL-DRESSED.

AMERICAN MAKES FUN OF HYDE PARK CHURCH PARADE.

Explodes Tradition That Britishers Are Best Clothed Men in World. Suits and Hats Represent All Periods—Latest Gait of Gilded Youths and Imitators Described.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 1.—Theoretically, at least, the sartorial world revolves around Hyde Park. If we are to take without a liberal quantity of salt all that is written by the shabby young English journalist, who "sports" two new suits a year, whether or not he needs them, Hyde Park is a cinematograph of fashions masculine. It is the court of last resort. Without its illuminating example the world would revert to a species of barbarism. Here, the same authority will tell you, you will find "the best-dressed men in the world."

In reality, these effusions of the "genius of the pen" are all humbug.

What Hyde Park has to show to the earnest seeker after the last word in masculine mode on week days, it is on a Sunday morning that it surpasses itself. The "Hyde Park Church Parade" takes rank with the British Museum and Westminster Abbey as one of the sights of London. The average Yankee visitor is keen to see this spectacle. Ten chances to a mere miserable, unimportant one he has been brought up to believe that the British are a nation of animate fashion plates. The Englishman, in the mind of the average American who has never visited John Bull's little island, creases his pajamas up the sides and front and cannot sleep unless they are turned up at the bottom. When the citizen from the West comes to London, he is surprised to see a street crowd that looks like nothing so much as a march of the unemployed in his home town, and which could not arouse envy in the breasts of a Coxey's army.

But in Hyde Park we hope for better things. Our English friends tell us to "wait," and the few days between the admonition and the following Sunday are relieved by a pleasant anticipation. It struck me as passing strange that the Englishman should reserve all his clothes and style for a Sunday morning stroll in the park after church. But I swallowed my doubts, so to speak, put on the new gray Sunday suit I had brought across the ocean with me, and sallied forth of a bright Sabbath morning with mine English host, prepared to gape and marvel at the elite.

If we are to accept the authority of the Hyde Park "dandy," the eminently proper things in gaits at the present moment is what is known as the "Bond-street walk." It is named after a famous street of the English metropolis, which is the favorite afternoon strolling place of England's gilded youths. These yellow-hued individuals have abandoned the heel-and-toe stride so popular heretofore, and now walk on the flat of their feet. This by no means easy feat necessitates a slight stoop of the shoulders, and combined with a fixed, blank expression of the eyes, a monocle, a half-open mouth and one arm extended supporting a cane, makes up a figure that cannot be anything but impressive to the ordinary observer. One is certain, at a glance, that the man must be the son of a duke or, at the very lowest possible estimate, the heir of a marquis. Of course, there is something familiar about the face that juzzles one until he remembers the necktie that he bought the day before, and the obsequious clerk who waited upon him.

Next to the walk, the thing that most impressed me at the "Church Parade" was the build of the young men. The English youths look like real men who have sadly gone to seed. One wonders what has become of the "roast beef of Old England." Surely there is none of it in the hollow chest of he mannikin who falls past us with his peculiar gait. No wonder the suffragettes threaten to own the country and frighten the Cabinet ministers out of several years of growth.

I have heard men complain of the fact that there was so little choice vouchsafed to a mere man in the matter of headgear. To all such hereafter I will advise a morning in Hyde Park. I would not dare attempt to put a number limit on the different kinds I saw there. It seems to me, as I look back, that there must have been fifty-seven varieties of high hats alone. I am sure that every shape, quality and color of tall hat that ever made its bow to the public had at least one representative on that particular Sunday morning. My grandfather has a high hat that I thought held the age record, but I saw many that I am sure could father it.

There were tall hats and little short high has. There were those that rose straight from the brim to the top. There were those that sloped in and then out again in beauty symmetrical curves, and there were those that sloped in and never came out again. The Englishman of a certain class must have a high hat. Give him that kind of a headgear, a frock coat, a pair of spats and a cane, and he doesn't care how the rest of his person is garbed. Some of those who don't possess real top hats wear the collapsible opera hat. Of course, an opera hat is not exactly proper for a morning parade, but among the "mirrors of fashion" in Hyde Park it is never noticed.

Derby hats are only worn by the vulgar youths—the working class, drapery salesmen, and such like. As seen in Hyde Park, the derby is usually a couple of sizes too small for its wearer, and is balanced on the side of the head at a dangerous angle. It is almost invariably accompanied by a cigarette, a cane, a "frilled" suit, the tiniest of trouser legs and tan shoes.

Of course, the very latest thing in top pieces is the "naughty" hat. It comes from the Tyrol, and resembles an Alpine in shape. No doubt you have already been afflicted with it in the United States. It runs to all shades of green. Just now it is recherché in London, and gives the impression that its wearer has traveled considerably—perhaps.

There is a general impression in the land of Brother Jonathan that the straw hat is a head gear for summer months only. Nothing pleases a real Yankee better than to revenge himself upon a straw hat that transgresses beyond its appointed day. Yet in England the same limitation does not hold good. The first tenet of the Englishman's Magna Charta is a right to do as he "blooming well pleases," and he does it with a vengeance. Some go so far as to wear straw hats all the year round. And thus it is that we find them in the Hyde Park "church parade," even in midwinter. And the funny part of it is that no one pauses to laugh at the sight.

The Prince Albert, or frock, is by long odds the most popular style of coat among the habitués of Hyde Park. If a man hasn't a new one, he must wear an old one; if he hasn't a clean one, he must wear a dirty one; and if he hasn't one of his own, he must borrow one. It's a case of a Prince Albert at any price, and I have never yet seen such a collection of styles and cuts, past, present and to come. No period of human history was slighted, but the period just antedating the flood appeared to be favored

Second Week of the Great Alteration Sale

Astounding Values In All Departments

HUNDREDS of special offerings have been scheduled for the second week of the great Alteration Sale—the most phenomenal merchandise movement ever held in Los Angeles. Over two hundred thousand dollars' worth of seasonable goods offered, in many instances, at a fraction of real worth. Conditions demand it. The store is upset—in a turmoil, on account of carpenters and other workmen. The front is being changed, new show windows put in, and many departments enlarged. All of these things cause confusion—making it absolutely necessary that we offer unusual values in order to keep the pulse of the trade to the highest point. We never allow business to lag. Every week must show an increase—and does. The values we tell of below are phenomenal. Come prepared for surprises, expecting more for your money than you ever got before. Our word for it—you'll not be disappointed. Come early.

Bathing Suits
In the Alteration Sale

WE recently bought a manufacturer's sample line of bathing suits way below regular prices. These go on sale tomorrow morning at figures to induce speedy selling. Upward of 100 bathing suits, ranging in prices from $1.75 to $10—actually worth a third more. In the lot are bathing suits of union serge and diagonal, also wool serge and mohair; all colors.

THE NEW YORK STORE 337 339 SOUTH BROADWAY

The average Englishman could give the Chinese points on how to worship the sacred past.

The Englishman complains that the American tailor is possessed of a mania for making the American youth a Hercules by the use of broad shoulders and full trousers. The Englishmen go to the other extreme. The average British youth looks as if he had just escaped from a Cuban "concentration" camp. The shoulders of his coat are narrow and absurdly sharp; the skirt of his coat has an extraordinary flare ending in a series of frills that accentuates the thinness of his legs and the tightness of his trousers. Some of the latter garments could only have been donned by the free use of a shoe horn, and will only be shed by some sort of a surgical operation. One doubts that they could have gone over the head, and yet marvels that they could have gone on over the feet.

Everybody has his clothes made to order in England. When a made-to-measure suit can be had for the equivalent of $3, and a life insurance policy is thrown in, the temptation is great. There are no misfits, and yet they are all misfits.

Yet there are well-dressed men in England. They are five in number—King Edward, George Alexander and three others I haven't identified. Some Englishmen year really fashionable hats, some well-fitting coats, some proper-hanging trousers, and some even dapper shoes. Some know how to dress in details, but the Englishman who knows how to dress as a whole is as scarce as good jokes in "Punch." Brown shoes are frequently seen with big hats; straw hats are on speaking acquaintance with frock coats. If your hat shines, it is not necessary that your shoes should. Harris tweeds, with their tell-tale odors, are as welcome as the flowers in spring in the church parade of the "best-dressed men in the whole world."

These are some of the thoughts that came to my mind during the two hours I sat on a bench watching the crowd file past. At recurring intervals, steadily diminishing in their frequency, my English friend had drawn my attention to some passer-by whom he considered well dressed, and I had just as often ripped their "get-up" to pieces. Suddenly, just as we were about to arise and depart, he a sadder and me a disillusioned and a wiser man, my friend turned to me, his face aglow with a smile of triumph.

"What can you say against this man?" he demanded, indicating a fine, strapping big fellow, who came swinging down the walk. There was a note of finality in his voice as he asked the question, as if here, at last, was the perfectly-dressed man, upon whose broad shoulders could be hung his countrymen's pretentions. I looked and smiled, and almost at the same moment the man came towards us, with a grin a yard wide on his full, strong features.

"Well, I'll be hanged" he exclaimed, as he extended towards me a hand as big as a four-ounce boxing glove and closed it around my tingling fingers, "what are you doing in this durned old town?"

The "best-dressed" man was my old friend, Denis Quinlan, as good an American as ever came out of Brooklyn.

FALL OF BASTILE.

Local French Colony Will Celebrate Historic Event at Chutes Park on Tuesday.

Great preparations have been made by the members of the French colony in Los Angeles to celebrate, on Tuesday, the one hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the fall of the Bastile, which event took place in 1789. The celebration will be at Chutes Park, and will include speeches, music, athletic events, a banquet and dancing.

Leon Escalier, president of the day, will make the opening address, and will be followed by Mayor Harper. Russ Avery is slated to speak in English, and Mme. M. G. Gonzales will sing the "Star Spangled Banner." Emile Barclay will make an address in French, and oJseph Dupuy will sing the "Marseilles." A. Benoit will give a monologue and Mlle. Camille Grimaud will sing. Others who will take part are M. E. Christopher, Andre Rouseyrol, Mlle. Myrtle Gonzales, Alfred Paidivielso, C. M. Stuart and George Ricard, Jr.

The officers of the French Society are: Jules Viole, president; Dr. D. Cave, first vice-president; Francois Nogues, second vice-president; Louis Sentous, treasurer, and Adrien Davoust, secretary. The members of the Executive Committee are Jean Adoue, Auguste Blanchard, Fred Charbonnier, Jean Castera, Jacques Dressens, Joseph Filhol, Tadec Molle, Maurice Poirier, Francois Puissegur and A. Rockenstrockly.

PICNIC IN MOUNTAINS.

Broadway Department Store Entertains the Younger Element Among Its Employees.

At about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a procession of boys and girls attracted attention as it moved from Fourth and Broadway to Sixth and Main streets. They were decked in gay red ribbons and seemed happy as larks, as they tripped along laughing and having the time of their lives. They proved to be employés of the Broadway Department Store, all those under 16 years of age, and were on their way to the Pacific Electric building to take cars for Rubio Cañon, where the proprietor of the store, Arthur Letts, had prepared to entertain them at a picnic.

These boys and girls were not loaded down with packages and baskets, like most young folks when they start off to a picnic, but free-handed and happy they went as the guests of their employer. All kinds of substantials and delicacies had been sent to the cañon in advance, for their entertainment. They filled three of the big cars, and made a jolly party, returning at about 7 o'clock in the evening.

BASKET ENTERTAINMENT.

On next Tuesday evening the Garvanza Young Women's Christian Association will entertain members of the South Pasadena and Arroyo unions at a basket supper and picnic, in Sycamore Grove. They will have as a special guest Miss Mary A. Stewart, State secretary

The Way the Cat Went.

"I can write," said little Rosamond, agd 5, to her aunt, when she came from school one day.

"Why, that is delightful," replied her aunt. "And what can you write?"

"I can write cat and mat and bat," said the child.

The aunt gave her paper and pencil. "Write cat here for me," she said, "and let me see."

Rosamond wrote the word fairly, but put the letter C with its back to the A.

"That is very good," said her aunt; "only look, Rosamond, you have made the C the wrong way."

The child gazed at the word for a moment, and then replied, cheerfully:

"But the cat was going that way."—[Harper's Magazine.

The Cheapest Fat Reducer Is the Best

The attention of all who are half choked and generally bedeviled by an excess of fat, which, by the way, always seems more excessively excessive during the sultry season than any other, is called to the Marmola Prescription Tablets.

Seventy-five cents secures enough of these remarkable fat reducers from any druggist to last you a good while, in fact it buys an extra large case. This is enough to make a very desirable change in almost anyone's weight. Taken one after each meal and at bedtime the loss of as much as a pound of fat a day has been attained innumerable times.

This is a royal result that seems all the more remarkable when one realizes these tablets are cheaper by a half than anything else your druggist has. But the net loss they bring about is not the only good featiure of these tablets. They are pleasant to take; don't disturb the stomach; don't require one to exercise a particle or diet a mouthful, and last, but not least, do not cause wrinkles. They reduce one quickly but evenly—naturally. They produce, in short, the identical results of the famous Marmola Prescription, with which they are identical in composition. Try a case. If your druggist is sold out then write the makers, the Marmola Com-he purchased of C. Q. Stanton the teen-year-old orchard that is the of his present labors.

Picking, cutting, curing and drying crop of 800 tons of apricots is no matter, Dr. Bizzell finds, especially when the thermometer is standing around 100 deg. in the San Fernando Valley. But yesterday abundant progress had been made and the dry-houses of the ranch were being rapidly filled with the product ready for sacking if demand shall be made for it. When all the crop is dried it will represent approximately 175 tons, and ought to be worth $120 a ton.

RAPID TRANSFORMATION.

The transformation of the fruit from natural lusciousness to the "dried" of the world of trade is rapid. Yesterday sixty-four men were picking in the orchards. The picking is done where it is most needed, as some trees mature a few days earlier than others. The entire picking force is Japanese. Sheets sixteen feet square are put under the trees and the ripe fruit is shaken by crook pointed poles to the ground. It is then gathered into fifty-pound boxes and transferred to the cutting-house, a building 130x60 indorse the alignment of the roads as set forth in the report recommended by the Highway Commission, and that after investigation we are satisfied that the estimates of the cost of said road construction have been carefully, systematically, and accurately compiled, and we further believe that said Highway Commission is composed of men who are competent and thoroughly trustworthy, and will see to it that the funds are economically and satisfactorily expended, and that they are amply protected in doing the same, by the law under which they are constituted.

Second, that we believe this action should receive the unqualified support of every voter and taxpayer in the county of Los Angeles who is loyal to its bests interests and should command their utmost individual and collective service from now until the close of the day of election, as this question is of paramount and immediate importance to the present and future welfare of this great county.

COST LIGHT TO PAYERS.

The resolution was adopted unanimously, several men striving for the honor of seconding it. Mr. Earley then continued:

"When these road bonds fall due we shall have the Panama Canal completed. That will, in itself, make this Pacific Coast a wonder. Values are increasing so rapidly that, by the time the bonds fall due, we shall be paying only 25 cents on every $1000 of assessed valuation, instead of the 40 cents which will be the rate during the coming year.

"There can be no doubt concerning the advantages to be had from a system of fine roadways. I do not believe that there is any doubt concerning the sentiment of the great majority of our people concerning the bonds. But we must work; we want those bonds to carry by a majority which will make the Owens River figures look sick.

"I want to say that I thoroughly indorse the plans prepared by the Highway Commission. I believe that they are the best that could be secured and I want to see that money voted that they may be followed out."

Prolonged applause greeted Mr. Earley's speech and shouts of "We'll carry the election" were heard all over the hall.

W. D. Stephens spoke of the great good which the highway system will do the small towns of the county and then read a number of letters from prominent men of the community, indorsing the proposed bond issue.

C. D. Daggett, chairman of the Highway Commission, told of the many engineering problems which had to be overcome and of the manner in which the services of Engineer Loder were secured.

"We hope that any one who is in doubt concerning our plans will ask for a full explanation," said Mr. Daggett. "We are ready to do all in our power to make everything plain if people will only come to us."

WILL ADDRESS CADETS.

The Triangle Cadets, who were compelled to unceremoniously break camp before their vacation had ended, will meet this afternoon at the Y.M.C.A. rooms and listen to an address by Secretary Luther. It has been the custom of Mr. Luther to visit them during their annual encampment and address them there, but that plan was foiled this year by the breaking out of sickness in the camp.

BIBLE INSTITUTE.

Under the auspices of the Fisherman's Club, the Baraca Union and the Intermediate Christian Endeavor, a series of young people's evangelistic meetings will open at the Bible Institute tonight and continue until Tuesday evening, July 21. The institute has just published a handsome little booklet, giving full and definite information about everything in connection with the work. The Training School for Christian Workers will open July 22, and no charge is made for tuition.

CANADIAN CLUB MEETING.

The Canadian Club will hold it first meeting Tuesday evening in Fraternal Brotherhood Hall, for which a good programme has been prepared. A great register will be started, in which all Canadians will register, and a permanent social organization will be maintained in some convenient place in the city. All former Canadians are asked to attend the first meeting and aid in the organization.

after the twentieth of any month," said Tax Collector Johnson yesterday morning. "During the last ten days they look after places that are starting in business or are dodging licenses. The Auditor read to me the report on the deputies. I found nothing very startling in it; from what I have been able to ascertain the men attended to business during business hours. Some of the calls look peculiar in the report, but the mystery fades away when the men make their explanations."

The Auditor does not find the report and the explanations so satisfactory.

"I regret that the facts concerning this inquiry should be made public," said Mr. Mushet. "I do not know that the demands will be withheld longer than Monday. I have simply been carrying out my official duty as outlined by the charter. My only object in selecting the license collectors is that the secret-service men whom I have employed bring in so many license fees that these collectors have overlooked; it caused me to wonder how they could possibly spend their time.

"I asked the Finance Committee to assist me in conducting the inquiry that we all might understand better how the system of employing license collectors works."

The Auditor called attention to the fact that no direct charges against the men are being considered, he says that falls under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission. The present hearing is held only to determine whether these collectors were actually in the service of the city for the time named in the demands.

It is possible that the report of the Pinkertons on the manner in which the deputies spent their time will be reviewed by the Civil Service Commission.

Mines and Mining—Record Of Activities In the Adjacent Ore Countries.

A DESERT EXPERIENCE.

MAROONED BELOW LEVEL OF THE SEA.

Interesting Trip Through Death Valley—Mining Operations Are Quiet—Where Is Scotty's Mine That Made Such a Sensation?

BY SIDNEY NORMAN,
Mining Editor of The Times.

MINING in the immediate vicinity of Death Valley, which reached its zenith during and immediately after the Greenwater boom, has now receded to the dead-level of inactivity and the inhospitable region is once more given up to the undisputed domination of the lizard and the sidewinder, an occasional ass like myself, mysterious Death Valley Scottys and a now-and-then peregrinating burroman. The latter tarries not on the way and stands not upon the order of his going. A hurried dash for the next water hole is all he needs in his business, and his patient burro seems none the less anxious to leave this terrestrial hell behind.

I have just returned from a strenuous trip, which involved an enforced seven-day-and-night sojourn, 275 feet below sea level; and after being broiled, fried, boiled and fricaseed, after being carried away by mosquitos as big as butterflies and jabbed and uppercut by horseflies as large as humming-birds, in a temperature hovering around 130 degrees in the shade (and no shade at that,) I am still wondering how the first wanderer was impelled to visit the valley and why any one afterwards followed his tracks. I can only surmise that he hated himself and that his grouch took him to the most God-forsaken spot he could find. And find it he most surely did. To me it looks as if the Maker finished His work hereabouts and dumped the useless material He had left.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE SIXTIES.

As is generally known, Death Valley and the Funeral Mountains were named by the sole survivor of the terrible experiences which overtook a party of emigrants in the sixties, but it is not generally known that this sole survivor died at Kansas City within the past year. The story has been repeated and exaggerated so many times that its horrors have spread to the ends of the earth. According to the personal narrative of the only one who was left to tell the tale, the ill-fated party consisted of sixteen men. Of these fourteen left their bones somewhere in the vicinity of Salt Wells and the two survivors, the youngest of the party, set out for Telescope Peak, inspired by the hope that water would be found below the fast-melting snows which crowned its summit. On the way thirst overcame one more and this man who has just died in Kansas City fought his way onwards and upwards alone and finally emerged safely in the Promised Land of California. Many efforts have been made to induce him to make another visit to the valley in order that the exact location of the tragedy could be marked, but he was still filled with the horrors of his first trip and steadfastly refused. I incline to the belief that the party was overcome within a short distance of Furnace Creek Ranch and across the valley to the west. Close to the variegated hills to the east of this oasis three of the survivors are buried and I cannot understand why their bodies should have been carried from Salt Wells.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Twenty years ago the valley was the scene of much activity and from its lugubrious sump came a large portion of the world's supply of borax. In those days the Amargosa, Eagle and Furnace Creek Refining Works were running full blast and their product made reality of the twenty-mule-team joke which has now become but a soap-wrapper memory of the pioneer past. That was when Coleman, the originator of the industry, was struggling along after buying out his partner, "Borax" Smith, and before the latter had bought back both his interest and his partner's at a tithe of the price and had commenced his borax-route ascent to millionairedom.

Since then the scene has changed. No more does the silent valley resound with the flood of western Billingsgate, which urged the cussed mules down the dust-deep road to Daggett and without which no well-regulated mule can be expected to pull his best. All the refineries have been demolished now and their ruins serve but as sun-dried headstones to innumerable unmarked graves—human Golcondas upon which are builded the fortunes of a modern Creosus of borax.

Practically all the borax production of California, and that means two-thirds of the world's supply, is now being mined at the Lila C., thirty-five miles as the crow flies over the Funeral Mountains, where ten years' supply is in sight, where 125 men are employed and where the modern freight train has superseded the slower, though more romantically picturesque, mule team.

TERRORS EXAGGERATED.

While Death Valley cannot be characterized as an attractive summer resort I am inclined to the belief that its real terrors have been largely exaggerated and that there is no particular danger where ordinary prudence is observed. It is no place for a man not possessed of a good outfit and abundant provisions, but to such all that is necessary is an intimate knowledge of the occasional water holes. Without such knowledge physical strength avails but little and it is the lack of it which accounts for a majority of the little six-foot unmarked mounds which dot the valley from end to end. I have seen "phoney" graves myself, evidently fixed up by the few denizens of the district for the purpose of striking terror to the tenderfoot heart. But there is no spot on earth where the sun is busier, where it is more insistent or more penetrating or where insect life is more pestiferously indefatigable. At 5 o'clock the burning disc of red radiates fire over the summit of the Funerals to the east, and, until it sinks to rest in the purpling haze of a glorious desert eve behind the snow-topped peak of Telescope, towering 12,000 feet above you to the west, human can do no more than gasp as he dodges its rays around the scant mesquite bushes which fringe the water holes and prays for the time when he will once again hear the tinkle of ice.

MEMORIES OF THE PAST.

Our camp lay immediately below the Greenwater Mountains, and as I trained my field glasses upon the abandoned workings of the Kempland and Clark copper mines, 5000 feet above me, my mind went back to the strenuous early months of last year when copper millionaires were made over-night and relegated to the meal-ticket class next day. And I was one of 3000 then, counting my prospective millions one day and sparring for time the next with the rough-house laundryman from Allen's Wells, who took my clothes to water one week and returned them in tatters the next, patched with a demand note that would dent a Rockefeller pocketbook. In those days the Death Valley slope was covered with hope-inspired and sunburnt prospectors who have long since faded away into a realm which I hope contains more cash and less hot air. Only the Greenwater and Death Valley and Furnace Creek mines are working now, pushing their shafts of forlorn hope into the dried-up and shaken depths of the Funerals—the burial ground of stockholders' dreams of wealth. Fifteen miles further to the south on the Valley's slope there has been some slight activity at Gold Valley, but the shipment of thirty tons of ore from the Rise-Badgett lease on the Eureka, which is now awaiting transportation at Death Valley Junction, will write the present finis to operations there.

WHERE SCOTTY SCORED.

Further still to the south and on the west side of the valley, four miles northeast of Hidden Springs and immediately south of Wingate Pass, some good ore has just been found, but from what I could learn, it is in small stringers and holds out scant hope of commercial value in such an inaccessible region. Off towards Saratoga Springs work has now been abandoned on the Desert View, and a romantic chapter of desert mining is closed—a chapter which involves Death Valley Scotty, his former partner, Bill Keyes, and the verdant luminaries of the Dupont Powder Company who cut their baby teeth on a bunco rattle in Death Valley.

WALKING NOT GOOD.

There is just one thing I am positive about after two weeks' sojourn in the valley—the walking is not good. I came to that conclusion after our mules had stampeded, after we had waited patiently for seven days and nights and after I had "hoofed it" twenty miles from Eagle Borax Works to the Furnace Creek ranch, staggering under the load of a three-gallon canteen and side-stepping the buzzing sidewinders as they wriggled away from under my feet. No, the walking is not good. The way lay across the borax beds and treacherous salt marshes, of the valley's sink and, in the brilliant moonlight of a desert night, I was reminded of a choppy frozen sea, sharp as flint to the burning feet. That twenty miles took in six full hours of my young life and encompassed about the most strenuous stunt I ever pulled off.

PARADISE IN HADES.

Furnace Creek ranch, fifteen miles from the northern end of Death Valley proper, enjoys the distinction of being the lowest-down farm on earth, 178 feet below sea level, and I also believe that no spot on earth can rival it in the number of flies that make life unbearable from morning to night. But, flies or no flies, as I dragged myself into the shade of its fig trees at 7 o'clock in the morning with the mercury standing at 110, I thought it was Paradise indeed. There is an abundance of water, cool in the open ditch leading from the hills to the east and hot, almost to the boiling point, in the middle of the day, in the surface pipes from Texas Springs. It is here that cattle are fattened for the consumption of the employés of "Borax" Smith and where irrigation results in the raising of six full crops of alfalfa every year.

In days gone by the place was run by an ogre named Northup, who hated himself and his fellow-man, and who has even been known to refuse water to a wayfarer parched and almost dying without his gates. It is said in his defense that he was acting under orders from his superiors, but that does not excuse the inhuman acts charged to him by prospectors who were forced to pass that way. But within the past year his place has been taken by Ed Muncy, a giant in stature, with a heart as big as his body and to whom is due my sincere thanks and those of my companions on the trip. It is such men who make life possible in the desert and many a poor prospector will be glad to join me in a tribute to his good-natured hospitality.

COW CREEK'S BULL CON.

Mining was far from my thoughts as I lay in the shade after that memorable "hike" or lay in the stream during the heat of the interminable day. But there is some work going on within sight of this oasis. Off to the northeast is the historical district of Cow Creek, and I understand that the public is still mining a fine vein of "bull con" in that direction. Further over the range is the district of Lee-Echo, once the scene of a boomlet in the first days of the Greenwater crash. No actual mining is now being done and the inhabitants of the camp number no more than a scant half dozen, and of these three are storekeepers who possess more than they can pack out on their backs, and are, therefore, compelled to stay. I understand, though, that there are some excellent showings in the neighboring hills, and I saw some fine samples of galena from a prospect owned by a man named Chambers. In the semi-darkness of the desert night the twinkling lights of the Keane Wonder mine, off to the north in the Grapevine range, serve as a reminder that success still stalks hereabouts. The mine is now employing forty men, and is supplying material for the constant operation of the twenty-stamp mill. To the west, over the ragged summit of the Panamints, the Skidoo mines are pounding away on a good grade of gold ore, and are now turning out $10,000 a month from the new ten-stamp mill. Forty men are employed there, but the camp is otherwise quiet and the stage line from Rhyolite, which passed Stovepipe Wells, twenty-three miles to the north, has been abandoned until better times dawn again.

SCOTTY'S MINE.

I had almost forgotten that there is another famous mine in Death Valley—Death Valley Scotty's. At least it is supposed to be there—perhaps in the Panamints, maybe in the Funerals, possibly at Cow Creek, too. Did I see it? I did not. Why? Why does a chicken cross the road? But that is another story, and one that will appear in these columns within the next few weeks. The mine has been a mystery for several years. I shall tell some of the truth, and nothing but the truth, shorn of the romantic garnishments of the yellow press. Personally, I think the mystery is shrouded in about as much mystery as is the identity of the slayer of Bill Patterson. Death Valley has been conquered by civilization. There is no longer a place in its scarred and wind-swept cañons for such mysteries as these.

CLARK COPPER FLIRTING WITH TWO MINE OFFERS.

Proano Antiqua in Zacatecas Has Supporters Among Directors—Potosi, in Nevada, Also Offered and Examination Will Be Made Before Final Action.

The Clark Copper Company, with between $69,000 and $70,000 actual, cold, hard cash in its treasury, is now flirting with two mining propositions which appear to fill all the requirements of those who now have the management of its affairs.

On Friday a meeting of the directors was held to consider a proposition to purchase the Proano antique in Zacatecas, Mex., now under option to Colin Timmons of this city, who has been mining extensively in the republic for several years past and who sold the La Magistral mine in Jalisco to the Clark interests last year.

The Proano was described fully in these columns a few days ago and is evidently a property of much merit. It is said that over 1,000,000 tons is now in sight in the enormous tailing dumps and quarries at the mine and it is also said that the ore can be treated in a wholesale way by the cyanide method at very little expense. The property is equipped with eight miles of railroad, connecting it with the main line of the Mexican Central.

The meeting developed enthusiastic support for another proposition then submitted—the well-known Potosi mine, near Goodsprings, Nevada, which has already mined a great tonnage of silver, lead and zinc ore. A large amount of ore is now blocked out and it is believed that much of the loss in treatment of the past can be saved by the installation of a new process invented by Sutton and Steele of Dallas, Tex. After much discussion it was decided that the Potosi should be thoroughly examined by the company's experts before any definite action was taken.

In anticipation of the acquisition of a property of value the quotation on the stock advanced to 20 cents on Saturday and later sold down to 16 cents.

GOLDFIELD IS PICKING UP.

LATE TRANSFERS BRING FRACTION INTO LIMELIGHT.

Engineers' Lease Bids Fair to Rival Other Record-Breakers—Rogers-Syndicate Rich Lease Is Ended. Many Prospects Now Entering List of Producing Mines.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) July 11.—Combination Fraction has now assumed a place as unquestionably one of the best properties in the Goldfield district. The fact that George Wingfield has been buying all of the stock he could get, including the interest still held by Al D. Myers (as Wingfield himself admits,) augurs well for the standing of the property and statements made to the correspondent of The Times by Thomas D. Murphy, manager and one of the chief owners of the property, supported by the returns from the ore shipped to the reduction works, show beyond the question of a doubt that the mine is destined to take a foremost place among the producers of the district.

Average values of $280 per ton in gold are shown from a sampling of the ore shoot made at the 300 level where the crosscut has just penetrated the ore body. The company shaft, which was originally that of the Oddie lease, was sunk by Oddie to a depth of 612 feet and Oddie performed a large amount of development work, chiefly at the 450-foot level, but never found ore in paying quantity. At this level further work conducted by Murphy disclosed an ore shoot of enormous volume and excellent value and in running an upraise in the ore the shoot was found to split but the crosscut at the 300 has now cut both divisions of the shoot and the ore is of the grade mentioned. Within a few days the vein will be entered at the 600-foot level affording, at this point, an immense area of backs.

ENGINEERS' LEASE.

The latest lease to enter the limelight as a producer of sensational proportions is the Engineers' lease, adjoining the company workings on the Florence and employing the shaft of the old Florence Annex lease. Last week's output from this lease was over $55,000, the last settlement for ore being on a basis of $1080 per ton. The value of the ore taken out in one day, Thursday, was estimated at nearly $40,000. Besides this, the leasers have a consignment of eighty tons at the mill which will run $500 according to the mine assays. The ore occurs in large shoots and is shipped as it is broken by means of machine drills. The owners of the lease, Taylor, Price and Nivins, paid the Florence company $5000 for a six months' lease on the ground and had practically exhausted their funds and resources when they struck the rich ore and now the lease bids fair to rival the famous Little-Florence and Rogers-Syndicate leases.

BABY FLORENCE DEAL.

The control of the Baby Florence lease, in which a shoot of rich ore has recently been opened, has been taken over by some of the Rogers-Syndicate people. The latter lease expired at midnight of July 11 and upon its expiration Superintendent Meikle, under whose supervision the operations on the Rogers-Syndicate have been carried forward, will assume charge at the Baby Florence which embraces the old Wallace and Peer-Pugh leases, north of the company shaft and adjoining the Reilly which produced a big fortune, said to $1,000,000, within ninety days. According to Meikle and others there is a fine body of ore exposed in the Baby Florence and the ore shoot will be developed with additional machinery.

ROGERS LEASE ENDED.

By Sunday morning the famous Rogers-Syndicate lease will have passed into history as a lease and the Florence company will begin the work of connecting up the workings with those of the late Little Florence and thence with the Florence mine. The ninth dividend of the Rogers-Syndicate will be paid before that time and soon after the affairs of the leasers will be wound up and all the parties in interest engaged in other mining ventures in the district. Since last March the sum of $235,000 has been divided among the owners of the lease which was owned, one half by a half-dozen Goldfield men and the other half by the Goldfield Syndicate Mining Company of Chicago. It was not incorporated, but was a partnership concern, and, as such, simply made a division of profits whenever the condition of the treasury warranted such action. Besides a considerable amount of money still in the treasury the company owns a valuable plant which will be disposed of.

PROSPECTS MAKE MINES.

Many of the workings outside of the central, producing area of the Goldfield district are now reaching a point in their development where they may be expected to pass out of the class of mere prospects at any time and enter the shipping list. At the time of the beginning of the labor troubles in this section many of these properties or leases had advanced in point of development to the stage where real exploitation at depth was possible. The closing down at that time and the subsequent financial hardships which the mining industry has suffered have prevented the continuous development necessary to the district's thorough exploration, and many of the leases are still idle, entailing, from the neglected condition of the workings, additional expense and effort to take up the work at the point where it was abandoned.

The Commonwealth has lately come into the list of shipping mines of the district, two consignments of ore having been sent to the mills and a quantity of high-grade is in sight with preparations going forward for a regular production. The principal owners of the big property, including a half dozen of the best-known mining men in Southern Nevada, formerly put down a shaft over 350 feet, but disclosed nothing of value. The company workings, including the shaft and two tunnels, were recently leased to a couple of Goldfield miners, who proceeded to extend the lower tunnel with the result that they opened a body of shipping ore in a short distance, and have run an upraise from this tunnel and a winze from the upper tunnel, connecting the two in ore. A few days ago they opened over two feet of ore which breaks, without sorting, $160 per ton, and will soon start to tap the vein at depth from the company shaft.

SWEENEY LEASE.

On the same property to the northeast, James Sweeney, the mining man, has taken a lease and will sink to depth near the same vein. Near this point the Simmerone, which produced some sensational ore in the early days of the camp, some of which was shipped out by express before the coming of the railroad, is now being worked with a view to catching the Commonwealth vein. This ledge crops in places for many hundred feet, and is the objective point of leasers and operators on several groups, notably on the Lone Star, where a lease shaft is going to 200 feet at a point where some of the first rich ore in the camp was found. George Winkler, manager of the Commonwealth and president of the company, will soon start a working shaft on the vein from which ore is being taken, and at a point to the east of the leasers' ground.

OTHERS RESUME.

On the Albemarle, which owns one of the largest acreages in the district, Manager Hawkins is running a crosscut from the 300-foot level, and should open the big ledge within a very short time, which was penetrated at the second level, where some excellent assays were secured. The Madonna, which has been idle for some time, is about to resume and the Frances Mohawk shaft has been unwatered, and will again operate on a large scale. Two strong veins have been exposed in this property, but the average values are still low.

Farther south and east the Yellow Tiger is prosecuting development work on a businesslike scale and with one of the best plants in the section. A lease has been granted by Manager Condon on the Neglected Fraction, adjoining the Blue Bull. Under the supervision of Donald Ferguson the Frances group, which was sold last year for a large figure, is to be developed, as are the Hombre and the Pittsburgh-Nevada, under the same management.

VICTOR SHIPPING.

Ore is being sent out with regularity from the new strike on the Victor, now a part of the C.O.D. Consolidated company's ground, the vein being of good size and the values well maintained. This new merger, the C.O.D. Consolidated, has outlined plans for working its different properties on a large scale and already has immense reserves of good milling ore exposed in the Gold Bar mine and in the C.O.D. Its plans contemplate the eventual construction of a reduction plant of large capacity, and the men who are back of the enterprise, chiefly Pittsburgh and New York capitalists, are well supplied with funds to carry out the recommendations of general manager, Louis K. Koontz.

RAWHIDE MINES NOW GET PRACTICAL RESULTS.

Gates Mill to Be Enlarged—Another Plant on the Way—Present Mill-Feed Runs Well—Mint Strikes High-Grade—Alta Has Luck in Striking Well-Defined Ledge.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

RAWHIDE, July 7.—There are just an even dozen shippers from this camp at the present time, with more to be heard from in a very short while. Not so bad for a camp whose age can be reckoned back not farther than six months. The majority of these shippers are sending their ore to the mill, the smelters getting the rest. At this time there is but one mill in the camp, that of "Swiftwater Bill" Gates and his associates; there is another on the way across the desert from the cars at Fallon.

The Gates mill cannot begin to take care of the business that is offering. Last week Gates left for San Francisco to order additional machinery, and upon his departure he declared that within three weeks the mill would be operating with a capacity of 120 tons a day. In the meantime, the forty-ton mill of J. N. Watt and George H. Bradford is on the way in, and its promoters say that this will also be in operation within three weeks.

The regular shippers of the camp now are the Kearns No. 2, Kearns No. 1, both of which have shipped to smelter and mill. There are, besides, the Miller and the lease adjoining on the Coalition, the Owl, Proskey, Lillian, Murray, Mint, Edwards and Barlow, Regent, Royal Tiger and the Mint. To these will be added the Jordan lease of the Queen Mascot Company in the coming week.

GOOD MILLING ORE.

The cost of transportation and reduction at the Gates mill is $15 a ton, and the ore that has been shipped there goes from $30 to $50 a ton, leaving a splendid profit to the mine and the mill. In addition to the Gates mill, and that of Watt and Bradford, on the way, the Rawhide Water and Reduction Company will have a 200-ton mill in operation in a few months at the outside, and there is another to follow, behind which is eastern capital. H. W. Throckmorton, representing that capital, has been here for two months past, and has recommended this action on the part of his clients, and he gives the assurance that the plant will be forthcoming. There has been no jumping at conclusions by the mill men, for they have all had their experts in here, testing the ores and examining the waters in the vicinity of the camp. In addition to the mills mentioned, the people of the Rawhide Mining and Reduction Company, who own the Murray lease, declare that they will have a twenty-stamp plant in operation close to the camp in less than two months. Other mills are spoken of, but there has as yet been no material progress in their construction.

MINT STRIKE.

The Mint lease on the Coalition, located at the base of Grutt Hill, is the last holding to get the picture ore of the camp, and the showing is getting better all the time with development. The strike was made at a depth of 135 feet, and some of the most beautiful specimen ore ever seen in the camp was taken from the bottom of the shaft. The Mint has been operating with the greatest little hoist ever seen at any shaft in any camp. The leasers had little money to spare when they reached the depth that made a hoist imperative. They bought a two-horse-power gasoline engine, and rigged up a tripod instead of a gallows frame, and with this arrangement they have been taking out thirty tons a day.

ALTA IN LUCK.

A strike of considerable importance to the camp, while the values do not as yet run high, was that of the Alta Mines Company, far down to the southern part of the camp. The Alta occupies considerable of the high ground in that section of the district, but the find was made in a draw on the property, and is a well-defined vein, with the same characteristics as those of the Murray vein of the Rawhide Consolidated. Mining men are of the opinion that the new find is a continuation of the Murray vein, al

Multiple Unit Control Cars on Redondo Line.

Many Improvements Will Be Installed Soon.

First of Six New Coaches in Operation Now.

The Los Angeles and Redondo Railway has turned out from its shops at Redondo the first of the six new multiple unit control passenger coaches, and has also so equipped two older cars, and when the next big rush comes trains can be run as on the Pacific Electric and Los Angeles-Pacific. The second of the new cars will be finished in about three weeks and the third about another three weeks later. All the old coaches are to be provided with multiple unit control as soon as possible.

The new car, which was first used on July 4, is the largest yet run on this line and as large as any ever used on a narrow gauge. It seats thirty-six people inside and sixteen outside, a total of fifty-two, not including four single corner seats. The windows are handsome, being topped with opalescent glass like Pullmans. Inside, the ceilings are of a beautiful dark green, the electric lights have fine cut-glass shades, all of which tend to improve greatly the appearance. It is entirely the product of the company's own shops and workmen under the management of General Foreman T. E. Goebel.

The motors are sixty horse-power instead of fifty, like the old ones. This power is the highest adaptable for a narrow gauge. The controller is placed at one side as on the new Los Angeles-Pacific cars. The latest air brakes are provided. Until the question is finally settled the Redondo company is using the fenders in use on the city cars, but if once the higher tribunals decide favorably to the other companies' contentions it is more than likely that the regular locomotive pilots will be substituted.

The new car makes fifty and sixty miles an hour on the suburban rails and runs as easily as the best on other lines. The speed is not felt in the least, no jarring, pitching or jerky starts and stops. In addition to improved equipment the Redondo company can now boast of as well-laid and ballasted track on all divisions as any road. The time to the beach is forty to forty-five minutes from Second and Spring streets, of which twenty minutes are spent between the terminus and Jefferson street on the Inglewood and Sunnyside division and in getting to the city limits on the Mateo-avenue line.

NEW AUTOMATIC COUPLER.

The new cars use the Bonney and Norwood automatic coupler, a device invented in Los Angeles by F. H. Norwood, a motorman on the Redondo line, and F. R. Bonney of Pasadena. It is simple, cheap and effective, suitable for suburban and city cars, complying fully with the Interstate Commerce and State Railroad commission's requirements, but costing about half as much as the standard M. C. B. coupler.

Its distinctive feature is that it works with a slotted tongue and beveled pin, similar in general appearance to the old style of hand coupler, instead of with a knuckle like the M. C. B. The tongue is rounded at the end so that on striking the rounded pin it pushes under the latter, raises it and lets it drop into the hole. It has the side automatic pin lift and the employés are relieved of the need for standing between cars to make couplings. It is not intended for heavy freight trains on steam roads.

The inventors have received offers from several firms to take it on a royalty basis. Among these is the St. Louis Car Building Company, one of the largest car makers in the country. The Redondo railway is the first company to adopt it. Mr. Norwood says he was first induced to give his attention to the subject by seeing a comrade killed while coupling with the old link and pin.

SERVICE IMPROVES.

The service rendered on the Fourth was a revelation to those who remembered the old twenty-minute service on the single track some three years ago. Only the complete double track via Inglewood made possible the five-minute service. The only remaining weak link is the single track through Gardena from Strawberry Park to Bridgedale on the Moneta avenue line, and the single line through Sunnyside, which is in a thickly settled suburban district. A double track is much needed here but it has been impossible to get it within reasonable cost.

A condition exists that appears somewhat strange to an outsider in the fact that two railroads, the Redondo and the Inter-Urban's San Pedro line, parallel each other through this section for miles, each on a single track. Both are controlled by Mr. Huntington and time and again it has been a source of wonderment to many why both have not been double-tracked simply by joint operation, both going one way over one track and the other direction over the other.

This would give the Inter-Urban two tracks half way to San Pedro and the Redondo Company the same for its entire length except about a mile or so south of Gardena, all with only the need for laying connecting switches. This course has been commented upon by operating officials and recommended as an easy solution of the problem, but the "men higher up" have never reached an agreement. The fact that Mr. Huntington owns the Redondo line individually and only a control in the Inter-Urban is thought to be the cause. The Redondo line has also much

"THE LUCKY THIRTEEN."

BY SMITH D. FRYE.

After a man has been engaged in gathering news at the Capitol in Washington for a period of fifteen years or longer he meets with almost daily surprises, by learning things which, it seems to him, he should have learned in the very beginning of his career.

This is particularly true concerning the Senate and its immediate environments. That body is mysterious in its ways and means of doing things. The newcomer in the Washington field usually imagines that he is "doing things," when he can secure an interview from the average Senator or the average Representative concerning what the Congress is doing, and what the Congress is about to do, or should do. When, as a matter of fact, the "views" of the average Senator or Representative are of no more real news value than would be the "views" of an Alderman from Podunk.

In the House of Representatives, the Speaker and about twenty of the older Representatives are the real leaders; the men who make affairs. All of the 370-odd others are mere pawns on the political chessboard. They do not make any moves. They are moved about by their superiors. And all of their de facto superiors are legally on a par with themselves. This is because all affairs are approached by "seniority" in the service. That "seniority" is achieved by long years of continuous service.

There are ninety-two Senators comprising the body known as the United States Senate. Seventy-nine of those Senators are Senatorial pawns. The business of the Senate is managed and controlled by thirteen Senators, and, on the inside, they are known as "The Lucky Thirteen." When a man is earnestly desirous of ascertaining existent facts, and of forecasting political or legislative results, he must personally know those thirteen Senators, and know them well enough to have acquired their confidence. That condition can only be achieved by many years of acquaintance, and the kind of living which merits the confidence of statesmen who are exceedingly chary of encouraging confidence; particularly confidence in newspaper men.

"The Lucky Thirteen" are, in order of standing and influence:

Senator Allison of Iowa, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations; Senator Aldrich of Illinois, chairman of the Committee on Finance; Senator Cullom of Illinois, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations; Senator Hale of Maine, chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs; Senator Warren of Wyoming, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs; Senator Frye of Maine, chairman of the Committee on Commerce; Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads; Senator Clark of Wyoming, chairman of the Committee on Judiciary; Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry; Senator Clapp of Minnesota, chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs; Senator Nelson of Minnesota, chairman of the Commitee on Public Lands; Senator Scott of West Virginia, chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds; Senator McCumber of North Dakota, chairman of the Committee on Pensions.

These Senators are chairmen of the leading committees of the Senate, in the order of their legislative influence. They are looked up to, and their plans and purposes are inquired into, by all of the other Senators before they make any aggressive movements in the lines of their individual desires. This standing of the individual members of "The Lucky Thirteen" is as marked and as distinct as the class standing at Annapolis or West Point; and their "seniority" is as much respected as is the seniority of the officers of the army and of the navy. There does not seem to be any discipline in the Senate, but it exists. There is no outward appearance of there being any such a thing as "a boss" in the Senate, but, woe betide any new Senator who makes his appearance there and dares to assert his individuality too soon.

Now, did you ever hear of the "Steering Committee?" There is a book published three times every year, called the Congressional Directory, and it contains the names of all of the Senators, all of the Representatives, and all of the official employés of the Capital. Moreover, it contains complete lists of the committees of the Senate and of the House of Representatives, with corrections up to the date of each issue. It is intended to be a completed compendium of the Congress. But you may search its pages in vain to find any reference to the "Steering Committee."

And yet that is the most important committee of the United States Senate. It is exactly what its name indicates, a committee of Senators which attends to the "steering" of Senate legislation. It is a committee chosen by the caucus of the majority party, and, being a caucus matter, and not an official matter, the Congressional Directory has no official knowledge of the existence of that committee.

This committee is made up of dominating spirits of "The Lucky Thirteen." Senator Allison of Iowa, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, chairman of the Republican caucus, and chairman of the Committee on Committees, is chairman of this "Steering Committee." The other members are Senator Hale of Maine, Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, Senator Cullom of Illinois, Senator Clark of Wyoming, Senator Nelson of Minnesota, all of them members of the "Lucky Thirteen."

These are the Senators who hold private meetings, and after calmly discussing all of the measures pending before the Senate, they decide which are of the most importance to the country, and, after this "Steering Committeee" has reached its conclusions, the word is quietly passed around, and, when all is quietly understood, the Senate proceeds along those lines, unwaveringly and unswervingly.

Corporations, trusts, all sorts of "interests" may thunder at the Senate; the newspapers may abuse the body; a President may send in lectures by the score, and messages by the ton, but after the "Steering Committee" has deliberated, and reached conclusions,

"Calm and serene as the working of Fate,
The Senate moves on in a manner sedate, paying no heed to public clamor, political abuse, individual attacks and vituperations. It is a continuing body, and is today the bulwark of the liberties of our people; albeit the people themselves do not appreciate that fact, because they neither know it nor comprehend it.

If you will analyze the list given above, you will note that the State of Maine, has two members of the "Lucky Thirteen," Senators Frye and Hale. The far western, new State, Wyoming, has also two members of the "Lucky Thirteen," Senators Warren and Clark. Senator Clapp and Nelson of Minnesota, and Senators Hansbrough and McCumber of North Dakota, are also members of that list of leaders. How does it happen that Maine, Wyoming, North Dakota and Minnesota have two members each, making eight out of the thirteen? For the simple reason that the people of those four States have been wise enough to keep their capable men continuously in the Senate, until they have attained leadership "by seniority." Thus it happens that Senators from nine States have a controlling influence in a legislative body, which is composed of Senators from forty-six States. Thirty-seven States are without representation in that list of "The Lucky Thirteen," the masterful men of that most masterful legislative body.

That is the fault of the thirty-seven States; the fault of their legislatures. They are continually sending new men to the Senate, and new men in that body, no matter what may be their natural abilities or their acquirements, must await their turns, as the body proceeds along the even tenor of its way during the passing of the years.

In due course of time, as soon as vacancies shall occur, Senator Perkins of California, will become a member of "The Lucky Thirteen," because of the standing which he has achieved during his two terms in the Senate. Senator Perkins is a ranking member of the committees on Apropriations, Agriculture, Commerce and Naval Affairs. He has the highest standing on the Committee on Naval Affairs, and will become chairman of that great committee in the not remote future.

Senator Dolliver of Iowa, one of the greatest orators of the Senate, has been a member of that body for almost ten years, and yet he has not entered the inner circle of power. He has achieved important committee memberships, and, like Senator Perkins, is just on the threshold of a chairmanship of value.

If each State were an individual entity, an independent part of a confederacy, looking after its own individual interests, regardless of each other State, it would be well for each State to continue in service a Senator of usefulness, no matter how party prestige might change in the State. But, inasmuch as we are a union, instead of a confederacy, and each State is a part of one country, it will be necessary to make changes in the Senate whenever parties change in State control. And so long as either political party remains in power in any sovereign State that party should be careful to retain, by reëlection, those Senators who are known to be faithful and useful for their constituents; because leadership in the Senate is achieved only after many years of continuous service.

Photographs from the Eyes.

A government scientist gives an extraordinary account of some experiments on images in the eyes. It is thought that he has proved not only that real images of objects looked at are formed on the retina of the eye, but that photographs, of such images can be made. Two such photographs claimed to have been taken by this scientist himself, are of much interest.

In the first instance the experimenter fixed his eyes intently for one minute, in ordinary daylight, on a half-dollar coin. Then, drawing a yellow screen over the window to shut out the actinic light, he put a prepared photographic plate in place of the half-dollar piece, and fastened his eyes upon it, thinking all the while of the half-dollar. After forty-three minutes he removed the plate and developed. He asserts that he found an outline of the coin clearly visible on the plate. He repeated the experiment with a postage stamp, and, after twenty minutes' staring at a sensitized plate, found on the latter, when it was developed, an image of the stamp.

The fight producing the alleged photographs is supposed to emanate from the image on the retina.—[Exchange.

Where the Seer Failed.

"The spirit of your wife is here," said the medium, in sepulchral tones.

"That so? Well, just ask her where she put the recipe for the liniment I rub my shoulder with."

There was nothing doing. Another test of profound psychological phenomena had slumped.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

BUNGALOWS-BUNGALOWS!!

THE MODERN HOUSE IS NOT COMPLETE WITHOUT

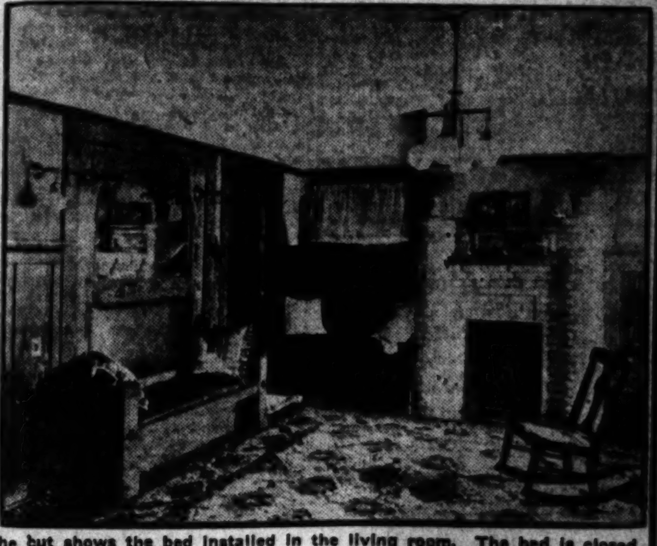
THE SANITARY CONCEALED METAL BED

From time immemorial beds have been part of our house furnishings, and up to very recent times we have been using what we are now pleased to call the "old-fashioned brass bedstead." The modern four or five-room cottage was hardly possible with the old-style bed which occupied 25 per cent. of the floor space; but with the advent of the SANITARY CONCEALED METAL BED the modern bungalow is not only possible, but owner and builder alike now realize that this great space saver is also a great money saver.

The bed can be installed in living room, dining room, den or bed room, any one of which may be converted into a bedroom at will.

A four-room bungalow fitted with our beds contains all the conveniences of a six-room house, saving 25 per cent. of original cost over old-style methods.

This modern six-room bungalow, built by Mr. G. W. Smith, at 1889 W. 22d St., is equipped with the SANITARY CONCEALED METAL BED.



The cut shows the bed installed in the living room. The bed is closed into a ventilated recess, and shows no traces of a bed, but is a serviceable leather upholstered wall seat.

No change in plans or construction necessary for installing our beds.

CHAPTER XVI.

THE PRIEST.

After Beltano left me I sat for a time thinking over the interview in a mood of profound dejection and consuming anxiety.

I was not much concerned about the vague threats against myself; although it was intensely disquieting to know that the instant I set foot on the mainland I should be in danger of arrest. I did not believe that he himself would take any steps to give me up. It was clear that in the past I had had his confidence. He had been very anxious for my escape on the night of Vicino's death, and I could gamble on it that he had told me many secrets, the disclosure of which he would fear if he played me any such trick.

His attitude in the talk I had just had with him confirmed this. He had been in a furious temper on entering my hut; but had been quick to restrain himself and to pretend that our relations were as friendly as ever. In a man of his reckless, overbearing disposition this was proof of a reluctance to quarrel with me, and there could be but one reason for this—fear of what he thought I knew and could tell.

I decided to put matters to an immediate test and went off to the boats. He had kept his word; and Luigi raised no objection now to my going out. I cruised about for an hour or so, doing as much thinking as I could over the position and trying to form some sort of plan.

My first idea was to attempt to get Masita away that night; but I was convinced that after the suspicions Molta had raised in Beltano's mind, followed by what had passed between us, he would keep such a close watch on her as to render that impossible.

I must devise some other scheme; but cudgel my wits as I would I could think of none; and I returned to the island as puzzled as ever.

Then I had the first evidence of Beltano's change toward me. On going to the old fort I found Ahmet, the Turk, at Breva's post, and he told me I was not to enter the place.

I would not stand this. "We have been good friends, Ahmet, and we need not quarrel; but I am going in."

"It is Beltano's order, Beppo," he replied. "No one is to enter."

"Did he mention my name?"

"No; but he was angry and told me to let no one at all pass."

"He did not mean to include me. I'll take the responsibility."

"I can't let you pass, Beppo."

"Then you'll have to stop me by force," and I stepped forward.

He put himself in my path. "You know what he is when disobeyed."

I laid my hand on my knife. "I shall only stop for force, Ahmet."

As Giuseppe had nearly killed him in a fight some time before and he heard the result of my tussle with Giuseppe, the Turk had little wish for any trouble of the sort with me now. I acted with deliberate purpose. If Beltano shut me out from Masita it was hopeless to think of helping her; and in her interest I must overawe the rest of the men.

He hesitated and raised his musket half way to his shoulder. "You don't mean this, Beppo? We have always been friendly."

I drew my knife then. "I mean every syllable of it. If you fire at me, it will cost you your life." He was the worst shot on the island, and even at close range could be safely depended upon to miss me.

But he did not fire. "I must tell Beltano," he said as he gave way.

"Tell him or any one you please. It is all one to me," and I sheathed my weapon and hurried into the building and up to Masita.

I found Pepita with her and was glad that the girl had not been removed. They knew that Ahmet had been put on guard in Breva's place and were discussing the matter as I entered.

"You know that Beltano has returned then," I said to Masita. "He suspects me of having been willing to help your escape."

"Is it true that he has brought a priest with him?"

"Yes. He told me just now that you will be married to him tomorrow."

"He has been here and declares it shall be tonight; but I will not. I—I would rather he killed me. Who is the priest?"

"I know not. Some creature of his, of course."

"It is that vile fellow, Baracci, Beppo," put in Pepita. "Breva told me."

"Tonight, is it?" I murmured in dismay. "Dare you risk an attempt at escape now with me. Pepita could get you some of Breva's clothes as a disguise, and I'll answer for it that we get away."

"Beltano tells me you are proscribed and that it is more than your life is worth to be seen on the mainland."

Whether she was speaking out of a new care for my safety, or was prompted by some of her old mistrust, I could not say. But I saw that it was a case for a lie. So I lied.

"That is not true. I am no longer in any danger," I said steadily.

She hesitated, fixing a keen glance on me. "But—there is my vow."

"If once you are Beltano's wife you will have little chance to keep it," I replied with a shrug. "And if you hesitate, the present chance will have passed."

"Why are you ready to run this risk for me?"

"Does it matter so long as I am ready? Pepita, run and bring the signorina some of Breva's clothes. Quick, girl, quick."

She hurried away at once.

"Are you telling me the truth, that you are no longer in danger?"

"You will see for yourself," I answered lightly.

She tossed up her hands and sighed. "I can't understand you. Both Breva and Pepita swear that you are a true man, but . . . You are a mystery," she said, turning away.

"You must not judge me by what you know of my past," I replied, speaking in English; "nor by what you see of me here."

At the change of language she turned her eyes full on me again. "How am I to judge you then?" she asked in the same tongue.

"If you will trust to me I swear on my honor that you shall escape."

"Why do you speak now in English?"

"You have been in both England and America and you know that an English-speaking man holds his honor before all else."

Her eyes widened. "But you . . . . You are—you are—Beppo."

I smiled. I had never thought the name could sound sweet in my ears, as it did then.

"And I have sworn to accuse you," she added when I did not reply.

"Yes," I said in Italian again. "I am—I am just Beppo. To you, an assassin."

She started and shivered slightly at the recollection the words stirred, and passed her hand across her forehead. "I must keep my vow," she murmured.

At that moment as we stood gazing silently at each other, Pepita came hurrying back. "It is impossible, Beppo. Beltano is with Ahmet," she said, affrighted.

"I will go and see what it means. In the meanwhile, Pepita, get those clothes here and give them to the signorina to secrete. Someone else may be put here to attend upon her in your place."

I went down then to face Beltano and found him abusing Ahmet for having allowed me to enter the building.

"Ahmet is not at fault, Beltano. I forced my way past him. Turn your anger on me," I said at once. "Ahmet would have stopped me and I threatened him."

Again he was careful to check his anger with me; but that he suspected my purpose in going to Masita was as plain as his dark beard.

"I sought only to relieve you of your guard, Beppo," he said.

"Breva is the guard by day. My watch is at night," I answered drily.

"You have done well. No one knows that better than I; but now that I am back, I choose whom I will for the work."

"If I have done well, you have done ill, Beltano. I have had much trouble with the men in your absence, and when they find my orders set at naught without my knowledge, they will sneer at me. I shall keep the night watch."

"I have already ordered Juan to keep it."

"You wish to put a slight on me then?"

"Don't be so hot in the head, man."

"I am quite cool about this, Beltano. The man who takes my place against my wish will have to fight me for it. Find one, if you can," and with that I was turning away when he came after me.

"Are you set on quarreling, Beppo? The reason for the change is that there will no longer be need of any watch. I have altered my plans. Masita will become my wife tonight," and as if very anxious to avoid a dispute with me, he kept by my side explaining his plan and seeking to assure himself that I should not attempt to thwart it.

We stood talking together some time near the huts; he questioning and I fencing with him; and I saw Pepita in eager talk with Breva; and soon afterward she passed us carrying a bundle.

When I left Beltano I went down to see that my boat was in readiness, and as I came back up the path toward the farmstead, Agapa met me. "I have been seeking you everywhere, Beppo. You have heard that Beltano means to marry Masita tonight? You are a fool. You told him of my going to her. That is why he has hastened things."

"What is it to me?"

"You love her," she cried almost fiercely, "and yet like a tame fool would see her mated with another."

I smiled. Here was I with my plan for Masita's escape all ready, and Agapa was mad that I did nothing. "The priest who is to marry them is to marry Molta and me at the same time, Agapa. You talk like a child."

She gestured impatiently. "You may fool others; but I have seen you and Masita together and read the glances of you both."

I caught my breath at the thought she started. "You tire me with your fool talk, Agapa."

"Then you have a plan," she cried sharply, seizing my arm and staring up into my face. "Yes, I can see you have. Is it the same as mine?"

I had no mind to trust her with my secret, and, shaking off her hand, was passing on when she held me. "I will tell you mine. This Baracci is but a man. I can do with him what I will." She shrugged her shapely shoulders contemptuously, and her large dark eyes flashed as she laughed softly and threw back her head, with a confident assertion of her charms. She was a handsome devil, in all truth; and that if she tried, she could hang the priest's scalp on her belt, I did not doubt. "Will you help, Beppo? or shall it be Drako?"

But I shook my head. I preferred to rely upon my own plan.

"If you were another than Beppo, I should say you were afraid. But you have some other plan. Try it; but do you know that Molta has gone to the old fort and will remain there until—the marriage ceremony. Ah, that touches you," she cried, as I started uneasily at the news. "My plan will be best. We shall see;" and with that she turned away and left me.

I sought Pepita at once and found the news was true. Beltano had taken a shrewd step to checkmate me; and one with which I could find no fault.

As I sat in my hut disconcerted, I saw Agapa and the rascally old priest together. She was fooling him to the top of his bent; coquetting with him; smiling and ogling him as if her heart were just the purest under heaven and he had it all. I saw too that he was already tipsy; and she plied him with wine, touching the cup with her lips as she handed it to him, and encouraging him to drain it with glances which fired his blood more than the liquor itself.

Then a thought suggested itself to me. I rose and strolled toward the boats, giving Agapa a signal to follow me as I passed; and she nodded, being quick enough to understand. Luigi had been withdrawn; so I got my boat ready and waited.

In a few minutes she came, supporting the priest, whose steps were now very unsteady. When they were near to the boat, she paused and tempted him to try and kiss her; and as he was about to put his arms about her, she drew back, and thrusting him violently forward, called me to help her, saying that he had insulted her.

He staggered down the steep path and fell; and as I dragged him up, she let loose a flood of invective.

He stared at her, helpless with drink and astonishment, and then turned to me protesting and denying.

"I saw it, Beracci. Shall I kill him, Agapa?" I asked, flourishing my knife over his cowering head.

"Yes, yes, he insulted me," she cried, with fierce eagerness, and made as if she herself were ready to do it.

"No," I said. "Whatever else he may be, he is a priest;" and I stepped between them as if to prevent her.

"Save me," he murmured, cowering from her behind me.

"If he stays here he shall pay with his life," she declared with a vehemence which even I believed to be real.

"You hear?" I exclaimed, turning to him. "If you stay, you die. There is a boat. Go, if you care for your wretched life."

He hesitated between what he deemed the certain death on the island and the risks of crossing by himself; and his lips mumbled quick prayers in his fright.

"Stay then," I said after a moment's pause; and turned to leave with Agapa.

"No, no, no, I'll go," and repeating his prayers to heaven, he clambered into the boat and I shoved it out with all my strength to start him on the voyage.

There was a good wind and we watched him until he was almost out of sight in the dusk, and then Agapa burst into a shrill laugh.

"What is this? Where is Father Beracci?"

It was Beltano.

WHY NOT HERE?

Mrs. Corey Is Inclined to Real Musical Philanthropy She Should Find Ample American Field.

A Paris dispatch this week tells of William E. Corey's intention to establish an American opera house in Paris, at which none but American singers may appear. The former Gilman and the present wife of the president of the United States Steel Corporation, declares that she will make this Franco-American the central feature of a school of operatic art where poor students, boys and girls, from America, may study "under the best foreign masters and be otherwise encouraged in professional careers."

A commendable project, says John Freund, in Musical America, but the standing public has become so familiar with sudden announcements of grants of philanthropy, intended to aid the American student of music, at home and abroad, that it takes the attitude of the Missourian, who "wants to be shown."

With her husband's millions behind her, Mrs. Corey is in an advantageous position to fulfill her promises, especially so because she herself has been a music student abroad and therefore has a personal interest, which most philanthropists cannot feel in the matter. But why is this new operahouse to be established in Paris? Why not in New York, or any other American city? Surely it is not because the worthy and especially gifted opera students are all waiting in the French metropolis for an opportunity to show what they can do. And surely it is not because the best instruction in the art of singing and presenting operatic music is to be had there.

If Mrs. Corey would really do something to raise America's standing in this department of music she should spend her money in the United States, where the really ambitious aspirants to success in opera are to be found in the greatest number, and where really worthy instruction, representing the most approved methods of all the foreign music centers, may be had, despite all reports to the contrary.

Besides accomplishing all the good she has in view, the location of such an enterprise in this country would encourage and show confidence in the efficacy of our own brand of instruction, and would discourage the useless and expensive habit of emigration, so prevalent among American students.

Habit.

See, blind and weak, he whimpers at my breast,
Teasing and petulant he whines,
And will not rest!
Now snarling careless-clawed he drags at me
In uncouth play so fierce I dare
Not set him free!

Now gross and slather fanged and grim of will
He stalks me naked through the world,
Whom he must kill.

The Drama---Players, Playhouses, Gossip of the Stage

TOPICS OF THE STAGE.

With the new Blackwood stock company, the Morosco stock company, the Belasco stock company and Mr. Drown's musical stock company at the Grand Operahouse, the city presents an unwonted aspect in the home manufacture of its dramatic entertainment, and, by the first of September, will certainly be sustaining its reputation as the foremost stock town in America.

The Burbank and Belasco companies are well-known producing organizations, and the new Blackwood institution promises to be no whit behind in the maintenance of our high repute. The manager avers that he has thoroughly equipped himself with plays, and it is no secret to those in the profession, at least, that he has an alliance with one of the foremost producing and managerial houses in New York, and practically unlimited financial backing in this city. The Auditorium stage affords a supreme field for the exploitation of productions, as was illustrated last winter by Dick Ferris, whose magnificent settings placed a mark as yet unsurpassed by any theater in the West.

Mr. Ferris will conclude his season in Minneapolis in the autumn, and, after a vacation in the East, or a possible trip to Europe, will return to his West Adams-street home here. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ferris have worked hard for several seasons, and are now enjoying a prosperous summer. They are not especially eager to resume work immediately after their Minneapolis engagement closes, but it would not be at all surprising if way should be made for them here about holiday time, as Mr. Ferris has done something in Los Angeles which critical observers pronounced well-nigh impossible at his first coming, namely: He has created a distinctive following apart from the clientele of any other house here.

The new Blackwood company, and the Belasco and Burbank companies, therefore, may be regarded as permanent, with a probability of Ferris's reappearance.

The duration of Mr. Drown's musical stock is still problematical, but observers may be assured that if it is not successful it will be taken out, as the redoubtable Orpheum circuit has never pursued any art or alleged art which loses money.

The most inexplainable asset of stage success is that unanalyzed, electric quality which manifests itself masculinely as "magnetism," and in women is—"fascination."

And as for fascination, we have had no such thorough personification of the word on our local stage in many a day as Jane Grey, whose alluring depiction of Juanita Kenton, in "The Rose of the Rancho" is one of the most charming and vivid studies the stage here has presented this year.

I was present at the premier of "Juanita of San Juan," but I never saw David Belasco's redrawing of Tully's story until the other night. I'm told, however, that in many respects Miss Grey surpasses Mr. Belasco's now famous little player, Frances Starr.

The day before The Times' publication of the plans for Blackwood's new stock company, at the Auditorium, Lewis Stone, who is to be the leading man, received a most unusual offer from Harrison Grey Fiske. Mr. Fiske stated that Mrs. Fiske had seen him play in Los Angeles, during her recent visit, and was so impressed with his histrionic talents that she had requested the writer to engage Mr. Stone immediately, to create a role in her new production in New York this fall.

The story of "The Thief" is as follows: The Voysins, husband and wife, are visiting M. and Mme. Lagardes at their country home. The Lagardes have a son, Fernand, who is smitten with Mme. Voysin's charms, and who writes her the most ardent love letters. Mme. Voysin, who is young and charming, and who loves her husband with a most unswerving devotion, treats the young man's amatory attitude lightly, as a sort of romantic flutter that will soon pass away. She is good-natured and good-humored toward him, but his attentions have made no other impression upon her than that they are the outbreak of a silly sentimentality. He writes her notes, which he places under the pillow of the bed in her boudoir, and others which he leaves around in other parts of her rooms. This letter-writing leads him into a serious difficulty, upon which he has not at all reckoned. For Mme. Lagardes has had money stolen from her private cabinet, and as a detective named Zambault, who is in the house masquerading as a friend of M. Lagardes, has seen Fernand quietly creeping up the stairs to the chambers, and has also seen Fernand take something from a drawer, he openly accuses him of being the thief.

It is known that Fernand has had an affair with a pretty actress, to whom he has given frequent presents, and appearances are that he has purloined the money to continue this liason.

The Lagardes are astonished at the revelation. They refuse to believe the detective. He unfolds bit by bit, however, his evidence, and the father is at last convinced. He sends for his son. Fernand has gone into the grounds to recover the letters he wrote to Mme. Voysin, she having told him where he would find them, unopened. Mme. Voysin volunteers to go after Fernand when the father demands his presence. She returns in a moment with him, and, to the amazement of everybody but the detective, Fernand confesses to the theft.

His father, furious, decides to banish him to a distant country, where he will have an opportunity to work and repay the money.

Of course, Fernand is not the thief, the guilty one being really Mme. Voysin, whose childish desire to please her husband has led her into the greatest extravagances in the purchase of clothing and personal adornments which she thinks may please him.

The denouement, however, is not a tragic one.

"The Servant in the House" will be withdrawn from its New York run this week, and the company will proceed directly to Los Angeles, opening a week's engagement here next Monday night.

The three brothers of the play will be impersonated by Walter Hampden, Tyrone Power and Edmund Kennedy.

THE LOCAL WEEK.

Henri Bernstein's play, "The Thief," will commence its week at the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night. The cast, with the exception of Kyrle Bellew, whose leading position is taken by Bruce McRae, is very much the same as that seen during the extended New York run of the piece.

Besides Mr. McRae, the principals will be Margaret Illington, impersonating the chief role, Edward R. Mawson, Sidney Herbert, Leonard Ide, Cecil Owen and Isabel Richards.

Bernstein is said to show remarkable technical skill in this play, the crucial act presenting but two characters, and extending for forty minutes of absorbing interest.

Richard Walton Tully's farce-comedy of college existence, "The Strenuous Life," will be presented at the Burbank Theater this afternoon. Mr. Desmond will be seen as the college boy who cannot tell the truth. Beasley will be in his element as the mistaken college professor, while H. J. Ginn has an unusual part—that of a Japanese who knows but one word of English, and who answers all questions with that word. Miss Hall has a bright comedy role.

Cowboy girls, country girls, bathing girls, summer girls and the Broadway bunch at the seaside are the substance of "Gayest Manhattan," the new review which the Grand Operahouse musical company will present for the first time this afternoon.

The programme lists about twenty new musical numbers, strung in a web of laughable comedy situations.

Elise Schuyler passes from Dutch comedy to play the role of a simple country lass whose father brings her to New York in search of a fortune left in trust for her years before. Edna Sidney will be a romantic young Miss who just misses a romance. Libby Blondelle will be the blond belle of a summer hotel.

Bert Levy will return to the Orpheum tomorrow night with his novel sketching turn, depicting famous men and pretty women.

Sagar Midgeley and Gertie Carlisle, who have been out of vaudeville for several seasons, will return with their rural comedy sketch, "After School." Since their last appearance here they have been settled features in "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," and several other productions.

John W. World and Mindel Kingston, talking comedians, will return. Another humorous pair new to the bill is Clifford and Burke.

The acts retained for a second week are the "Seven Hoboes," Zeno, Jordan and Zeno, John and Mae Burke and Sadie Sherman.

"The Rose of the Rancho" will commence its second week at the Belasco Theater tomorrow night. Hobart Bosworth will take the leading role, to be vacated by Lewis Stone at his retirement from the organization tonight.

"An American Princess" will be the opening act at the Unique during the coming week with Maude Beatty, Olga Stech, Millar Bacon and Billy Onslow in the principal parts.

The comedy company will present "My Uncle's Return," by James P. Lee, with the latter in the chief role, supported by Charles Perley, Marie Barbier, Groeg Morrell, Lola Radcliffe, Rose Rehn, Hugh Metcalf and Maxie Mitchell.

Gattone's Italian band, under the direction of of La Monaca, will continue the chief attraction at the Los Angeles Theater during the coming week.

Clyde Tracey, cartoonist, will do some rapid-fire drawing. Illustrated songs will be given by Lucy Wotthof.

Fischer's new bill will be "The Widow McGinty," comedy by Richard Cummings. Evan Baldwin, Bessie Tannehill and Nellie Montgomery will introduce new musical numbers.

An "All American" programme is on at Fischer's Chronophone Theater this week, with standard ballads and new popular successes as features.

Dramagraphs.

A banquet was recently given to Novelli in Rome. Two hundred artists sat down at it, and ex-Minister Fortis gave the toast of the evening.

Maude Fealy is spending the summer at her home in Denver. Miss Fealy will use "The Stronger Sex" for her starring vehicle again next season.

William Vaughn Moody, author of "The Great Divide," was given the degree of doctor of letters by Yale University on commencement day.

Florence Roberts will begin her fourth starring tour under the management of John Cort, at Peoria, in October. Miss Roberts will be seen in a new emotional play constructed along the line of "The Struggle Everlasting."

Geraldine Farrar and her parents have taken an apartment at the Hotel Adlon, Berlin, till the first of November. The singer herself will study again with Lilli Lehmann during the summer.

Vernon Stiles, the American tenor, who sang Pinkerton in Henry W. Savage's "Madame Butterfly" production, given here last winter, has been engaged for the Vienna Court Opera for the next six years. He is to take leading roles. By the terms of his contract he will be free after the first three years to return to sing in America for five months in the year.

Writes Rennold Wolf: "Yesterday as they passed the postoffice building, on the top of which the American flag was flying, Sam H. Harris yelled: 'Author! Author!' and George M. Cohan lifted his hat and bowed his thanks."

Harrison Grey Fiske has engaged Charles Cartwright, the English character actor, to appear in Mrs. Fiske's support next season. Mr. Cartwright originated the part of Kleschna in "Leah Kleschna," when Mrs. Fiske produced the play at the Manhattan Theater.

Henry W. Savage's production of "The Merry Widow" has been transferred from the New American Theater, New York, to the Aërial Gardens above the New Amsterdam roof. Only the evening performances will be played on the roof. The Wednesday and Saturday matinées will be given in the theater.

Eugene Walter dug "The Wolf" out of his trunk after his "Paid in Full" was a New York success. He offered it to the Messrs. Shubert and they grabbed it. It failed dismally at the Bijou, New York, but was transferred to the Lyric, where it achieved a run.

The matinée concert at Covent Garden, organized by Melba to commemorate her twenty seasons of operatic service, brought in a net profit of nearly $10,000 for the London hospital, and incidentally was a great triumph for the diva. The King and Queen were both present and the house was filled with a fashionable gathering.

Miss Lillian Russell has consented to umpire the baseball game between the prima donnas and soubrettes at a big theatrical field day to be held on the Polo Grounds, New York, on July 17, in aid of the Home for Destitute Crippled Children. George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris, who are in charge of the arrangements, have invited Secretary Taft to attend the games.

Miss May Buckley, whose name is really Marie Uhl, was married to Charles Walter Sabine Martin, at Denver, Colo., on June 27, at midnight. The ceremony took place in the old apple orchard at Elitch's Gardens after Miss Buckley's last performance with the stock company. Chief Justice Gabbert of the Colorado Supreme Court officiated.

George Ade has the book of a new musical play all but completed. Benjamin Hapgood Burt will supply the music and the two authors will combine their efforts on the lyrics. The name of the new piece is "The City Chap," and Cohan and Harris will produce it early in the coming season, with Jack Norworth in the title role.

Joseph Hart of "Foxy Grandpa" prominence recently put on a sketch at the Hippodrome in London which is said to have hit the bullseye. It is "The Futurity Winner," and the main scene is horses in a race, running like mad, on a treadmill something like Neil Burgess had in "The County Fair." Anyway, it is new to London, and one American correspondent says it will be a sensation there as sure as the Nelson monument is a foot high.

Casting about for new material, Leoncavallo, whose "Red Shirt" is slated for an early fall premiere at the Opera Comique, has placed himself in communication with Henrik Sienkiewicz, in reference to the use of one of the Polish author's novels as the libretto for an opera. Sienkiewicz has expressed his willingness to collaborate with the composer of "I Pagliacci," but reserves for himself alone the writing of the libretto.

Ethel Barrymore, who is now in Paris, will begin her season in America in September. Mr. Frohman says: "Miss Barrymore has an enormous amount of work before her for her coming season in America. She will begin in the part of Lady Frederick in the play of that name. During her New York engagement, which begins toward the end of November, she will not only play Lady Frederick every evening, but make a number of special productions, new plays and comedy revivals during the afternoons. Miss Barrymore will also give a number of special one-act plays, and her coming to Paris is in connection with those plays."

EVENTS OF THE WEEK.

Coronado and Tahoe are delightful spots in warm weather, and at both resorts many Los Angeles people have found temporary homes. Miss Leila [illegible], Mrs. Don Lee and Mrs. Kenneth Preuss were among last week's arrivals at Hotel Coronado. Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Preuss spent much of their time in visiting places of interest in a motor car.

Teas and luncheons have been enjoyed by those who have not yet closed their city homes, and these functions and several interesting weddings made the week a busy one socially.

The announcement Monday of the marriage of Miss Ruth Elliott Tichnor of Rockford, Ill., to Rev. Thornton Anthony Mills was received with pleasure by their many friends. The ceremony was performed at the bride's eastern home. Miss Mabel Smith of Whittier street, entertained delightfully with an afternoon function. Luncheon was served at a table decorated with bright red blossoms, and pretty red hearts marked places. Miss Elizabeth Pepper of South Burlington avenue, gave a dinner party at Hotel Virginia, Long Beach, complimentary to her sister, Miss Helen Neville Pepper, who was married later in the week. Mrs. [illegible] Lee Grover returned from an extended automobile tour through the northern part of the State. Miss Kate [illegible] gave a luncheon at the California Club as a courtesy to Miss [illegible] Witherell of Pasadena, whose wedding to Ira Smith of Attelboro, was solemnized last week. Later the performance at the Belasco was enjoyed.

Vollmer of No. 988 Valencia street left for Wisconsin and Lafayette, Ind. Invitations were issued by Mrs. J. G. [illegible] for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Dorothea C., to Kent C. Washburn, which will be solemnized Tuesday evening, July 21.

Among the weddings of Wednesday was that of Miss Alma Irene White, daughter of Mrs. J. E. White of No. [illegible] South Johnston street, and Robert Garfield Wagner of this city. Unusually beautiful was the wedding of Miss Helen Pepper and Lawrence C. Stieth of Cleveland, O., which took place in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Pepper, of South Burlington avenue. The bride is one of our most attractive young women and her many friends regret that she will make her future home in Cleveland. Miss Grace Whitesell of No. 2640 Jones street returned from Prescott, Ariz., where she had been the guest of Mrs. Warren Beecher. A surprise to their friends was the announcement of the wedding of Miss Cecelia Lindsay and Henry Reed, which took place at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Florence Collins Porter and her daughter, Mrs. Willis Norton Blood, of No. 1141 Fair Oaks avenue, South Pasadena, gave a luncheon in honor of their cousin, Mrs. Chester W. Brown, who has just returned from South America. The decorations were in green and white. At the Church of the Angels Miss Renna Lucille Kane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kane of No. 1022 Ingraham street, was married at 5 o'clock to Louis Reed Everett of Santa Barbara. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Harry Thompson in the presence of the relatives only.

Interest centered Thursday on the wedding of Mrs. Juliette Graham Bixby, a charming and accomplished young society matron, who became the bride, at her beautiful St. James place home, of Lieutenant-Commander A. H. Robertson of the U.S.S. Tennessee. Particularly attractive was the canopy of fluffy ferns beneath which the service was read by Chaplain Dickens of the cruiser. Immediately after the ceremony Lieutenant-Commander and Mrs. Robertson left for an auto tour. The officer will join his ship at Puget Sound in a month. Mrs. Elsie E. Weaver announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Blanche L. Weaver, to W. B. Boyle. The ceremony was solemnized on the 8th inst. Mrs. Charles W. A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S
Oriental Cream
OR MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER

GIVES A FASCINATING AND REFINED COMPLEXION

It is the duty of every woman to preserve her beauty; and even the most beautiful must protect their complexion. A faultless complexion, sweet, pure, and wholesome is something every woman desires and which can be readily obtained by using GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM. This well known preparation has been highly recommended by physicians, actresses, singers, and women of fashion for over half a century. It renders the skin like the softness of velvet, leaving it clear and pearly white.

GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM cures Skin Diseases, relieves irritation, soothes and invigorates the skin, beautifies and improves the complexion and cannot be surpassed when preparing for evening attire.

Silver Threads

Among the gold! What a story they tell of fast passing years, and youth and strength. It is woman's duty, for her own sake, and for her husband's and family's sake, to retain her youthful appearance. Her influence, happiness, courage, and health depend very largely upon her personal appearance.

It gives us great pleasure to know that happiness has been restored to many homes by our timely assistance.

You need not fear the "silver threads." Nature has kindly provided a simple, cleanly, and perfectly harmless method of restoring gray hair to its beautiful natural color.

MRS. NETTIE HARRISON'S

Four-Day Hair Restorer

Is a harmless preparation that restores gray or faded hair to its natural color without any inconvenience or disagreeable after effects. Not a dye, cleanly to use; free from sediment or sticky matter. Price, $1 a bottle. All druggists.

If you have any defects of skin, scalp or general health, write me. Correspondence solicited.

country. Miss Lloyd is to appear early in the fall in a new musical comedy called "The Bonnie Belle of Scotland." John J. McNally wrote the book and the music is by George M. Cohan. The McNaughtons will support Miss Lloyd in her first starring venture. The comedienne will return to New York about a month before rehearsals begin. She will bring with her from Paris a lot of ideas on costumes and gowns which she will work out with F. Richard Anderson, who will design the dresses and scenery of the production.

As though it were not already amply provided with operahouses, excepting in regard to a suitable home for the Royal Opera, Berlin is to have another building consecrated to the lyric muse, at which popular prices will prevail. Past disastrous experiences with undertakings of this nature have not daunted the promoters of the new project. It is only two or three years since the National Theater had to close its doors after one short season, which had been highly commendable from the point of view of artistic results. The inconvenient location, however, far removed, as it was, from the center of the city, was responsible in great measure for the financial loss sustained. In the present instance that mistake has been avoided by choosing a site in the Potsdamer Strasse. The seating capacity is to accommodate 2500 people.

Margaret Illington, Frohman expects some day to be recognized as a Shakespearean actress. "I'm going to play Lady Macbeth, and I'm going to play Juliet, too," she told Walter Anthony in San Francisco. "You know Mme. Modjeska said she wouldn't play Juliet until she was an old woman. But I want to play Juliet while I'm still young; then by the time I'm an old woman I'll know how. The trouble with Shakespeare is that he exposes the players who attempt him. When a woman plays Ibsen she can play him any way and be acceptable. That's true, and the critics exclaim rapturously, 'A new interpretation.' All she has to do is to play Ibsen, and if she has any mannerisms they become at once a part of the character—and a new interpretation. But Shakespeare finds you out. If you haven't a good voice or stage presence or technique, or if you lack in the slightest measure the smallest requirements of an actor, Shakespeare reveals the discrepancy. That's why players don't like Shakespeare."

The fact that Adolf l'Arronge left an estate of more than 1,300,000 marks, or about $400,000, shows that the reward of the successful dramatist is as great in Germany as it is in this country. L'Arronge wrote for a long period, and his plays met with a high degree of success. None of the others had the vitality of "My Leopold" and "Haseman's Daughter," which belonged to the first days of his artistic career. Then he had apparently set for himself the task of improving the condition of the German folk comedies, which are still lamentably crude. He put so much human nature into these two pieces that they even stood translation, although they seemed too thoroughly German for any foreign success. William Warren played for years "My Boy," which was the same comedy of a father's devotion to a son unworthy of his love and indulgence. L'Arronge made money out of his later plays that were acted here, probably coming out best in a financial way with the adaptation of "Der Compagnon," made over by Martha Morton for William Crane and called "His Wife's Father." The action was clumsily removed to a Harlem setting, but the German origin of the piece was unmistakable. "Dr. Klaus," popular as it is in Germany, never made any great success here.

Not being able to find a new opera to produce in English next season, Henry W. Savage has decided to cancel the tour of his English grand opera company until the autumn of 1909. At that time he will present in English Puccini's new opera, founded on David Belasco's play, "The Girl of the Golden West," which will not be ready for another year. Mr. Savage while abroad found that the Italian composer would not have his latest opera ready for production next season, and as no suitable successor to "Madam Butterfly" was to be found, he decided to cancel the tour of his English opera company until he could produce "The Girl of the Golden West." Mr. Savage has two other operas which he will produce season after next in English.

Edith Craig, daughter of Ellen Terry, has taken the place of Mary Rorke in the cast of "Getting Married," Bernard Shaw's play at the Haymarket, in London, and the circumstances brings to light an amusing incident. It appears that Shaw was at a loss to decide upon an actress to take Miss Rorke's place. Miss Craig had a flat next to the modest one occupied by Shaw on the historic Adelphi Terrace and returned home late one night to find that she had forgotten her keys. Careful not to disturb her neighbors, she cautiously called to her maid. The dramatist was burning the midnight oil in his study, heard her discreet and pleasing voice, and immediately decided to offer Miss Rorke's vacant part to the young lady beneath his window.

Early this month a meeting took place at Modena, Italy, between Mascagni, Sonzogno and Luigi Illica, the noted librettist. Although all three maintained great reserve as to what was discussed at the meeting, it is stated that Mascagni has definitely abandoned the idea of setting to music the libretto, "Festa del Grano," and that he will complete by the end of December the musical setting for a libretto by Illica. It will be an opera in one act, of a dramatic nature, with five characters. The choruses will be imposing. The protagonist is the daughter of a King, who sacrifices herself for the welfare of the people. The libretto was read yesterday, and was selected from three lyric works presented. It appears that Mascagni also has a contract with the French publisher of "L'Amica" for an opera in three acts to be presented in 1911, perhaps in Rome.

Sarah Bernhardt, the most widely known actress, is now 64 years old. She seems to have discovered the secret of eternal youth, for her strength and genius do not wane. Eleanora Duse, Bernhardt's rival in fame and perhaps a greater actress, is an old and faded woman, but in the theater the spell of her art still holds. Ellen Terry, whose retirement doubtless will be only temporary, has been on the stage more than forty years. The late Mrs. Gilbert is another striking example. She was made a star at a time when the average domestic grandmother would have retired to her inglenook to wait for the end in patience. Frank C. Bangs, who died a few days ago with the record of being the oldest actor in point of service on the American stage—a position handed to him by Joseph Jefferson—is remembered by the grandfathers of today as a fiery Anthony and Romeo. When he died he was 75 years old, and but for a street car accident, which compelled him to go into retirement at the close of last season, he would have died in harness.

Mme. Edythe Walker, who is now reappearing at Covent Garden, after a few years' absence, says the Westminster Gazette, is one of many well-known singers who have changed, in the course of time, the character of their voices. "Thus, whereas she was formerly a contralto, or mezzo-soprano, she now confines herself exclusively to soprano parts, and, as all who have heard her must agree, with complete success. In the same way, Jean de Reszke was originally a baritone. A potential tenor may remain, for lack of wise training, a weak and mediocre baritone, and a healthy baritone may be built up, as in Jean de Reszke's case, into a remarkably efficient tenor. But no training could make (if such a transformation were desired) a tenor into a bass or a soprano into a contralto; the stuff to work with simply isn't there. It is perhaps hardly accurate to speak of "changing" a voice from one class to another; the function of the teacher is rather to develop what nature has provided, and the best instructors have always known how to produce a wonderful upward development of a healthy vocal organ which will endure hard and prolonged training. There must be one of the great tests of a voice teacher—if voices came labeled and defined as to compass and character, like a flute, a clarinet and a bassoon, the problem would be simple enough. But to decide in the case of an uncertain, undeveloped voice, what can be made out of it must call for real divination, and so great is the risk of a mistake that it must be a relief to a conscientious teacher to come upon a voice which unmistakably declares its character from the beginning—a true contralto, a heavy bass, a high soprano that goes to the top with natural ease. It is the ambiguous cases that perplex, and it may be added that there are too many nondescript voices which might have had double value with wise teaching to bring out their full capabilities. Jean de Reszke would have been a great artist if he had remained a baritone, but he would never have ranked so high in his profession.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Elise Lathrop, writing in Musical America, has much of interest to tell concerning the real conditions surrounding students in Milan. In these days it is hard to get any fair account of existence in the great European music centers, as far as the young American researcher for knowledge is concerned, for these places are given the praise of ignorant flattery on the one hand, and are thoroughly damned by the finger of suspicion on the other.

"Milan is much like any other large city," says Miss Lathrop. "There are quantities of singing teachers, good, bad and indifferent. It is always and in any case a difficult matter to select a singing teacher, and how much more so when one is ignorant of the language. Another difficulty exists for the American. The average Italian sings naturally, with a voice already placed forward by nature and his language. And the average Italian who is training for an operatic career—and almost all singing students are training for opera—rarely pays for his or her lessons. He or she usually is a child of the people. Someone hears Giovanni or Maria sing at some humble occupation, praises the voice, and suggests a singer's career. The girl or boy and the parents have no money, but there are the government conservatories, or, failing to enter these, there is always some maestro who, if the young voice seems really promising, is perfectly willing to cultivate it on speculation, with a contract insuring repayment for these lessons after the pupil has entered upon his career.

"This career frequently begins after but two years of study. Think of a country which can transform the young mechanic or day laborer, the nurse or chambermaid in but two years into a singer acceptable, to say the least, in a leading role in grand opera, and not by any means always in a small or insignificant city, either. I myself heard a tenor sing the difficult tenor role in 'I Puritani,' in a large Milan theater, and it was commonly reported that three months before he was a cobbler, singing at his bench as he worked at his trade. And he sang with success in critical Milan, be it understood.

"A few weeks ago the head of one of the most important musical agencies in Milan, that operatic center, not only of Italy, but for operatic engagements all over the world, said to me: 'Young American singers, and especially women, should find many opportunities for an operatic career in Italy. There is a decided opening for them, for American women have the finest voices in the world, undoubtedly.

"'Yet the Americans who wish a career in Italy come too late. They come after they have studied for years in their native land, and are thoroughly imbued with a method, call it American, German or what you like, which at all events is not Italian. Many Americans fail because of their lack of adaptability. Russians and Poles come here, and with voices not as beautiful as those of the Americans succeed where the others fail. Why? Let me give you one reason. The average Russian or Pole speaks Italian more fluently ten days after her arrival here than does the average American after a year.

"'The American student refuses to adapt herself to Italian life. She lives if possible in a hotel here, and she scorns to live among Italians—yet do not think that students in Milan from the United States form a little coterie among themselves. They seem anxious to avoid each other. They certainly show no friendly spirit. They see only two or three chosen friends, live in their hotels or pensions, speak English, do not try to learn to speak Italian, and then rail at the prejudices of Italians when they fail in trying to secure an operatic engagement. As a class they are not thought of highly as students, for they are continually rushing to different teachers. Yet many teachers in this city, the veriest tyros, have become popular and are making fortunes from their performances with American pupils.'"

Miss Lathrop continues: "The winter climate in Milan is trying. There are fogs, much rain, and it is damp and cold for several months.

"A visit to the famous Milan Conservatory, the Giuseppe Verdi Conservatory, as it was rechristened some years ago, although it existed as an institution long before, brought the statement that, although it is open absolutely without charge to sufficiently-talented students of any nationality whatsoever, there are at present no young people from the United States enrolled among the students, and but a few from South America.

"The requirements for admission to the course of instruction in any branch of music may be briefly summed up thus: the applicant must speak and pass a successful examination. To enter is not easy, however, for in the department of singing there may be, for instance, but twenty-four students at one time, as there are three teachers, each limited to eight pupils. Each year there are apt to be but five or six vacancies in this department to be filled.

"Before being allowed to take the entrance examination one must also present a certificate of birth, testifying that he is of sound constitution; a certificate of vaccination, a recent certificate of good conduct, and another that he has passed at least the third elementary class in the Italian public schools, or that he has had an equivalent education, if under 10 years of age, or, if older, that his education has advanced proportionately.

"This Milan conservatory is one of six supported by the Italian government, the others being located at Naples, Florence, Parma, Rome and Palermo. The directors of these conservatories are appointed by the King, upon the suggestion of the Minister of Public Instruction. All salaries and expenses are paid by the government.

"One wise ruling is that students in composition—who study five years—are also required not only to study organ for one year, either violin or viola for two years, the history of music and the practice of accompaniment for two years, poetic and dramatic literature for two years, but also singing, the physiology of the vocal organs, and actual vocal practice."

Bruce Gordon Kingsley's new orchestra, which he has been organizing and rehearsing the week past, will make its initial appearance at the Auditorium on Friday evening.

Julius Bierlich is concert master of this orchestra, and the membership includes about thirty of the best-known local musicians.

The Cecilian quartette, whose members are Mrs. F. R. Feitshans, Miss Ada G. Richards, Miss Grace D. Elliott and Miss Carrie Frances Tallman, will assist in the first programme.

The orchestral programme is an unusually fine one, combining popularity with a thoroughly high standard of composition. The numbers are the "Zampa" overture, the waltz from Delibes's "Coppelia" ballet, a selection from "The Mikado," the march from "Aida," German's "Three English Dances," and a fantasie from "Carmen." Mr. Kingsley will also give two or three organ solos.

A musicale is to be given at the Church of the Messiah, Congregational, corner of Washington street and Van Ness avenue, on Thursday evening. The money raised will be devoted to furnishing the new chapel, which is about to be erected. An excellent programme is being arranged under the direction of Mrs. W. A. Bradshaw and Mrs. M. G. Ritchie.

MARY GARDEN IN PARIS.

French-Scotch-American Prima Donna Recounts Her Experiences to the Continental Reviewers.

Mary Garden has been relating some of the experiences of her visit to this country to the Paris interviewers, according to the New York Sun's correspondent.

"The greatest joy of my trip to America," she said, "was to make loved there the operas of the French school, a school unknown in the United States in its modern manifestation of art and truth."

At a dinner one night her neighbor told her that the jewels worn by the seven other women present were worth $7,000,000. Her contract with Oscar Hammerstein has still three seasons to run, and she is to receive in the successive seasons $1400, $1600 and $1800 a performance, which may certainly be described as interesting if true. Miss Garden admitted that these figures were going some, but added:

"Imagine, though, a city with the riches of New York. It has two million inhabitants and represents with the population of its two neighboring cities, Philadelphia and Boston, from which it is customary to come to the opera in New York, more than nine million inhabitants. In November I shall inaugurate my theater in Philadelphia."

"Your theater?" repeated the reporter with pardonable astonishment.

"I call it my theater," Miss Garden said, "because it was built on my account."

Miss Garden will sing here for five months every season and says that she recalls only her pleasant experiences in America and looks upon her visit as a great opening which she, as a pioneer, had made for French art.

"I made it acknowledged," she said, "and I made it acclaimed."

"WILD OATS."

MUSICAL COMEDY HERO PRINCE IN REAL LIFE.

Prince Danilo of Montenegro and his wife.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

VIENNE, July 1.—Prince Danilo, beloved in the gay world of Paris and Rome, reputed hero of that popular musical comedy, "The Merry Widow," and heir to the throne of Montenegro, is planning, I hear, to attend the wedding of Miss Elkins and the Duke of the Abruzzi, should the ceremony take place in Washington. Another report says that he will visit London during the summer, and it is probable that these are part of the same plan and that both the English metropolis and the United States will see this interesting royal Prince in the near future.

The picture of the probable ruler of the little Balkan kingdom dished up to you in the United States in "The Merry Widow" is, of course, a reminiscence of his more youthful days when he was a high roller in Paris and Rome. He is no longer the open-handed spender that his musical comedy prototype makes him out to be. His marriage to Princess Jutta of Mecklenburg, cousin of the Princess of Wales, has toned him down to a considerable degree. His name has been forgotten at "Maxim's" and other swagger restaurants in Paris, except by a few of the older set who delight to recall the escapades of this scion of royalty. His brother-in-law, the King of Italy, has almost forgiven a certain memorable visit to Rome of the Montenegrin "hopeful" some years ago. On that occasion the Italian ruler was compelled to refuse in no uncertain manner the request of the Prince for an advance of money to pay for the red paint with which he was bedaubing the city. It is said that by King Emanuel's orders, the Prince's baggage was packed and he was bundled across the border to avoid a scandal.

Yet there is one person in Paris who is not likely to forget the Prince and his visits as long as he lives. He is the proprietor of a certain jewelry establishment in the French capital, who on one of the Prince's visits, supplied him with diamonds and other precious stones to the value of many thousands of dollars. These in due course of time found their way to the corsages of popular actresses of the Paris music-hall stage, but the Prince, who was never blest with an abundance of money and always lived far beyond his means, was never able to pay for them. When demands for a settlement became pressing the royal customer went around and collected the jewels and returned them to the store in a damaged state.

One well-confirmed story of Prince Danilo that will not down does not do him much credit. It is said that he became intensely enamored of one of the most beautiful women in Montenegro, the wife of a man named Sharko Kaludcherovitch. The latter suspected his wife of an intrigue with the Crown Prince and watched her movements. One day he caught the pair in compromising circumstances and made such a fuss that the Prince became fearful of violence. At an early opportunity he had the husband arrested and incarcerated in the political prison. He was never liberated, although that was twelve years ago. Four years later he went mad and has been a raving lunatic ever since. The Prince cast the woman off, as might have been expected, when he tired of her.

Danilo is at continual loggerheads with his younger brother, Prince Mirko, of whose superior personal charms he is intensely jealous. The latter is the handsomest Prince in Europe, and is much more robust and popular than his older brother. The quarrels of the two brothers are said to have come to a climax in 1902, when they fought a duel with pistols, neither of them being injured.

As Danilo is childless up to the present time, Prince Mirko would succeed him as heir should anything happen to the older brother. Mirko has also been mentioned as the possible successor of King Peter of Servia, whose brother-in-law he is. Prince George, the heir to the Servian throne, who has an ungovernable temper, has already shot several persons who were in attendance upon him, and is exceedingly unpopular with the people of the little kingdom.

The royal family of Montenegro has been called the "luckiest royal family in the world." It is presided over by Prince Nicholas, than whom there is no more striking personality in the whole of Europe. Although fifty years ago the family were tribal chiefs, yet today one daughter of Prince Nicholas is Queen of Italy; another is a Grand Duchess of Russia, married to a man who may some day be Czar; while yet another is the wife of Prince Francis Joseph of Battenberg, and still another who is dead, married Peter I of Servia before he ascended the throne. Yet the little kingdom can boast a population of only 300,000 and in point of area is the smallest in Europe.

COMMENTS OF JAPANESE MAN.

Some Important Facts for Americans on the Japanese Question.

BY O. E. ODANAKA.

I came to the Pacific Coast four years ago, where I have spent my entire time, and now I leave for my native land. Here is the center of the great racial question between the white and yellow races, and my American life has been spent in this center, and by close observation, I have been able to understand better the heart of both nations. Now before I leave, I would like to state some facts, which may not be familiar to many of Americans.

First as to Japanese immigration into this country which seems to be one of the great causes of trouble. The number from Japan and Korea coming to the United States has decreased since the regulation issued by President Roosevelt on July 1, 1907. According to the report by Commissioner-General Sargent, "a drop of 4304 passports occurred in January, 1908, and in February a decrease of 2298, and in April, 1185." The regulation in granting passports by the Japanese government, you will readily see, is being effective.

Secondly, as to Japan's open policy in China and Korea. In the agreement between the United States and Japan recently concluded, it was stipulated, that the two contracting parties of America and Japan in Korea and China should have mutual protection in inventions, designs, trade-marks and copyrights. Thus there is no room for suspicion, that our sincere desire is not only to maintain, but to develop as much as is possible the principle of the open door and for equal opportunities for all.

Again let us look into the fact regarding the feeling of the Japanese in Japan and also in the United States. People of the Pacific Coast will remember how gladly and generously the Japanese contributed for the entertainment of the American fleet on this Coast, plainly showing the kindly sentiment of the people for Americans. And in our home waters, the citizens of Tokio and Yokohama have decided to raise a sum of money from their countrymen, for the entertainment of the coming fleet in October. They expect to make a special effort to give the fleet a royal welcome, hoping that the talk of unfriendliness between Japan and America may be discredited. The sentiment of Japan for the United States has ever been friendly for the past half century, whether the feeling has been reciprocated or not. In studying these facts, I cannot see why certain observers feel so nervous and apprehensive of war.

Between the United States and Japan there exists an unwritten alliance, and common sense forbids that the two countries should break this alliance. To talk of coming trouble because of sporadic disturbances here and there, resulting in local friction is evidence of lack of statesmen-like views. All citizens of thought on both shores should feel that war predictions are groundless, and the inflaming speeches made by some hot-headed gentlemen shows that they have no ideas or aspirations toward the progress of international peace, which should be the desire of every civilized nation the world over.

It will cost too dearly for either country to strive for triumph by blood and iron. In the first place the countries are geographically too distant from each other. Again, their commercial ties are too strong and should be unbreakable. Geographical distance from an enemy, or from object of attack, is a great disadvantage in case of war. A large number of vessels, obliged to defend themselves are greatly handicapped if far from the base of supplies and a port of refuge. The voyage of the Russian Baltic fleet of 18,000 miles to the Far East did not greatly facilitate her "guerre de course" on account of the great distance from a Russian port. The United States and Japan stand at the ends of the great Pacific Ocean with more than 5000 miles between them, and as a consequence, neither Japan nor the United States can hope to carry on an effective naval struggle.

An isolated position secures independence, and as a wall of defence, a great sea is more effective than a mountain. The American continent is a free and independent state, and she has assumed and maintained her responsibility and supreme power over the Western hemisphere. Because of isolated situation she could easily and effectively oppose European powers in their intentions of further colonizations on territorial designs. The tiny island Empire of Japan has never conquered in all her history. We had the honor to protect our country against invasion of Kiushu in the southern part of Japan in 1281. It was not difficult to preserve our independence against Rodjestvensky's armada, not because Japan was stronger in her naval force, not because her men on the decks played tricks, but because Japan's isolated position from the continent really secured her safety. Isolation of positions secures the independence of the United States, as well as that of Japan. It was possible for Great Napoleon to march over Italy, Austria and Germany, but he could not take possession of the sea power beyond the English Channel, only twenty miles wide. The poet Coleridge says:

"And ocean mid his uproar wild
Speaks safety to his island child.
Hence for many a fearless age
Has social quiet loved thy shore,
Nor ever proud invader's rage,
E'er sacked thy towers or stained thy fields with gore."

A Self-Supporting Department.

The receipts from sales of timber were, in 1904, $58,000, and, in 1907, $687,000. No other department of the government can show results like these. Our $160,000,000 for pensions is a debt of gratitude to the men who fought to save the Union and those dependent upon them. Our $200,000,000 a year for the army and navy are for the public defense in case of war. Our hundreds of thousands for the diplomatic and consular service are for peace and commerce. We spend $50,000,000 nearly every year for rivers and harbors, and forty of that is thrown away, for the streams are filled up again from the floods following the deforestation of the lands. But here is a bureau which preserves the streams for navigation and irrigation, preserves the mountainsides and valleys with their productive possibilities for the farmer, preserves the timber for the manifold uses which are the necessities of the American people, and keeps down the price of lumber so that it will remain within the economical reach of our citizens. At the same time, it is carried on with such skill, efficiency and integrity that, while thus preserving and enriching the nation, its administration is without cost to the government, but, on the contrary, an annual profit is paid into the treasury.—[Senator Depew, in Leslie's Weekly.

Cheapest Receivership on Record.

Americans have been so long accustomed to an utter lack of business sagacity in the management of their municipal and State affairs that the sudden application of anything of the sort excites wonder and surprise. One of our most absurd traditions is to the effect that State-appointed receiverships of banks and trust companies must be enormously expensive affairs, and that a State-appointed receiver shall gain remuneration for his labors far in excess of what he would be paid for equivalent time and trouble if employed in any private capacity. Under a New York State law, recently secured by the superintendent of the State banking department, Clark Williams, it is provided that, instead of the Attorney-General making application to the court and several receivers and a counsel being appointed, the superintendent of banking shall simply designate a deputy to take charge. The first application of the new law has occurred in connection with the Home Bank of South Brooklyn. That bank is now restored to solvency after a brief receivership. The total cost has been $900. In contrast to this, the Hamilton Bank receivership, involving about the same amount of money and lasting about as long, cost the depositors $20,000.—[Leslie's Weekly.

Sounds Have Shadows.

Sound-shadows are as mysterious and elusive as are the shadows of light. Mariners who trust to their ears alone when sailing along dangerous coasts are said to be in great peril. Sound-shadows are formed in which the ear detects no trace of warning signals, although fog-whistles may be blowing their hardest, and the sound may be perfectly audible beyond the range of the shadow.

Sometimes a bluff rising just behind where the fog signal has been placed suffices to produce a sound-shadow. In such cases the sound seems to ricochet like a canon ball, traveling over the water in great leaps. It may be audible at one mile, inaudible at two miles, audible at three miles, inaudible at four miles, and so on.

The chief difficulty is that the area of the sound-shadow is usually very hard to discover.—[London Answers.

Sent to Jail to Bathe.

Jacob Dash, 16 years old, was sent to jail for thirty days in Yonkers yesterday in order that he may learn the rudiments of hygiene.

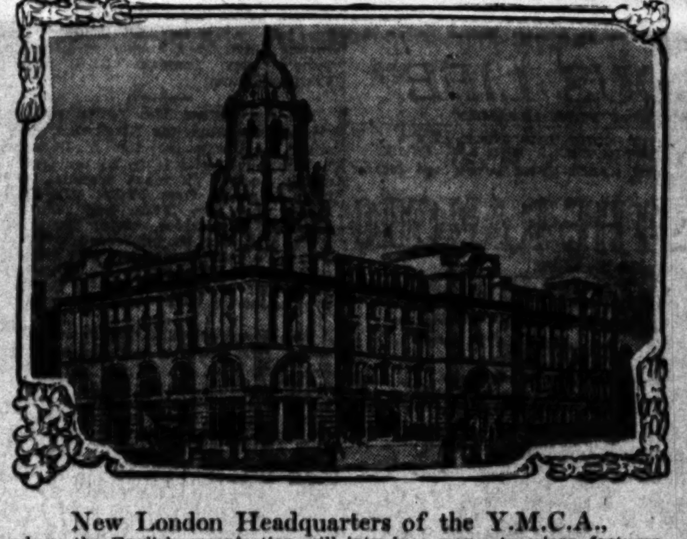
The complaint against Jacob, brought by his father, was that he wouldn't wash. The father said the boy was so lazy he wouldn't undress to get into a bathtub, and that he had been wearing a shirt six months. The last time a fresh one was given to him he became so enraged he tore it into shreds.

Recently when a member of the family snored, Jacob got up in the night and began to throw things around.

"Thirty days," said the court, "and a bath every day."—[New York World.

WANTS IDEAS.

ENGLAND COMES TO AMERICA FOR MODEL FOR NEW Y.M.C.A



New London Headquarters of the Y.M.C.A., where the English organization will introduce many American features.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 30.—Although the Young Men's Christian Association movement was started in London sixty-four years ago by an Englishman, the parent association has today gone to America for lessons in how to provide for the spiritual and social wants of its young men.

The Central Y.M.C.A. of London has prepared plans for a great structure which is to be a memorial to the late Sir George Williams, the founder, and where within a year and a half it proposes to carry out all the activities which are the features of Y.M.C.A. life in America.

The new building is to stand on a magnificent site which has been acquired by the association, in Tottenham Court Road, close by Oxford street, and which has an area of 28,124 square feet, occupying a whole square block. It is estimated that the entire cost of the new building will be $750,000 and toward that there is $425,000 in hand.

For the first time in the history of the English organization one of its buildings will have a fully equipped athletic department. There will be a fully equipped gymnasium, with swimming baths, bowling alleys, indoor tennis courts and facilities for other games and sports and a special department will be set apart for young boys.

The Tottenham Court Road frontage on the ground floor will be occupied by stores, but the main entrance will lead past them into a magnificent entrance hall, from which a short, wide staircase will lead to the reception lounge. The executive offices will also be here, so that the officers will be in continual touch with the members and visitors. The entire front of Tottenham Court Road of the first floor will be occupied by a reading room. This will be ninety-six feet long, will be the finest of its kind in London, and will be equipped with periodicals from all parts of the world. The French section will also be housed on the first floor. In the rear of the ground floor and the first floor there will be a number of small meeting rooms for classes, etc., and on the ground floor there will be a large assembly hall capable of seating 1000 people, which is to be the gift of the American people, in honor of the memory of Sir George Williams. A public restaurant for members only will be on the first floor.

The entire second floor will be given up to the educational work of the association and it is here that the American influence is most strongly displayed. The second floor is to be a business university for London, at which any young man may take up a course of study that will teach him in a couple of years all than can be taught on the theoretical side about his own trade or business. The extent of this plan may be judged from the following partial list of subjects which have been arranged already. Others will be added before the building is completed, and as the necessity for them becomes apparent.

Civil service department, school of languages, in daily session, thus affording opportunity for rapid tuition. University extension lectures, specialized courses of study in banking, insurance, accountancy, architecture, shipping and forwarding, advertising, journalism, estate agency, classes for the preparation of students for university and other public examinations, shorthand and typewriting school, textile, printing, publishing, furnishing, stationery and other trades, salesmanship, drawing, music, special lectures on business methods for principals and heads of departments.

The Central London Y.M.C.A. started educational work ten years ago, but it was on a very small scale, and it has been confined chiefly to bankers' and brokers' clerks in the city. At that time it undertook to prepare its members at the city branch for the examination of the London Institute of Bankers and it is a splendid testimony to the efficiency of the Y.M.C.A. teaching that for the last seven years 75 per cent. of the successful candidates have been members of the Y.M.C.A. classes. As will be seen from the above list it is now proposed to do for all young men what has been done for bank clerks.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the whole building, however, is the fact that the two upper floors are to be set aside as a home for "the young man from the country." Thousands of young men come from the country every year to seek their fortune in London. The Y.M.C.A. alone receives 4000 letters a year, asking for advice about lodgings for young men coming to London. The average earnings of these young men is $200 a year and on that the great majority have to support themselves. Up till now they have been condemned to a "third floor back" in a dingy, grimy lodging-house, but the new Y.M.C.A. building will provide bright, cheerful, well-furnished rooms for 200 of them at $1.25 a week. The Y.M.C.A. restaurant will provide good wholesome food for them at cost, and they will have all the comforts and advantages of every department of the building.

TALKS ON TEETH

EVENTS OF THE WE

Some Notable Festivities Incident to Society During the Past Week.

Miss Agnes Hole, who delightfully entertained with several informal affairs before her departure for Alaska, where she will spend six weeks in travel.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK.

Coronado and Tahoe are delightful spots in warm weather, and at both resorts many Los Angeles people have found temporary homes. Miss Leila Bierhoff, Mrs. Don Lee and Mrs. Kenneth Preuss were among last week's arrivals at Hotel Coronado. Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Preuss spent much of their time in visiting places of interest in a motor car.

Teas and luncheons have been enlivening those who have not yet closed their city homes, and these functions and several interesting weddings made the week a busy one socially.

The announcement Monday of the marriage of Miss Ruth Elliott Tichnor of Rockford, Ill., to Rev. Thornton Anthony Mills was received with pleasure by their many friends. The ceremony was performed at the bride's Eastern home. Miss Mabel Smith of [illegible] street, entertained delightfully with an afternoon function. Luncheon was served at a table decorated with bright red blossoms, and pretty red cards marked places. Miss Elizabeth Pepper of South Burlington avenue, gave a dinner party at Hotel Virginia, Long Beach, complimentary to her sister, Miss Helen Neville Pepper, who was married later in the week. Mrs. May Lee Grover returned from an extended automobile tour through the northern part of the State. Miss Kate [illegible] gave a luncheon at the California Club as a courtesy to Miss [illegible] Witherell of Pasadena, whose wedding to Ira Smith of Attelboro, was solemnized last week. Later the performance at the Belasco was enjoyed. Tuesday, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. H. Willetts, of No. 918 West First street, Miss Edna May Du [illegible] was married to Charles E. Rees. Miss Harriette Johnson of Garland avenue gave a tea. An evening wedding of Tuesday was that of Miss Lelillian Landgrof, eldest daughter of Mrs. K. Landgrof, formerly of Indianapolis, Ind., and E. Roland Bruck[illegible] of Providence, R. I. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home at No. 631 West Fifth street. Mrs. K. [illegible] of No. 938 Velencia street left for Wisconsin and Lafayette, Ind. Invitations were issued by Mrs. J. G. [illegible] for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Dorothea C., to Kent C. [illegible], which will be solemnized Tuesday evening, July 21.

Among the weddings of Wednesday was that of Miss Alma Irene White, daughter of Mrs. J. E. White of No. [illegible] South Johnston street, and Robert [illegible] Wagner of this city. Unusually beautiful was the wedding of Miss Helen Pepper and Lawrence C. Stieth of Cleveland, O., which took place in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Pepper, of South Burlington avenue. The bride is one of our most attractive young women and her many friends regret that she will make her future home in Cleveland. Miss Grace [illegible] of No. 2640 Jones street returned from Prescott, Ariz., where she had been the guest of Mrs. Warren [illegible]. A surprise to their friends was the announcement of the wedding of Miss Cecelia Lindsay and Henry [illegible], which took place at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Florence Collins Porter and her daughter, Mrs. Willis Norton Blood, of No. 1141 Fair Oaks avenue, South Pasadena, gave a luncheon in honor of their cousin, Mrs. Chester W. Brown, who has just returned from South America. The decorations were in green and white. At the Church of the Angels Miss Renna Lucille Kane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kane of No. 1022 Ingraham street, was married at 5 o'clock to Louis Reed Everett of Santa Barbara. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Harry Thompson in the presence of the relatives only.

Interest centered Thursday on the wedding of Mrs. Juliette Graham Bixby a charming and accomplished young society matron, who became the bride, at her beautiful St. James place home, of Lieutenant-Commander A. H. Robertson of the U.S.S. Tennessee. Particularly attractive was the canopy of fluffy ferns beneath which the service was read by Chaplain Dickens of the cruiser. Immediately after the ceremony Lieutenant-Commander and Mrs. Robertson left for an auto tour. The officer will join his ship at Puget Sound in a month. Mrs. Elsie E. Weaver announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Blanche L. Weaver, to W. B. [illegible]. The ceremony was solemnized on the 8th inst. Mrs. Charles W. Hinchcliffe of No. 2414 South Grand avenue gave an informal bridge party in honor of Mrs. Catherine Conley of Columbia, Mo., who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. B. Kemper, of No. 413 West Twenty-third street. Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Schloesser of Hollywood entertained with a luncheon at the Jonathan Club as a courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. John Marley of London, Eng. Later the guests were members of a box party at the Belasco.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. C. C. Carpenter of No. 1153 West Twenty-seventh street entertained informally for Mrs. Frank P. Flint and Mrs. A. L. Danskin, who recently returned from Washington. Mrs. J. M. Culp, who with her daughter, Miss Adeline Culp, is the house guest of Mrs. Lynn Helm of Ellendale Place, was also a guest of honor.

From Honolulu.

Miss May G. Kimball of No. 2426 South Flower street has returned from Honolulu, where she spent several months.

At Coronado.

Mrs. A. A. Peters and sister, Miss Ethel Siegel, of No. 717 Westlake avenue, left Friday for Coronado, where they will spend two weeks.

Mrs. Smith to Entertain.

Miss Laura Perry of Tucson, Ariz., is the house guest of Mrs. J. C. Smith, who has recently moved into her new home at No. 2218 Budlong avenue. Monday Mrs. Smith will give an informal luncheon for her guest.

Matinee Party.

Mrs. Robert Jefferson Smith of No. 156 West Twenty-seventh street was hostess Saturday at a matinée box party at the Burbank Theater. It was a compliment to her eldest daughter, Miss Viola Cecil Smith, who has just passed her sixteenth birthday. Luncheon was served later at Christopher's, where an attractive basket of sweet peas was the centerpiece. Places, marked with cards ornamented with wild roses done in water colors, were laid for Miss Fannie Thompson, Miss Irene Stephens, Miss Edith Mathis, Miss Mabel Mathis and Miss Mary Mays.

At Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy H. Clark and daughter, Miss Florence, of No. 2639 Van Buren Place, have returned from a month's outing at Yosemite and northern resorts.

To Be Honored.

Mrs. Arthur C. Raithel of Deming, N. M., will be the special guest Saturday at the picnic to be given at Hollenbeck Park by members of the Worth While Club.

Gone East.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Oliver of No. 639 South Grand avenue have gone East for several months.

Summer at Coronado.

Mrs. E. Lena Eno of No. 2686 Loosmore street is spending the summer with her daughter, Mrs. T. Roswell Browne, at Coronado.

Miller-Ells Wedding.

Miss Cora Lucile Miller and Leslie D. Ells, of Pasadena, were married, Wednesday evening, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. M. Miller of No. 912 East Twenty-seventh street. Rev. Frederick Miller performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives only. The home was adorned with masses of pale pink sweet peas and ferns. Miss Maud Miller, the maid of honor, wore a gown of white point d' esprit over pink taffeta and carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. The bride wore cream chiffon taffeta trimmed with velvet and Princesse lace and carried lilies of the valley. The best man was Burdick Ells. After August 1, Mr. and Mrs. Ells will be at home at No. 906 East Twenty-seventh street.

Mrs. Sebree Leaves.

Mrs. Uriel Sebree, wife of Admiral Sebree, who came to Los Angeles to attend the wedding of Mrs. Juliette Graham Bixby and Lieut. Commander Robertson, left Friday for San Francisco. Later she will go to Puget Sound. While in Los Angeles, Mrs. Sebree visited Mrs. W. S. Hook of West Adams street, who charmingly entertained with a dinner party for her guest at the California Club, Thursday evening. The table was beautifully decorated with quantities of pink sweet peas and greenery. Covers were laid for Lieut. and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holliday, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hook, Jr., Mrs. W. A. Barker, Mrs. Carsie Fay Law, Mrs. Emma Louise Braly, Miss McDowell, Miss Bri Conroy, Lieut. W. W. Galbraith, Chaplain Dickens, Lieut. H. N. Jenson, R. F. Gross, S. B. McKinney, Ignacio Mott and Barbee Hook.

At Seven Oaks.

Miss Lepra Reider left yesterday, for a visit at Seven Oaks. While there she will be the complimented guest at many out-of-door functions. She recently returned from a two weeks' visit at Catalina.

Cleveland Visitors.

Mrs. E. W. Cunningham and daughter, Virginia Odell, of Cleveland, O., are visiting Miss Virginia's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Richards, at Hotel Frontenac.

At Home.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Frenshaw of No. 1419 Wilton Place have returned from a two months' visit in the East.

At Bay Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Noyes and family of No. 1811 Toberman street have gone to their home on Bay Island for the summer.

From Idaho.

Miss Jean McMillan, now of Twin Falls, Idaho, but formerly of this city, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Free W. Wood of No. 341 West Thirty-third street. She will remain for several weeks.

Luncheon and Theater Party.

An enjoyable luncheon and theater party were given Thursday by members of the Emanon Club. Appointments for the luncheon, which was given at Hotel Lankershim, were in pink. A large basket of sweet peas occupied the center of the table and small clusters of the same flowers were scattered gracefully over the cloth. The guests included Mrs. R. N. Pearson, Mrs. George R. Hand, Mrs. J. A. Vaughn, Mrs. H. J. Crawford, Mrs. Leroy K. Daniels, Mrs. B. A. Holmes, Mrs. A. B. Cloes, Miss Hortense Barnhart Jones, Miss Alice Atwood, Miss Emmie Luentzel, Miss Madge Ball, Miss Lulu Page, Miss Elizabeth Page, Miss Frances Wartell and Miss Helen Beetis.

Motor Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McIntyre of No. 219 East Twenty-third street and Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Salyer left yesterday for an extended tour in an automobile.

Engagement Party.

Mrs. A. B. Ellis of No. 1805 West Twelfth street gave an elaborate luncheon yesterday afternoon at the Copper Kettle Tea Room in honor of the announcement of the engagement of her charming young daughter, Miss Eva, to Howard Gipe of Kankakee, Ill. At each place was a hand-painted card bearing the names of the young couple in gold. Miss Ellis, whose home is in Winnipeg, Can., is well known in this city, as she and her mother have spent the past five winters here. The wedding will take place on September 8 in this city. Miss Joy Kensey of Winnipeg will be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Vera Baldwin and Miss Rosa Matthias. Guests at the luncheon were Miss Baldwin, Miss Matthias, Miss Kensey, Miss MacKenzie, Miss May Grundy, Miss McBean, Miss Mabel Grundy, Miss Allie May Wilson, Miss Wynette Bailey, Miss Mabel Cleveland, Miss Lock, Miss Ethel Ervine and Miss Maude Cook.

In New Home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Ernest Wallace have moved into their new home at No. 416 South Alvarado street.

Wedding Announcement.

Announcement is made of the wedding of Prof. Arthur R. Maas, of the University of Southern California, and Jessie S. Lloyd. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. C. Clatworthy at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd of Blaine street.

At Bungalow Land.

Supervisor S. T. Eldredge and Mrs. Eldredge are passing the summer at Bungalow Land, Laurel Cañon.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Wolff of No. 727 California street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Minnie, to Leon Bradlor, a prominent young man of San Bernardino. The wedding will take place in the near future. On July 19, Mrs. Wolff will give a large reception as a compliment to her daughter.

Beneath Grape Vine.

An impressive wedding took place last week beneath the "old grape vine" at San Gabriel, when Miss Anna May Barker and Edgar Bayly McCormick were united by Father Felix Zumaraga of the Mission Church. Miss Charlene Ming was maid of honor, and W. T. McCormick, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a white tailored rajah, with hat and gloves to match. The maid was in pale silk. Breakfast was served at a horseshoe-shaped table under the historic vine, and was decked with poppies, grape leaves and carnations. Attorney W. W. Wideman was toastmaster.

Formal Announcement.

Mrs. Siddie Bell Rhodes of No. 2736 Vermont avenue, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Hazel Bell, to John Hoffman Schissler. The wedding will take place on July 28. Miss Rhodes, who was formerly of Kansas City, Mo., has lived in this city for two years. She is a graduate of Colorado College, Colorado Springs. The groom-to-be is a graduate of the University of West Virginia, and took a post-graduate course at Cornell. After the wedding, Mr. Schissler will take his bride to Guanasuato, Mex., where they will make their home.

Miss Hazel Rhodes,
announcement of whose engagement to John H. Schissler is made.

Miss Leora Reider,
who returned last week from a merry outing at Catalina, and who left yesterday for Seven Oaks, where she will enjoy outdoor life for several weeks.

Card Club.

At Parsonage.

At the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. W. C. Clatworthy of No. 1415 Vermont avenue, were married Wednesday, William T. Kemper and Miss Maude E. Cline, daughter of Mrs. Ira L. Cline of Hoover street. Only relatives were present. C. B. Kemper was best man and Miss Cline, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Kemper will make their home at Highland Park.

Miss Clatworthy Hostess.

Members of the Adelphian Club of the Y.W.C.A. were entertained by members of the Ayuda Club Thursday evening at the home of Miss Mildred Clatworthy, No. 1415 Vermont avenue. It was a garden party and refreshments were served beneath the trees, which were illuminated with Chinese and Japanese lanterns. A feature of the evening was an excellent literary and musical programme.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. Howard Robertson and her sister, Miss Mabel Clute of Orange street, entertained Friday afternoon with a garden tea, to announce the engagement of Miss Maude Ewing Ross, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. L. A. Ross of No. 628 Westlake avenue, to Rev. John M. Ferguson. Miss Ross is student secretary of the Young Woman's Christian Association in the Northwest and is well known in this city, where she has lived for many years. Rev. Mr. Ferguson, who recently accepted a charge at Concord, Cal., is a young man of great promise. He is a Princeton graduate and comes from a long line of clergymen.

Silver Threads

Among the gold! What a story they tell of fast passing years, and youth and strength. It is woman's duty, for her own sake, and for her husband's and family's sake, to retain her youthful appearance. Her influence, happiness, courage, and health depend very largely upon her personal appearance.

It gives us great pleasure to know that happiness has been restored to many homes by our timely assistance.

You need not fear the "silver threads." Nature has kindly provided a simple, cleanly, and perfectly harmless method of restoring gray hair to its beautiful natural color.

MRS. NETTIE HARRISON'S

Four-Day Hair Restorer

Is a harmless preparation that restores gray or faded hair to its natural color without any inconvenience or disagreeable after effects. Not a dye, cleanly to use; free from sediment or sticky matter. Price, $1 a bottle. All druggists.

If you have any defects of skin, scalp or general health, write me. Correspondence solicited.

Silver Threads

Among the gold! What a story they tell of fast passing years, and youth and strength. It is woman's duty, for her own sake, and for her husband's and family's sake, to retain her youthful appearance. Her influence, happiness, courage, and health depend very largely upon her personal appearance.

It gives us great pleasure to know that happiness has been restored to many homes by our timely assistance.

You need not fear the "silver threads." Nature has kindly provided a simple, cleanly, and perfectly harmless method of restoring gray hair to its beautiful natural color.

MRS. NETTIE HARRISON'S

Four-Day Hair Restorer

Is a harmless preparation that restores gray or faded hair to its natural color without any inconvenience or disagreeable after effects. Not a dye, cleanly to use; free from sediment or sticky matter. Price, $1 a bottle. All druggists.

If you have any defects of skin, scalp or general health, write me. Correspondence solicited.

GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 24.—"I am sorry to leave England," said Joseph Coyne to me a few days ago, "because, from the viewpoint of the actor, England is a far better place than the United States. The actor has a standing here; he has none in America. In England he is placed on a level with the artist or the lawyer or any other professional man. If he conducts himself properly he is respected. In the United States he is a 'hamfatter' and more or less of an outcast.

"Behind the scenes also the actor in England has a happier time than in the United States. He gets better and more considerate treatment from the managers. The stage hands and other employés show him a deference unknown in America. In the United States a servant is as good as his master and wants everybody to know it.

"Between American and English audiences I see absolutely no difference. If they like you they like, and if they don't they don't. It is the same in both countries. So far as I have been able to discover there is no prejudice in England against either American players or American plays."

Coyne said this in talking of his coming return to the United States. For although "The Merry Widow" shows no signs of diminishing drawing power, the American comedian sails for New York on August 1. With Alexandra Carlisle, a young English actress who was Nat Goodwin's leading woman in England, he will appear at the Garrick, New York, in "The Mollusc" under Charles Frohman's management. I don't know of any theatrical change of the near future so interesting as this transition of Coyne from musical comedy to legitimate drama. The comedian himself is delighted.

"I am tickled to death at the change," he told me. "One can't be a musical comedy comedian all his life. When the gray hairs begin to appear—and to disappear—you're tossed in the scrap heap. You're a 'has been' and the younger boys come along and put you out of business. Although I am still a young fellow, the change had to come sooner or later and when Charles Frohman offered me this chance I jumped at it. I was a bit shaky myself but we have been rehearsing for some weeks and Frohman is satisfied with my work, so what else have I got to worry about? We all know our parts and could open tomorrow if necessary."

One of the prettiest musical comedies I have ever seen is Gustav Luders's "Woodland." I hear that after all these months it is to be produced in London at the Adelphi in October. Luders's "Prince of Pilsen" was produced at the Shaftesbury some years ago and besides pleasing the British public, served to introduce them to Camille Clifford, whom they took to their hearts and subsequently married to a future peer. The composer has been in Germany, searching, it is said, for a new libretto but intends to return to the United States in time for the production of his new operette, "Marcelle." An application came in this week, by the way, for the Danish and Norwegian rights of "The Prince of Pilsen."

Tomorrow evening Fannie Ward will produce at Terry's Theater Walter's one-act play, "The Flag Station," to precede "The Three of Us." Wagenals and Kemper have already made arrangements to present Annie Russell in the journalist-dramatist's "Paid in Full" in London in the fall.

At last Cyril Maude, who is universally beloved in England, has an unmistakable success, after a long run of hard luck. He has been blamed for producing poor plays, but he retorts that they were the only sort he could get. The audience at the playhouse on Tuesday night, however, cheered itself hoarse over "The Flag Lieutenant." It isn't a great play, but Maj. Drury and Leo Trevor, who wrote it, know their business, and the situations were so well managed, and the "curtains," in particular, so effective that everybody was happy, even though it was evident almost from the beginning how the plot was to end.

It is a story about a villain and without malice. Of two pals in the navy one had never had a chance to distinguish himself, and wasn't in a position to ask the hand of his lady love till he could bring her a bit of glory to balance her wealth. The other had come into money and was going to leave the service anyway. They get into a tight corner in a skirmish with the Bashi-Bazouks, and Pal No. 1, conceives an idea for rescuing the beleaguered men at the risk of his life. Just as he starts to carry it out, he is bowled over by a bullet that leaves him unconscious, so jolly, happy-go-lucky, skylarking Pal No. 2 (who is Cyril Maude) takes on the job, and gets back alive though wounded. When No. 1 comes around his memory is gone, and he supposes he has carried out his plan himself. No. 2 hasn't the heart to undeceive him, and no one else knows, so he says No. 1 did it. But where then, was No. 2 meanwhile, asks the superior officer who never liked No. 2?

Cyril Maude says he won't tell where he was, and ugly rumors get about that he got frightened and had hid. When they get back home to the ladies in the third act, No. 1 is the hero and gets all the laurels, and likewise his lady love. No. 2 gets threatened with a court of inquiry, and his lady love is heartbroken. No. 1 sticks to him and says he knows his old friend is shielding some one, and implores him to tell the facts, regardless of consequences, not suspecting that he himself is the man who would be ruined by the revelation. It makes a good situation and, of course, all ends happily with a scenic display on the deck of a battleship and with the band playing "God Save the King."

The advance "booking" for the play already amounts to $10,000. One reason for the success of the play is that it gives Winifred Emery (Mrs. Maude) the best part she has had for many a season.

Sir John Hare began his farewell appearances this week in "A Pair of Spectacles," in which he has been appearing at intervals ever since Sydney Grundy adapted it from the French eighteen years ago. Old-fashioned and out-of-date as it is, the play is one to be seen by every budding dramatist as an illustration of the solid sense of the old advice to playwrights: "Tell the audience what you are going to do; then let them see you doing it; then tell them what you have done." And as for the acting, the veteran John Hare supplies all the finesse and delicate effects of light and shade that the play lacks.

Coquelin, who is to France what John Hare is to England, is also here, and playing this week in Sardou's "L'Affaires des Poisons" with a well-nigh perfect company at His Majesty's Theater, including the beautiful Gilda Darthy, who is the "Madame de Montespan" of this expert picture of the days of Louis XIV. Suffice it to say that the passing years have not robbed Coquelin of one jot or tittle of his greatness.

It Was GREAT!

Leaving the Hamburger Store at 1:30 p.m., the biggest, jolliest bunch of hustlers in all Los Angeles (the Hamburger bunch) started out to celebrate their first half holiday. I'm going to tell you all about "our trip," but just now I want to tell you that in only a few short weeks I will be located in my new office in the big store at Eighth and Broadway. I just want to give you a "pointer."

"WATCH OUR ADS."

Something is going to happen that means much to you.

Sincerely yours,

DEPARTMENT STORE UNDERCURRENTS.

BY A. M. HARRIS.

THE HUMAN INTEREST.

The human interest lieth low
Among the toilers that reap and sow;
The human sympathy, silent, deep,
They give to all that grieve and weep.
The human touch, so much desired,
They give to one whose heart is tired.
The human love, steadfast and strong,
They give to each to pass along.

O'Shannon was angry. Hadn't the manager been on a tear, and hadn't he said that none of the clerks were "worth a darn," and that he "wouldn't give five cents for the lot of them?" She was out when he said it, but in their anger and resentment at the injustice of it all, they forgot that they might have spared her, and so had told her when she came in.

"The lobster!" she exclaimed, raising up on her toes. O'Shannon always raised up fully two inches, they thought, when she meant either to defy or damn any particular person or thing.

"Not worth five cents. Well, I like that. And what does His Majesty expect of us. To sell old style collars that even an ignorant old Irishman wouldn't keep? Sure, and didn't he buy two because we told him they were the latest, and next day didn't he come wagging in with those same collars, and say his women folks wouldn't wear them, and he wanted his money back."

"They are nothing but job lots, anyway," and having for the moment exhausted all superfluous energy, and most of her breath, O'Shannon came down from off the perch to rest a bit, only to begin a moment later:

"Job lots. Yes, that's right—an all 'round job. He got jobbed when he bought them, and now he's jobbing us because we can't sell the stuff, and saying we are not worth a darn."

"Not—worth—a—darn," Slowly she drawled it out, as if in meditation.

"Suppose I told my husband that," and up again she went on her toes. This time she meant deification, however, for was it not of "my husband" she was speaking.

"I think he'd say, 'You better come home, I guess,' but I'll not tell," and the quaint voice dropped low.

Every one knew how it was with O'Shannon. Wasn't "my husband" threatened with tuberculosis; and hadn't the dear little heart crucified itself on a cross of unselfishness, and remained here to work so that he might go to a higher altitude, in hope of better health?

The other girls, coming and going, saw the shadow in her eyes and heard the heart-break in her voice.

The assistant manager, too, who hadn't lived long enough in department store atmosphere to be utterly heartless, saw the crestfallen little figure and came to say a pleasant word to her.

Directly he had her smiling. Then he gave her a "jolly" about how she had her trims put up, and helped her rearrange them and add a feature here and there. Then, that she might not notice why he did it, he went down among the other girls and told them in his pleasant kind of way that their house didn't "look a bit nice" and suppose they dress it up for company.

Work. They would have done anything for that man, hadn't he been kind to O'Shannon?

Later in the rush, when the aisle was congested with women, each in a hurry to be waited on for a "ruching for the neck"—when a majority of them needed a neck for the ruching—someone called out: "O'Shannon, here's a lady that needs you to wait on her," and when she went to the other end of the counter she found that the lady wanted one of the handsomest scarfs in the department—and O'Shannon's eyes smiled the thanks she had no time to express into the eyes of the girl that had given her the sale. She knew what it meant to deliberately sacrifice a sale like that and give it to another.

And so like a healing balm was that little touch of human interest that Shanny, appreciating the sympathy prompting it, threw back her shoulders and lifting her pretty little Irish chin, faced the world once more —brave and sweet and sunshiny, as if no April showers had fallen on her head that day.

IN THE BIG INDUSTRIES.

Basket Willow Culture.

Nearly all the basket willow used in this country has been brought from Europe, but experiments under way by the government show that the commercial quality of rods grown in this country can be made equal or superior to the finest of those imported from France or Germany. An experimental station has been established at Arlington, Va., where every question involved in the planting and the cultivation of the rods is being studied to secure the greatest product as well as the best quality for use in the manufacture of wicker work. This year the experimental plant will be considerably enlarged by planting cuttings obtained from Europe. Cuttings of a great many tested varieties of European basket willows have been bought from European growers in order to increase the number suitable for cultivation in this country.

Why Is Shoddy?

"Shoddy," so-called, is used in practically all woolen clothing goods, not because of dishonesty in the manufacture of cloths, but because the amount of wool produced is not enough to go around. The manufacture of shoddy is almost exclusively an English industry, having had its origin about the middle of the century when the world's population began to increase so rapidly that the wool supplies fell dangerously short. The discovery of a means of extracting the wool from rags revolutionized the clothing industry. It made cheap suits possible. It brought the sewing machine into existence. Besides new wool a valuable oil is extracted, as well as prussiate of potash; while flock for bedding and upholstery is made from the residue. There is a more valuable kind of shoddy made from hard rags, tailor's clippings and strips, old tweeds and friezes. This article is known as "mungo."

Superheated Steam Economy.

The superheating of steam has been recognized for many years as advantageous in steam-engine economy, but it has been only recently that the construction of the superheater has become perfected. Without superheating the steam turbine would not have attained it present success, as the dry steam largely reduces the friction. The actual test shows 1.5 horse-power was necessary to run a turbine to a speed with saturated steam under a vacuum, while only .90 horse-power was used where the steam was superheated 300 degrees F. By condensing the exhaust of a steam turbine the economy is improved even to a greater extent than in a steam engine, and in consequence a good vacuum is of much importance. Superheated steam, because of its greatly-reduced density, always produces a better vacuum; a given volume of superheated steam when condensed occupies much less space than an equal volume of saturated steam. In Europe, especially in England, superheated steam has become so extensively used that fully 75 per cent of the new boiler installations have been made with superheaters attached, and the day is not far distant when the same thing will be true in the United States.

are taking their wedding trip through Southern California in their big touring car.

Benjamin Hamilton was the surprised host on Monday evening at one of the jolliest gatherings of the summer. Twenty-five of his friends, who had learned that the day was his birthday, gathered at his home and celebrated the event.

The Whittier Woman's Club held an adjourned business meeting at the Congregational Church on Wednesday afternoon, making arrangements for the final payment on the lot which they purchased some time ago.

Miss Garnet Smith, who is soon to go to a new home at Uplands, was the guest of honor at a pleasant gathering of girls on Tuesday afternoon, Miss Reba Cole being the hostess. Unique little word contests, based on the letters forming the name of the guest of honor, furnished plenty of fun, and prizes were awarded to Miss Helen Peabody and to Miss Alice Leroy.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Couplin entertained the members of the Epworth League on Tuesday evening, in their home on East Bailey street.

The children of the Congregational Church held their annual picnic on the Gregg ranch on Thursday.

THE largest and most noteworthy social event of the past week was the wedding of Miss Blanch Witherell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Witherell of South Los Robles avenue, and Ira Warren Smith of Attleboro, Mass. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday evening, by the Rev. E. L. Conger, in the presence of seventy friends and relatives. Bride roses, ferns, Shasta daisies, asparagus plumosus, Matillija poppies and great fluffy bows of white tulle played their part in an elaborately arranged color scheme of white and green and made a charming bridal decoration in the drawing-room, reception hall and dining-room. At 8 o'clock the ceremony was performed, the young couple standing under a canopy of ferns. The bride wore an empire gown of white chiffon cloth, with garniture of filet and point d'Alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and a chaplet of the same flowers in her hair. After the ceremony a collation was served in the dining-room, where the table was adorned with lilies of the valley and later Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for an extended tour of eastern cities before going to Attleboro, where they will reside.

Thirty of the women members of the Valley Hunt Club enjoyed bridge at the clubhouse Tuesday afternoon, tables being arranged on the terrace, where tea was served between 4 and 6. Mrs. John Bakewell Phillips presided and the company was made up almost exclusively of the young married women and bachelor girls.

Mrs. Harry R. Munson of North Madison avenue, gave a charming children's party Wednesday afternoon for her daughter, Louise. Appropriately all the decorations were in pink and white, sweet peas and daisy wreaths suggesting childhood. Pink rose buds adorned the supper table, and pretty favors were given each child. Mrs. Munson was assisted by Mrs. E. H. Munson, Mrs. George Sroaf, Misses Miller and Mather. There were twenty children present.

Mrs. Alexander Duerr of Altadena entertained a few children Tuesday afternoon in honor of her little daughter's birthday. Games were enjoyed on the lawn. Supper and favors followed. Among the guests were the children of Mmes. Edwin D. Neff, Arthur Woodward, Torrey Everett, Robert H. Ripley and E. Chapman Smith.

Mrs. Albert E. Carrol of Palmetto Drive gave a prettily appointed luncheon Saturday, complimentary to old friends, Mrs. Robert H. Ripley, nee Story, Mrs. Byron Harvey, nee Daggett, who are summer visitors here. Covers were laid for ten.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Van Nuys of North Raymond avenue gave one of the prettiest entertainments of the week Thursday evening, when they arranged a supper party in the vine-draped arbor at their home. All the decorations were pansies, for old friendship thoughts, and covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newby, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Glasscock, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Herlihy, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Holt, Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Turner.

Miss Jane Rowland gave a pleasant thimble party Friday afternoon at her home on South Marengo, complimentary to Miss Margaret Granger, who, with her mother, Mrs. George F. Granger, will leave in a few days for the East and will sail July 23 for Europe, where they will spend a year. Miss Kate Fowler, who has recently returned from extended European travel, shared the honors with Miss Granger. There were twenty young girls present.

Mr. and Mrs. Tod Ford have come over from their summer home at Avalon and are guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cranz Perkins, and on their return will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Perkins, who will spend a week with them at Catalina.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Staats and children have gone to Mt. Wilson for an extended vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webster Bell and son, Kenneth, have gone on a trip in their sailing vessel and will cruise about Catalina waters for some weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson have returned from their automobile trip to San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison M. Lutz and the Misses Lutz took possession this week of their summer home at Alamitos.

Miss Jessie Reynolds of West California street is entertaining Miss Newman of El Paso.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pitcairn leave tomorrow for Santa Barbara, where they will spend several weeks. Mr. Pitcairn will enter the tennis tournament there.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Innis of Hotel Guirnalda have gone to Shasta Springs for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Nevin and Miss Hannah Nevin have gone into the Yosemite Valley to remain until September.

Mrs. H. H. Visscher and daughter, Helen, of South Madison avenue, are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. David Conrad of Santa Barbara. Mrs. Conrad was formerly Miss Lyde Visscher.

The engagement of Charles T. Sutton and Miss Rita West of Riverside was formally announced this week. Miss West is a guest at the home of Capt. and Mrs. A. de G. Sutton, parents of her fiancé.

Mrs. Martha McDonald formally announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Linna L. McDonald, to James Mason Gaylord, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gaylord of Terrace Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hinds of South Euclid avenue have gone with their family to Hermosa Beach, where they have recently built an attractive summer cottage.

Col. and Mrs. L. P. Hansen of San Pasqual street and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goohegan and Mr. and Mrs. James Cornellius of South Lake avenue have gone to the Yosemite for a two weeks' outing.

Redlands.

MISS VESTA CLARINDA GATES and Adolph Muehleisen of San Diego, were married Wednesday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Gates on Pennsylvania street, Rev. George Robertson officiating. The maid of honor was Miss Vera Gates. The bride was attired in white silk mull and carried Shasta daisies. The maid of honor was in white organdie. The house was decorated in white roses and Shasta daisies. After congratulations a wedding breakfast was served in the garden, covers being laid for fourteen. The bride's going-away gown was of brown voile with hat, shoes and gloves to match. After a week spent at Forest Home, Mr. and Mrs. Muehleisen will go to San Diego to reside. The bride is a graduate of Redlands High School and of the State Normal School at San Diego, and last year taught in the public schools of Upland.

The largest and one of the most delightful affairs of the week was the al fresco supper given Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bonnell at their home on Highland avenue. It marked the close of the year's activities of the Magazine Club. Three tables set in triangular shape were arranged under the trees and an elaborate menu was served. Rev. C. L. Libby was toastmaster. Among those who responded were J. B. Kingham, who spoke on the relation of young people to social life; Dr. J. L. Avey, who spoke upon the social side of business life, and Mrs. Bonnell who spoke upon social life in the home. After the toasts a musical and literary programme was rendered. Charles and Harry Canterbury contributed violin and clarionet duets. Miss Bonnell, Miss Longenecker, Miss Owen and Mr. Canterbury gave piano numbers, Robert Bonnell a monologue, and there were songs by Mrs. W. J. Morris and Mrs. J. L. Avey. Mrs. Bonnell reviewed the year's work. Mrs. R. B. Owen was appointed secretary of the club for next year. The first meeting will be held on the first Tuesday evening in October.

Announcement has been received here of the marriage of A. Sidney Eason, formerly of this city, and Miss Mable Rowe. The wedding took place June 30, in the First Presbyterian Church, Post Falls, Idaho. The young couple will reside in Spokane.

The marriage of Horace Strait of this city and Mrs. Helen Walker of New York was solemnized Tuesday evening at the home of the groom's son, J. H. Strait, Rev. J. Harvey Deere, associate pastor of the Baptist Church officiating. The groom is 79 years of age and the bride is 73. They were friends in early days in New York State. The rooms were simply decorated and after the ceremony a supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Strait will live on Columbia street, this city.

Miss Jessie Phelps who celebrated her twenty-third birthday on Monday, was given a jolly surprise that evening by a company of friends. The affair was planned by her mother. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing whist. Each guest received a prize, those making the best scores having the first choice. They were Miss Phelps and Jesse Lee.

The many Redlands friends of Miss Bessie Whiteney Ripley, sister of Mrs. Edgar G. Pratt, of this city, will be interested to learn that her marriage to Bryant Mower Harroun will be solemnized in the Old Meeting House, Hingham, Mass., July 15. Mr. and Mrs. Harroun will reside in Mansfield. The bride-elect has spent a number of years in Redlands, and was noted for her beauty and personal charm.

Mrs. F. S. Haupt entertained with an old-fashioned quilting party at her home on Terricina boulevard on Wednesday. The rooms were decorated in roses and Shasta daisies.

Begins Monday

Sharp at 8 o'clock

A sale that concerns every department of this great store in a sensationally saving way.

A unique event, in which quality merchandise will be sold at wholesale cost in hundreds of cases—Monday FIRST DAY.

Bullock's

SAMPLES—the Keynote, the word alone will be impetus enough to start shopping thousands on their way to Bullock's bright and early Monday.

SAMPLES—yes, but with the meaning of the word intensified.

Not merely a single sample sale of Jewelry, Belts, Neckwear, Hosiery or Suits—but a gigantic union of sample sales all over the store—each one worthy in itself of an immense individual advertisement. Each one a crowd bringer, from a real value standpoint. —PRICES WHOLESALE COST AND LESS IN HUNDREDS OF CASES.

A sale that is the result of another sample sale held some months ago. A single sale of samples that drew crowds and kept us taxed to the utmost until quantities were exhausted. It started us thinking.

—"If a single sample sale is so attractive and desired by our customers, a general sample sale all over the store ought to be the greatest ever."

Right on the thought came action, and you will be surprised the way our buyers have enthused manufacturers, importers, salesmen—each one seemed to want to out-do the others. Samples have fairly rolled in, and where samples have been lacking, odd lots, surplus stocks, a very whirlwind of the rarest values we have ever seen. As to prices—when we say that wholesale cost and less will rule in the majority of cases, we are stating a fact without exaggeration, and qualities will be backed by our guarantee.

Prices will be surpassed in ever so many cases in this sale.

Jewelry At Cost

One of the most extensive sample lines in the world. From Beauty pins, Veil pins to Opera chains and most high class novelties at wholesale cost, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Combs At Cost

and less than usual cost. A rare assortment running from 25c to $18.00. Plain and mounted effects. An offering no woman will want to miss. At cost and less.

Belts At Cost of leather, elastic and wash materials. One lot at 25c, another at 50c. Still higher grades priced $1.00 to $7.00 each. In every case at cost and less. Unequaled savings.

Buckles At Cost

A half thousand designs. 25c, 50c, $1.00. Samples all. Beauties of cut steel, most every kind imaginable. Every one at cost. It's the rarest buckle offering made in Los Angeles this year.

Plan to Take Lunch At Bullock's Monday

Our First July Sale of Samples Involves Thousands of Dollars Worth of Special Purchases to Sell at Wholesale Cost Purchases that concern every department of the store—purchases that taken together form a sale the like of which has not been seen in Los Angeles merchandising circles.

Samples of Neckwear to sell at a little next to nothing, and hundreds of them—
Samples of Lace and Embroidery to go for a mere song—
Samples of Jewelry. Sample Belts and Bags and Buckles at wholesale cost—
Sample Curtains, Rugs and Blankets at mill cost—
Sample Towels, Napkins and Bed Spreads at ridiculously low prices.
Sample Shoes and a great purchase in a $2.50 sale, Little less than wonderful.

Then there are Combs, Underwear, Hosiery—a great lot of Chinaware at radically low prices. Glassware at half and close to half.

Hardware, Woodenware, Tinware, in a great list of tempting offerings—Suits, yes, and Millinery—Men's, Boys' Clothing. All concerned. We could go on enumerating every class of merchandise carried in this store.

—Preparations have been so sweeping and careful that results have exceeded our fondest expectations. Both as to character of goods and unusualness of values we shall be able to offer:

—Merchandise that is consistent with the policy of this business, that insists upon the satisfaction of every customer—at sale prices as at regular prices.

—You cannot buy wrongly here, for our guarantee is as absolute at sale times as at regular times.

—In our interpretation, a real sale depends upon unusual values. Desirable merchandise at a price that is much lower than it can regularly be sold for. While it is our constant endeavor to buy good merchandise to sell at a lower price than it is usually sold for—and while we have been fortunate to a degree in frequently obtaining goods of extraordinary sale merit in different departments, we do not believe it possible to hold a "real" general sale every week or two weeks, or even every month. And we will not announce a trumped-up general sale under a trumped-up name, with a few extraordinary values trumped up to lend the event an inviting aspect.

When Bullock's Announce a Sale—Expect a Sale That is a Sale—and Come to Save Safely

—Why don't we print values? Because—if we took two pages and more we could do justice to only a few of the great savings that throng every section of the store—and that would be to give you an inadequate idea of the sweeping character of the sale—

—Nearly every counter and table will be filled with merchandise at wonderfully low prices—

—Every window has been filled with values that will serve just as an introduction to the sale, as Monday will merely give it a start—

—Every day will have new interest—Remember, we're going to sell thousands of dollars' worth of desirable merchandise at wholesale cost—backed by Bullock's guarantee—We want every one in Los Angeles and vicinity to hear about it—and be on hand Monday. Tell your friends and begin buying promptly Monday at 8 o'clock.

Extract From The Evening Express

The J. R. Lane Dry Goods Company has just let a contract for the remodeling of its entire first floor front. "We are badly in need of more selling space," said Mr. Lane today, "and this is our only present chance of expansion. But the change will give us something like 1250 additional square feet right in front of our store, and in addition we will have a balcony that will be commodious enough for a new department that will be of interest to the shopping public.

"The front will be finished in Spanish mission style, oak panels and large plate mirrors will be the predominating feature. Extensive changes are also planned for the third floor and basement departments."

Here is the reason for this sale. We need more room, and from July 13 to 31 will conduct a most vigorous movement of merchandise. Profits will be eliminated and prices made that will move the goods out in a hurry. Every day will be bargain day at LANE'S.

DOMESTIC.

PROSPECTIVE SECOND LADY.

Mrs. James S. Sherman Truly a Home Woman.

Family Ahead of Society in All Her Affairs

Certain to Meet All Duties That Fall to Her.

BY MARGARET B. DOWNING.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—When the news of James S. Sherman's nomination as running mate of Taft was wired to Washington, everybody was amazed to discover how little was known of Mrs. Sherman. "But," observed a close friend of that prospective second lady of the land, "Mrs. Sherman has always been too busy with her home and her boys to make a record in Vanity Fair."

Nevertheless, in eighteen years, a woman of such force of character leaves her impress on her immediate associates; and among a large circle of friends Mrs. Sherman is well known and much admired, even if she does not shine as a star in the social firmament.

If she attains the lofty eminence accorded the spouse of the heir apparent to the Presidency, many interesting possibilities are suggested.

First and foremost, the Daughters of the American Revolution have cast a longing eye on Mrs. Sherman as the successor of Mrs. Donald McLean, whose term expires just one month after the inauguration of the new President. Mrs. Sherman does not belong to the association, but she has always intended to join it, so say her friends here. She comes of heroic stock; her maternal grandmother, Emily Ethredge, was a direct descendant of Pocahontas, and she had two ancestors who signed the Declaration and relatives galore who fought in the war of Independence and subsequently.

NOT A CLUB WOMAN.

Mrs. Taft is eligible for the Daughters, but she is essentially not a club woman and has refused to join any sort or condition.

Mrs. Sherman, on the contrary, sees much good in clubs of certain sorts, but she has been too busy with other affairs to join any. The feminine side of the Vice-Presidency offers the same leisure which is afforded the President of the Senate, that is the leisure to give society a large share of attention.

Mrs. Sherman was among the first to join the Congressional Club and she may join the newly-formed college club for women. As she never attained a degree, she can hold only a limited membership in this organization. Her education was obtained at the Utica Seminary and she later took a course at Ballie's College, but she did not complete her studies. Perhaps the devotion of young "Jim" Sherman interfered, for she married within three months after putting away her school books.

As Washington knows Mrs. Sherman today, she is a dignified woman with soft prematurely gray hair, worn in waves a little low on her forehead, with clear gray eyes and a soft, pleasant way of speaking. She never gives one the impression of clothes, and yet, thinking things over, the conclusion is that she gowns herself well and appropriately. Last winter she spent the season at the New Willard and her dinner gowns were always well chosen.

Mrs. James S. Sherman.

She is partial to silver gray, to whites and blacks with a touch of lavender or old rose, but, in her own expressive words: "There is nothing which I so utterly detest as mutton dressed lamb fashion."

STATELY AND DIGNIFIED.

Mrs. Sherman is never dressed "lamb fashion," nor does she ever suggest anything but a stately, dignified woman who would like to keep the world out of her affairs. Yet she is affable to strangers and very chatty and communicative to her friends. Last winter she was discussing that all-absorbing theme about the calls which the women of the lower house were required to make, to follow the etiquette, Mrs. Sherman took a leisurely view of her social obligations.

"I call on the Cabinet hostesses," she said, "and on those from my immediate environment whose husbands are in the Senate and on those of the Congressional women whom friendship or etiquette suggest. But I do not make the obligation irksome. I have always felt that higher duties have the claim."

"Because a woman has married a politician, her natural obligations cannot be cast aside. I have heard much of the social drudgery which women in official life endure. Now I yield to no one my devotion to my husband's cause and my anxiety to help him. But the question is how best to help one's husband when he has selected the warfare of politics as his lot. My answer is to keep him comfortable at home, to look carefully after the ways of the household and to perform that highest duty of all, the training of the children. 'Happy homes,' says a certain French philosopher whom I am fond of reading, 'are the best foundation for a useful successful career for children.'

WRAPPED UP IN SONS.

"My conception of the best way to aid Mr. Sherman was to make good men of our sons. For years this claimed me and chained me at Utica. I believe in boys growing up in their natural environment, so I remained in my home in Utica until the boys had finished their education. You cannot have two homes, so I have made no pretention to maintaining one in Washington. Changing schools and dividing the attention of growing boys is not the best training, I thought. So I remained in Utica, though it was lonely during Mr. Sherman's absence, and I should have liked the social diversions, as any woman would.

"But I have my own ideas, and I have carried them out. I did not find that Mr. Sherman's political prestige languished because I did not set up a fine house in Washington, and wear myself out making calls.

"When my boys were well launched in the tide, I came to Washington and have enjoyed myself very much, indeed. I have always found politics an absorbing study, so the winters could not fail of interest. But I am not in favor of petticoat politicians, nor of any career for women, but the natural one of home and the rearing of children."

WILL SHE DISDAIN SOCIETY?

Then comes the question which is causing Washington some anxiety: If Mrs. Sherman is the second lady of the land, will she disdain the social amenities? Will the higher duties still have the call?

Her friends say she has been conspicuously successful in all that she undertakes, and that if fate casts her at the head of the official circle, after the President's wife, she will meet her obligations creditably.

But no one expects in any contingency such tremendous social activity as the Fairbanks family developed. Looking over the past, only two former Vice-Presidential families made such efforts to dominate the social firmament as the Fairbanks, the Levi P. Mortons and the Garret Hobarts.

Mrs. Morton had always been a society queen, and she merely carried out in Washington the programme to which she had been committed in New York City. The Hobarts occupied a peculiar position. The ill health of Mrs. McKinley and the close relations which existed between the McKinleys and the Hobarts, probably closer than any which ever existed between the incumbents of the two offices before or since, gave the Hobarts special prominence. Any large function for which Mrs. McKinley did not feel equal, Mrs. Hobart undertook for her.

But the Vice-President can live in quiet stateliness and perform all that is required for the office on a smaller income than is credited to Mr. Sherman. Then the increased salary will help along matters, and Mrs. Sherman is one of those excellent homekeepers for which her home region is famous.

"DAVID HARUM" PEOPLE.

"We are David Harum people up my way," she said recently, "and every particle of the wit and humor and struggling and economizing is familiar to us through the flesh and blood Davids whom we frequently meet. This book, by the way, is Mr. Sherman's favorite. Since his illness, I have read it to him twice, and I think before that time, I had read it at least five times. It is also a favorite of mine, and I also like the Howells stories and the novels of the Eben Holden kind. Perhaps I am just a trifle provincial, but Utica and New York generally are the most interesting themes."

In the Washington home of the Shermans evidence of their devotion to the family seat in Utica is apparent in the many pretty views of the mansion, of the beautiful grounds and of surrounding bits of scenery. The home on Genesee avenue in Utica is one of the show places, and Mrs. Sherman is especially proud of it, for it is mostly her planning and her care.

"Mr. Sherman has always been so busy with his profession that much of the home cares have devolved on me. I laid out the flower gardens, and the greeneries and vegetable garden are my special care and pride. Getting my plants away for the winter has been an absorbing occupation for years, and no inducement could lure me away from Utica until all my flowers and plants were safely housed for the winter.

"One thing which never appealed to me about having a home in Washington all these years was that it would be impossible to bring the pet plants and such dear familiar things. Without them any home would be just a hostelry—a tent for the night."

WELL-KNOWN FAMILY.

Mrs. Sherman has two married sisters and a mother who may be counted on to enliven the Washington season should certain things happen. Her mother, Mrs. Lewis H. Babcock, has come to Washington frequently and is quite at home in official life. Of the three sons, two are married, and their wives, young and attractive matrons, may be relied on to take a dip into social pleasures.

A long-standing friendship exists between the Sherman and Babcock and the Elihu Root families. Hamilton College, the alma mater of the Vice-Presidential candidate, is also the alma mater of the Secretary of State. Mr. Root, like Mr. Sherman, sent his boys to the old college, and the second son of the Shermans, Richard Updyke, holds the chair of mathematics at Hamilton. He married about two years ago, and has one child.

The eldest son, Sherrill, is in the banking business with his father, and the youngest, Thomas Moore, is secretary and treasurer of the Smyth-Despard Electrical Company of Utica. He is the only unmarried member of the family, and though Washington could offer many inducements for a young man whose father might be in an exalted sphere, he is absorbed in business and, notwithstanding his name, is intensely practical and not at all political.

"You must be very fond of the Irish poet," Mrs. Sherman said that many people remark to her, "to call your son after him."

But it appears that the youngest scion of the Sherman household is called for an uncle and not for the bard of the Emerald Isle.

Moore, however, is a favorite author in the family, and a notable birthday gift has always been the works of the renowned poet of Erin.

HER CHURCH RELATIONS.

Mrs. Sherman was reared in the Dutch Reformed Church, the denomination to which President Roosevelt belongs. In Washington she holds a pew in the Church of the Covenant, which is Presbyterian, and she is a regular attendant at the services.

An interesting coincidence about the possibility of Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Sherman occupying conjointly such exalted positions in national affairs is that their mothers were old-time friends, and they have themselves always maintained the most pleasant relations. Mrs. Taft's mother was Miss Harriet Collins, daughter of Col. Eli Collins of Utica, and in their girlhood Mrs. Herron that was to be, and Mrs. Babcock were very fond of each other. They kept up the intimacy until family cares made correspondence difficult, but Mrs. Babcock is always a welcome and honored guest in the Taft household when she comes to Washington.

"Everybody has some small fad," said Mrs. Sherman, "and I have mine. Naturally, the prominent position which Mr. Sherman has always taken in pure-food legislation has led me to take a keen interest in all that pertains to it. I note that an eminent Swiss scientist, Senator August Colvet, is in this country trying to establish a White Cross Society, a league of protection against adulterated food. I follow all such crusades with enthusiasm, and I should like to see thousands and thousands banded together against the poisoning of the springs of health and well-being.

"Like Mr. Sherman, I have always been concerned in saving the digestion of the American people, rather than their pockets, and I think legislation which looks to the preservation of purity in everything to eat and drink is much more important than economic measures which put the limit on the price. I would save the stomach of the people rather than their pocketbooks, though, of course, that also needs its guardians."

FRESH LITERATURE—Books and Authors

NEW BOOKS REVIEWED.

(BY A TIMES REVIEWER.)

Wonderfully Good.

THE POST-GIRL. By Edward C. Booth. The Century Company, New York. (Price $1.50.)

In the flood of fiction that sweeps through the book stores every season there comes now and then a book that is abundantly worth while. It does not come often, this book that makes one read a while, and then look away in day dreams, and then read more and more, and finally put it away with a long sigh, perhaps as dawn is adding its gray light to the yellow of the incandescent.

"The Post-Girl" is one of the few books. It is remarkable. It has charm of style, it has most lovable characters, it has whimsical and deft humor, and it has a wonderful heroine. All these many other books have had also. But there is in "The Post-Girl" a masculine greatness of spirit that marks it off from other good and strong works of fiction. There is nothing soft about its sweetness and tenderness, nothing to make one hesitate to turn the page for fear some one or other of the delightful characters will spoil the pleasure by being—well, to put it frankly, naughty."

The story is idyllic, a story of love that is far beyond the usual conception of a novel. Besides strength and tenderness, there is the aroma of freshness and quaintness about the story. The skill of the telling, the cleverness of style and the sympathy with human nature shown by the author are unusual, but it is this flavor which in the final accounting sets the book apart from the others.

The action of the book is simple. In an out-of-the-way part of Yorkshire there comes a fine young fellow who takes lodgings and sets seriously about the making of a concerto. He is a musician of some power, who wants to get away from the riot of the city. In the little nook of the world where he has come he meets Father Mostyn, a quaint and lovable Catholic priest, with an alarming vocabulary. He also meets the agnostic Scotch doctor, who plays whist and discusses religion with the father. There is, too, the schoolmaster, drawn as though Dickens had a hand in the book. Then there is Pam, the post-girl, who carries the mail for 4 shillings a week. One must read the book to understand Pam.

How far Mr. De Morgan is responsible for this book one cannot say. But if he has been an inspiration to the author, Mr. De Morgan can account it good work. The author, Mr. Booth, is practically unknown. His power and freshness make it impossible that he will long remain so.

An Unusual Production.

THE SHELL BOOK. By Julia Ellen Rogers. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York. (Price [illegible])

Conchology is to the general public a little known and vague science, presumably dry and uninteresting. "The Shell Book," in many ways an unusual production, should accomplish among other things the enlightenment of anyone who opens it with merely casual interest. It is the first popular book on shells, and although of ample scope and detail, few technical terms are used. It makes the best kind of nature reading.

The book is live because it is the outgrowth of intimate knowledge. Miss Rogers has devoted three years to the study of the material she has used. She spent a summer in Florida, a winter in Long Beach, and two seasons on the Great Lakes and inland waters. Every specimen she has described she has seen, and it is this real contact which gives her its interest as well as its accuracy.

The work is especially interesting to people of Southern California. The winter Miss Rogers spent in Long Beach has impressed itself in the book in the amount of careful attention she has paid to Pacific Coast shells. The Los Angeles Public Library aided her greatly in her work, and she records appreciatively in her preface the kindness of Mr. Lummis and Dr. Jones, as well as the assistance of Professor Josiah Keep of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Oldroyd of Long Beach, who not only afforded her access to their unrivaled collection of west coast shells, but spent much time with her collecting in San Pedro and Long Beach.

Miss Rogers treats interestingly the species of mollusks, and then gives details of growth, food, habits and homes. She also writes of the shell industries such as pearl fishing, snail-farming and the cultivation of the oyster, making her work something more than a handbook—a class it is already distinguished from by the broad scheme and generous attention to detail.

The book is most excellently printed and illustrated. There are ninety-six full page plates in black and white from photographs, and eight color plates. The frontispiece is a remarkable reproduction of two California abalone shells, in which the color values are retained most excellently.

Not Worth Reading.

CONFESSIONS OF A PRINCESS. Anonymous. C. S. Doscher & Co., New York.

In a note taking the place of a foreword or introduction, the publisher says that he does not consider that any apology is needed for issuing this book to the American public—thereby pretty conclusively showing that he really does feel that he ought to apologize. If the offense of issuing be not of any great enormity, he can still put the apology to good use for implying a comparison between "Confessions of a Princess" and the "Memoirs of the Count de Grammont," which is done in the same publisher's note.

People who follow German petty politics with sufficient faithfulness may be able to guess who the Princess is who is supposed to be making the confession. "Who is supposed" is said advisedly, for the insufficience of the revelation at times, and the excess of it at others, leads one to the suspicion that the book was written to order by some one not a princess. The material facts contradict pretty flatly certain happenings in Saxony, but nevertheless it looks as though capital were being made of a famous scandal. At any rate the question is not very important, as the book is less worth bothering about than the identity of the frail Princess.

For the Genealogist.

THE PIONEERS OF MAINE AND NEW HAMPSHIRE. By Charles Henry Pope. Published by the author, Boston.

This is a book by an expert for the use of experts largely, although any one with a New England ancestry might be glad to have it. It gives all the particulars that are accessible of the founders of the present States of Maine and New Hampshire; in many cases all the particulars which exist. The record in many cases is meager, but the extent of Mr. Pope's researches is so great that where the record is short it is safe to assume that little more can be found.

Something like 1200 surnames are listed in the volume, and there is an additional cross-index in the back of the volume which adds a couple of hundred names to this list. The sources are many and various. They are mainly records of the colonies, towns, churches and courts, supplemented by manuscripts, many of which are unpublished. Such are the diaries of William Aspinwall, the Baxter MSS., the Trelawney Papers, the diaries of Peter Hobart, Thomas Lechford and Judge Samuel Sewell.

Edward C. Booth, whose remarkable novel, "The Post Girl," has just been published in this country.

PEOPLE AND THINGS OF LITERARY NOTE.

Mrs. Deland's "The Awakening of Helena Richie," which was recently dramatized, had a performance on June 27 in Sydney, Australia, where the novel has been particularly popular.

Max Pemberton is a thorough sportsman and a lover of all outdoor pastimes, is an enthusiastic golfer, a famous walker, and more than anything else, he is devoted to motoring. On all matters concerning the motor Mr. Pemberton is authority, and his "Motorist's Notebook," which appears in the London Sphere, is the most popular of his magazine contributions.

Frederic S. Isham reports from Russia some interesting items suggesting the ever-growing activity in American exports. At a small place near St. Petersburg he heard an American phonograph; at another out of the way town an official played the complicated Russian alphabet on an American typewriter. In Moscow shop-keepers ring up kopecs on Yankee-made cash registers.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller presented a copy of "The Life of Alice Freeman Palmer" to each of the 210 members of this year's graduating class at Vassar. After resigning the presidency of Wellesley College Mrs. Palmer served as the first dean of the women's department of the University of Chicago, and recently the Alice Freeman Palmer chimes were installed in the tower of one of the buildings of that university. "The Tempest," the words of which were written by Mrs. Palmer, was one of the first selections played on them.

While Mrs. Ward was in America, or more properly, in Canada, she celebrated her fifty-seventh birthday, which occurred June 11. Mrs. Ward's birthplace was not England, but Tasmania, where she was first known as Mary Augusta Arnold, granddaughter of the famous Dr. Arnold who wrote the "Tom Brown" stories, and as the niece of Matthew Arnold. Another relative of note was her brother, William Thomas Arnold, the journalist and historian, upon whose "Life and Letters" Mrs. Ward collaborated with Arnold's friend, C. E. Montague.

A new Tschaikowsky book, called "The Life and Works" of the composer, has been brought out by Rosa Newmarch and Edwin Evans. For people who persist in believing that there was some terrible secret tragedy in the life of Tschaikowsky to account for the melancholy of some of his music it will be interesting to learn from Mrs. Newmarch that one night the composer's eye "fell on the volumes of his diary, whereat he was assailed by a sudden terror lest he might die with no friends at hand and that some one should pry into these life secrets. Under the influence of this feeling he immediately ordered his fire to be lit and burned every volume before he went to bed."

Harold MacGrath, the novelist, got his start at romancing, so he says, through a physical defect. He was a reporter on a Syracuse newspaper some years ago, and in his journalistic job found himself considerably handicapped because he was hard of hearing. He could only hear about half of what he was told, and had to make up the rest. The result was that he got out some highly original stories. The telephone, of course, was not of much use to him, and so, in those days, he used to bribe the telephone girls to do the talking for him.

A high authority on our language in England, according to the London Book Monthly, has been pointing out that we are getting to be very slovenly talkers, that we do not take the trouble to pronounce our words correctly, and that one reason for this is the dying out of home reading aloud. This writer says that if people want their children to speak well and elegantly there is no training like reading aloud two or three evenings a week, and, moreover, it introduces the children very pleasantly to good books. He ascribes the decadence of reading aloud to the cheapness of books. When books were dearer one volume had to serve for a company, but now each person may have a volume for himself.

It is rarely that a medal designed to reward special work in invention, discovery, etc., is awarded to an author on account of his publications. Such has recently been the case, however, in the gold medal given by the Franklin Institute of Pennsylvania to Romeyn Beck Hough, in recognition of his nature books, "The Handbook of the Trees" and "American Books." "The Handbook of the Trees" besides bringing aid to lumbermen and botanists, has enabled those unfamiliar with botany to easily identify the trees even while leafless in winter. The companion work, "American Woods," uses instead of pictures actual specimens of thin wood fibre, showing three distinct views of the grain, with surprising beauty and service to science. Mr. Hough devotes his entire time to study of the trees and wood tissues, working out-of-doors and in the laboratory on his estate in Lowville, N. Y.

NEWS AND NOTES OF FORTHCOMING BOOKS.

"The Land of the Living," a new novel by Maude Radford Warren, is to be published this month. It is said to be sharp and sweet with Irish wit and Irish sentiment, and, apart from everything else, a remarkable novel for a woman to have written.

A small volume called "Potted Fiction" is now in course of preparation. It is selected by John Kendrick Bangs "from among the world's quickest sellers, put up in slices for hurried readers, and containing all the fiction news that's fit to print." There will be seven pieces of "canned literature" in the volume by such authors as E. Filips Dobenheim, A. Cowan Watson, Hellinor Gryn, etc.

There is now in press for publication in July an untechnical account of the rise and progress of biology, entitled "Biology and Its Makers," by Prof. William A. Locy of Northwestern University. The work is written around the lives of the great leaders in this field, and includes some 120 illustrations, many of them rare portraits of the founders of biology.

"Angel, Esquire," is the rather striking title of a new mystery story by an Englishman, Edgar Wallace, who has been a soldier, and later a newspaper correspondent. His tale, which is in press, has to do with the adventures of an inexperienced but plucky girl who has to contend with three unscrupulous criminals for the possession of millions strangely bequeathed to one of the four.

The first volume of the collected edition of the works of Anatole France will be issued soon. All the imaginative works of the French novelist and his great study of Joan of Arc are included. The series will appear under the general editorship of Frederic Chapman. The motto of this distinguished French novelist written by himself is: "I have sought truth strenuously. I have met her boldly. I have never turned from her, even when she wore an unexpected aspect."

"The Last of the Plainsmen" is the title of a book to be issued this month. It is partly an account of a hunting trip through the wildest region of Arizona, and partly a study of the celebrated old frontiersman, "Buffalo Jones," who was the leader of the party. The object of the expedition was to lasso and capture alive mountain lions, at which dangerous sport "Buffalo Jones" is an expert.

Henry Holt & Company find themselves called upon to reprint at once six books, all dealing with American economics or history, they being, respectively, the fifth printing of Hall's "Immigration and Its Effects Upon the United States;" third printing of the first volume of Gordy's "A Political History of the United States," and the second of the second volume, which brings the subject down to 1828; the ninth printing of "An Introduction to Economics," by Prof. Henry R. Seager of Columbia, and the fourth printing of both Doyle's "Virginia, Maryland and the Carolinas," and the two volumes of his "Puritan Colonies."

The Comtesse Jean de Castellane has brought out the memoirs of her grandmother, the Duchesse de Dino. The Comtesse has been assisted in this work by M. Etienne Lamy of the Académie, who has written the preface, and by M. Henri Moysset, who contributed historical annotations. In her introduction, the Comtesse de Castellane says that at his death her father left in her care the manuscript, which is now published for the first time, and which describes the childhood of her grandmother, the little Princess Dorothy of Comland, who afterward became the Duchesse de Dino, and was one of the wittiest and most beautiful women in French society during the first half of the nineteenth century. Among the personalities described by the Duchesse are the Emperor Alexander, Queen Louise of Prussia, Mme. Royale, the daughter of Louis XVI, and the poet, Schiller, with whom the young Princess was acquainted.

BITS OF VERSE.

Black-Heart Poppy.

Flowers o' the violet and blossom o' the peach,
Neither and none of them am I,
I'm a yellow poppy flower that grows along the beach,
Spray-sprinkled when the tide is high.

You say that I'm heartless and a traitor and a flirt.
So much the worse it is for you.
You wanted to believe me, and my magic could not trust—
Why ever did you think me true?

Crimson is the peach bloom's heart, the rose's heart is gold—
Look, then, and see it's as I say!
Poppies just have centers which are raven black and cold,
Salt with the savor of the spray.
—[Dorothea Mackellar in Appleton's Magazine.

The Watch Below.

The bell has sounded and the watch is done,
The dawn enlightens all the darkened sea—
That cold, relentless friend of such as we—
The bell has sounded, brother, soon the sun.

No more to stare on dreary sheets of foam,
No more to scan the stars in any wise,
No more to clamber riggings hard with ice;
Lo! on the port repeat the lights of home.

Oh! we are weary, weary, and the best
That life could give us was to plow the main
Through the wide night till dawn loomed up again;
But God at last has covered us with rest.

The bell has sounded, 'tis the watch's knell;
Let us make haste below where it is warm,
Out of the cold and fog, the dark and storm!
The bell has sounded, brothers. All is well.
—[Vincent O'Sullivan, in Academy.

The Gate of Dreams.

An idle youth one summer day
Went wandering afield—
Nor East nor West on any quest
That eye or thought revealed,
But on and on through bloom and shine,
And down by shady streams,
Through lane and wood, until he stood
Beside the Gate of Dreams.

What saw he there? Nay, rather ask
What saw he not and heard.
Hath mind perceived? Hath heart received?
Hath soul been deeply stirred
By radiant things, by whisperings
From better lands, it seems?
All these he saw and heard in awe
Beside the Gate of Dreams.

What brought he back that summer day
From wandering afield?
Naught he can show or tell, I know
Of things on earth revealed,
But more than gold, a millionfold
And all the world esteems
He holds the day he strayed away
Beside the Gate of Dreams.
—[Clarence Ousley, in Uncle Remus's Magazine.

Gloaming.

Skies to the West are stained with madder
Amber light on the rare blue hills;
The sough of the pines is growing sadder;
From the meadow-lands sound the whipporwills.
Air is sweet with the breath of clover;
Dusk is on, and the day is over.

Skies to the East are streaked with golden;
Tremulous light on the darkening pond;
Glow-worms pale, to the dark beholden;
Twitterings hush in the hedge beyond.
Air is sweet with the breath of clover;
Silver the hills where the moon climbs over.
—[Robert Adger Bowen in Appleton's Magazine.

A Puzzle.

It always has been a puzzle to me
What sailors sow when they plow the sea.
Does coffee go with the roll of a drum?
And why is a speaking likeness dumb?
What was it that made the window blind?
Whose picture is put in a frame of mind?
When a storm is brewing, what does it brew?
Does the foot of a mountain wear a shoe?
How long does it take to hatch a plot?
Has a school of herring a tutor or not?
Have you ever perused a volume of smoke?
Can butter be made from the cream of a joke?
Who is it fixes the teeth of a gale?
To a king who reigns why shout "O hail?"
With a powder puff is one's mind made up?
Does a saucer go with a misery cup?
Can you fasten a door with a lock of hair?
Did a bitter wind ever bite you, and where?
Who is it that paints the signs of the times?
Does the moon change her quarters for nickels and dimes?
What tune do you play on the feelings pray?
And who is it mends the break of day?
And say—I'll admit this is quite absurd—
When you drop a remark, do you break your word?
Can a rope be made out of ocean strands?
Have the silent midnight watches hands?
Can you cut a log with a wise old saw?
Does the cup that cheers cry, "Hip Hurrah?"
Can money be tight when change is loose?
Now what in the name of thunder's the use
Of going through college and taking degrees
When we're posed by such plain little problems as these?

Declaration.

How shall I say to thee in words
What would be better broached by birds
Or spelled by buds in spring?
Would I might trust the nightingale
To phrase aright so rare a tale
As this to thee I bring!

Of flowers, the rose alone might be Ambassador from me to thee,
All messengers above;
But not the nightingale in tune,
Nor rose, with eloquence of June,
Can voice to thee my love.

It flutters still, a speechless song,
Within my heart, the whole day long,
And strives, with thee anear,
To find itself a silver tongue,
To get its golden secret sung,
That thou, oh love, shalt hear.
—[Edith Hope Kinney, in the Century.

The Cake Pointer.

In the sideboard apprehension
Thrills the hidden gingerbread;
Doughnuts, shrinking from attention,
Shiver with a nameless dread.
In the pantry devastation
Now begins its ruthless rule;
Hungrier than all creation,
Little Willie's home from school!

As the pointer scents the rabbit,
As the needle seeks the pole,
Willie moves by force of habit
Toward each gastronomic goal.
Sniffs the air and tiptoes slyly
To the sideboard with a smile;
"That there boy," says uncle, drily,
"He can smell a cake a mile!"

Once we had a maid named Tillie,
Who was sly as any mouse.
"Me for angel cake!" said Willie,
As one day he searched the house.
Later Tillie cried, "I did it!"
(Saved the cake was what she meant.)
'Neath the onions Tillie hid it,
Throwing Willie off the scent.
—[Earle Hooker Eaton in Harper's Weekly.

CANCER
CANCER
Don't be imposed upon. Don't be humbugged. It is bad enough to suffer from Cancer, or to worry about what you fear may be a Cancer, without being deluded and defrauded besides. First, be sure whether you have a Cancer or not. Any reliable medical practitioner can tell you that. If he wants a fee merely for diagnosing your case, come to us. WE MAKE NO CHARGE FOR EXAMINATION AND DIAGNOSIS. If it isn't a Cancer, you have nothing to worry about. If it is a Cancer, we will tell you so and frankly advise you whether it is past hope of cure or not. If not incurable we will undertake to treat and cure it for a moderate compensation. We shall not terrify you, nor try to extort money from you in advance. Only quacks do that. There are charlatans who pretend to cure Cancers, but we are not in that class. This is a reputable institution, legally conducted. No pay taken except for service performed. No applications given save under direction of licensed physician.
CURE
No knife. No cauterizing. No anaesthetics required to deaden pain. No disfigurement by operation. No danger of relapse after a cure is effected. Records of hundreds of cases successfully treated. Names and addresses of healed patients furnished for purposes of verification.
MRS. BRIDGE CANCER CURE
Record of cures covers a period of 45 years. Established in Los Angeles for eight years. Mrs. S. J. Bridge may be seen daily from 10 to 4, except Saturdays during July and August, when offices close at noon.

AUGUSTINIANI, THE WANDERER.

LIFE-STORY OF THE MAN WHO SAW A VISION AMIDST ITALIAN FLOWERS.

BY J. MARVIN NICHOLS.

For historic richness the great Southwest is replete. The feudal reign of the Spanish baron, the bloody record of powerful Indian confederacies, the intrepid march of the pioneers who dared to push civilization to the remotest outpost—these stories of romance and tragedy are still recounted around the hearthstones of living men and women.

Among all the historic spots in the Southwest I have found none quite so thrilling and entrancing as that along the old Santa Fé trail traversing northern New Mexico. Though it has been my good fortune to have seen the whole original Southwest, yet for nearly a year I have lived in the very heart of its richest history and sublimest scenery. Here the Rockies are piled in such reckless grandeur. On the highest peaks and in the fertile valleys stand today the monuments of the world's greatest romance and tragedy. I am writing this story while face to face with men and women who loved its hero.

Among these towering granite hills, buried in the silence of the Rockies, are to be found the ruins of Spanish palaces, spacious and stately in their day. Here lie the bones of daring scouts like Kit Carson. Here lingering tribes cling to pueblos and till the fertile valleys in the most primitive fashion. Here live the cliff dwellers—a remnant still wandering through rough-hewn granite halls deserted by their fathers in the long ago.

Pages might be filled with the stories of the pioneers and frontiersmen in the mighty Southwest. No more picturesque character ever traversed this wilderness than Augustiniani—the Hermit of Old Baldy. When his last signal fire died away on the crest of Old Baldy the people wept for a martyr-hero. And to this very day there is a body at El Porvenir called the Brotherhood of Hermits whose sole object is to perpetuate the sacred teachings of the old Catholic Indian priest.

In the Raton Mountains, in whose shadow I am writing, and but a short journey from Baldy, there has dwelt a hermit for many years. He elected solitude on account of an unapproachable page in his life-history. Dressed in the coarsest raiment, his hair long and gray, his beard flowing like that of a patriarch, he stands at the entrance of his cavern home but no man dares to cross its threshold. Miles and miles removed from any human being, another recluse has made his solitary home in the Grand Cañon of Arizona. He always answered your inquiry, with another: "How could one be lonesome in the Grand Cañon of the Colorado?" And so it goes. Some are hermits because of a tragic page in life's history; others, because of the inborn cry for solitude—the hunger to be "Near to nature's heart."

John Mary Augustiniani was a hermit because of pious inclinations. A nobleman by birth—the product of Italian aristocracy—he was born of the nobility of Sizzario, Lombardy, Italy, in 1801. Under the impulse of religious zeal he turned his back upon all the wealth and luxury of his Italian home, only to become a wanderer in strange and distant lands. Of this there is a legend, common in some fashion, to the beginning of every reformer's life. One day he was strolling in the garden of the old estate. Suddenly he saw an apparition—the finger of the Virgin pointing to regions far away. He must therefore lead a solitary life in lands far from his native home. No cave-dweller in the Orient ever more certainly followed the path of destiny.

After three years of earnest meditation, and at the age of 20, with only a staff he set out on foot for Rome. Seven long years he dwelt in the caves of Italy, and for five more years he wandered on foot all over Europe. About this time his thoughts turned toward a new continent, and he landed on the shores of Venezuela. Here, still afoot, he traversed the Brazilian, Chilean and Argentine countries. He then sought out his abode near the dangerous Orizaba volcano in Old Mexico. In all these wanderings he became famous as a doctor and priest among the wildest Indian tribes.

While doing his priestly work around the city of Orizaba, he was arrested by the civil authorities. A charge was trumped up against him and conviction followed. He was banished to the island of Cuba. From these shores he set sail for New York and from there he walked to Montreal in the Dominion of Canada. He reached St. Louis in the opening of the sixties after plodding across the Canadian and American wilderness. In going through the records of this pious saint, there comes to one's mind the story of Father Marquette, for Augustiniani descended the Mississippi in his light canoe.

No one seems to know much about him during the Civil War period, but it is certain he was never very far from St. Louis. His biography is very vague during those long and bitter years. These were the opening days when the intrepid pioneer blazed out the Santa Fé trail. This was the overland highway thrown across the Rockies from Westport, Mo., to Santa Fé, N. M., and on to the gold fields of California. Augustiniani began to dream of priesthood among the Indians in the distant West. His knowledge of Spanish made him at once familiar and popular with the Spaniards who moved vast caravans through the Rockies. He walked to Kansas City and on to Westport. By invitation of Gonzales, a wagon train king of the historic trail, he found his way to Las Vegas, N. M.

The monks passport is still a treasured heirloom in the Romero family, prominent today in the affairs of Northern New Mexico. It may be interesting to quote here the ancient document in possession of Señor Romero:

WESTPORT (Mo.) April 9, 1863.—John Mary Augustiniani, the bearer of this, is an Indian Catholic priest, about 62 years of age. He came to Westport, Jackson county, last fall and has passed the winter in a cave and a hollow tree, which has been his custom for the past thirty-six years. He has certificates from the most prominent persons in nearly every part of the globe. He is an Italian by birth and speaks several languages, has traveled in various countries and never asks for charity. He has some documents to show that he is from a noble family. When invited, he will sometimes eat with a person but, never asks. He often lives with the wild beasts and gives them a part of his food.

THOMAS J. GOFORTH,
J. BERNARD,
FRED CHOUTEAU.

One reaching Las Vegas, he found a cave home in Kearney's Gap, west of town. The people thought him superhuman, but their coming broke the quietude he so much longed for. With

J. M. Jamison, an attorney of Phoenix, Ariz., well known in Los Angeles, is a guest at the Westminster, where his wife has been registerd for some time. He will remain for a short vacation. D. Nicholson and wife, also of Phoenix, accompanied him.

W. E. Bartholomew, one of the officials of the Westinghouse Airbrake Company, whose home is in Chicago, is staying at the Hayward with his wife and two children, while resting from arduous duties.

EDUCATORS, AUTHORS.

PROF. MELVIN E. HAGGERTY of Harvard University is domiciled at the monkey house of the Bronx Zoo, New York, where he proposes to spend ninety days studying the language of the several members of the Simian tribe. Prof. Haggerty is assistant of Prof. Robert M. Yerkes of Harvard, who spent some time at the Zoo last summer teaching toads and turtles the benefits to be derived from self control and clean living. When the data is secured it is the purpose of Professors Yerkes and Haggerty to compile an orang-outang dictionary.

Prof. Harry Augustus Garfield will be inducted into office as president of Williams College on October 7 next. Prof. Garfield is at present a member of the faculty of Princeton University.

William Dean Howells is expected to return to this country at the end of June. He has been in Europe since January, spending most of his time in Italy. He has been staying in London latterly, where he will remain until his departure for Boston.

Mr. Frederick Moore, author of "The Passing of Morocco," is living in London, where he was married recently to a young English woman. Mr. Moore's home was formerly in New Orleans, but his duties as war correspondent have taken him to all parts of the world.

Dr. Ezra Brainerd, for twenty-three years president of Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., retired from the presidency yesterday and his successor, Rev. Dr. John M. Thomas, of Orange, N. J., was inducted into the office with imposing ceremonies. United States Senator John W. Stewart presided.

Dr. C. S. Minot of the Harvard Medical School, has been appointed a corresponding member of the Physico-Medical Society of Vienna, at the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the society. One other American physician, Dr. J. Loeb, of the University of California, has received a similar appointment.

At its recent commencement Purdue University, at Lafayette, Ind., conferred the honorary degree of doctor of engineering on Angus Sinclair, of New York. Mr. Sinclair is the editor-in-chief of Railway and Locomotive Engineering. Purdue University has for about twenty years devoted attention to railway engineering, especially to motive power and rolling stock.

Edmond Rostand is writing a drama which will be put on the stage early next season in which moving pictures will play a prominent part. The name of the play has not been determined upon, but it will be an admixture of mythology and up-to-date mechanics.

L. Clark Seelye, who has been president of Smith College, at Northampton, Mass., since it was founded, in 1873, has resigned. The reason given is that Mr. Seelye has reached the age of 70 years, at which time it has always been his wish to retire.

President Hadley, of Yale, has announced, as "an event of the highest importance" the selection of Prof. Frederick Scheetz Jones, of the University of Minnesota, to succeed Prof. Wright as dean of the college. Prof. Jones will assume his duties at the close of the next academic year.

Dr. Edmund J. James, president of the University of Illinois, has been commissioned by Gov. Deneen to make a study of recent educational developments in Germany and other European countries and has sailed to fulfil his mission. The results of his inquiries will serve as a basis of a report to the State Educational Commission of Illinois, recently appointed by the Governor.

PEOPLE OF THE COAST.

JOAQUIN MILLER is described by a correspondent of the New York Sun, as living on the hills overlooking San Francisco and the Golden Gate, and writing his verses while lying in bed with a pencil and pad near him, where he can look at his view and write when the spirit moves him. The essential thing in poetry and prose, Mr. Miller claims, is to use as few and as simple words as possible. He calls attention to the fact that the Sermon on the Mount has only 365 words in it. He never keeps any of his books about him, for he says, "They do not seem very good to me after I have finished them."

Judge Thomas Burke, who has just returned from Japan to his home, in Seattle, says that "War between this country and Japan is too remote to be considered, and that all the talk of international trouble seems to emanate from the United States."

Owen Regan, 70 years, of Portland, Or., recently risked his own life to save a 6-year-old child from being burned to death. While her mother was absent the child accidentally set the house on fire. When discovered the child was surrounded by flames in the kitchen but Mr. Regan dashed through a blazing curtain and carried the girl to safety.

At the recent golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Lloyd of Waitsburg, Wash., more than 200 old setters were on hand with congratulations. Lloyd crossed the plains in 1845 and in season to take part in a four-day fight with the Indians on the bank of Walla Walla River.

Miss Meta Eggers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Eggers of Alameda, left last week for Europe to perfect her studies in music. She is a graduate of the University of California and especially proficient in music. She also has a great liking for languages, and will probably take a post-graduate course in Germany.

James W. Ragsdale of California, the newly appointed Consul-General of the United States at St. Petersburg, has assumed the duties of his office.

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

AMBASSADOR HILL is already becoming very popular at Berlin, because of his democratic simplicity. Not for a good many years has the American colony of that city ever before enjoyed the presence of the American Ambassador at its Fourth of July celebrations. The celebration is a rollicking family picnic affair, but heretofore the Ambassador has always been away from Berlin on the Fourth.

John W. Riddle, the American Ambassador to Russia, who has been ill in a St. Petersburg hospital, is making slow but steady progress toward recovery. The doctors probably will recommend that their patient go abroad to recuperate.

The London Scotsman says President Roosevelt has asked F. C. Selous, the greatest hunter of big game in the world, to make preliminary arrangements for a hunting trip in Africa and a fishing trip in British East Africa. The caravan will be organized at Mombasa. The trip probably will last eight months, Mr. Roosevelt visiting England on his return.

During the recent visit to this country of Gov. Post of Porto Rico, he is believed to have made arrangements with New York bankers to finance the proposed irrigation plans of the island. An extra session of the Porto Rican Legislature may be called to authorize the necessary loans.

M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador at Washington, and Mme. Jusserand, have sailed for Europe, and will be absent several months.

A remarkable case, unique in the history of all consular corps of the world, is that of the American Consul at Gibraltar. Mr. Sprague is the third successive generation of his family to hold the post of Consul, his grandfather and his father having held it before him. For over sixty years has the United States been represented by a member of one family.

United States Senator Owen of Oklahoma has been given the degree of LL. D. by Washington and Lee University.

Representative Littlefield of Maine is understood to have tendered his services during the coming campaign to help out the contest in whatever districts organized labor may choose to make a fight. Mr. Littlefield is primed for the battle, and will enter into it heartily.

John B. Jackson, American Minister to Persia, has applied to the State Department for leave of absence that he may visit the United States. As the Persian situation is not considered at all alarming the request will probably be granted.

Hamilton King, United States Minister at Bangkok, Siam, who recently returned to this country, has undergone an operation at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, for an affliction that many specialists have found it difficult to correctly diagnose. He was taken so seriously ill on his way home that he had to go to the hospital before he had an opportunity to pay his respects to the President. Mr. King has resided in Bangkok for the past ten years, and has acquired much interesting information regarding Siam and its people.

SCIENTISTS.

FRANK CARMODY, an electrician of the San Francisco mint, announces his faith in the wireless telephone. He was present in Kansas City in 1904, when an inventor demonstrated that words could be heard for six or seven miles without the aid of wires, and he believes that wireless telephony is simply waiting the perfection of telephone instruments.

Thomas Milan, an American railroad man, president and general manager of the Vera Cruz and Pacific Railroad, owned by the Mexican government, has revolutionized the sanitary conditions of a stretch of territory 265 miles long, traversed by his railroad, so that yellow fever has been exterminated. In his campaign of sanitation, a number of infected villages were burned.

Zed D. Copp, probation officer of the Juvenile Court, Washington, believes he has discovered a solution of the race problem. His theory is that a certain disease which afflicts negroes, turning their skin white, is caused by a bacillus, and he believes that by isolating the germ and inoculating colored persons with the serum he may be enabled to turn the entire race white. Mr. Copp, in the discharge of his duty, says he has observed three cases in which the skin of negroes is turning white. He has been keeping track of these cases, visiting the patients weekly and making notes as to pathological conditions. The skin remains healthy during the peculiar disorder.

CHURCHMEN.

POPE PIUS is a firm believer in newspaper reading. His favorites are two provincial sheets—Venice Difesa and Vicenza Verico. The latter paper he has read nearly all his life. When he became patriarch of Venice he happened to make the acquaintance of the editor of the Difesa, then a struggling daily. The editor's views pleased his eminence, and hearing of the editor's high character, he offered him his aid. The patriarch's liberality and active support soon gave the Difesa a very wide circulation.

"Elijah," Frank W. Sandford, founder of the Holy Ghost and Us Society of Shiloh, Me., is reported ill and destitute at his present headquarters in the Holy Land. It was recently announced at Shiloh that Sanford had sent word that the world will come to an end in October of the present year, and the Shilohites were warned to be prepared for the event. It is proposed to transport the whole Shiloh colony to Jerusalem before October.

Dr. Maitland Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Pittsburg, never takes any of his salary of $10,000 a year, but gives it all to charity.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN.

COL. WILLIAM L. MARSHALL has received the expected appointment as Chief of the Corps of Engineers of the Army. He is now in charge of the defensive works at the eastern and southern entrances of New York harbor, and of the improvements of the harbor and adjacent channels. He retires in two years.

Maj. William Lassiter, Third Field Artillery, has been detailed to fill a vacancy in the inspector-general's department, vice Maj. Charles G. Treat, inspector-general, who is assigned to the Third Field Artillery.

Capt. Thomas B. Howard, in command of the Tennessee of the Pacific fleet, has been transferred to the Ohio, to succeed Capt. Charles W. Bartlett, retired, and Capt. Frank E. Beatty, recently in command of the Charleston, will succeed Capt. Henry Morrill of the Wisconsin, retired. Other naval retirements include Capt. Charles P. Perkins of the Pacific naval district; Capt. Theodoric Porter, assistant to the commandant at the Naval Home, Philadelphia; Capt. George L. Dyer, commandant at Charleston navy yard; Capt. John M. Robinson, in command of the receiving ship Independence at the Mare Island navy yard; Commander Horace W. Harrison and Commander James G. Doyle.

As adviser or secretary of the department of government under the Provisional Governor of Cuba, Lieut.-Col. Edward St. John Greble has set to work and is bringing about a new régime, especially in the hospital and penal institutions of the island. During his military career Col. Grebel has held many important posts.

Lieut.-Col. George L. Anderson, inspector-general of the two military departments of the Pacific Coast, is to be promoted to colonel of artillery. At present he stands No. 65 in the list of 134 lieutenant-colonels of all arms of the service, so that by this promotion, regular in the artillery arm, he passes over sixty-four others, of whom four-fifths had passed him during previous years.

Maj. James P. Jervey, Corps of Engineers, has been ordered to Washington barracks, D. C., for temporary duty, and later will proceed to Panama for duty pertaining to construction of the canal.

Charles S. McCullough, formerly first lieutenant in the regular army, serving a term of two years in the military prison at Fort Leavenworth for irregularities in the handling of his company funds while at Havana, has been pardoned by the President. His sentence was that he be publicly dismissed from the army and confined for two years in the military prison. He has served nearly eighteen months.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

MRS. CLARK FISHER of Trenton, N. J., has for nearly seven years been sole proprietor and manager of the firm of Fisher & Norris, makers of anvils and vises. Her husband, the late Capt. Clark Fisher, was a distinguished inventor and officer of the United States Navy. He lost his life in the terrible railroad wreck at Menlo Park, in New Jersey, in 1902. Previous to this, however, he had been so ill that he could not attend the business and it was at that time that Mrs. Fisher stepped into her husband's place as head of the firm.

Mrs. Margert K. Horn of Indiana has obtained a pension of $24 a month from Congress in recognition of her services during the war with the Sioux Indians. A pension bill was under consideration awarding her $16 a month at the widow of a war veteran. In the debate it was brought out that Mrs. Horn had personally rendered the government good service, for while her husband was at the front during the Civil War she herself, in 1862, fought against the Sioux Indians, being one of the beriegred at Fort Ridgely, Minn. Because of this service her pension was raised to $24.

Miss Meigs of Rush Medical College won the first place in the competitive examination for internes in the Cook County (Ill.) Hospital. She is the only woman who took the examination. She comes from Keokuk, Iowa, and is one of the six daughters of Maj. Montgomery Meigs, U.S.A.

Mrs. Asquith, the wife of the new British Premier, is well known for her philanthropic work in the East End of London. She and her sisters, Mrs. Alfred Lyttleton and Lady Rebbiesdale, started a creche for babies and attended to it personally. Mrs. Asquith is especially interested in factory girls, taking large parties into the country every year and helping them in every way. Before her marriage Mrs. Asquith was Miss Margot Tennant, and a great friend of Mr. Gladstone.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller presented a copy of "The Life of Alice Freeman Palmer" to each of the 210 members of this year's graduating class at Vassar.

Mrs. Taft is reported as saying that divorce is worse than war, but many people rather like the excitement of war, if they are not in the firing line, and ammunition of divorce courts is not generally of a death-dealing character.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

MISS SARAH P. MORRISON, 75 years of age, has matriculated at the Indiana State University and will make a specialty of Greek and laws of versification during the summer term. Miss Morrison was the first woman to graduate from the university, being a member of the class of '69. Despite her extreme age she is as sprightly as she was nearly fifty years ago. Miss Morrison has never lost her interest in the classics and poetry, and she virtually lived with writers of antiquity since her graduation year. She returns to her alma mater after all these years as a seeker for more knowledge, and she has been received with open arms.

James J. Hill, one of America's leading railroad men, has also the distinction of having one of the finest collection of furs in the world. He has a passion for not just furs, but fine furs, rich furs, the furs from fur-bearing animals which have almost been exterminated by the demands of fashion. The fur merchants of St. Paul and Minneapolis are always on the lookout for the exceedingly fine furs, which are held for Mr. Hill's selection. His collection is valued at many thousands of dollars. The exact value would be difficult to estimate, since many of these furs are priceless.

Capt. John Siddon has sailed more than 1,500,000 miles during the last forty-four years. When not yet 16 years of age, in 1864, he started forth on his first voyage and sailed from England, the home of his boyhood, to San Francisco, a trip which was decidedly more formidable in those times than it is today. Since that time he has spent the greater part of his life on the waves, sailing into nearly every seaport of any prominence in the world. He was in Peru during the revolution in 1877, and considers his experiences at that time the most interesting of his life. He was also in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake, and fire.

Dr. John G. Ames, after having held a situation in the Interior Department at Washington for thirty-four years, has resigned. During nearly all of this time he has been superintendent of documents, and has had charge of mailing the publictaions of the department to libraries and individuals. It is probable that Dr. Ames, who is an Episcopal clergyman, will remain in Washington and take up literary and church work.

Frederick Hays of Carlisle, Pa., is the only present descendant of "Molly Pitcher" of Monmouth fame. His grandfather, Molly's son, was born on the Monmouth battlefield. On the 27th of June Hays celebrated the memory of the event which 130 years ago caused Molly's name to be handed down to posterity.

John Hays Hammond, recent candidate for the Vice-Presidential nomination, has subscribed $10,000 toward the sustentation fund of $125,000, which Dr. Richard D. Harlan, special representative of "the George Washington University movement," is raising for the enlargement of the new college of political science of the university.

William Waldorf Astor has given $5000 to assist the British school at Athens in carrying on its excavations in Laconia, Greece.

E. D. Libbey, a prominent Toledo (O.) manufacturer, has given $105,000 to the Toledo Art Museum. This will enable the trustees to erect a new building, $50,000 additional being available through public subscriptions.

OVER THE SEA.

HERBERT L. BAILLIES, head of the public library of Wellington, N. Z., is an honor guest at the thirty-second convention of the American Library Association, now in session at Lake Minnetonka, near Minneapolis. Mr. Baillies comes to the convention with credentials from the Australian government.

Sir Frederick Bridge, while recently crossing the Rockies to Vancouver, B. C., had an exciting adventure. One night his train stopped for repairs. Sir Frederick, not being able to sleep, began upon the revision of the Wesleyan hymn book, which he is undertaking. Soon he heard a noise under his couch. Then he perceived a paw and then the head of a bear. Sir Frederick threw the bed clothes over the bear's head and made for the door, firing the hymn book at the animal's nose as it emerged. The bear seized the book, tore it in two and leaped through the window, carrying the portion Sir Frederick had begun to revise. He is carrying back the other half for preservation in the Westminster Abbey library.

Dr. James F. Rymer, an English surgeon, who has practiced his profession in England, the United States and Canada, has set out from Edmonton for Fort Good Hope, 1800 miles to the north, with the idea of permanently practicing his profession among Eskimos and Indians. He does not intend to return to civilization for at least three years, and then only for a brief visit.

Dr. Samuel Bernheim of Paris, president of the Tuberculosis League, has been appointed a delegate to represent France at the tuberculosis conference to be held in Washington in September. While in the United States Dr. Bernheim will make an official investigation of the methods employed in factories to prevent the spread of disease, with particular reference to tuberculosis.

King Edward VII is the most heavily insured man alive. On the same principle, J. Pierpont Morgan's life was not long ago extensively insured at Lloyd's by a number of stock companies which were threatened with loss in the event of his death. The insurance has since been allowed to lapse.

Grand Duke Frederick of Baden has accepted the plans for the restoration of the old Castle of Heidelberg. The question of rebuilding the castle has been hotly discussed for the past half dozen years.

The Mayor of Brauage, France, the birthplace of Champlain, has accepted an invitation to attend the tercentenary in Quebec. The Duke of Norfolk, premier Duke of Great Britain, is expected to be present also, and to attend the solemn mass on the plains of Abraham.

TO HANDLE THE SKUNK.

Hold Him Up by the Tail and You Hold up His Shooting Ability.

Both of our hired men have often insisted that a live skunk could be safely carried by the tail, insisting that they had often seen it done. Since the veracity of both men happens to be absolutely unquestionable, my father did not hesitate to mention this fact in his writings. He was once "called down" by several naturalists, one of them being Prof. Bailey. So it happened that the other morning, when I caught a skunk in a trap set for rats in front of my henhouse, I at once informed father that I had a skunk for him and it was a good time to put his theory in practice by taking his own medicine, etc. We all had our misgivings, but were also secretly delighted when he proved, in spite of his 70 years, to be game.

By means of a long pole the poor skunk was dragged about and roughly treated to get him good and mad. Then my father liberated him, bare-handed, from the trap, seized him by his waving plume-like tail, and jerked him quickly into the air. There was nothing doing, Prof. Bailey to the contrary notwithstanding. Whether or not the skunk could have discharged his phosphorous-sulphurous essence cannot be said; certainly he did not. After exhibiting and being cheered by the spectators (who all stood out of range) my father dropped the skunk in a barrel.

Having often watched skunks discharge their perfumery I am firmly convinced that no skunk, held in midair by the tail could shoot. This is affirmed by a good skunk story that the hired man tells, he being an eyewitness:

"One night when we were out 'coon huntin' the dogs ran a skunk in the wall. So and so pulled him out by the tail, holding him up with one hand, while he threw rocks at him with the other. Unluckily while feeling for a stone he lowered Mr. Skunk so that he got his front feet on the wall. Quicker'n lightning, before the thought, he got soaked fair right in his eye. He just rolled on the ground; it near blinded him."

The nature fakers often misuse the skunk, speaking of him as though his terrible odor were always present, it being one of his external fixtures. In truth there is no neater or cleaner animal than a skunk or one with less odor. Those who have very often dug out skunks in the winter time say that their den, even when occupied all winter by five or six skunks, is odorless, dry and clean.—[Forest and Stream.

INSURANCE FIELD.

Insurance Superintendent Vandiver of Missouri states that the report of his department on the examination of the Great Western Life of Kansas City, to be made public in a few days, will show that the $100,000 capital stock of the company has been completely wiped out, and that the impairment extends further, so as to leave a deficit above the $100,000, which must fall on the holders of the annuity certificates, of which over $300,000 were sold by the company.

The Central Life Securities Company of Chicago has been placed in the hands of a receiver.

The receiver of the Nebraska Mutual Fire, which failed last fall, declares that statements of the company made to the insurance department were incorrect; that its officers violated the law, and that State Auditor Searle should have begun insolvency proceedings against the concern in June, 1907, on the basis of reports filed by his examiners.

A decision of the Nebraska Supreme Court holds that a mutual or cooperative assessment company cannot reinsure another fire insurance company unless its charter or the statutory law confers the specific [illegible] enter such a contract. Such is [illegible] case in Nebraska, and the laws [illegible] are similar to those of most [illegible] States; hence the decision is [illegible] as important by fire insurance [illegible] The suit was that of Alliance [illegible] Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

The board of directors of the [illegible] Indemnity Company have decided it is for the best interests of the company to show a larger surplus than it now has, and it is proposed to reduce the par of the company's stock from $50 to $25 per share. This action will reduce the capital [illegible] $250,000, and create a larger [illegible] loss-paying power, and will not in any way affect the ability of the company to write the same size [illegible] it can at present under the [illegible] limit law.

The California Insurance Department has issued a certificate of authority to transact business in California to the Equitable Fire and Marine Insurance Company of Providence. This company operated in this State before the fire under a reinsurance agreement with the [illegible] Fund. Another company [illegible] write business in California [illegible] Dubuque Fire and Marine, was admitted last week, after a [illegible] five months.

The current issue of the [illegible] Press prints some interesting [illegible] figures relative to fire waste [illegible] United States for the past [illegible] The figures show that the [illegible] fires is greater and the losses [illegible] It says: "Gross carelessness is [illegible] factor in the yearly waste of [illegible] by fire, as evidenced by the [illegible] ing number of fires in a [illegible] ber of cities. The [illegible] cates the need of the [illegible] public fire departments [illegible] mustered together."

The danger of fire spreading from one building to another is [illegible] the record of some of the [illegible] 1907. POST-GRADUATE WORK.

Now is the Time to Take a Course in Housekeeping and Domestic Economy.

Housekeeping is an art, which every girl who stays at home should study. Therefore, for the young girl who has just graduated, nothing could be better now than a post-graduate course in the art of housekeeping in its many branches.

Every girl possesses in a greater or less degree the housewife and home-maker instinct; and as these are the natural sphere of every woman, they should be cultivated and developed as far as possible. Girls are not taught nowadays many of the details of housekeeping, and in consequence the number of them who know how to run a home is comparatively small. This, of course, is due in a large measure to the lack of time most girls have from their school duties. So, now that the days of ologies and isms of the school course are completed, the lessons of home-making may be taken up, lessons that almost every girl will be called upon to put into practical use when she, according to the natural order of things, assumes the care of her own home. To be sure there are numerous cooking schools, but even these are not always available to the majority of schoolgirls.

Many of the best housekeepers will tell you they have acquired their knowledge of the art of housekeeping through experience. Then, girls, coax mother to let you take hold of the reins of the household for a week or so. No doubt she will look at you surprisedly at first, but when you insist that you are really in earnest and mean it, she will right gladly let slip these cares to willing young shoulders for a little while.

Arm yourself with a reliable cook book and good household utensils, and take command of the fort. You will be delighted to find what a dear responsibility it is. Rudiments of cooking and housework once learned will never be forgotten; after mastering the details, any girl with the least taste for the art of cooking will be able to run the house and do the ordering, for she will have learned to do by doing.

A good housekeeper must be able to handle the money earned by the bread-winner, practicing the economy which is, in its way, as important as the actual earning of the income. She should gain a particular knowledge of marketing, washing and ironing, so she will know how these things should be done, though she may not have to do them herself.

Some women regard housework as drudgery, while others deem it the most important part of a woman's life; both of these views are wrong. To be a good housekeeper need not mean a lot of hard work and eternally at it, and neither should the comfort of the family be made to suffer on account of the over-zealous housewife, to whom an orderly household is easily the most important feature in life; to such a one as this even the small affair of a disarranged sofa pillow is the signal for a domestic storm.

Art Chapter Outing.

The chairman of the Art Chapter gives the following notice:

Members of the Art Chapter will meet Friday, July 17, at 8:45 a.m., in the ladies' waiting-room of the Pacific Electric building. A trip will be made to the old San Gabriel Mission for sketching purposes. All interested in the work of the Art Chapter are cordially invited to come with the Art girls. You will find it a joy to get out in the open air, and, with congenial company, and "right good will," go to work.

To Exchange Post Cards.

A "Back East" girl wishes to exchange post cards. She writes as follows:

I should be much pleased to exchange post cards with some of the girls of the Each and All Society, and I will try to send a card for each one I receive. I can send views of Providence and vicinity, some of the views of Roger Williams' Park are very pretty. MRS. C. I. N. (Providence, R. I.

Defends the Name.

The chairman of the chapter of Would-Be Authors takes issue with Meg, and sends her protests even while suffering with rheumatism. Here is her letter:

I have been enjoying (?) a 'good (?) attack of inflammatory rheumatism, and I thought that I was too ill to write for our page this week, but when I read Meg's letter, I became overpowered by a desire to reply.

Meg protests that an author is one who has written a book, and that most of us will never have the ability to write books. While granting the correctness of the definition, except that the name may also be applied to the writer of "a treatise, document or the like," or to one who follows writing as a profession, the word is one that ought always to call forth our most worthy ambition, and we may always be those who "would be" authors if we could. Why should we choose a goal which we could reach easily, for of what value would such a goal be? What a shadow of love most people's friendships are, and yet you would not bid them give up having friends, would you? Would you always say "acquaintance" and never "friend?"

I like the original meaning of author, which is given as "one who produces or creates something," or, in popular phrase, a person who "does things." Some of the best writers have been people of action who became authors without any thought of achieving that distinction; deeply interested in some movement, they have written about it, talked about it, prayed for it and lived for it until they have unconsciously created literature. May I make a personal reference to illustrate my idea? Meg wrote a sweet letter to N. and I believe many others will take comfort in what she said. If Meg were to love all sick people with the life devotion that Mrs. Stowe loved the slaves; if Meg were to come closely in touch with their hearts—with their despair, their suffering, their patience, their heroism, their triumphing brightness—if she were to write for them with all of her great tender sympathy, until they could feel her cool, soft hand smooth their heated brows, if she were to plead for them until people would turn aside from their busy cares to cheer all the lives in the shadows, she would unconsciously write messages so sweet and so compelling that some one would gather them together and lo! there would be her book! There would be some sermons in her book, but there would be stories, too, for no one can live very close to human hearts and not have stories to tell. And don't we need stories of sick people? Are there not very, very many things which we can learn from them?

These are the kind of authors I like best, the ones who "do things." I should very, very much rather be an "author," even a "would-be author" than just a "writer." I think that to a large extent Tolstoi is an author in this original sense of the word. You will smile when I tell you that I expect, some time when the occasion arises, half of the Reading Chapter girls will turn into writers before they think what they are doing. They will have some earnest discussions, I will warrant, and their thoughts will be busy for days afterwards; there will be dozens of things they will be wanting to say, and before they realize it they will be writing their thoughts. Wait and see if they don't!

I cannot help quarreling with the importance which Meg gives to ability in the practice of authorship. I am a heretic in this regard, for I do not believe that ability has much to do with success in authorship. Few of the masterpieces of literature possess any greatness of composition except their lack of it—their great simplicity. What eighth grade child could not write as good sentences as are in Lincoln's Gettysburg speech? Could not any second or third-rate poet sustain his metre as well and rhyme his lines as often as is done in the Psalm of Life? It is knowing life and understanding hearts that counts. Unless an editor is considering some article, such as a scientific discussion, in which accuracy is of prime importance, his question is, "Has the sketch heart interest?" Ability to turn pretty phrases, to balance a story perfectly, to do a score of mechanical things, do not count for a great deal. What does count is living, "not like dumb driven cattle," but like "a hero in the strife"—living strongly, lovingly, sympathetically.

I cannot reconcile myself to any other dream than that some time every one will "write things" just as now everybody talks. A thousand years ago letter writing was quite an accomplishment except among the highest classes; now—well, who does not write a letter once in a while now? To me writing is the expression of life, and I do believe we are living more than our forefathers did, and will live still more.

I do not mean to say that I am not a believer in the artifices of "fine writing." I think it is worth while to learn as much as one can of literary technique, just as it is worth while, to use a homely figure, to learn how to cook a chicken in all the delicious ways in which it can be prepared. The principal thing is the chicken, and if it is tender and juicy, it will be very good just stewed—still, what cook that has a plump broiler would not like to be able to roast it just that shade of brown that is perfection?

MARGUERITE WINNIFRED,
Southern California Chairman of Would-Be Authors.

This is sage advice as well as words of kindly encouragement to the girls composing the chapter of Would-Be Authors. Having first of all something to tell, is the main point in writing, then treating the subject fitly is the next sympathetically, if of human interest, humorously if the point tends to humor, earnestly if you would sway your readers, and impress upon them your own earnest convictions.

A Redlands Message.

This member will visit one who is sick at the hospital:

If I had the ability I would like to join all of the chapters. I am like the little boy who joined all of the churches to go to all of the Sunday-school picnics, but I guess I will not join any other chapters. Just now our president sent me a number of addresses of shut-in members. If you can send me the address of one poor hospital patient I will call and see her and bring some fruit, if she can take it. In two weeks from now I will be in the city. I told my friend in Iowa if she had a letter from Aunt Charlotte she was highly favored. MRS. A. L. S.
(Redlands, Cal.)

There are many patients at the County Hospital who are strangers here and have no friends to visit them. A cheery visit and a bit of fresh fruit will be appreciated by these lonely ones.

A Small Girl's Request.

A little girl from San Diego wishes to become a member of the Cheerers' Chapter:

Can I belong to Each and All? I am 15. I do not know if I am too young to join any chapter. I am interested in the Invalid Cheer Chapter, Would-be Authors and Fancy Work. I like the Cheer Chapter best, as my mother has been laid up with a poisoned foot for eight months and I know how any little thing I can do helps her bear her burden. Is there a dramatic chapter? Do you know of anyone living near some of the springs who would take a lady (my mother,) her daughter and little son to board for a month at a reasonable price? MARIE.

It is rare indeed that a little girl of 15 asks to join the Invalid Cheer Chapter, for the serious business of such a chapter is hardly expected to appeal to one so young. The chairman will be glad to welcome you as a member. I hope some of our girls will be able to recommend some quiet resort such as you wish for your mother.

From a Shut-in.

E. H., a Los Angeles girl, esteems cheerfulness, the best trait of the human character:

I have been thinking for some time of joining the "shut-ins." And, since being a "shut-in," have had the pleasure of meeting members of the various chapters, whose calls were a real pleasure, bringing cheer and helpful thoughts. Over and above every other social trait stands cheerfulness. Let us all try to be like the "sunshine" cheerful members, who have the estimable art to make all duty seem pleasant, and all self-denial and exertion easy and desirable, even disappointment not so blank and crushing. You have perhaps met people within whose influence you felt cheerful, amiable and hopeful—equal to anything. I do not know a more enviable gift than the energy to sway others to good, to diffuse around us an atmosphere of cheerfulness, piety, truthfulness, generosity and magnanimity. It is not a mater of great talent; not entirely a matter of great energy, but rather of earnestness and honesty and of quiet, constant energy, which is like soft rain gently penetrating the soil. It is rather a grace than a gift.

EACH AND ALL MOTTO.

Golden thoughts, golden deeds,
Rid life's garden of its weeds.

OUR PLEDGE:

"To make one another happier, to lighten one another's burdens, to share one another's cares, to be lifters, not leaners, to make the world a little sweeter place to live in, to be mutual encouragers, never discouragers of any one, to start songs, not complainings and to do every day something beautiful, some kindness which will cheer and strengthen another."

A very dear letter from a shut-in. Even though a shut-in her letter proves her a "lifter" and not a leaner.

Animal Aid Chapter.

Mrs. M. P. S., who is now in Piru, Cal., for a few weeks, writes of the Animal Aid Chapter:

I noticed on our page Sunday that another Each and All girl is interested in the Animal Aid Chapter. This will be a most interesting chapter for all who love animals. When I see a person treating an animal with kindness, I know he has a Christian spirit.

Those who wish to join the Animal Aid Chapter would do well to talk it over at the next general meeting, when the chapter can be formed, even if I am not present. I will not return to Los Angeles until the last part of July.

We are enjoying the climate and grand scenery in this region to the full limit. We are camping near the foot of the mountains. The elevation is high and the climate is fine. There is a castle and beautiful grounds nestled in against the steep mountain side a short distance from our wigwam, which we have named "Camp Happy," a very appropriate name, as we are having a happy time. I still have the walking habit. Made a trip of five miles yesterday. I will be in good trim when the walkers again begin their tramps. The editor of the Each and All department will give my name to all who wish to join the Animal Aid Chapter, by sending a stamped addressed envelope with request.

An acting chairman for this chapter will be named at the next meeting of the society, who will take up the work of organization of the chapter, and discharge the duties of chairman until the return of Mrs. M. P. S.

Loves Her Chapter.

A member who signs herself "An Ex-New Yorker, writes:

Permit me to call your attention to the youngest, and, if I may say it, the noblest, chapter, of the Each and All Society. We are endeavoring to take a little cheer and brightness into the lives of those who, in many instances, can not even leave their homes. Our president takes a personal interest in our chapter and inspires us all to our best effort. We are anxious to increase our membership and therefore invite those interested to attend our next meeting at No. 124 Witmer street, five minutes' ride from Second and Spring, July 14. You may like us and our work so well that you will become active members.

Here is a general invitation to all those who would wish even in a small way to administer unto those, who mayhap at times "grow weary with the strife."

Invalid Cheer Chapter.

The chairman, Mrs. W. E. W., of the Invalid Cheer Chapter, submits her report as follows:

Members of Invalid Cheer Chapter met with Mrs. Sphere June 25. Several garments were commenced, some of which will be sold at the festival. Many helpful suggestions were put before the members, and some were readily adopted. One very important suggestion was that we try to get some place centrally located, where our out-of-town friends and city friends can leave donations. A committee would then call for parcels and see that they reached the proper destination. Our work is braodening and weare gaining new members all the time. We are making practical garments, such as dresses, skirts, sacques, aprons, etc. We would be glad to get material for this work.

Real Purpose of Society.

I do not wish to preach, but every time I read the motto of the Each and All I think how much better the world would be if we only lived up to the spirit of the pledge. So many say: "Oh, I cannot do anything that counts. If I could, I would gladly do it." Remember, a cup of water timely brought means as much to "Him who sees" as the act that receives the praise of the whole world.

Great chances do not come to us all.

It is the unselfishness daily practiced that will strengthen the character and influence our friends and associates to follow our example.

If we intend to live up to the beautiful principles upon which our society is founded, we must first look to the betterment of self.

That is the thought I wish to convey, and the surest way to do this is to perform daily the little acts of kindness that seemingly mean so little, and in the end count so much. J. B. H.

A beautiful sentiment is expressed in the above, and it is really the interpretation of the purpose of Each and All Society.

Lives Up to Pledge.

A Burbank member gets her chief enjoyment by reading the letters of the Each and All girls in the Sunday Times. She writes:

I am living out in the country, but having been here only two months, I have made few acquaintances and have plenty of time for reflection while I am doing my work. I read and re-read the Each and All page and derive much enjoyment therefrom. I also receive a few letters from Each and All friends. I love our motto and pledge and try to live up to them.

I was much interested in the article about the "snub" which appeared on our page, and think some may have met her sister or a near relative who is known as the gossip or busybody. These are comparatively harmless, however, compared with the scandal-monger. There is no more deadly weapon than the tongue. A wound inflicted by this weapon leaves an indelible scar.

I wish we could have a branch of our society started in Burbank. I am sure many members would enlist in a society wherein lofty aims and noble work are the purposes.

I would like to know if there have been books of views taken of the fleet and sailors, and where to procure the same, as I was unable to attend any of the doings and should like to have some good pictures that were taken while they were here.

I would also like to get the address of the rancher's wife, Mrs. F. H. of Merced, if she would care to correspond with another E. and A. member who lives in the country. MRS. L. D.

Why do you not try to start a branch of the society yourself in Burbank? You could very easily form a Fancy Work or Domestic Science Chapter and have the members meet at each others' homes weekly or semi-monthly. Our president will write you how to go about this. Probably some of the Each and All girls have picture prints of scenes taken during the visit of the fleet of which they would be glad to send you copies.

A Cheering Letter.

Here is a dear letter from a beach member, who speaks cheering and encouraging words to the unwilling "leaner:"

I have just come in from the glorious out-of-doors, for this twilight time is the time of all for me. Everything shines with the reflected light of a perfect sunset, and over yonder, where the sun went down from sight in the blue of the Pacific, the colors on the sea and sky are constantly changing, and I could not leave the beach, where the waves rolled in almost to my feet, until I had seen the evening star, "like a diamond in the sky," appear above the opal-tinted sunset haze. What a beautiful world this is, and how I wish, wish, wish that all our dear invalid sisters could see the beauties of California.

You see you are all, "Each and All," in my thoughts, and it helps, doesn't it, to know someone thinks of us?

In a recent letter a sister, who is not well, writes that owing to her ill health she is not able to do active work along our lines, and for many months has hesitated to ask for admittance to the Each and All, fearing she would be a "leaner" and not a "lifter." My dear girl, the word "leaner" does not mean those who are unable to attend meetings or to make wonder bags or send magazines. That word applies to those who are able, but—well, just don't do it. We want you, and all those whom we can help, to just sit down and write us about yourselves; for, don't you see, if we had no one to lean on us, just a little, we could not lift—just a little? Do not ever, for a moment, think you are unwelcome.

I have read with interest Marguerite Winifred's letter in last week's page, about forming a Readers' Chapter, and I think it would be an excellent plan to form one in connection with the Would-be Authors. I have an idea that the two, working together, would be very helpful to each. If such a chapter materializes, put me down as a member. Although I do not feel competent to act as chairman, yet I am willing to work if someone will tell me what to do.

I would like to suggest that we all save the "funny papers" of each week's issue, and once a month send them to someone previously appointed to forward them to sick children, either in hospitals or in poor homes. The idea came to me the other day when a boy of 14, who often visits in our home, asked for "last Sunday's funny papers." And if a perfectly healthy boy of 14 could fine pleasure in Buster Brown and Tige and the rest of them, how much more would some poor, sick little body enjoy the same. Of course, this is only a suggestion, but we must not forget the little ones of today, who make the men and the women of tomorrow. M. H. S. (Ocean Park.)

I think it would be a splendid plan if the readers could arrange in some way for our out of town members to take up this line of study, for many of them seem anxious and desirous for it. Won't you think it over, members of the Reading Chapter?

From 'Way Back East.

A letter from Mrs. L. T. of Independence, Iowa, has reached our department, and the request of a Downey, Cal. girl is answered.

Dear Each and All Girls: I have a friend living in Redlands, Cal., who sent me the Sunday Times. I would say to the Minnesota girl of Downey, Cal., I make bead forget-me-not chains, watch fobs and belts. I will send to the society a bead chain. I make several different styles. I have no call for the crochet bead chains. I used to make them. Everything depends on starting them right. I cannot write how to crochet the chain.

If it costs only helpfulness and living up to that beautiful motto and pledge I would like to join the Each and All Club of The Times.

The bead chain also reached this department, and will be used on the fancy work booth at our coming festival. Members who are interested in bead work and who wish to communicate with Mrs. L. T. may obtain this address upon request, inclosing a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

A Youthful Member.

I have been reading "Each and All" page for quite a while, but have not noticed any letters of girls my age (15.) Is there a chapter for girls that age? If there is, who is the chairman, as I would like to know what they are doing for the festival. Is there a "Dramatic Chapter?" What are the "Each and All" colors? I am inclosing self-addressed envelope for a membership card. MARIE. (L. A.)

The Pico Heights Chapter is made up of young girls, interested in the work of the Each and All Society. The address of the chairman of this chapter shall be sent to you.

Two Would-Be Authors.

Here are two letters from out of town "would-be authors," written to the California chairmen:

I am a resident of Isleta, N. M., an Indian village of historical interest.

I desire above all things, to know just how to put my thoughts on paper, in form that would be acceptable by publishers. Sometimes I write sketches, but they are usually failures and I have never yet felt that I could spare money for instruction, and again I felt in doubt as to the success of such a course, never having corresponded with anyone who had taken such a course, and was successful. If you care to respond to this I would greatly appreciate your kindness.

We came here from Toledo, O., on account of the condition of health of my eldest son. My husband is a telegraph operator, which business has always placed us in a town. Sometimes I get very lonely, just to talk with an intelligent American woman, and especially an educated one.

I will be very pleased to write you anything of this place that may be of interest to you.

I will await with a great deal of interest your reply. Yours very truly, (MRS.) L. W. B.

I have tried hard to find a friend to take some interest in me. I am fond of writing and composing poetry or prose, only I am not scholar enough so far. A good old friend I have, who says, "the thoughts are there, but not enough encouragement and education so far." I will try hard to do all I can if some one will take an interest in me.
(MISS) F. C. B. (Smithsburg, Md.)

The chairman of this chapter is doing much to encourage and stimulate the efforts of aspiring writers.

Will Join Two Chapters.

A new member from La Crescenta applies for membership in Mothers' and Invalid chapters.

Reading of the Mothers' Chapter connected with the Each and All Society, I desire to become a member, receiving its benefits and doing all I may to render it helpful to others. As "mamma" to four little ones—by adoption—I am an enthusiastic candidate, though distant, for whatever help lies in the "round table" letter, and will be glad to reciprocate. I desire also much to do for the invalids, so ask how I may best reach them. Shall I ask the list of their names, as I notice some others have? I have many choice magazines, articles and pictures to share with them if I can reach them from this distance. Yours, M. F. S.

You will be put in communication with the chairman of both these chapters. You will derive much real pleasure from the Round Robin letters, and also through your connection with the Invalid Cheer Chapter.

Calendar.

Invalid Cheer Chapter, Tuesday, July 14, at 2 o'clock p.m., with Mrs. B. Frey, No. 124 Witmer street.

General Each and All Society, Wednesday, July 15, at 2 o'clock p.m. Westlake Park.

Art Chapter, Friday, July 17, at 8:45 o'clock a.m., ladies' waiting-room, Pacific Electric building.

Invalid Cheer Chapter.

The chairman of Invalid Cheer Chapter reports that the last meeting was held with Mrs. Frey; that the work as mapped out by the members is progressing nicely. There were two visitors in attendance at this meeting. Members of the chapter extend thanks and express deep appreciation of the kindly thought of the friend of invalids who sent six books to be sold at the festival, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the work of the Invalid Cheer Chapter.

APPEAL.

The childish voice rose to my ear,
Sweet-toned and eager, praying me,
"I am so little, Granna dear,
Please lift me up, so I can see."

I looked down at the pleading face,
Felt the small hand's entreating touch,
And, stooping, caught in swift embrace,
The baby boy I loved so much.

And held him high that he might gaze
At the great pageant of the sky,
The glory of the sunset's blaze,
The glittering moon that curved on high.

With speechless love I clasped him close
And read their beauty in his eyes,
And on his fair cheek kissed the rose,
Sweeter than blooms of Paradise.

And in my heart his eager prayer
Found echo, and the self-same cry
Rose from my heart through heaven's air,
"O gracious Father, lift me high.

"So little and so low am I,
Among earth's mists I call to Thee,
Show me the glory of Thy sky,
Oh, lift me up that I may see."

Babies and School Children—Pictures and Points From Here and There.

Kindergarten Maidens.

Vera Mensir and Nadia Gufelor are two little Russian maidens who attend the Utah-street kindergarten.

Vera, the little chubby barefoot lassie in the "Mother Hubbard," is only three years old and is called "the little tramp scholar." She just came to school of her own accord; no one brought her. She just appeared one day and took her place with the other little ones, and though she has been sent home many times, for she is not yet even of the age required to enter the kindergarten class—she turns right around after reaching home and walks back to school, and there she stands patiently, in the outer hall, with her head bent low, for all the world like a little penitent, until she is discovered by the teacher, and then petted and loved and told it is only because she is a baby that she cannot come to school. But Vera fails to understand any of this explanation and she throws shy, appealing glances from the teacher over to the little scholars. Vera has finally been formally admitted as a kindergarten scholar, and has endeared herself to all the teachers, who take a special interest in her. She enters into all the kindergarten exercises with a zest and laughs merrily in the games. Vera was afraid of the camera and so she had to hold hands with a little partner to have her picture taken for The Times.

Vera is at the school gate before it is open in the morning, and she is the last scholar to leave at noon. She even wanders into the school building during the night sessions.

Once when the kindergarten people were going with their teachers for a visit to the blacksmith, they passed a schoolhouse, Vera promptly deserted the ranks and made her way into the building and inspected all the schoolrooms.

Vera must feel very lonely now for her teachers and schoolmates, since it is vacation time.

From the Small Folk.

Wisdom from a babe: "What would you do, my boy," asked a professional vocalist, proudly, "if you could sing like me?" "Have some singing lessons," replied the lad.

For dessert at dinner one day berries were served with whipped cream. "Mamma," said little Lola, "may I have some more spanked cream on my berries?"

Little Lola was sent to the store for a spool of thread, but came back without it. "Why, Lola," exclaimed her mother, "where is the thread?" "I forgot the age of the thread you wanted," exclaimed the little shopper.

Had her choice: "I see that your little sister took the smaller apple," said an experienced mother. "Did you let her have her choice, as I told you?" "Yes, mother," her son replied, brightly. "I told her if she didn't choose the smaller one she wouldn't get any at all. She chose the smaller, mother."

"Mamma," said small Elsie, "do bugs ever get to be Teddy bears?" "Of course not, dear," was the reply. "But what put that idea into your head?" "Oh," answered Elsie, "I heard papa say something about a bugbear this morning."

Small Fred had been presented with a toy bank, and was told to save his pennies. "Mamma," he said one day, "please give me a quarter." "What do you want a quarter for?" asked his mother. "I want to get it changed into pennies to save," was the reply.

Adventures of Three Little Girls.

By Mattie Walker.

One bright spring morning, just after the flowers had finished their breakfast of dew, Anna, Marie and Cecilia, who lived in the country, went out in the woods to play. They played house near the border until after lunch. Then they ventured farther into the woods to gather wild flowers.

After they had wandered quite a distance, Anna stopped, looked around her for a moment, then turned to Marie, who was about to pick a beautiful little pink flower, and asked:

"Don't you think we had better go back, or else we may meet a wolf as little Riding Hood did?"

"Well," answered Marie, "let's do go back, but I don't think there is any danger of meeting a wolf; but if we should get lost I think there are enough robins to cover us with leaves."

"Cecilia," called Anna, " has a wolf carried you off or have the robins coaxed you away?"

"No, neither," answered Cecilia, "but just come and see what I have found."

It was a little log cabin, partly covered with vines and surrounded by trees and beautiful flowers of many different colors. A beautiful fern-grown hill, with a laughing, bubbling spring running and leaping down its side, formed the background.

"Isn't it just beautiful?" cried Anna.

"Yes, it is pretty," answered Marie, "but I would not like to live here, because it looks as though it is shut off from the world entirely."

"I think it is quite lovely myself," put in Cecilia, who had been gathering some of the flowers, "even though it does seem lonely."

"Come," said Marie, "let's go and see what there is inside of such a mysterious little hut."

The door was opened without much difficulty, but the creaking noise it made caused a queer feeling to go over the children.

An old iron pot hung in the fireplace over a half-burnt low; a cup, a salt and pepper shaker were on the mantel; a rudely-made table was sitting in one corner, and a couple of benches stood in another. These and a few hunting trophies, and a rude cot, with a blanket thrown over it, was all that was in the room.

After everything had been carefully inspected, Cecilia asked:

"Who do you think has or does live here?"

"A hunter," answered Anna.

"No, I think it looks more like the robbers' den I read about yesterday," said Marie.

"Please don't say that, for I am already frightened to death," cried Cecilia.

Just about that time there was heard a queer noise outside, and whether it was a hunter, robber, wolf, bough of a tree, or a bird, they did not wait to find out, but all three rushed out at once and to their home as quickly as possible.

Washington's Resting Place.

One of the most touching and impressive ceremonies prescribed in the chapter on "Honors and Distinctions" of the United States Navy regulation is that which followed when a vessel of the navy, on its way up or down the Potomac River, passes Washington's tomb at Mt. Vernon.

The observance of this ceremonial, however, is limited to smaller ships, as for such only is the Potomac at this point navigable.

The dispatch boat Dolphin, the President's yachts Mayflower and Sylph, and the smaller cruisers and gunboats that occasionally visit Washington for Presidential inaugurations or similar events, observe the ceremony so strictly that it would seem through infrequent occurrence it gains in interest. When any naval vessel approaches Mt. Vernon the marine guard and the band are paraded, the ship's bell is tolled, and the colors half-masted. When opposite Washington's tomb the bugles sound "taps," the marine guard presents arms, and all officers and men stand at attention and salute.

Pretty Twin Sisters.

Hattie and Mattie Walker are the pretty twin sisters looking out from this page today. These little ladies graduated from the eighth grade of the Cathedral school at the close of the session.

Mattie has written a story for this page. Hattie's story, "How Rosalind Discovered the Wishing Stone," was published last Sunday.

These little sisters are very attractive in appearance, having great dark eyes and beautiful soft curly hair; and what is best of all, they are dear, simple, lovable "girlie" girls.

Animals That Earn Their Living.

Do the children after visiting the circus or a trained-animal show, ever afterward give a single thought to the dumb creatures who amused and delighted them with their cunning tricks and clever performances?

The number and variety of four-footed creatures on the stage or in the circus and earning good salaries for their trainers is astonishing. Lions, tigers, elephants, bears, horses, clown mules, Shetland ponies who dance the lancers in sets, acrobatic dogs, horses that do fractions, and monkeys that accomplish some feats that require almost human intelligence and ability are legion. Good animal actors are always in demand, and the salaries they command are powerful incentives for trainers to rack their brains to hit upon some new and amusing act. It is not the cleverest act that wins approval so much as the most original and amusing.

There are two universal rules among animal trainers. The first is to become familiar with the animal and to know his temperament and to make friends with him. The next thing is to make the animal understand thoroughly what it is that you want him to do and to make him do it. The animal must be made to feel that the man is his superior; then unremitting labor and infinite patience are required if a successful result is to be obtained. A judicious system of rewards and punishments is adopted by the majority of trainers, much as a school teacher punishes and rewards her charges. Choosing the right animal for the stage or circus is one of the important features, for it is only about 25 per cent. of animals that can be successfully taught to act. Several hundred horses were tried out before one was found that could be trained to the perilous act accomplished by Wotan.

Hattie and Mattie Walker.

Flag Etiquette.

Boy readers will be interested to know something of the army regulations of the United States which govern flag etiquette.

According to these regulations, the flag is raised at reveille each morning and lowered each evening at sunset, while the soldiers stand at salute and the band plays "The Star Spangled Banner."

The flag is never "left out" over night for any reason except, perhaps, one. When a fort or military post is actually under fire from the enemy, the flag may wave defiantly until hostilities are over. This was poetically exemplified in Key's immortal song, wherein one line has it, "Through the night our flag was still there!"

At all army posts, moreover, there is a special "storm" flag half as large as the regular post flag, which is flown in stormy and windy weather.

There are certain regulations which the army has adopted concerning the manner of raising or displaying the flag that are of interest to those wishing to display their flags in the proper manner. For instance, it is prescribed that the flag shall always be hoisted or lowered from the leeward side of the staff, and the halyards shall always be held by two men.

Another regulation is that on all occasions when the flag is displayed at half-mast it shall be lowered to that position from the top of the staff. It is hoisted to the top of the staff before it is finally lowered.

The army custom concerning the display of the flag on Memorial Day differs from that ordinarily followed. Stars and Stripes are raised to half-mast at sunrise and remain there till mid-day. At noon a national salute of twenty-one guns is fired and the post or regimental band plays a dirge as a memorial tribute. The flag is then hoisted to the top of the staff, where it flies until the retreat is sounded at sunset.

THE WANDERER.

ly his bag of meal, his books and staff, he began his long journey ward the Owl Mountains. Because the throngs that again gathered out him, he sought solitude in the beyond the valley of the Cimarn. There is a well-worn path on very summit of Old Baldy, about ich there gathers a legend of the rmit priest. From breast to breast story has been passed and to this they say this is the path of the patriarch as he walked to and in his devout meditations. Amidst snows of this immense altitude gustiniani lived in pious solitude unthat last tragic hour of his life in summer of 1867.

bout the base of this famous peak the trading station of the Santa Fé il. Old Baldy overlooked the vast stretching leagues of the Beaubienxwell land grant, equal to three the size of Rhode Island. In shadow of the heights, piled in wondrous beauty, stood the Max palace, where frontiersmen like Carson, Dick Wootes, Don Jesus Col. St. Vrain and ex-Gov. made their rendezvous for Along the running waters of Cimmaron, the Ponil and the Ver- Utes and Apaches roamed freedom. In full view, and the tortuous mountain passes, pi dragged immense wagon trains the way to the gold fields of the Coast. Amidst Old Baldy's were the hiding places of outlaws like Griego, Poncha, Allison, Chunk, Coal Oil Jimmy, Taylor, and scores of other wild and fierce. In the gam hells of the Cimarron fortunes made and lost in a night. Within of the hermit's home was the adobe of Kit Carson, the cele Indian scout, whose bones now at Taos under the shadows of great Indian pueblos. Thus was environed by a motley reckless citizenship. He breathed atmosphere of pioneer days, en the hardships of eternal snow, faced the constant danger of bor warfare—all because he had seen apparition of the Virgin's hand the flowers and perfume of his home. He did not dare to dis the heavenly vision.

ar the summit of Old Baldy there perennial spring whose cold and waters leap from beneath its crown. About these gushing waters there lingers the of the hermit. It is said that he first reached the summit, for a cave in which to live, almost perished from thirst. his staff he smote a rock and it sprang this beautiful stream has never ceased to flow.

ough many thousands of feet the valley, numbers sought his Augustiniani erected fourteen rude crosses, the ruins of which stand as silent mementoes of his tion and zeal. From among his ous and devout visitors he formed ociety called the Brotherhood of Holy Cross. His only exaction was pilgrimage in May and September. must ascend the peak and say ers around these crosses.

the May pilgrimage of 1867, he a farewell speech that crushed hearts of his followers. It was he revealed to them the hand of iny in his call to the land of Old ico. Before his departure he vis Father Baca of Las Cruces, who ented him with gold for his long ney. He sought meditation for night in the wilds of the Organ ntains. Taking his farewell of er Baca, he said:

ought I will be in my cave and build my last fire on the peak to you good-by. I will pray the ros and I want you to do likewise with people on the roofs of your . If you do not see the fire you know that I am dead and may tomorrow and get my books and erty."

fire was kindled on the peak that . The next day a company as the heights. Amidst the very they found the body of the good hermit stricken with many a Nav arrow.

WHAT IS PROGRESS?

WE need to stop and give serious thought to the question, What is progress? A dangerous impulse has taken possession of the minds of many. It is a strange development. The century which we have just entered has been marked in its opening years by conditions in human life much better than the average man ever enjoyed before. A wise conclusion of the human mind reached long ago in this world of change is that we should "let well enough alone." But notwithstanding the prosperity nearly all enjoyed for a good many years, people have seldom before been beset by so great a spirit of unrest. Earning higher wages than the world ever saw, making more money than the world ever knew, enjoying more of the comforts and luxuries of life than ever fell to the lot of any previous generations, the longing for change, the spirit of discontent, were never so manifest.

This reaching out for change has not been reasonable. The spirit of discontent prevented us from analyzing conditions, from weighing well proposals to try new ways, to ask whether or not the new paths were likely to lead to fields of richer promise than those it was our privilege to reap if we would. The spirit of the age is an unsound, unwholesome impulse. It is not a conclusion carefully reasoned out. The whole tone of popular clamor reveals the underlying assumption that change is necessarily progress. This impulse is driving us to new experiments which go to the deepest roots of all things, social, political and industrial. There is no gainsaying the statement that some form of socialistic thought lies at the root of nearly all this unrest. The socialism is not perceived by many who are in so great a hurry to part company with the traditions of the past, to forsake the pleasant paths in which we walk and plunge into a jungle whose only attraction is that it is a new region to us, and all the more attractive because there are no well-worn paths in it.

To reason with the studious, rooted socialist is a fruitless undertaking. He knows what he is doing. He has learned well the old paths along which civilization has made so great progress all through the past. He has taken full account of the untried, unproven country into which he is proposing to journey. But he has reasoned out to his own satisfaction the conclusion that the jungle will be a better place to live than the well-cultivated fields. He is usually a person who has garnered few harvests where he is. What he has reaped he has eaten. He has no treasures in the country he inhabits, and will leave little or nothing behind when he strikes out from the high road and betakes himself to the wilderness. He dreams rather than reasons. His mind is subject to the influence of hallucinations, and is not of the practical type which has marked the men who have led the world upward by slow degrees in the past.

But there are a great multitude of persons who do not know theoretical socialism, who are impatient of the restraints of conservative reason, and quite ready to run away into the wilderness after any new voice that comes crying: "Woe, woe to the world as it is." Every man who proposes a new path for men to follow, whether in politics, religion, sociology or industrial affairs, naturally asserts that his way leads to better things. The dangerous thing about the temper of so many of us at this time is that we are too ready to take the new prophet at his word. When he calls change progress we do not make him tell us what lies at the end of the road. He says his way is a new one, that it leads to new fields in thought or enterprise, and away we rush after him. We do not ask him how far he has fared along the road he invites us to walk in, or what he found there. We neglect all details. It is a new thing. We know there are defects in the old way. That is a matter of experience. We have been caught in the ruts, we have bumped over the uneven places, we have been mired in frequent quagmires. The fallacy underlying the impulse of the day which confuses change with betterment, movement with progress, is that we dream there are perfect conditions to be found in life, that there is a road where no ruts are found, no inequalities, no mud holes. We dream there is a religion on earth where skies are always blue, where storms never fall, where there is no heat, no cold, but where the primeval paradise may be found again, and the tree that bears fruit each month of the year, without the aid of plowshare or hoe, and without the toil of putting in the scythe.

And as there is nothing to be gained by slinging syllogisms at the socialist, there is as little result to come from reasoning with the New Lights. In their own mind they know it all. They have closed their eyes, and inspiration has fallen into their souls as a parent bird drops food into the open mouth of its young. The slow, weary business of reading, studying, thinking, working out problems, is beneath them. Better accept Henry George as a heaven-sent teacher, or Bellamy as a reincarnation, and swallow all they say. It is so easy and so comfortable to think of a condition of life where industry, frugality, care and providence will not bother us; where competition will be "cut out" and the snail will be as swift as the hare, the mollusk as strong as the lion, the goose as intelligent as the dog or the horse, and where stupidity will write Hamlets just as well as genius ever did the work.

The world is going through a period in which the mumps, measles, chicken pox or some similar juvenile ailment is rampant, and we shall have to wait until the epidemic has worn itself out.

The calf followed the steer and lost his mother. He found out his mistake when supper time came.

MORE HORSES IN PARIS.

While New York and London are talking about the displacement of horses in the city streets and the possibility of their final disappearance from the cities through the growing use of electricity and of automobiles, the number of horses used in Paris grows at a rapid rate.

The latest enumeration of the vehicles circulating in the French capital shows an increase in horse drawn carriages for public hire alone of 33 1-3 per cent., in eight years. In seventeen years omnibuses and street cars have increased almost two and a half times in number.

There are now 16,000 carriages for public hire drawn by horses, as against 12,000 in 1900, and the omnibuses and street cars have increased from 845 in 1891 to 2000.

Private carriages drawn by horses number 9000, merchant wagons 18,700, trucks 40,000, carriages and wagons of the municipality 1800.

Of automobiles in Paris there are 12,000 in private ownership, and there are 2250 automobiles for public hire.—[New York Sun.

THE POPPIES.

Blazing red poppies crimson as blood,
  Bloomed near a dull gray stone,
  And, oh, I felt that the gaudy flowers
  With their crimson flagrant tone
Would be less red, less flauntingly gay,
  If they bloomed in a place alone.

And I knew that Sin, that blood-red bloom,
  That springs to life in a night,
Would seem less red, less flauntingly gay
  And not such a brilliant sight
If Virtue's gray didn't seem so sweet
  Against Sin's blood-red light.

BESS MARJORY MUNN.

THOUGHTS ON RELIGION.

By a Layman.

EMANCIPATION.—In Ibsen's play "Rosmersholm," which was recently so ably presented in Los Angeles by Mrs. Fiske and her talented company, the word "emancipated" is made use of many times, in the intellectually brilliant dialogues, which are so suggestive and insistent as to cause one to forget the great lack of action and dramatic situations in the play itself.

The play carries with it no cheering message to humanity and will therefore never become popular.

The word "emancipated" is made use of in connection with the wave of liberal thinking which is sweeping over the little town near which the scene of the tragedy of "advanced ideas" is laid. Ibsen seems to hold the same narrow views about emancipation as we continually find among some "New Thought" and other so-called "progressive thinking" clubs in this day of mental unrest.

The spiritual essence of the word emancipation has a greater significance and a far more reaching effect than when used, as ordinarily, in connection with freedom from religious and social conventionalities. The great trouble with a good many so-called "free thinkers" is that when they reach a certain stage of development, and when the mental pendulum swings forward, they are apt to be carried away with the force of the swing and lose their balance and their bearings. In their mad scramble to regain that poise, which should come with enlightened knowledge, they say and do many things, in direct violence to their own sane normal convictions, which gives the dogmatic conservative element a good opportunity to wisely shake their heads, and hold up their hands in holy horror of being contaminated with any new ideas not in harmony with the traditions and legends of the past.

The persons who have been truly awakened to the knowledge of spiritual consciousness will not be heard of in the affinity divorce courts, or other courts, looking for justice; and they will not be heard proclaiming on the housetops their claims to self-glorification. They will not become money mad, and they will not herald their entrance into the financial and social arena with loud trumpets, and shouts of that much lately magazine-vaunted word, "success."

They will have a much higher appreciation of what success really means, and they will know and understand that it is not always experienced through the accumulation of dollars and cents, no matter how honestly they have been acquired. As they continue to grow in spiritual knowledge they will more fully appreciate that this world of skillful egotism and active ambitions is a world revolting to the proud and upright soul; but they will further know and understand that it is their business to learn to live in it, as it is a world of men, and all these struggling men are their brothers who will also some time awaken to the necessity of developing the best within them. When they do, they will have developed to an appreciation of the First and Great Commandment.

"Master, which is the great commandment in the law?" Jesus said unto him:

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets."—[Matt. 22:36-40.

The McKinley Moose.

During President McKinley's administration a party of government employés were establishing telegraphic communication from Valdez, Alaska, to points inland. Owing to the remoteness of the new, untamed country, supplies were hard to obtain, and the party, wisely or unwisely, conceived the idea of transporting an ordinary milch cow, which was to accompany them en route. About every twenty-five or thirty miles there was a station, and during the progress of the work the cow traveled with the men up and down the line.

The Siwash Indians had never seen such an extraordinary creature, the nearest approach to it being their native cow-moose. They gathered from far and near, and asked all manner of questions in regard to this strange and wonderful animal. "Where you come from? Who your chief?" were the first questions.

"McKinley is our chief," was the answer.

The Indians, conceiving that McKinley owned all things, departed to tell their brothers and sisters and grandmothers, who in turn came to see the remarkable cow—the "McKinley moose" they named it. The white man took it up, so the name has come to stay, and a cow is no longer a cow in Alaska. In sections it is somewhat of a curiosity yet, for when the winter snows are ten feet on the level, and hay retails as high as $500 a ton, few can afford to keep a "McKinley moose."

K. R.

Rather a "Josh."

Hildegarde Hetherington, the editor of the "List o' Lovers" column, sneered.

"Here is somebody trying to get gay," she said to the book reviewer. "Trying to kid my column. Listen to his dope:

"Dear List o' Lovers: I am a farmer of 57 years, five feet three, inclined to embonpoint, and am considered very good-looking. I have two pigs, and as I am running short of bacon, I want to kill one of them for salting, but as I love both of them dearly, I don't know which to destroy. One is blue-eyed and fair, a pretty and gentle little darling, answering to the name of Lillian. The other, Enid, is reserved and stately, black-haired, with proud black eyes, but of a very upright and generous disposition. Having lost both my father and mother, I wish you to tell me which pig will make the best bacon for me.—Ronald A."

GROWING COTTON.

A LAND WHICH SUPPLIES WORKMEN FOR THE RAND MINES.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BAMBOO CREEK (Portuguese East Africa.)—Away out here in the jungle, in the miasmatic lowlands back of the Indian Ocean, about 2000 miles northeast of Cape Town, in the heart of Portuguese Africa, I find an American managing a cotton plantation. He is employed by the Rhodesia Company, and he has set out a tract of about 500 acres along the line of the railroad, which runs from Beira to Bulawayo. His work is entirely experimental. The company owns three miles on each side its tracks, and it hopes to develop a great cotton industry in the Portuguese possessions.

The cotton is now two months old and it is already knee-high. The plants look thrifty, and the fields are as clean as a garden. They are watched day and night to keep out the rhinoceroses and hippopotami, and during the rainy season one has to be careful how he wades through the rows for fear of losing a leg to a hungry crocodile.

I have had a long talk with the manager. His name is Stillson, and he comes from Meridian, Miss. He tells me that one of the chief dangers is from the wild beasts. The country has many lions, and his men killed a young leopard the other day. The leopard was asleep, and they sneaked up on him and sunk their mattocks into his brain. Mr. Stillson says that the tracks the hippopotami make are each as big around as a dinner plate, and that if they get into the fields they ruin the plants.

Cotton in South Africa.

I talked with this man as to the prospects of raising cotton in this part of the world. He tells me that there is a vast deal of available land, both in this region and farther south. Some cotton has been grown on the Maputo River, not far from Lourenco Marques, and experiments are being made in other parts of Portuguese East Africa. The cotton raised here at Bamboo Creek has a longer fiber than that from the same seed when grown in America. Mr. Stillson is experimenting with our cotton and with Egyptian cotton. He uses a steam plow to break up the ground, and then runs American cultivators over it. The cotton that is now grown here was planted last December, and the first picking took place in May. The plants ripen at different times and the Egyptian cotton later than the American cotton. The picking season continues throughout the summer.

I understand that the Mozambique Company, which controls this great territory, has sold 5000 acres of land to a syndicate in the province of Mozambique, and that this syndicate intends to raise cotton upon it. The land is to be irrigated and tramways are already being built on the plantation. Steam and motor plows are to be imported and the estate will have the most up-to-date of labor-saving appliances.

An Odd Contract-Labor System.

During my talk with Mr. Stillson, I asked him some questions as to the men who work his plantation. Said he:

"We use the negroes, and hire them through the Mozambique Company. This company has control of the natives and they are forced to do as it says. We are now paying about $3.30 per month for a good man. We hand this over to the company, and it allows the man $3 and takes the 30 cents as its commission. That is the way all labor is furnished here. We have now 150 men in the fields, and we get them all from the company. If a man shirks or refuses to work, we send him to the military commandant for punishment, and if he will not work after that he is put in jail and another man is sent in his place."

"What punishments are used in such cases?"

"The most common one is slapping the man on the hand with a web strap, which sucks up the skin. The suction is like that of a piece of leather pressed against a flat stone. It is very painful, but it does not usually lay a man up for more than a day or so at a time."

"What hours do your men work?"

"From sunrise to sunset. They work hard, and I should say they are as good hands in the cotton fields as our negroes at home. They are much like our negroes, but they are on the whole better formed and, if anything, more muscular."

Portuguese Natives for African Mines.

Portuguese East Africa is now one of the chief sources of the labor supply of the mines of the Transvaal. Before the Chinese were imported four-fifths of the negro workmen were brought in from the outside, and mostly from this region. The miners paid about $3 a head to the Portuguese authorities. Within the past year it has been decided that the Chinese must be sent back home as soon as can be, and a large number of natives will be required to take their places. There are white labor contractors now going through Portuguese East Africa and British Central Africa looking up men to work in the gold mines.

We took a great gang of such laborers on the ship at Chinde, the chief port for Nyassaland, as we came down the coast to Beira. The landing there is rough. We anchored far outside the bar and the negroes were brought to the ship in a steam launch and loaded by means of a great basket. This basket was about as large around as a hogshead and about ten feet in height. There was a door at one side. The negroes, to the number of a dozen at a time, stepped into this. The door was closed and then the basket, negroes and all, was raised by means of a derrick to our steamer. The human freight howled out in unison as it rose, and the men thought they were killed when the basket came down with a thud on the deck.

During our stay we took about two score such basketfuls of ebony humanity, making something like 200 negroes in all. I was told that the men would be tak Delagoa Bay, and thence shipped in by railroad to mines of the Rand. They are employed on short-time contracts, and as a rule serve only a few months, when they are anxious to go back home. The Chinese came on three years' contracts, with the privilege of extending them to six years. They have made much better laborers than the native Africans, who, as a rule, wish stop labor as soon as they have accumulated money to buy an extra wife or so who can support at home.

A Night at Bamboo Creek.

I stopped at Bamboo Creek on account of a wash on the railroad going into Rhodesia. I had traveled day from Beira, on the Indian Ocean, passing through lands largely covered with water. It had been rain for a week or so, and the country was flooded. of the bridges have been swept away and the road unsafe that the engineers do not dare to go over night. The result is that our party is landed here wilds. There is no town excepting a hotel and this ton plantation. The hotel is a tin shanty of one with a bar-room in front, a dining-room at the side a kitchen in the rear. The barroom is filled with mentos of big-game hunting. The huge skull of a popotamus lies on one end of the counter, and there lion skulls and leopard skulls among the whisky brandy bottles at the rear. At one end of the room is a stuffed zebra with a stuffed leopard on top of him, and about the walls are the heads and horns of a dozen different kinds of antelopes. The bartender sells hippopotamus-hide whips and canes at extravagant prices, and he offers to lend me his rifle if I care to shoot big game. He says there are no end of rhinos and hippos near by, and that a lion can be found almost any night by going within a few miles of the hotel. I have not yet decided to go.

"Sweet Marie" in Black Africa.

We were a curious party as we came into the hotel for dinner, and our entertainment was interesting. In the first place we had the chief engineer of the Rhodesia Railways, and with him a nephew of Lord Roberts, who is also a civil engineer. We had another railroad official, who has charge of a line away up the Zambesi in British Centrol Africa, and the American cotton planter of whom I have already spoken. Among the other travelers are a millionaire Wall-street broker, who is making a pleasure tour of Africa, an English commercial traveler, and a South African miner on his way to the Transvaal. We soon got acquainted, and after dinner we had a little entertainment in the tin shack, away out here in the wilds. The chief engineer played the organ and gave quite a concert, including among his selections a number of American songs. One of the best of these was "Sweet Marie," which was written by Cy Warman when he was the engineer on a railroad near Denver. The song was composed by one engineer in the wilds of the Rockies, and now, far off here in the wilds of Africa, it was sung for us by another engineer.

After the songs we had big-game stories, including those of lion hunts, elephant hunts and struggles with hippos and rhinos. Among these was a surprising tale about a crocodile which the Central African engineer had recently shot. He said the reptile was an old one, and that it had evidently been a great man-eater, for he had found forty eight native bracelets and anklets in its stomach. His presumption was that the crocodile had eaten forty-eight negroes so ornamented, to say nothing of numerous others who had left off their jewelry when they went to bathe.

Portuguese East Africa.

This is my first taste of Portuguese East Africa. I saw the country first at Chinde and sailed for miles along the coast before I came to Beira. The territory is enormous. It extends along the borders of the Indian Ocean for as far as from New York to Omaha and at the north goes inland as far as from Washington to Boston. It is larger than Texas and it would make considerably more than six States the size of Ohio, Kentucky or Virginia. Its native population is estimated at two or three millions, but no accurate census has been taken; and, although the Portuguese have owned the country for more than 300 years, they know almost nothing about it. The greater part of it, as I have said, has been leased to the Mozambique Company and another part to the company of the Zambesi. Beira belongs to the Mozambique Company and that company fixes the taxes and pays Portugal for the privilege of exploiting the town. It runs the postoffice and sells its own postage stamps.

The Prazzo System.

It farms out the natives and makes them pay taxes, which in some cases they work out by giving their labor to foreigners. This is known as the prazzo system. The country is divided up into districts known as prazzos. These are put up at auction, the successful bidder having the right to collect the taxes of his prazzo for a term of three years. He is allowed to levy a tax of so much on each native and he must pay that amount in cash or work. The contractor has also the right to force the people to do a certain amount on the public roads and on house building for the officials. He has also other rights which make the system little more than a legalized slavery. The taxes are often paid in goods, and the value of their work is measured by American or English cotton cloth, the price of which can be regulated largely by the collector. A part of the labor is the hunting of elephants and the gathering of rubber, both of which are exceedingly profitable. I am told that the abuses of such men, in the faraway districts, are terrible, and that the people have comparatively few rights that the tax collectors are bound to respect. It is said that slavery is still common in some regions, although it is not recognized by the government and is contrary to law. The conditions are not as bad as in Portuguese West Africa, where slaves are still bought and sold, but they are bad enough.

Mozambique a Back Number.

The cities of Portuguese East Africa are changing. It used to be that Mozambique was by far the most important. Situated on a little island, in the wide channel between Africa and Madagascar, it was for years one of the great ports of the continent. It was a center of the slave trade, and the residence of the chief Portuguese officials. The country has two capitals, one at Mozambique at the north and the other at Lourenco Marques in the south. Mozambique is still the headquarters of the Mozambique Company, and its operations are conducted from there. Lourenco Marques is the chief commercial center, and, with its magnificent harbor and its short railroad to the gold fields, it is fast becoming one of the most important cities on the east coast of Africa.

Mozambique lies on a little island only a quarter of a mile wide and not more than a mile long. It is close to the mainland, and canoes are always moving back and forth carrying food and supplies. The island is covered with houses. It has clean sidewalks paved with cement, and its roadways are macadamized.

It has a fort and public buildings, but now the streets are practically deserted. Many of the good houses are vacant, and others have been turned into the homes of Indians and petty trading stores. The bazaars in which the slaves were exposed for sale have passed away and the town is practically dead.

The city of Beira is not as prosperous as it has been in the past. Its population has fallen off since the Boer War, and it now has 600 or 700 whites, about 1500 negroes and a considerable number of East Indians. It is a town of banks, stores and hotels. It has a street-car line, but the cars are little four-wheeled affairs, each large enough to hold but two persons, and they are pushed over the tracks by negroes, who run along behind.

Lourenco Marques.

Lourenco Marques, on the other hand, is rapidly growing. It is lighted by electricity, and there are lines of electric tramways which connect its various sections. It has a new postoffice, a new railway station and many new buildings. The great marsh at the back of the city has been drained and the mosquito plague is practically wiped out. The town is rapidly becoming the chief port for the Transvaal, and it is where our American goods for that region are now landed.

The city has one of the best harbors on the African continent. It is known as Delagoa Bay. It is twenty-eight miles long and about fourteen miles wide, and it reminds one of Manila Bay in its extent. Indeed, it could contain at one time all the ships which come to Africa and have room to spare.

Lourenco Marques began to grow when the railroad connecting it with Johannesberg was built. This was about thirteen years ago, and its progress has been steady from then until now. It is by far the nearest route from the sea to the gold fields. The distance from Johannesberg is only 394 miles, while from Durban, the chief port of Natal farther south, it is 483 miles, and from Cape Town more than 1000 miles. The Portuguese government has been doing much to improve the harbor. They have built a quay almost half a mile long and have equipped it with all modern conveniences for loading and unloading vessels. They have built great warehouses and have also constructed a dry dock and other marine works.

To Get to the Mountains.

WHERE TRAILS IN SAN GABRIEL FOREST ARE TO BE FOUND.

By a Special Contributor.

NOW THAT summer is here and the natural desire to seek recreation and health in the mountains becomes almost irresistible, the thought comes to the would-be camper, where shall I go and how shall I reach there? The first question must be decided by the inquirer himself, while it is the purpose of this article to help decide the second. In Southern California one does not have to go far before reaching the mountains, and though a casual glance toward the mountains would seem to show innumerable points where they might be penetrated, many a traveler has found, to his painful surprise, difficulties besetting the path of one attempting to push through the scrubby chaparral which abounds everywhere without a beaten path before him.

As is well known, our mountain ranges are all embraced within national forests, and in the administration of our local reserves the first work sought to be accomplished was the construction of a system of trails, rendering all portions of the mountains accessible in the least possible time. This was absolutely necessary on account of the danger from forest fires which might arise, and in the fighting of which time plays an important part. With a permanent force of thirty-five rangers on the San Gabriel and San Bernardino forests, whose efforts were supplemented by large contributions for extra labor made by the County Supervisors, water companies and others, wonderful progress has been made in the construction of a network of trails leading from the valleys into the remotest portions of the mountains. The construction of these trails not only serves the purpose intended in the plan for forest fire control, but opens up the mountains to the thousands of people in our valleys who might desire to spend a day, a week or a month in the mountains. Summer resorts are scattered everywhere in the hills, and many of the resorts are directly reached by these government trails, not only rendering them more easily accessible, but opening up numerous avenues of exploration to their guests.

Below is given a short description of the principal government trails now constructed on the San Gabriel forest showing where they begin and where they lead.

Probably the prettiest way of entering the mountains from Los Angeles or vicinity is through the Arroyo Seco. From the mouth of this cañon, near Altadena, up many miles of its devious way, a wagon road leads one through as beautiful a scene as can be found in the hills. The running stream, the trees, the flowers, the precipitous sides of the cañon, all form a constantly changing picture, while the quiet which surrounds one, lulls the tired, overworked nerves to rest. When the way becomes too rough to permit the use of vehicles, a well-defined trail leads onward and upward across the mountains, and down to the flat on which Switzer's Camp is located. Passing through Switzer's Camp, the trail crosses the divide and drops down into the West Fork of the San Gabriel River.

The Mount Lowe trail starts just below Rubio Cañon, and ascends on the east side of that cañon to Alpine Tavern, and thence to the top of Mount Lowe. This spring a government trail was constructed, commencing at a point near the end of the old trail leading to the summit of Mount Lowe, thence running to the north through the saddle west of San Gabriel Peak, onto the divide between the Arroyo Seco and the West Fork. This new trail not only shortens the distance from the valley to the West Fork, but enables visitors to Switzer's Camp to reach that resort by two different routes, either over this trail or up through the Arroyo Seco. This trail also connects with the trails leading down the West Fork, to Barley Flats and to Pine Flats.

The Sturtevant trail, commencing at Sierra Madre and running up Santa Anita Cañon into the West Fork of the San Gabriel River, extends for a distance of about fifteen miles and is one of the most important trails in this section of the mountains. Although this route has been used for many years by travelers, the trail was not put in good condition until last winter About half way up the trail is located Sturtevant's Camp, from which point another trail leads up to Mount Wilson. Several other resorts are located along the same route. Eventually this trail will be extended through the mountains to the desert side.

What is known as the Monrovia trail starts at Monrovia, leads up Monrovia Cañon into the head of Fish Cañon, thence to Pine Mountain, where it connects with the trail to Rincon, one of the resorts in the San Gabriel Cañon. By the completion of this trail one of the most attractive and popular portions of the mountains has been rendered easily accessible from Monrovia, and in conjunction with the Rincon trail, a loop has been formed allowing travelers to go from Monrovia to Azusa over a first-class trail.

The Roberts Cañon trail starts at the mouth of the San Gabriel Cañon, runs up the east side of Roberts Cañon to the ridge, thence along the ridge to the head of Water Cañon, thence to the divide between the Fish Cañon watershed and the San Gabriel watershed. Where the Monrovia trail joins, it goes over onto the north side, around the head of the cañon, and follows down on the east side of that cañon to Rincon.

The Big Dalton trail starts at the mouth of Bell Cañon, thence follows up the ridge between Bell and Wolf cañons, and around the head of Bell Cañon to connect with the trail from the West Fork of the San Dimas, thence along the ridge to the head of Stanchfield trail, which latter trail drops down to the mouth of Cattle Cañon.

The Woods trail starts between the Big and Little Dalton Cañons, and runs in a northerly direction along the ridge and drops down to the eastern branch of the San Gabriel at its junction with Horse Cañon.

The Whitcomb trail is a short trail leading from Glendora to the top of the hill, where it connects with several other trails leading in various directions.

The Live Oak Cañon trail runs up as far as the divide east of San Dimas Cañon, thence across Wolfskill Cañon and up to Brown's Flat. About two miles this side of Brown's Flat, another trail branches off and runs to the divide between Evey and Palmer cañons, while one trail runs down Evey Cañon to the mouth of San Antonio Cañon. Another trail follows Palmer Cañon to its mouth.

San Antonio Cañon has a fine wagon road running up as far as the power-house, and from where the road leaves off a trail leads up to the summit of old Baldy.

The Keenbrook trail starts at the ranger's headquarters in Lytle Creek, below the hot springs, and runs over the ridge to the east, dropping down on the Cajon side below Keenbrook station.

The Cable Cañon trail starts on the west side of the cañon, thence follows a northerly direction to the head of Sugar Pine Cañon, and drops down on the north side into the west fork of the Mohave. Another part of the trail runs over the ridge to the east, and comes in about the head of Sawpit Cañon, between Sawpit and Devil cañons.

ARTHUR L. DAHL.

THE TASTE FOR RED.

"We are all of us more or less creatures of habit," remarked Senator H. D. Money of Mississippi, "and there is no accounting for tastes. For instance, I observed while on a cruise through the West Indies, that the natives of those islands insisted upon having red butter. All butter that is shipped to the West Indies must be colored a bright red. Red cravats, red coats and bright raiment of all kinds, find favor in the eyes of the natives of the West Indies. Our failure to recognize the whims and peculiarities of the natives of Central and South America and cater to them is the chief reason in my opinion why our trade in that section of the world has been of such slow growth. Our attitude for many years toward our neighbors to the south of us has been one of superiority; we would teach them what was proper for them to eat, wear, etc. Naturally they resented it. I am glad to say that of late our business men have taken a tumble to themselves, so to speak, and are trying seriously to compete for the South American trade by catering to the wishes and prejudices of the inhabitants.

"We have peculiarities of our own," Senator Money added. "Dealers tell me that very few canned tomatoes would be sold if they bore white instead of red labels. We demand red labels on our tomato cans! Here is another case in point: I am satisfied that the richest circus combination in the world would soon go into bankruptcy if it would attempt to abolish red lemonade!"

Among the Head Hunters. By H. Wilfrid Walker, F.R.G.S.

DYAKS VISITED.

HORRIBLE PRACTICES OF NATIVES OF SARAWAK, BORNEO.

I HAD spent about seven months in the forests of British North Borneo, going many days' journey into the heart of the country, had made fine natural-history collections and had come across a great deal of game, including elephant, rhinoceros, bear, tembadu or wild cattle, huge wild boars and deer of three species being especially plentiful. But above all I had come across a great many orang utans (Malay for jungle man) and had been able to make an exhaustive study of their habits. One of these great apes has the strength of eight men and possesses an extraordinary amount of vitality. One that I shot lived for nearly three hours with five soft-nosed Mauser bullets in its body.

A young Dyak.

But I had not yet seen the real jungle man in his native haunts—the head-hunting Dyak, as the Dyaks are rarely to be found in North Borneo, the people on the Kinabatangan River, where I spent most of my time, being a species of Malay termed orang sungei (river people.) So, as I was anxious to see the real head-hunting Dyak, I determined to go to Sarawak, which is in quite a different part of Borneo. To do this, I had to return to Singapore and from thence after a two days' voyage I found myself at Kuching, the capital of Sarawak. Except for a Chinese towkey I was the only saloon passenger, as strangers rarely visit this country.

Picturesque Kuching.

Kuching is about twenty-five miles up the Sarawak River, and contains about 30,000 inhabitants, chiefly Malays and Chinese with about fifty Europeans who are for the most part government officials or belong to the Borneo Company, Limited. This company is very wealthy and owns the only steamship line, plying between Singapore and Kuching. It has several gold mines and a great quantity of land planted to pepper, gambier, gutta percha and rubber. The Rajah will not allow any other company or private individual to buy lands or open up an estate, neither will he allow any traders in the country.

It would be difficult to imagine a more picturesque town than Kuching. It chiefly consists of substantial Chinese dwellings of brick and plaster, with beautiful tile work of quaint figures, while temples glittering with gold peep out of thick luxuriant tropical growth. Two miles out of the city and you can soon lose yourself in a dense tropical forest of the greatest beauty, and in the background is a chain of mountains, some of them of extraordinary shape. The reigning monarch or Rajah is an Englishman, Sir Charles Brooke, a nephew of Sir James Brooke, the first Rajah, who was an officer in the British navy and who after conquering the Malay pirates was made Rajah of the country by the grateful Dyaks.

An Independent Rajah.

Though Sarawak is supposed to be under British protection, and though all his officials are Britishers, Rajah Brooke considers his country independent and will not allow a union jack to be flown in his dominions. He possesses his own flag, a mixture of red, black and yellow, and his own national anthem, and his officials refer to him as the King, and to his son and heir to the throne, the Rajah Muda, as the young King.

Two days after my arrival, the Rajah left on his steam yacht for England, but the day before he left, he held a great reception at his castle, or astana, as it is called in Malay. It was attended by all his officials, high Malay chiefs and the chief Chinese merchants. The reins of government were formally handed over to his son, the Rajah Muda, after which champagne was passed round. The chief resident, Sir Percy Cunninghame, then introduced me to the Rajah. He is a fine-looking old man with a white mustache and white hair, and is greatly beloved by every one. He conversed with me for some time, and asked me many questions about the Chartered Company in British North Boreno. It was rather embarrassing for me, with every one silently and respectfully standing around listening to every word. He wished me success in my travels in the interior and told his officials to do all in their power to help me. When you talk about the Rajah you speak about "His Highness," but when you address him, you simply say "Rajah" every few words—"Yes, Rajah," or "No, Rajah." The native chiefs, I noticed, kissed the hands of both the Rajah and the Rajah Muda.

At Kuching.

There is no hotel in Kuching, so I put up at the rather dilapidated government Rest House, which I had to myself. The club in Kuching seems a most popular institution with all the officials, and gin pahits the popular drink of this part of the world; billiards and pool help to pass many a pleasant evening, the Rajah often joining us at a game of black pool like any ordinary mortal.

The Rajah's troops, the Rangers, are a fine body of men; they are chiefly recruited from the Malays and Dyaks, and have an English sergeant to drill them. I was told that when they go fighting the wild head-hunter, they are allowed to bring in the heads of those they kill, as trophies in the same way as the Dyaks themselves do. The method of execution here is the same as in other Malay countries, the criminal being taken down to the banks of the river, where a long kris is thrust down through the shoulder into the heart and is then twisted about till the man is dead.

After a visit to Bau, further up the Sarawak River, where I was the guest of the Borneo Company, where they have a gold mine, the clay being treated by the cyanide process.

I collected specimens for some time in the beautiful forests at the foot of the limestone mountains of Bau. Here I saw something of the Land Dyaks, but they are a poor degenerate breed of Dyak and not to be compared to the Sea Dyaks, who are born fighters and whose predatory head-hunting instincts give a great deal of trouble to the government. These were the Dyaks I was anxious to meet, and I soon made arrangements to visit their country, which is a good way from Kuching, as the real Sea Dyak rarely visits the capital.

So one morning early found me with my two servants, a Chinese cook and a civilized Dyak named D on board a government paddle-wheel steamer which was bound for Sibu, on the Rejang River. Twenty-five miles down the Sarawak River brought us to the sea. We did not skirt the coast, but cut across a large open sea for about ninety miles. We then came to the mouth of the Rejang River, and went up one of its many mouths, which was of great width, but the scenery on the way was monotonous, nothing but mangroves, pandanus, the feathery Nipa palm and the tall, slender bong palm with here and there a crocodile lying on the mud banks—a dismal scene.

At nightfall we anchored a short way up the river, as the government will not allow their boats to travel

The Fort at Sibu.

There is a fort in Sibu, as indeed there is at most of the river places in Sarawak. It is generally a square-shaped wooden building perforated all round with small holes for rifles, and just below the roof is a slanting grill work through which it is easy to shoot, but being on the slant, it is hard for spears to enter from the outside. There are one or two cannon in most of these forts. The fort at Sibu was close to Dr. Hose's house and was attacked by Dyaks only a few years ago. Johnson, one of Dr. Hose's assistants, showed me a very long Dyak canoe capable of seating over 100 men. It was made of one tree, but large as it was, it did not equal some of the Kaian canoes on this river, one of which was 145 feet in length. This Dyak canoe was literally perforated with bullets, and Johnson told me that a few weeks ago he was fighting some Dyaks on the Kanowit, a branch river near here, when he was attacked by some Dyaks in this canoe, and as they came up throwing spears he told his men to fire, with the result that eighteen Dyaks were killed. The river at Sibu was of great width, over a mile across, in fact, and close to the bank is a Malay village and a bazaar where the wily Chinaman does a thriving business in the wild produce of the country and makes huge profits out of the Dyaks and other natives on this river, but the Dyaks often have their revenge and attack the Chinamen with great slaughter with the result that they take home with them many of yellow-skinned heads with nice long pigtails to hang them up by. During my stay on this river there were two or three cases of Chinamen being slaughtered by the Dyaks, and if it were not for the forts on these rivers, every Chinaman would be wiped out of existence.

The Sea Dyak.

My first real acquaintance with the Sea Dyak was in the bazaar at Sibu, and I was by no means disappointed in my first impressions, as I found him a most picturesque and interesting individual. The men usually have long black hair hanging down their backs, and often a long fringe on their foreheads. Their skin is brown, they have snub noses and resolute eyes, and are of fine proportions, but they rarely exceed 5 feet [illegible] in height. Beyond the "jawat," a long piece of cloth which hangs down between their legs, they wear nothing, if I except their many and varied ornaments. They wear a great variety of earrings. These are often made of heavy bits of brass, which draw the lobes of the ears down below the shoulder. When they go on the warpath they generally wear war coats made from the skins of various wild animals, and these are often used as a protection from the small poisonous darts of the sumpitan or blow pipe which, together with the parang (a curious sort of knife,) and long spears with steel points constitute their chief weapons. They have large shields of light wood often fantastically carved in curious patterns or ornamented with human hair.

After Head-Hunters.

I had been at Sibu only three or four days, when word was brought down to Dr. Hose that the Ulu Ai Dyaks, just above Kapit, about 100 miles up the river, had attacked and killed a party of Punans for the sake of their heads. These Punans are a nomadic tribe who wander through the great forests with no settled dwelling-place, but build themselves rough huts and hunt the game of the forest and feed on the many wild fruits that are found in these forests. Hose at once decided to go up to Fort Kapit and punish these Dyaks, and gave me leave to accompany him. So one morning at [illegible] we boarded a large steam launch with a party of the Rangers, as the Rajah's troops are named. We also took several friendly Dyaks from around Sibu, who were armed to the teeth with spears, parangs, sumpitans, shields and war ornaments, all highly elated at the prospects of the fighting in store for them.

Picturesque Scenes.

In a short account like this, it of course is impossible to describe the many interesting things that I saw on my journey up the river. We passed many of the long, low Dyak houses and plenty of canoes full of these picturesque people, and at some of the villages little children hurriedly pushed out small canoes from the shore so as to get rocked by the waves made by our launch. This they seemed to enjoy, to judge from the wild yells they gave forth. I several times saw a very ingenious invention for frightening away the birds and monkeys from the large fruit trees which surround every Dyak village. At one end of a large rattan was a sort of wooden rattle fixed on the top of one of the largest fruit trees. The other end of the rattan was fastened to a slender bamboo stick which was put into the river, and the action of the stream caused the bamboo to sway to and fro, thus jerking the rattan which in turn set the rattle going. We passed several houses built on the tops of large tree stumps. These, Dr. Hose informed me, were built by Kanowits, a tribe of people known as Kelamantans. These Kelamantans are supposed to be the oldest residents of Borneo, living here long before the Dyaks and Kaians, but are fast dying out. They were once ferocious head hunters, but now they are a very inoffensive people.

Chinese and Malay Settlement.

At midday we stopped at the village of Kanowit, at the mouth of the river of that name. This village, like Sibu, is composed entirely of Chinese and Malays. They are all traders and do a thriving business with the Dyaks and other natives. Here also was a fort with its cannon, with a Dyak or Malay sergeant and a dozen men in charge. As we proceeded up river, the scenery became rather monotonous. There was little tall forest, the country being either cleared for planting padi (rice) or in secondary forest growth or jungle, a sure sign of a thick population. We saw many Dyaks burning the felled jungle for planting their padi, and the air was full of ashes and smoke, which obscured the rays of the sun and cast a reddish glare on the surrounding country.

Head-Hunters Captured.

Toward evening we reached the village of Song and stayed here all night, fastening our launch to the bank. In spite of the fort here, we learned that the Chinamen were in great fear of an attack by the Dyaks, which they daily expected. Leaving Song at 5:30 the next morning, we arrived at Kapit about 10 a.m. and put up at the fort, which was a large one. A long, narrow platform from the top of the fort led to a larger platform on which there was a large cannon overlooking the river, and it could be turned round so as to cover all the approaches from the river in case there was an attack on the fort. We learned that the day before we arrived at Kapit, Mingo, the Portuguese in charge of the fort, had captured the worst ringleader of the head-hunters in the bazaar at Kapit, and small parties of loyal Dyaks were at once sent off to the homes of the other head-hunters with strict injunctions to bring back the guilty ones, and, failing persuasion and threats, to attack them. In most cases they were successful, and I saw many of the prisoners brought in, together with some of the heads of their victims.

Horrifying Heads Inspected.

The next morning, Hose suddenly called out to me that if I wished to inspect the heads I would find them hanging up under the cannon platform by the river, and he sent a Dyak to undo the wrappings of native cloth and mats in which they were done up. They were a sickening sight, and all the horrors of head-hunting were brought before one with vivid and startling reality far more than any writer could do, and one pictured those same heads full of life only a few days before, and then suddenly a rush from the outside amid the unprepared Punans in their rude huts in the depths of the forest, a woman's scream of terror, followed by the sickening sound of hacking blows from the sharp Dyak parangs, and the Dyak war cry, "Hoo-hah! hoo-hah!" rings through the night air as every single Punan, man, woman and child, who has not had time to escape is cut down in cold blood, and when all are dead the proud Dyaks proceed to hack off the heads of their victims and bind them round with rattan strings with which to carry them, and, returning home in triumph, are hailed with shouts of delight by their envious fellow-villagers, for this means wives, as a Dyak maiden thinks as much of heads as an American girl would of jewelry. The old Dyak who undid the wrappings pretended to be horrified, but I felt sure that the old hypocrite wished that he owned them himself.

Women the Cause of Head-Hunting.

The brass-encircled young Dyak women are generally the cause of these head-hunters, as they often refuse to marry a man unless he has one or more heads, and in many cases a man is absolutely driven to get a head if he wishes to marry. The heads are handed down from father to son, and the rank of a Dyak is generally determined by the number of heads he or his ancestors have collected. A Dyak goes on the warpath more for the sake of the heads he may get than for the honor and glory of the fighting. As a rule, though, there is precious little fighting, as the Dyak attacks only when his victims are unprepared.

A Young Lover's Revenge.

While I was in Borneo I heard the following story of Dyak barbarity which is a good example of the way the women incite their men to go on these head-hunting expeditions. In a certain district where some missionaries were doing good work among the Dyaks, a certain Dyak named Hathnaveng had been persuaded by the missionaries to give up the barbaric custom of head hunting. One day, however, he fell in love with a Dyak maiden. The girl, although returning his passion, disdained his offer of marriage because he no longer indulged in the ancient practice of cutting off and bringing home the heads of the enemies of the tribe. Hathnaveng, goaded by the taunts of the girl, who told him to dress in women's clothes in the future, as he no longer had the courage of a man, left the village and remained away for some time. When he returned, he entered his sweetheart's hut, carrying a sack on his shoulders. He opened it and four human heads rolled upon the bamboo floor. At the sight of the trophies, the girl at once took him back into her favor, and flinging her arms around his neck, embraced him passionately.

"You wanted heads;" declared her lover, "I have brought them. Do you not recognize them?"

Then to her horror she saw they were the heads of her father, her mother, her brother and of a young man who was Hathnaveng's rival for her affections. Hathnaveng was immediately seized by some of the tribesmen, and by way of punishment was placed in a small bamboo structure such as is commonly used by the Dyaks for pigs, and allowed to starve to death. This is a true story, and occurred while I was still in Borneo.

Stern Punishment Enforced.

The day after we arrived at Kapit a great crowd of Dyaks belonging to the tribe of those implicated in the attack on the Punans assembled at the fort to talk with Dr. Hose on the matter, and the upshot of it all was startling in its severity. This was Hose's ultimatum: They must give up the rest of those that took part in the raid, and they would all get about ten years' imprisonment. They must return the rest of the heads. They must pay enormous fines, and lastly those villages which had men who took part in the raid must move down the river opposite Sibu and thus be under Hose's eye as well as under the guns of the fort. I watched the faces of the crowd, and it was interesting to witness their various emotions. Some looked stupefied, others looked very angry, and that they could not agree among themselves was plainly evident from their angry squabbling. They were a curious crowd with their long black hair and fringes and round tattoo marks all over their bodies. They finally agreed to these terms, as Hose told them that if they did not do so, he would come and make them, even if he had to kill them all. The following days I witnessed large bands of Dyaks bringing to the fort their fines, which consisted of large jars and brass gongs, which are the Dyak forms of currency. The total fine amounted to $5200, and the jars were carefully examined, the gongs weighed and their values assessed. Some of the jars were very old, but the older they are the more they are worth. Three of the poorest-looking ones were valued at $1400 (the dollar in Borneo is equivalent to 50 cents.) Of this $5200, $1200 was later paid to the Punans as compensation (pati nyawa.) I watched some Dyaks who had just brought in their fines, as they went away in one of their large canoes and as they crossed the river with a quick, short stroke of their paddles in splendid time, so that one heard the sound of their paddles as they beat against the side of the canoe, come in one short tr-r-up. They seemed to be very angry, all talking at once, and I still heard the sound of their angry voices above the paddles' beat long after they had disappeared up a narrow creek on the other side.

I had intended going with my two servants further up the river and living for some time among the Dyaks, but Dr. Hose made objections to my doing so. He said it would be very unsafe for me to live among these Kapit Dyaks at the present time, as they were naturally in a very excitable state and would have thought little of killing one of the orang puteh (white men,) whom they no doubt considered the cause of all their trouble. They would be sure to take me for a government official. Hose instead advised me to go up a small unexplored branch river below Sibu, so as the launch was returning to Sibu I determined to return in her, leaving Hose at Kapit.

Curios Collected.

During my short stay at Kapit I added very few new specimens to my collections of birds and butterflies; in fact, it was the worst collecting-ground that I struck during more than a year's wanderings in Borneo. I, however, made a fine collection of Dyak weapons, shields and war ornaments from our friendly Dyaks, who seemed very low-spirited now that there was to be no fighting, and on this account they traded some of their property to me at a very low figure which at other times nothing would have induced them to part with.

It is with regret that space will not allow of my describing those interesting people, the Kaians, of whom I saw a good many at Kapit. I returned to Sibu with Mingo, and we took with us the ringleader of the head-hunters. He was kept handcuffed in the hold, and he worked himself up into a pitiable state of fright. He thought he was going to be killed, and the whole of the voyage he was chanting a most mournful kind of song, a regular torrent of words going to one note. My Dyak servant Dubi informed me that he was singing about the heads he had taken and for which he was now going to die.

After a day's stay in Sibu I went up the Sarikei River with my two servants and made a long stay in a Dyak house. I will try to describe my life among the Dyaks in a later account. In conclusion, I must tell a rather amusing though tragic story told me by Johnson, one of the officials at Sibu, which serves to illustrate the superstitious beliefs of the Malays. A Chinese prisoner at Sibu had died, at least Johnson and Bolt both thought so, and they sent some of the Malay soldiers to bury the body on the other side of the river. A few days later one of them casually remarked to Johnson that they had often heard it said that the spirit of a man sometimes returned to his body again for a short time after death (a Malay belief,) but he (this Malay) had not believed it before, but he now knew that it was true. Johnson, much amused, asked him how that was. "Oh," said the Malay, "when the Tuan (Johnson) sent us across the river to bury the dead man the other day, his spirit came back to him and his body sat up and talked, and we were much afraid, and seized hold of the body, which gave us much trouble to put it into the hole we had digged, and when we had quickly filled in the hole so that the body could not come out again, we fled away quickly, so now we know that the saying is true." It is quite unnecessary to add that they had buried a live Chinaman without being aware of the fact.

Pole Discovery Must Be Proved.

Over their lunch the fishermen, at ease in the bobbing boat, talked about Peary.

"Why doesn't he just lie about it—come back and say he's reached the north pole, and let it go at that? It would save a lot of money."

"Yes, it would save money, but Peary must bring back proof."

"How can he bring back proof?"

"With his camera. It is like this. Only at the north pole would the shadow of a bullet, suspended from a string, describe in a day's time a perfect circle. Everywhere else the shadow would be elliptical. Well, Peary, if he ever gets to the pole, will hang up his bullet and photograph an arc of his circle—he won't photograph the whole thing because at the north pole a full day is six months long. The arc, though, will tell the story to scientists. It will be the proof that no fake has been worked."

The Great Goal.

PRESIDENCY MORE ALLURING THAN IN ANY PREVIOUS CAMPAIGN.

ROOSEVELT HAS MADE IT MORE COMFORTABLE BERTH—WHITE HOUSE WHEN HE ENTERED WAS A FLAT CROWDED NEXT TO AN OFFICE AND ABOVE A MUSEUM—NOW A DIGNIFIED AND COMFORTABLE HOME—PRESIDENCY A SAFER OFFICE—NEW LAW PUNISHES WITH DEATH EVEN ATTEMPTS UPON PRESIDENT'S LIFE.

By a Special Contributor.

THANKS to Theodore Roosevelt, the great goal for which Mr Taft and his opponent now commence to battle, looms up as far more alluring than it has appeared to contestants in any of the great quadrennial political struggles of the past. The purse for the winner will be the same—$200,000 for the term, $137 a day, $5.70 per hour, 47½ cents per minute. But Mr. Roosevelt has fixed it so that his successor will enjoy a much more comfortable, dignified and decent manner of living than that which confronted him when he moved into the crowded flat which Uncle Sam then held in reserve for Presidents, over his little museum, at Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. The next President will not have to be behoven to the shrewd generosity of the railroads whenever he wishes to comply with popular demands for his presence here and there. There will always be on hand in the Treasury $2083 a month "to defray the traveling expenses of the President and his invited guests," as the law puts it.

White House a More Tempting Home.

And the victor in this campaign will find the White House much more tempting as a home than did Mr. Roosevelt when he first had his trunk carried into it. What he then found Uncle Sam to have in store for him was indeed a flat over a museum and one end of the flat was given over to offices. State dinners were being held in a draughty, upstairs hallway; reception guests were making their exits out of a front window, and the President himself couldn't take a bath in his own congested suite of living rooms without fear of some intruder's peeping at him over a half partition separating his tub stall from a part of the lavatory space frequented by office-seekers. Mr. Roosevelt told the leaders in Congress that the President of a respectable nation should live respectably, and he got an appropriation which he used to clear his sleeping floor of its workshop annex. He moved the latter to a new wing, added bedrooms and baths, had the building restored to its original architectural grandeur, had its bizarre and rococo furnishings sold at auction, and had it redecorated and refurnished in simple but classic good taste. The White House today is the most stately type of colonial mansion in the land, and Mr. Roosevelt's successor will have no cause for shame when moving into it.

Presidency a Safer Office.

Thanks to Congress also, the Presidency is a safer office than when Mr. Roosevelt assumed it. Attacks upon the life of the Chief Magistrate are now Federal offenses, and even an unsuccessful attempt to kill him is punishable by death, while a mere threat to assassinate him, or even the advising of another to do so, is punishable by ten years' imprisonment. To prevent a repetition of the Garfield tragedy, a separate wing of the new Union Station, now being completed in Washington, is being furnished and appointed for the private use of Presidents who hereafter will pass to their trains without exposure to platform crowds. This suite has a retiring room, where the Chief Magistrate may rest if his departing train be late, or where he may arrange his toilet after leaving his car, and there is also an elegantly decorated apartment where he can meet official guests of the nation or be met by functionaries welcoming him to the city, as at inaugural time. Under the same roof is a branch police station and another has been put in the new east terrace of the White House. It ocupies the left wing of the new public entrance, shown in the foreground of the accompanying photograph of the renovated White House as it appears today in all of its summer grandeur. The public, now admitted to this wing instead of to the north doorway used by the Presidential family, views the museum feature in the space beneath the rows of bay trees and is admitted upstairs to the east room, but no farther; so the President may now pass downstairs to one of his drawing-rooms without dodging some crank or other who might wish to annoy him. The exterior of the building is guarded by thirty-eight policemen, and—which has been greatly to Mr. Roosevelt's chagrin—the President is no longer allowed to go out of sight of the secret service men. To guard against another McKinley tragedy, this branch of the government detective force has been enlarged and made more adequate and these detectives are the only government employés who can safely disregard the President's orders. Were they to obey them religiously they would keep out of his sight.

Will Have Two Yachts and Auto-Boat.

So Uncle Sam will take pretty good care of the man who wins out in the November contest. His life will not be all fuss and feathers and hum-drum and grind. If he wants to take a sea trip to get away from the shop he will have ever at his command a luxurious yacht, the Mayflower, of 2690 tons, for which Mrs. Ogden Goelet originally paid $800,000 and which she sold to the government for $450,000 during the Spanish War. This has been refurnished to meet the demands of Presidents and their guests, and it has a crew of nine officers and 164 jackies. Mrs. Roosevelt and her children availed themselves of this craft several winters ago for a trip to the coast of Cuba. The next President will have at his command also the smaller Presidential yacht Sylph, on which the Roosevelts have made occasional trips down the Potomac and on Chesapeake Bay. Attached to this latter vessel is a seventeen-knot auto-boat designed at the Norfolk navy yard especially for the use of Presidential families. When official guests of the nation are entertained aboard these vessels the contingent fund of the Navy Department can be drawn upon to cover the expenses.

The future President will also enjoy less restraint as to where he may go on these cruises, and this freedom he will owe to Mr. Roosevelt, who has established the precedent that will allow future Executives to leave their native waters when they see fit, just as he established the others allowing them to go aboard foreign warships or to visit foreign embassies and legations in Washington.

Doctors' and Undertakers' Bills Paid.

November's victor will have no doctors' bills to pay, for being the Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy he can call in any of the regular surgeons, part of whose official duty it is to give medical attention to officers and their families. Moreover if the next President by any ill-fate should die in office all of his funeral expenses will be paid by the government, which will grant his widow free use of the mails and a pension of $5000 a year for life.

To keep petty details away from him, he will have an office force receiving $61,000 a year, headed by a private secretary paid $5000 a year in addition; and to pay for such contingent expenses as stationery, record books, reference books, telegrams, office furnishings, maintenance of office, horses, carriages, harness, etc., he will be allowed $20,000 a year. His official corre ence will go free in the mails, and his secretaries open all of his letters, save those containing the pri mark confided to his relatives and very intimate fri
Only communications of importance will ever be sh to him, the others being referred to the different de ments of the government. His secretaries will h forms for answering the various letters which remai his office, and he will have to dictate individual re to but a small percentage.

Servants Paid by Government.

Uncle Sam will pay a valet to shave him, cut his h and care for his wardrobe; the maid who waits upon wife; the groom of his stable, and also the stable borers; the laundresses who care for the White H linen, and the corps of house domestics who dust, sc wait on table and polish up the handle of the big fr door. But his coachman and other domestics hired purely personal service he will have to hire out of own pocket, and he will have to provide his own ri and driving horses, as well as their oats. But, like other high officer of the army, he will be provided an orderly to fetch and take his mount and accom him when riding abroad, while a petty officer of the n will be detailed to raise and lower the flag which i cates the President's presence when flown over the W House. Some time ago a house servant flew this f in distress, with the ensign down, and this signal b a just cause for alarm as to the President's safety, it

The Hotel Clerk.

“IT'LL BE A HARD CAMPAIGN, ESPECIALLY ON CHECK BOOKS.”

By a Special Contributor.

“I SEE there's been somethin' said about Taft not standin' on his front porch this summer and makin' speeches," said the House Detective of the Hotel St. Reckless.

"I'm glad of it," said the Hotel Clerk. "It wouldn't look right. Taft's got a swell front porch all right. Did you ever see him? Well, he's got one of the roomiest circular front porches of any statesman in the business. I don't know whether it's as big as it was before he began reducing himself but it's plenty big. It extends out over the foundations like an Italian balcony, running thence in a series of hanging gardens in a northerly direction to where it meets his last and his second to his last chins. It's indeed an edifice with a noble shape to it, is Taft's front porch, and an ordinary frock coat is no more than a half-awning for it. But it wouldn't do for him to stand on it this summer, making speeches. In the first place he's no contortionist—his running mate may be, but Taft's not—and in the second place, how would it look for the chosen champion of a great party for the most august place in the gift of the people, a man who must carry through this harassing campaign the policies of Roosevelt and 340 pounds of his own and Jim Sherman—how would it look for him to be standing on his pergola, with one foot caught negligently in his watch pocket and the other slipping up and down the terrace scraping all the buttons off his vest, while endeavoring to properly elucidate the questions of the day, and maybe of the next day, unless Tedy should wire differently over night, to a visiting delegation from the Samuel J. Gompers, Supreme Court Altering, Basting and Fitting Union, of Piqua, Ohio?

"It wouldn't look right at all, Larry. And it won't be done either. It will be Taft's duty to remain anchored where he is, like a sturdy captive balloon, as you might say, with not too much gas aboard and just the right amount of sand, handing out at intervals a few selected lines of specially sterilized wisdom such as a truly careful candidate always hands out as election day draws near, and save his strength. It promises to be a hard wearing strain, especially on Brother Charles P. Taft's check book and it behooves the nominee to hold his own forces in reserve."

"Bryan'll be on the stump, won't he?" asked the House Detective.

"To be sure," said the Hotel Clerk. "Ever since that historic day twelve years ago when he fed the Crown of Thorns to Grover Cleveland and David B. Hill, one thorn at a time, he's been almost constantly on the stump, or up one. Bryan belongs on the stump just the same as a canary bird belongs on a perch. He can take his meals there and think up his strongest thoughts there, and I suppose in a case of necessity he could go to sleep there. He'd rather travel on the rear end and make all stops than to block up the right of way in the drawing room section of the Twentieth Century Limited with his feet resting on one of Mrs. Pullman's drawn-work throws. Say what you please about him, but William Jennings Bryan is the best friend the flag stations of this country ever had. And if anybody should ask you, he hasn't slighted the places where they pull up to water the engine either, if there is an audience on hand or one forming. Others may tear carelessly by in their imperialistic pomp, surrounded by coon porters and plush upholstery and hard-finished tidies across the back of the seat, but as for Bryan, give him but the opportunity to expound the immortal Jeffersonian doctrines to those residing in the shadow of the stop-look-listen sign, hard by the grade crossing, and he is well content, especially if he's got a good, new immortal Jeffersonian doctrine that came to him since they made the last turn up the road.

"No, Larry, Bryan's not one of that haughty school of through-vestibuled, Pintsch gas statesman that stop on signal only. They tell me the first subilant hiss of an air brake slowing down will instantly bring him out of the soundest slumber with his tie properly tied and the palm of the left hand thrust in between the second and third buttons of the coat. It's never been necessary for Mr. Bryan to leave a call with the night clerk. He's shown that by the way he beats out some other party to a nomination from time to time. Whether it's the back platform of the rear day coach of the Pewee Valley accomodation, or the platform of his party in convention assembled, you'll find William Jennings Bryan stepping on it and occupying most of the available space long before the brakeman can get his stool down alongside the step and begin helping off the passengers that ain't going any further along that line. So we can feel reasonably safe, Larry, in assuming that Br. Bryan, having got his hand in, stumping the Johnson boom in Minnesota, will soon be stumping the rest of the country.

"I s'pose we'll have Mr. Hearst in the forum too, as soon as all his poor tired copy readers and zealous circulation managers and faithful out-of-town agents and a few invited guests can get together out at Chicago and nominate him for President or Governor or whatever it is he's going to run for this year. When it comes to being what you might call a professional nominee, William Jennings hasn't got much on William Randolph, and as for William Howard, he's out of the running altogether. He's a rank amateur and the other two'll look down on him, I have no doubt. There'll be doings when Hearst takes the stump, for he has all the forceful oratory and strong personal magnetism of a frozen fish. He's the kind of speaker you can go to hear and then go straight home and not care if you never hear another word spoken above a whisper as long as you live."

"I s'pose there'll be a lot of mud slingin' now that both the big tickets is made up," said the House Detective.

"We do have a pleasing habit in this country of showing up a man's trifling imperfections of character and person when he enters politics, don't we?" said the Hotel Clerk. "Our campaign civilities are invariably marked by a charming spirit of candor that's just as pleasant as skinning a man alive with a dull pair of scissors. And we have such a way about us of finding out those little things in a gent's past life. He reads what the Congressman from his home district said in nominating him and he fills up with a double yolk dignity and eighty-candle power importance and he shoves his chest out until he has a front elevation like a jumbo squab and he feels like the orator of the evening looks while sitting up on the rostrum listening to the remarks of the president of the Self-Help Club introducing him to an audience composed of the elite and culture of Anthracite Junction, Pa. You know, Larry, how the orator of the evening always looks on such occasions?

"And then there comes a loud rushing, rending sound like a hurricane hitting a plank walk, and the next instant the candidate is feeling as naked as a frankfurter and as popular as a small-pox patient and he's enjoying those same delightful sensations that a modest man has in his sleep when he dreams he's been suddenly dropped down at a public place among a lot of his society friends, attired in such a manner as to qualify him to sing 'None of them Have Anything on Me' as a vocal solo. What's the trouble? Oh, merely the opposition press looking into the private record of the chosen tribune of the people.

"But don't think it'll be that way with the two most prominent Williams this time, Larry. We know all about both of them already. One of them's been before the public many years and the other's been behind the returns for practically the same length of time. As for Mr. Hearst, I have a notion he may be able to induce his own papers to speak a diffident word of kindness for him once in a great while."

"Will Wall Street be for Taft if he carries out all of Teddy's policies?" asked the House Detective.

"It will be if he carries them all out and buries them," said the Hotel Clerk.

ORIGIN OF LOWESTOFT CHINA.

At the end of the North Parade, Lowestoft, is the Warren House—a place of great interest to connoisseurs of china. It was here, in the eighteenth century, that a discovery of fine clay was made which eventually led to Lowestoft manufacturing the china which is now so rare that it is almost priceless.

Initial experiments made by Hewlin Luson, Esq., of Gunton Park, near Lowestoft, with some fine clay discovered accidentally on his estate, resulted in complete success, and ultimately led to the opening of a factory at Lowestoft in 1756 for the manufacture of fine earthenware and porcelain "soft paste."

In 1775 a finely glazed and decorated "hard paste" was introduced, the efficiency and beauty of which betokened a brilliant success for the proprietors. Contemporary evidence indisputably shows that from 1770 to 1800 the Lowestoft works were at the zenith of their fame. Owing, however, to the enormous expenses and difficulty incurred in procuring china clay from Cornwall and elsewhere after the original clay was exhausted, and the rapidly increasing competition of other makers, its prosperity waned, the collapse came and the works were closed in 1803.—[London Globe.

BUSY STATE GAME FARM.

The State game farm near Auburn is now the busiest place in Illinois. Already this month 8000 baby birds have made their appearance and in the next five days 2000 more are expected. Mother birds are sitting patiently on that number of eggs, and every day another is made happy by the arrival of chicks.

Thirty thousand eggs of game birds were placed this spring at the farm. They included pheasants, native quail, ducks, turkeys, and all other kinds of game that inhabit this State. In addition to the eggs which were placed under the hens at the farm the game warden, Dr. J. A. Wheeler, sent throughout the State 30,000 eggs for private use. The farm is now producing from 900 to 1000 eggs a day from the 1400 hens.

"Game birds in Illinois came through the winter remarkably well," said Dr. Wheeler. "We have had the most encouraging reports from every section of the State. The pheasant is proving itself to be an ideal bird for Illinois. You cannot starve it. It will eat the bark on a tree before it will quit. I have been surprised at its hardiness.—[Macomb Journal.

World's Police Center.

REMARKABLE NEW BUILDING FOR NEW YORK'S FORCE.

By a Special Contributor.

SOME day we shall have an international police force for the capture of big criminals, and that day is not far distant. Already the police nets of the great nations, interlocking, reach around the world, and New York is the headquarters for most of this intricate and fascinating international activity.

Within a few weeks the American metropolis will have in operation the most modern and important police headquarters in existence, the logical center for this remarkable world-wide movement toward cöoperative suppression of crime. If this building had been designed for the control of the police work of the world it could not have been better fitted for the purpose, and, in fact, it is plain that the growth of international work has not been lost sight of in its planning.

The local force has already taken first place for efficiency in the capture of criminals escaped from foreign shores, so that New York has come to be the best place in the world for the big crooks to keep away from, and metropolitan detectives are constantly traveling between this and foreign centers, transferring wrongdoers and studying methods. Very close cöoperation already exists between the various forces.

The greatest headquarters abroad is England's famous Scotland Yard, a group of buildings which together are larger than New York's new building and which have the record of having handled 100,000 prisoners and ticket-of-leave men. But all of London's police work centers in Scotland Yard, whereas in New York each borough has a sub-headquarters of its own. Combining the American headquarters with the central stations of Brooklyn, Bronx, Queens and Richmond, you have an aggregate unequaled in size, as the Manhattan headquarters is unequaled in efficiency.

A Polyglot Force.

The cosmopolitan character of New York's population has had much to do with making it an international police center. With its criminals from practically every country in the world, it has been forced to employ men speaking practically as many languages and many more dialects and some members of the force are kept constantly at some school of languages to equip them for special work among the foreigners.

This alone has linked the department very closely to those of most of the foreign lands. Within one hour after the suspects in the murder of Father Kasper (remembered as the trunk mystery) were known to the New York detective bureau, the world had been circled by cable with their full description. Within twenty-four hours they had been traced, and they were arrested the following week; one in Marseilles, another in Constantinople, and a third in Algiers.

International police coöperation has also gone far in the fight on the Black Hand, Hunchakist, Mafia and other foreign organizations of criminals. Several European governments have sent their detectives to America and put them at the service of the American officials in this work. This has already resulted in the practical extermination of the Armenian Hunchakists, whose outrages recently stirred the machinery of justice to effective work.

Many a foreign criminal has rejoiced at his first glimpse of America only to find on his arrival that his record has preceded him and Lieut. Petrosini or one of his staff is on hand at Quarantine to apprehend and hold him, an operation that has been very effective in excluding a vicious criminal element from the country.

"The cosmopolitan growth of our city," said Police Commissioner Bingham, through his secretary, "has been so rapid within the last few years that I hope the day is not far distant when we shall have an international police congress, with representatives from every country. We get many of the European crooks here, and soon every police chief of the world will be represented here.

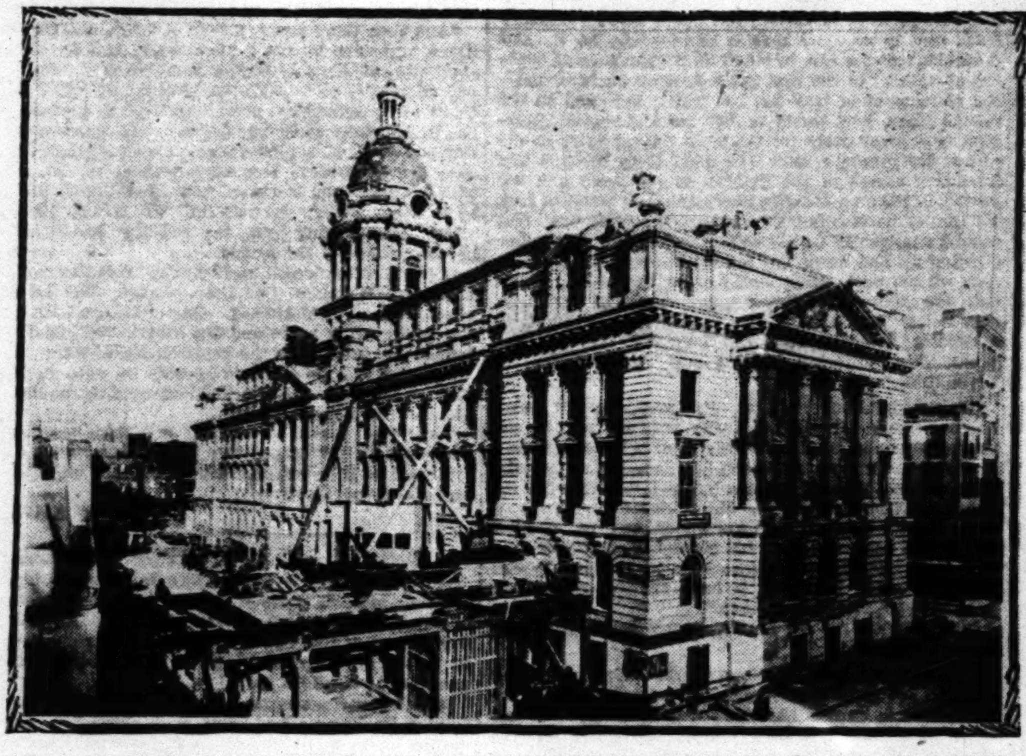
"One of the best results of sending police officials abroad was the importation of the police dogs from Belgium. The animals have already done good work in the outlying districts."

Architecture of New Building.

New York's new police headquarters is 308 feet long, 80 feet wide at one end and 60 feet wide at the other. The architectural scheme is the Georgian style of the eighteenth century, a handsome building radically different from that usually associated with police work. On the central dome is a wireless telegraph apparatus so that the police may be in communication with incoming and outgoing ocean steamers. It is also to be used in the very unlikely event of the structure being besieged by a mob and the telegraph wires cut.

The two uppermost stories will be used as an armory and drill-room for the force, and in case of emergency a thousand men can be concentrated there, and, if necessary, kept over night and fed from the big kitchen ranges downstairs. In the armory proper will be all the weapons necessary in the defense of the city against a riot, even to two Gatling guns.

In the sub-basement, 25 feet below the street level, are two modern army shooting ranges each 75 feet long, and fully equipped with markers. Here are also located the magazine-rooms, lockers and a large assembly-room for the men. The young recruits who are to be trained to police work here practice flying shots at an automatic dog or fleeing burglar. Pistol shooting has heretofore been one of the New York policeman's weakest points, but it need be no longer.



NEW YORK'S NEW POLICE HEADQUARTERS. SCAFFOLDING IN FOREGROUND IS FOR THE SPECIAL SUBWAY BRANCH TO THE CRIMINAL COURTS.

Some Novel Features.

In the basement are a number of cells for male and female prisoners, and several large steel cages to be used as "assembly" cells. Here also is one of those novel features of which there are a number in this building.

A driveway has been constructed from the Broome-street end of the building between the curb and porte cochere large enough to permit two or three wagonloads of prisoners to be taken directly to the cell room without coming in contact with any one other than the officer in charge. After the prisoner has been turned over to the turnkey he may be taken to the commissioner's room or to the head of the detective bureau or to the photographer's, in fact, anywhere in the building, through a labyrinth of secret corridors and never see or be seen by any except the guards. There are also a large storeroom and several safes for the use of the property clerk in this part of the building, where a carload of merchandise may be stored. At the southern end of the building is a lounging-room for detectives attached to which are shower baths, lockers, dressing-rooms and a dormitory for the men on night duty.

On the ground level in the main section will be the entrance for the public. Above the pillars that crown this main entrance will be figures representing the five boroughs, the colossal figure of Manhattan being the centerpiece directly over the doorway. The new Rogues' Gallery will be on this floor, with the photographs and records of tens of thousands of crooks, and in the adjoining rooms, the Museum of Criminal Curiosities, the Bureau of Records and Identification, with the appliances for the Bertillon system and thumb identification. This is the room in which the dreaded "third degree" comes to those suspected of concealing the truth to save themselves or some "pal." The police library, the only one in the world, will be located here. This contain books of criminal law, histories of crooks from the four corners of the earth.

The Heart of Activities.

But the real heart of the police activities is ond floor, where Commissioner Bingham and will have their offices. Gen. Bingham's room is ing chamber in the Georgian style, and is the offices of the deputy commissioners, chief chief clerk, record and filing department and of maintenance and repairs.

Of special interest will be the office of deputy commissioner, Arthur H. Woods, who of the detectives of all the boroughs. His room a large assembly-room where a prisoner is put bition before the "sleuths," who are masked. the rear of the desk has been arranged a large enough to accommodate two persons. the booth facing the prisoner is built directly wall, and the screen through which he is hidden by an ingenious arrangement of lights flectors. Maps and Diagrams.

An innovation in the new police headquarters, not a foreign idea, will be the map room, series of large maps and diagrams every city will be shown, with its streets and importa ings shown to scale. By a system of small flags the commissioner will know the exact the patrolman on post should be at any time day or night.

A Glance at Queensland.

TRAVELER'S IMPRESSIONS OF BRISBANE AND ITS ENVIRONS.

By a Special Contributor.

THE new world of the sixteenth century having long since outgrown its cradle name, the title now devolves upon the fifth and last continent discovered and occupied by the white race. Australia is still so isolated, so remote that even in this age of globe trotting it has not entirely lost the gloss of novelty. Therefore the trans-Pacific traveler, as the vessel nears the end of the long diagonal course southwestward from Vancouver, B. C., awaits with no little curiosity his arrival at the antipodes.

Pinkemba, Queensland, is the first point touched at. The outlandish name, which rings to the same note as those native place names of the Bush which Hornung's romances have made tolerably familiar, applies to a long wharf and a railroad station at the mouth of the broad and muddy Brisbane River. This estuary is the watergate of South Queensland. The strange trees that line its banks, and spread their spidery roots in the salty mud, are mangroves; and their presence proves that we have not left the zone of man-eating sharks and warm water. To be exact, the latitude is 27 degrees south, or about 7 degrees nearer the equator than Los Angeles. Brisbane, the colonial capital, lies just as far inland from the ocean as our city; but, having straightened and dredged the tidal river so that deep freighters can steam easily up to her wharves, Brisbane has no need of a San Pedro. Pinkemba is merely a convenient landing-place for such impatient freight as mail and passengers.

Here we are to take the local narrow-gauge train for the city, and receive our first impressions of the Australian official. Such contacts are apt to be jolts to the sensitive nature, railroad training often making the railroad man bruskly authoritative. But the solitary factotum who handles the crowd is easy with the strangers who block the ticket office, slow at counting their change in big British pennies, and other unfamiliar coins. "Hurry up, old man," he says, "the train's coming in," without a snap in his voice. "Mate" or "old man" is the colonial's typical greeting, and as universal as his good nature toward the stranger within his gates.

All the railroads in Queensland are owned and managed by the government. The authorities provide two classes of car, not for the sake of old-world class distinctions, which do not go down in democratic Australia, but out of regard for the pockets of its constituents. The cars are built on the American plan with the seats on either side of an aisle, and you have your choice between cushions and hard wood. In the latter class the round trip between the city and the sea costs only 20 cents for thirty miles.

The train runs through a cleared and settled country, disfigured by bill boards, where scattered homesteads alternate with meadows and groves of gum trees. Then the houses come closer together in suburban streets, and we come to a standstill in a terminus of metropolitan pretensions.

It would not be out of keeping in London, this edifice of shining white brick with the girdered roof of glass and iron, the high raised platform between which the trains run as if into their separate docks, and the elevated steel bridges for the passengers to cross from one platform to another. It is presided over by a great clock, and in all the details the old-country pattern is faithfully followed down to the book stalls and cloakrooms for left luggage. It must have cost the shareholders a pretty penny, we think, to provide all this magnificence for a city of 120,000 people at its last census reckoning.

But a Queenslander reminds us that it is really a public building, like the postoffice. Moreover it is the headquarters for 2800 miles of railroad with more under construction. The Australians, it seems, are fond of railway stations, and expect their parliamentary members to maneuver politically with that end in view, just like getting a good appropriation from the Federal Government at Washington for a postoffice. It happens sometimes, we hear, that a Burrumgorra of the back country, which perhaps supports one daily train each way, has pull enough to adorn itself with architecture far beyond its local means.

At the station exit certain little differences catch the eye. Observe the Australian dray, which takes the place of our express wagon. You will find this two-wheeled dray used everywhere for light freighting; note the broad tires and the solid wheels, the body that tips up on the end so as to slide the goods out, like a load of bricks. There is neither a hotel tout nor shouting hackman to meet us, but two-horsed wagonettes are waiting for fares and omnibuses with those upper decks which they call "knife boards" in London.

In Europe the trains often set you down in face of some time-worn cathedral, or other monument of antiquity that at once absorbs your attention. But in the new countries there is no such insistent appeal. It seems a good plan, when in a strange city, to get our bearings first, we conclude to climb to the roof of a 'bus and take observations.

Melbourne street, the main artery of traffic, opens out a long vista of banks, stores and hotels. We look out upon shop fronts screened by canvas awnings, passengers clad for the most part in muslins or duck suits, and policemen wearing the pipe-clayed helmet. But for these signs we should hardly believe that the midsummer of a semi-tropical country is at hand. The November morning is temperately cool; perhaps "coast influences" are in operation on this side of the Pacific. The streets that cut Melbourne at right angles bear such nursery names as Alice, William and George. This, however, is merely an effusion of loyalty toward the princely relatives of the good queen, in honor of whom the colony took its name and the city christened its magnificent, thousand-feet long iron bridge, the Victoria. Its own godfather, by the way, was a commoner. A Scottish general, he retired from the army to govern New South Wales, to which in those early years of the last century Queensland was a territorial annex. But Brisbane was no ordinary figurehead. He was an astronomer of European repute, and—what the settlers appreciated more—a deputy Providence who conferred upon the infant colony two blessings by which it has since prospered—the vine and a good breed of horses.

From the high iron bridge we look down upon the river. It is dotted with cargo boats, which bring to this port a goodly share of Queensland's yearly imports, which at the last reckoning up were valued at £29,000,000. The river divides the city into two sections, and South Brisbane, into which the 'bus carries us, has the straggling aspect of a suburb. The end of the run we judge to be near the limits of the city; it is a quarter of one-story dwellings, the homes probably of artisans, for there are few people about but women and children. In place of a lawn, the small inclosures are planted thickly with stocks and sweet williams, the favorite plants of the English cottager, raised doubtless from seed which the immigrant carried out with him. Each little villa is labeled with a distinctive name of a romantic type, such as Ellangowan or Glen Albyn, like the houses in a London suburb. But in spite of the climate there appears no attempt to achieve the semi-tropical in decoration, even to the extent of one Canariensis.

Climbing a hill, we get the birdseye view. Brisbane is seen to spread itself, like Rome, over several low hills, round which the river twines its glittering links. The warehouse and shipping quarter is located snugly in the elbow of one of these turns, and its main street thus contrives to have a wharf at either end. Against the dark green shrubbery the red roofs of the city produce as striking a color contrast as a Yorkshire village, whose red tiles gleam in the midst of meadows. These, however, are the celebrated "tin roofs" of Australia, the "thin tin crackling roof" of Kipling's ballad, which are really made of corrugated iron and painted. Sheets of this material figure largely in colonial import lists. It is used for all kinds of construction, from the city wool warehouse to the shepherd's hut. Easily put up, it is a great convenience, especially in a country where the lumber does not run to shingles; but it makes a hot roof and a noisy one, on which a shower of rain drums with a thundering sound.

Outward from the city the river leads the eye into blue distances which stir the imagination with the vastness they hint of. Here we stand near the southern boundary of a country more than twice the size of Texas, with a coast line that runs up within eleven degrees of the equator. This land around Brisbane is a white man's country; away to the north, where Queensland abuts on Torres Straits, lies a hot jungle country, still infested by savage tribes, and so little known that De Rougemont was safe in laying there the scene of the Munchausen adventures with which he hoaxed the Geographical Society and a London magazine.

Our vague glances into these immensities come to a focus under the guidance of a Queenlander who happens along. Bearded and gray, he is evidently an "old identity." By this curious phrase, which smells of printer's ink, Australian newspapers always refer to the pioneer settler. In his time he had been all around Queensland. With a wave of his arm, he indicates away there in the west the Darling Down country, where the state borders on New South Wales. Who that has read Bolderwood's tales fails to remember this famous tract of rich pasture land, where the homes and principalities of the rich squatters lie? Farther inland, we should arrive at the dry, desert core of the Australian apple, the Never-Never country, as the black fellows call it, where if men go in they never come out, which is never going to be any good unless water can be drawn from the skies to irrigate its riverless wastes. He points to the Craig range, a chain of picturesque purple peaks, which we judge to be a hundred miles or so from Brisbane, as a guidepost to the location of the gold fields.

Queensland, it seems, like California, is built on a basis of gold. It has been mining for many years, with the usual alternations of boom and stagnation; but now it has settled down to gold production as a leading industry, having as much as $10,000,000 worth of machinery at work in the mines. Gympie is the name of a city of 15,000 inhabitants, which has grown up on a gold field that has yielded more than 2,000,000 ounces of fine gold in the last thirty years from a tract of land that barely supported one family at stock raising. When men's feelings are deeply stirred, poetry is apt to rise to the surface. A Queenslander has harped on this golden string, giving expression to the ironic complaint of the man who has worn out his life in ill-paid toil, while treasures unknown and unregarded lay beneath his feet.

Mining, of course, is independent of the climate, which acts treacherously toward the wheat grower and stock raiser. The interior of Australia lies under the curse of periodic drouths. We hear of the terrible heats that afflicted the border country at Christmastide in 1904, when the downs took fire and settlers had to flee before the blazing grass. Stock perished by the thousand head, and the wild birds dropped and were consumed in the furnace. In this land an "old identity" may live through more than one such experience.

A country that extends over seventeen degrees of latitude must offer a diversity of occupations to settlers. The north, we hear, is suited to growing the sugar cane. But about this industry a long debate arose: Was the white man physically fit to perform the hard labor of the cane field under a tropical sun, or no? At first Kanakas had been imported from the islands under a system which, before it was regulated by the government, was only distinguished from kidnaping by a different name—"blackbirding." Unscrupulous skippers lured the islanders on board under any pretext. A wily adventurer, it is said, dressed his schooner up to resemble a missionary vessel, and invited the natives of a converted island to a service of song. When the hymns were under full blast with the mate as precentor, the skipper set sail; and the ports having been closed, the blackbirds were in the pie. But now under the dominance of the Labor party Kanakas are excluded from Queensland. It is up to the white man to show what he can do with the hoe in the cane field.

After a long talk, a long drink. This is a custom observed in many dry countries; in none is it more imperative than Australia, in spite of the fact that Australians hold the world's record as imbibers of tea. So we part with the "old identity" in a public house, a real "pub" with a sign above the door, and return across the bridge to North Brisbane.

Undoubtedly "White Australia" is no vain cry. The bars are down here against all the colored races. Probably there are a few Chinese in some quarter, old-timers, "left-overs;" but a composite photograph of the people on parade in Queen street would reveal neither Asiatic nor African features. Dark complexions there are, but the pigment is adventitious and a sign of occupation. At the other end of the line Vancouver's population is one-sixth Asiatic. The immigration to Queensland is preponderantly British, with some influx of Germans.

It is interesting to note how old-country customs take root and flourish here. The banks are money shops, where crisp white notes and gold from the local mints are handed to the customer across a mahogany counter, which is broad enough to keep long arms away from the till whence the teller scoops coins in a small shovel. There is no grille, no wire caging, and this in the land of bush rangers, of "robbery under arms." After all, the closest wiring does not seem to make our banks proof against the scientific hold-up man, with his giant powder.

Government buildings in new countries are not generally attractive. They lack the stamp of time, and are mostly patterned on the pillar and portico style. But a shipmate, who is a townsman here, insists on our seeing the Houses of Parliament. So we turn down George street and are duly impressed by a huge stone palace of red tape, which shelters the popular assembly, when in session, and the nominated "legislative council," or "house of landlords," as well. Hence it is only a short distance to the stately mansion of the chief executive, which adjoins the Queens's Park. Colonial governors are always lodged well and paid highly. The crown, in other words the prime minister in office, appoints them. Peers are much in request in Australia as figureheads for the ship of state, and the appropriation for gilding the same runs to a $15,000 salary. But that is a trifle to a colony that is in debt to the tune of £41,000,000. A debt of truly heroic proportions, when we consider that the population at the last census did not total much more than half a million.

From streets and houses we turn with relief into the Queen's Park. Brisbane is not a "one-lunger;" it has more open spaces, but this is the chief airing-place of the citizens. It is delightfully situated, the ground sloping gently to the shore of the winding river. There are quiet walks and shady dells, a lath house for curiosities in the orchid line, a cool rockery where the magnificent ferns of the colony display their plumes, and a formal botanical garden for scientific study. Scenically the crowning feature is the avenue of huge Moreton-Bay fig trees, a local species which almost rival the famous banyan of India. Under their spreading branches picnic parties are assembled, and the weary sightseer can stretch himself at ease and watch the river traffic. Just opposite, a slate-colored vessel, built on fighting lines, lies at anchor. Closer inspection reveals a brace of unmistakable guns, and the name "Gayundeh." Queensland, it seems, possesses the nucleus of a navy, and a naval commandant who hoists his flag on this war boat.

We are unwilling to leave this charming spot, and its restful sward, although Brisbane has other show places for her visitors. There are the gardens of the Acclimatization Society in Fortitude Valley, where California quail and other strangers are taken in on probation. Our local friends would have us visit the race course; but it is three miles away in the country, and the steamer down at Pinkemba is calling us. Racing here is not under any sort of a cloud. They pride themselves on the correctness of their form, in keeping up the old country style, with the stakes reckoned in "guineas" and local Derby and St. Leger. Racing is under the patronage of the governor and the "bigwigs," under everybody's patronage for that matter; it is a national institution.

So we return to the railway station, picking up fellow-passengers by the way, loaded with the latest fads in picture post cards. We bid good-by to the mining men from Alaska, shipmates who have their homes here. We are glad to have had this glimpse of the Australian at home, of a fringe of his wide country, and subscribe heartily to the motto of the commonwealth: "Floreat Australia"—"Let Australia prosper."

The Cost of Living in Brazil.

In Brazil there is no coin in circulation, all money being paper, and gold is as much a commodity as wheat; therefore the price of gold varies according to the demand or to the manipulations in the market. This affects the cost of living very decidedly, and all who have experience will state that today it costs twice as much to live in Brazil as in the United States, and it takes a clever manager to live within that estimate. This extraordinary increase in price affects all items both of comfort and luxury, and enters into even the minutest detail of shopping.—["The South Americans," by Dr. Albert Hale.

Edwin M. Stanton.

RECOLLECTIONS OF THE GREAT WAR SECRETARY.

By a Special Contributor.

AS HAS been truly said, Lincoln was our greatest civilian and Grant our greatest soldier. But the greatest single personal force in the overthrow of the great rebellion was undoubtedly the brain and will of Edwin M. Stanton. The recognition of this fact by his own and our succeeding generation has been obscured by the relentless energy with which he executed his task, but history will unquestionably record it.

It has been noted by one of his biographers that before Lincoln became President or Grant had thought of returning to military life, Stanton had impressed his powerful personality upon the expiring administration of Buchanan and startled the nation from its long sleep to a realization that the Union would have to be fought for.

A Democrat in His Early Days.

Born in the year 1814, the son of a Whig father, he had been in sentiment a Democrat from boyhood, his favorable disposition to the Democratic party as against paternal predilections occurring during his attendance at Kenyon College by reason of a miniature disunion struggle there between northern and southern students over President Jackson's action on the nullification proceedings led by Calhoun in South Carolina. Stanton, described by his old playmate Louis A. Walker, as being at that time a "masterful boy, imperious and of invincible energy," became from that date and event a remorseless champion of nationality and the Union, although through all changes in the attitude of parties he had remained professionally a Democrat. This circumstance and his great reputation as a lawyer secured for him late in the year 1860 the appointment of attorney-general in the Cabinet of Buchanan. At that time and for many months later he was a bitter and outspoken enemy of Mr. Lincoln, who had then been nominated and elected to the presidency.

Was a Unionist.

He was a Democrat opposed to slavery, but, with many of his party, a firm upholder of the laws constitutionally enacted for its protection. There was in him, however, a more powerful sentiment. It was his lifelong predilection and passion for the Union. His strenuous and at last successful battling, as the legal adviser of his cabinet, against Buchanan's policy of yielding to the South, attracted to him the attention and admiration of Mr. Lincoln, who, without previous consultation with him, appointed him, although a Democrat, his Secretary of War. These two great men, to be henceforth as twin pillars in upbuilding the edifice of the nation, had not hitherto personally met and did not meet until Stanton presented himself to receive his commission. Becoming speedily Lincoln's ardent personal and political friend, he was to be thereafter the chief motive power of his administration.

Patriotism Above Partisanship.

I note these curious circumstances of his earlier career, because the great War Secretary is associated in the popular mind chiefly with the historic Cabinet engaged in the suppression of the Rebellion, and as the most radical of its Republican members. In our national history there is no more curious incident than the coming together in intimate official and personal association of these two great men, Lincoln and Stanton, of directly antagonistic political views. There could be no circumstance more illustrative of the magnanimity of Lincoln in choosing as his Secretary a political and personal enemy, and none more representative of the patriotism of Stanton than his acceptance, for the same patriotic motive, of a position under a chief whom he disliked to the point of personal hatred. But almost from the hour of that acceptance, the beginning of their personal acquaintance, the two men became intimate and mutually respecting friends imbued with the single common purpose of saving their country; and from that hour Stanton, as I have said, was the chief motive power of Lincoln's administration, his "unmatched and untiring will and energy," as has been truly affirmed, "supplying the force which moved forward, at all times setting the pace at which the government should move, and carrying all along with it."

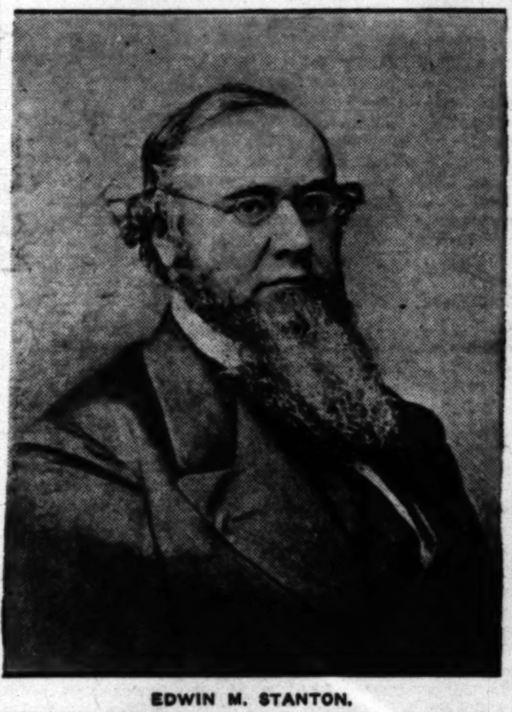
His Personal Appearance.

My personal observations of Mr. Stanton began with my taking residence in Washington in the mid-years of the war and accepting a clerkship in his personal bureau in the War Department. The great Secretary was then about fifty years of age and in the prime of his physical and mental powers. He was of medium height and of square, rather sturdy build. His dark hair, inclined to curl at the edges, had evidently once been luxuriant, but was thinning, and like his pointed beard, turning gray. He wore glasses, though his eyes appeared unusually clear and strong with a direct searching look, which none coming into his presence ever escaped. His dress, like that of all the then Cabinet chiefs, was neat and severely plain. His walk and movements all were alert and vigorous. There was about him not a shade of ostentation, but unmistakable power, needing no aggressiveness to proclaim it. Seen commonly, indeed, he appeared one of the most quiet and least aggressive of men, though a mine of slumbering passion and dynamic force needing only incentive to burst into active flame. Toward his immediate subordinates in the War Department, he was quiet and even gentle in his demeanor, but of these characteristics I have noted we all there came definitely to know.

Although attached to the Secretary's personal bureau, occupying several rooms on the second floor of the building, I, like most clerks in ordinary, was not privileged to be present at his interviews with public and military officials, conducted in his immediate office, but news of the vivid and dramatic scenes often occurring there between the irascible Secretary and his importunate civil and military callers, not infrequently reached us. The Secretary had never been a politician or time server and, least of all, a respecter of persons. He had taken oath to serve the government and the country in a time of peril, and to this service all things else were with him subordinated. To pleas not related in his judgment to the good of the public service, whether coming from strangers or friends or from the highest government and military officials, he was alike inexorable. Members of Congress and officers in the field, believing that they possessed superior claims to favor, were his constant and daily visitors, but unless their demands coincided with the nation's welfare as by him interpreted, they were promptly dismissed with curt, and even savage words.

Religious and Emotional.

As was necessary in his case, with almost the whole nation's burdens if not existence, at times, upon his shoulders, he was a remorseless economizer of his time. He was devoutly religious and deeply and peculiarly emotional by nature. No man in the national service, not even Lincoln himself, had a kinder or more generous heart though, by reason of his incisive official dealings, this was not popularly understood. Generally his emotions were repressed by his rigid sense of official duty toward the nation, in the love and defense of which they were so largely absorbed. Whenever, as was his habit, he addressed delegations of private soldiers occasionally arriving at the department, his tones were tremulous with feeling and his eyes filled with fears. To these addresses I occasionally listened along with the whole body of the department's employés. Toward meritorious military officers his manner was warmly affectionate, as in the cases of Grant, Hancock, Sheridan and others whose energy and success he greatly admired. To others, of whatever rank, delinquent as soldiers, he was stern and imperious and, in cases of marked failure of duty, merciless. His severity with such as these, whether in military or civil life, made him many powerful and influential enemies; this fact obscuring his great merits during his lifetime and his fame after his death.



EDWIN M. STANTON.

Impartial and Judicial.

In spite, however, of his quick temper exercised only in behalf of the interests of the government, it was his aim to be impartial and judicial and, with his stern conscientiousness and highly trained legal mind, it is doubtful whether in any instance he ever performed substantial injustice. Whatever harshness of temper he exhibited was, as I have said, inspired by the public interest and never by personal resentment or animosity, to which he was wholly superior. To public accusations of himself, which were abundant, and generally as false as frequent, he never made reply, being wholly absorbed in his duties to the country, apparently indifferent to personal repute. It was an almost unparalleled self-abnegation, an abnegation for time and of his fame in history, as he well knew. Under his tremendous burdens he consciously sacrificed himself for the life of the nation.

In a room adjoining his private office the Secretary gave daily hearing to the throng of indiscrimate visitors of both sexes, bringing every form of business and petition connected with the war—politicians, contractors, military subordinates, wives, mothers and sisters, seeking favor for their soldier kin. In these interviews he stood by a tall desk allowing these numerous visitors to pass him in single file and state their business concisely and briefly, one by one, and giving to each a precise, if not always satisfactory, answer. In the nature of the case he could not be elaborate. He was uniformly considerate with those having relatives in the army, especially with women; but he was almost instantaneous in his detection of those having schemes of self-seeking, such as contractors, political intermeddlers or delinquent officers asking mitigation of punishment.

Severe in His Rebukes.

It was with these latter that the stirring scenes of his drastic rebuke most frequently occurred, scenes whose humiliation the victims were apt to carry in life-long resentment. Having no mercy for himself in the service of the imperilled country, the Secretary had little mercy for others, especially when their failure of duty appeared to him flagrant. The authority of his great office and the imperiousness of his manner forbade all retort on the part of those censured, as in fact they usually awed into silence and trepidation all who approached him for favor.

An Imperturbable Woman.

It was my fortune, however, to witness an exception to this rule—and this exception in the case of a woman. Going on occasion by direction of the assistant secretary of war, Dana, on a matter of routine, into the Secretary's room, I saw standing in his presence a stately young woman of evident refinement. She was making accusation and complaint to Mr. Stanton against an officer stationed by the War Office at Fortress Monroe, reciting with specific detail his offense of cruelty to soldiers under his charge. As was his custom, the Secretary answered her brusquely, saying: "I do not know you, madame, who bring here these charges against an officer detailed by this department." Evidently nettled by his tone, the lady replied with quiet dignity: "I do not know, Mr. Secretary, that it is important that you should know more of me than that I am an American citizen like yourself, and that I am endeavoring to secure protection for soldiers in the service of the country; my name is on the card in your hand. I ask of you that this officer, whose offenses I accurately know, and have precisely stated, shall be promptly called from his station and be tried for these offenses with which I charge him."

For once the great Secretary had met his match and master in mental poise and imperiousness, instinctively recognizing the fact. Contrary to his wont he asked no further question, but looking again for an instant into the woman's unruffled face, he touched his bell, summoning his telegraph operator, and dictated in my hearing, as nearly as I can recall it, the following dispatch:

"U. S. War Department, —— 1864.

"Lieutenant-Colonel W—— is commanded to repair immediately to Washington and report at this department.

E. M. Stanton,
Secretary of War."

The precise date of the dispatch in 1864, I do not remember. But the officer reported the following day at the War Department and, being questioned in part by and in the presence of the lady, whose address had been left with the Secretary, was promptly relieved from his station.

My curiosity being excited, I sought the acquaintance of this remarkable woman and afterward came to know her well. She was Miss Ellen Wallace of New York, then in the volunteer service of the Sanitary Commission in Washington. She was a woman of extraordinary intellect and culture, speaking and writing several modern languages and a graduate in the law, though never losing her womanly refinement.

Patriotic Services.

Like hundreds of others of her sex and social rank at that period, she had devoted her talents to the service of the wounded and invalid soldiers in the hospitals in and around Washington, administering to them the extra supplies abundantly furnished by the Commission, and writing in various languages, when needed, the last messages of the dying volunteers of other nationalities to their relatives in their respective countries. Throughout the hospitals and camps around Washington her ministrations became famous. At the close of the war in 1865, she drove her own carriage at the head of many wagonloads of luxurious supplies for the returned soldiers of the great armies in their various camps neighboring the capital, being everywhere known and welcomed by the regiments. Gen. Warren Keifer, now a member of Congress from Ohio, will, I think, distinctly recall that on occasion of one of her beneficiary visits to his camp across the Potomac, he ordered for this unusual and brilliant woman an ovation by means of a grand parade and review of the brigades under his command, the same honors to her being more than once extended by the commands of other generals in the neighborhood of Washington. Her subsequent history I imperfectly followed. Foiled possibly in some social ambition or some affair of the affections, she had evidently devoted her life to humane causes. I learned that at the breaking out of the Franco-Prussian war in 1870, she had taken her departure for Europe. Arriving myself on the continent at the end of the following year, I made diligent inquiry for her whereabouts, finding some trace of her from members of the family of our Minister in St. Petersburg, who had seen her in Dresden, and once more obtaining some slight news of her at Paris. Returning to England I learned from Miss Kate Field, who had recently come from Germany, that a remarkable American woman, who in the previous year had arrived in the German camps to offer her services to the sick and wounded soldiers in the hospitals, had herself been overtaken by the camp fever and had died; that her services had been so distinguished that by the orders of General Von Moltke, she had been buried with military honors by an entire German army corps.

Such, doubtless, was the end of the career of Miss Wallace, in whose commanding presence the redoubtable War Secretary, Stanton, might well make instinctive obeisance and deviate from his wonted autocracy.

None had more familiar experience than President

Lincoln with the imperious temper of the Secretary of War, upon whom he leaned through that critical period as upon a supporting pillar or as another self. In the movement and direction of armies for which these two were the responsible and final authority, he could have no other familiar, and frequently no other confidant, even among the other members of his cabinet. Their personal association, in consequence, was not only intimate but constant, the President passing much time daily in the War Department and rarely failing to visit the Secretary at midnight to learn the news from the front, often returning for the same purpose in the early morning; his return from these latter calls being the occasions on which I was accustomed to meet him on my own way to the Department, with that far-away strange look in his eyes, which I have described in my reminiscences of the great President. Some of the greater decisions of policy of the administration, for which Lincoln has been given credit, were originations from the brain of Stanton, as a final examination of the official documents and correspondence of that period will clearly prove. The personal differences of opinion between the two men concerning minor measures to be adopted were not infrequent; the mild President usually yielding in these cases to the resolution of his iron Secretary. In vital cases, however, affecting the interests of the nation or deeply touching his personal feelings, as in cases of executive clemency, Lincoln adhered to his prerogative as President and his stubborn minister was overborne. Such cases not infrequently pertained to applications for pardon for soldiers who had violated the capital regulations of war, as by desertion or sleeping on their posts. It was claimed by the War Secretary that the President's mercy in such matters was destructive of military discipline. A signal instance of conflict between the respective decisions of the two great men was a well-known case of a mother appealing to Stanton for the repeal or modification, of the sentence of a court-martial condemning her son to death. The case being flagrant, the Secretary peremptorily refused a reprieve. The woman carried her pitiful plea to the President, who gave her a note to Stanton, ordering a repeal of the sentence. The Secretary declined compliance with the order and the mother again applied to the President. The case being urgent as to the immediate execution of the soldier, Lincoln hastened to the War Department for a personal interview with his subordinate. The interview on the Secretary's side was stormy, Stanton impetuously rehearsing the aggravated details of the case and again charging the President with disrupting all discipline in the army, and refusing a recision of the sentence.

"Nevertheless, Mr. Secretary," mildly but decisively said Mr. Lincoln, at last: "This soldier will not be executed tomorrow." Nor was he, or at any other date.

The mother when informed, overpowered with her emotions attempted through her tears to express her gratitude to the President. "You must go away, madame, or I will myself be crying like a baby in a minute," said the tenderhearted Lincoln.

No Rupture of Respect.

I was still an employé of the War Department at the time of this quickly reported but now historic interview between these great national chiefs, though naturally not a personal witness of the scene. It is said that the Secretary never again attempted disobedience of a written order of his chief. As President, perhaps no other than Lincoln could have endured the occasionally irascible explosions of his much-burdened Secretary of War, but through the three years of their intimate personal and official intimacy, there was never a break in their relations of mutual respect and almost affection. When near the close of the war, Stanton's appointment to a justiceship of the Supreme Court was strongly urged upon the President, Mr. Lincoln said: "If you will find me another Secretary of War like him, I will gladly appoint him, Stanton deserves anything." Amid the group surrounding the bed of the stricken President that midnight of horror succeeding the event in the theater, sat Stanton with streaming eyes and holding the hand of his great chief. I have omitted to state that two hours earlier I had passed his residence, where, it was said, an emissary of the assassin group had just sought to enter to make attempts on the Secretary's own life. The house at the moment of my passing was guarded by a detail of cavalry and I walked rapidly on to become half witness of the unfinished outrage at the residence of Seward.

On the morning following the surrender of Lee, I stood by the side of my fellow department employé, Louis James, (now the well-known actor) amid the vast throng in front of the War Department and listened to the speech of Stanton announcing with tremulous voice the great event.

Appointed Supreme Justice by Grant.

Five years later than the sought-for appointment of Stanton to the Supreme bench at the hands of Lincoln, approved and sustained by the ardent written recommendations of fifty members of the United States Senate and 118 members of the House of Representatives, came to him this honor from the hands of his other great Presidential friend, Grant, whom he had so loyally and successfully sustained in the field; the President calling in person at Mr. Stanton's residence to deliver his letter of appointment, the story of his eminent career thus ending with the finish of a colossal historic drama, in which the chief actors appear at the close hand in hand on the stage. And yet the end was sorrowful to the limit of tragedy; for the crowning honor of the great Secretary's life reached him on his death bed! He had only strength to thank his friend, the President, writing: "It is the only public office I ever desired, and I accept it with pleasure. The appointment affords me more pleasure as coming from you with whom for several years I have had personal and official relations such as seldom exist among men."

Stanton was only in his fifty-fifth year. In spite of his prostration from his almost superhuman labors to uphold the nation's integrity, he still hoped for restored health and length of life for the enjoyment of his new honors and work, which would have been to him a rest. But three days later than his note of grateful acknowledgment to Grant, he lay in his coffin!

Stanton had entered upon the duties of his unsought place as Secretary of War, possessed of an abundant financial competence gained in the practice of his profession. His estate at his death was found to be limited to his modest residence in Washington. He had given to the country both his life and his fortune. As much as any soldier who expired on the battle field, he was a martyr to his patriotism; even more, for he had devoted himself almost consciously to death.

Patsy, the Pet Quail

A MERRY BIRD FROM KANSAS AND HIS SAD END.

By a Special Contributor.

SOME years ago, when we lived in Denver, there was a little bird left in our care for a few weeks.

We had some friends stopping with us previous to their going "up to the mines," which was an annual summer excursion of theirs, combining both business and pleasure.

A few days after they left, a gentleman carrying a small pasteboard box, called and inquired for them, and on being informed of their departure for the "hills," seemed very much disappointed, and explained that he had just arrived in the city and expected to leave again on the following day. He said he had brought them a bird, a little pet bird, and he was now at a loss to know what to do with him.

"I'll show him to you," he said, as he lifted the cover off the little perforated box that he carried. I was surprised when a dark brownish-gray bird, about the size of a blackbird, but much plumper in appearance, hopped upon the edge of the box and chirped out a sharp "pee-wy," but made no effort to fly away.

"Why, what a funny little bird!" I exclaimed. "What kind of a bird is he?"

"I don't know," he answered. "He came from Kansas."

The name of Kansas always stirs up thoughts of cyclones, sunflowers and grasshoppers in my mind, and I became more interested in an amused way, but I did not dream that that little bird represented such a veritable little Kansas cyclone of activity as he afterward showed us he was.

"Can he sing?" I asked.

"No, he can't sing," he answered, with an amused smile. "He is just for a pet."

Then, having in mind his remark about the disposal of the bird, I reluctantly offered to care for him until the return of the W——'s from the mountains, for I had a feeling that something would happen to him if I had him.

That "feeling" was the result of long experience, and my "ill-luck" with live stock was a family byword on the old farm in Wisconsin. All sorts of unseemly disasters would befall horse, cow, pig or fowl that I ever owned or that was called mine, and the last straw that convinced me that I was a "hoodoo" to any animal in my possession was when I discovered my beautiful German canary singer dead, without any apparent cause, in his cage one morning only about a week before the arrival of Patsy.

"My canary died about a week ago," I said, "and I can put him in his cage."

"He is not used to being in a cage," the man said. "He will not fly away if you leave him loose."

"What kind of food does he like?"

"He likes almost anything," he replied. "I think wheat would be a good diet for him."

After expressing his gratitude for my kindness, the man left, and I put the bird in Dick's empty cage and resolved that nothing should happen while he was in my charge, if care and watchfulness could prevent it.

Then I went and brought him some wheat, but he would not eat it, which seemed strange, for he afterward showed a remarkable appetite for any hard substance, such as buttons, beads, gravel and like delicacies.

I was wondering what species of the feathered tribe my little charge belonged to. I consulted the neighbors; they all agreed that he was a bright-looking little bird, and he evidently had a cheerful disposition, for as if in answer to all their comments about him, he would sing out, quite cheerily, his "pee-wy" cry, which one of them interpreted into "that's right." But none of them knew what kind of a bird he could be. After that his chirp always passed for "that's right."

When my husband came home that evening, I drew nearer the solution.

"He looks to me like a quail," he said; "a young quail; but he is rather dark, and he has no topknot."

"Oh, I know how we can find out," I said. "I'll take him down to the butcher's tomorrow. Mr. M—— is such a great hunter that he will surely know."

My husband's inquiry as to the bird's name reminded me that I had forgotten to ask.

"Well, we'll just call him Patsy while we have him," he said. "Patsy is a good name for him. He is so miserable in that little cage, let him loose for a while."

Patsy had hardly got out of the cage before he pounced upon some flower seeds that I had left on the sideboard. I rushed to the rescue of my seeds, and he flew into the bedroom and alighted on the chiffonier, and tried very hard to swallow my husband's gold collar buttons. We did not think the collar buttons were suitable food for him, so he flew into the parlor. There he examined some specimens of ore as to their value as food. A moment later he gave me quite a shock when I saw him crunching some rattlesnake rattles in his bill. I kept them as a souvenir from a cattle ranch in Eastern Colorado which I had visited. I thought surely that he would be poisoned by the small particles of the rattles he must have swallowed; but Patsy's time had not come yet.

The next minute found him on my pin cushion, quickly and deftly extracting all kinds of pins and needles from that useful article.

I left my husband to put such dainty morsels out of his way, and to "herd" him while I finished my preparations for supper.

Patsy needed no invitation to the table, and proved that he would eat "almost anything." After satisfying his appetite to a certain extent, he noticed my glass of water and suddenly decided to take a bath. He jumped right into it and tipped it over, and in my efforts to escape the deluge I knocked the glass on the floor and broke it.

"Patsy, you are a naughty bird!" I exclaimed. "You will have to go back into your cage."

"That's right," said Patsy, shaking himself furiously.

The next morning I put Patsy into the little pasteboard box that he was brought in, and took him down to the butcher's for final judgment. As I uncovered him he hopped daintily upon the edge and surveyed his surroundings, but did not attempt to fly away.

"That's a quail—a young female quail," was the butcher's prompt decision.

"That's right," obligingly answered Patsy.

"Yes, there it is—the 'Bob White,'" exclaimed the butcher.

Thanking Mr. M—— for his information, I took Patsy home. I felt as if we had misnamed him. I put him back in his cage, but he was so very restless and unhappy in confinement, that I decided to make the best of it and leave him at liberty most of the time, and to put him in his cage at night and when he was left alone in the house.

He would never let us eat in peace, so one evening when we sat down to supper, Mr. L—— filled a teaspoon with salt, and put it down beside his plate and waited for Patsy. He did not have long to wait, and Patsy dived greedily into the proffered salt. He left the table a good deal quicker than he came. We could almost hear him spit as he shook his head and wiped his bill.

We finished that meal without Patsy's delightful company, but I remembered him with an extra portion afterward.

He was passionately fond of bathing. When we prepared to wash, there would be a dispute as to who would bathe first—Patsy or we.

I was astounded one day, while washing dishes, when he jumped into the dishpan and sent a spray of warm suds all over me.

He liked to sit on my shoulder and pick at my ears or hairpins. When I would go to answer the doorbell, he would be sure to fly after me and alight on my shoulder just as I opened the door, much to the amusement of the caller.

He would sometimes stay on my shoulder for a long time while I was going about the house attending to my household duties. He would express his approval of every turn I took by saying: "That's right."

He took great interest in the mantel clock. I think it was the ticking that attracted him. And his favorite resting-place was the head of a bronze figure on a smaller clock.

My little daughter was then about two years old, just at the age when babies begin to fight against their afternoon nap, so I would go into the bedroom and lie down with her until she was asleep.

The first day after his arrival he had not noticed where we went when I put baby to sleep, and I heard him fly from room to room, chirping all the time. He finally found us, and I kept quiet for a time just to see what he would do; but it did not take Patsy long to conclude that he also needed a nap, so he settled himself on the back of a chair and apparently slept as long as I was quiet.

After that he would take his daily nap with us.

When baby would sit on the floor, he would work with might and main to dislodge her shoe buttons—a performance that would set her into spasms of joy.

Patsy had now been with us for several weeks, showing us a fine example of the strenuous life, and I began to congratulate myself that I would be able to deliver him over to his rightful owners, without any serious mishaps befalling him. But I reckoned too soon, for poor Patsy was destined to meet an untimely end while yet in my care.

One evening, when we had company and were sitting in the parlor talking, Patsy, as usual, received a good deal of attention by reason of his restless activity and cunning ways. I made the remark that, although he was quite a "nuisance," we should yet miss him when he was gone.

Hardly had I spoken before Patsy discovered what we had forgotten—to cover the matches. The red heads of the matches looked good to him, so he proceeded to nip one off. I could see the blue light of the match in his bill, and if it had not been for my hasty interference I believe he would have set himself afire.

It only served to quiet him for a little while, however. He was soon as busy as ever, and I thought he was all right; but later on he showed slight signs of distress.

The next morning, at daybreak, I missed his merry voice and his flutterings for liberty. I went into the kitchen, and found Patsy very sick and hardly able to sit up on the perch.

"Poor Patsy, you are sick this morning, aren't you?" I said.

"That's right," answered Patsy very feebly.

My efforts to doctor him proved useless, and in half an hour he was dead.

We concluded that he had inhaled some of the fumes of the match he was trying to eat the night before, and this was what caused his death.

In these days of kodaks and snapshots, I regret that I have not his picture. I would prize it highly as a remembrance of quite the oddest and most intelligent pet bird that I have ever seen.

THE LOVELY RIVIERA AS SEEN BY AN ANGELENO.

By a Special Contributor.

IT was a gray, chilly day when we finally left Paris for the sun-warmed slopes of the Riviera. A bitter wind was blowing along the quays of the Seine, the leafless trees and sodden shrubbery of the Luxembourg gardens were a depressing sight. Who would stay in the gloomy north when scarcely twelve hours away were the blue skies and sunshine of the "Côte d'Azur," the Sapphire Coast of Pleasure?

Friends who "had done it and knew," told us that it was quite unnecessary to take the expensive "train de luve;" that if we took the ordinary Paris-Lyons Mediterranean express we should be quite comfortable. We should probably have the whole compartment to ourselves, they said, as very few traveled by that train, and we could roll ourselves up in our rugs and sleep quite as well as in the exorbitant-priced "wagons-lits" of the "luxe." It may happen so sometimes, but again we proved to ourselves that the falsest of economies is to try to save on traveling expenses. All through the night we sat bolt upright, wedged in between unattractive humanity, snatching occasional minutes of disturbed sleep through endless years of dreary wakefulness.

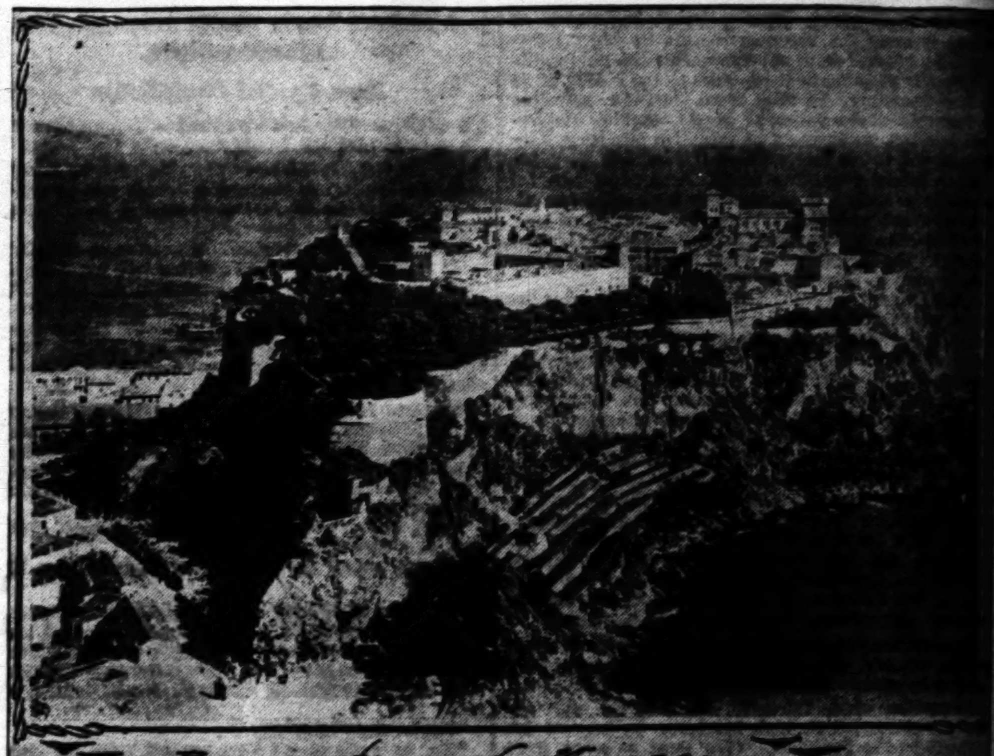
The dawn brought some relief. We were nearing Marseilles, passing through a sterile, forbidding-looking country; but the sky was clear and blue, and the sun shone with a brilliancy that we had not seen for months. At Marseilles the situation was relieved somewhat; there was time for hot coffee and rolls at the buffet, and most of our fellow travelers got off. The rising sun shone warm through the windows, and as we sped eastward to Cannes we began to realize something of the charm of the famous coast.

The Riviera proper may be said to begin at Cannes; there is a sporadic outcrop of it at Hyères, near Toulon, but the real Riviera, the enchanted land of sunshine, flowers and palms, stretches from Cannes to San Remo, with Monaco and Monte Carlo as its center. About ten miles from Cannes is Fréjus, which may be described as the favorite beach resort of Napoleon the Great; it was here that he made his sensational embarkations and landings. Here one gets one's first glimpse of the Mediterranean, a sea of flashing blue under a sky ablaze with light; after the gray chill of Paris it was as great a change as if one had been transported overnight from Chicago to Santa Monica. The whole scene reminds us very much of California, the sharp peaks of the Ester-' range, the brown rolling country, the clumps of prickly pears, the occasional date palms, all were purely Southern Californian, as also were the intense blue of the sky and the exhilarating, wine-like tonic of the air.

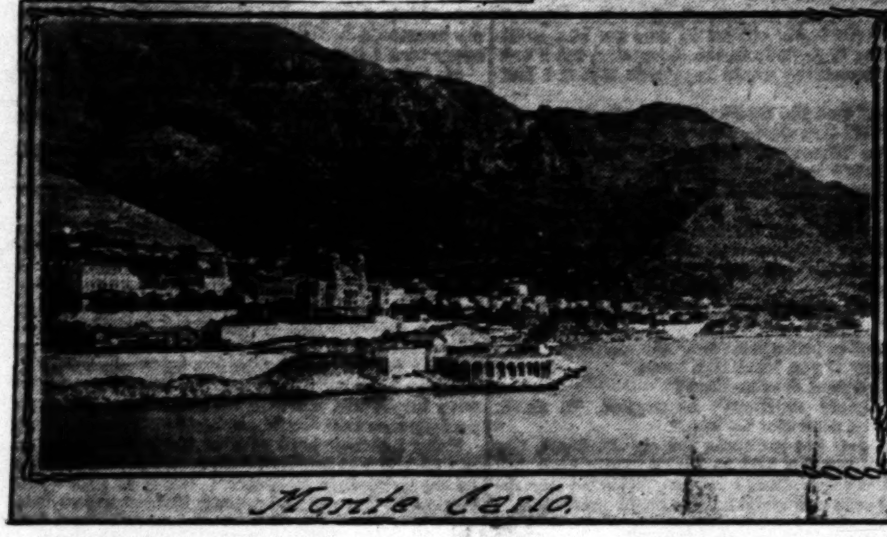
To the visitor from the favored coast of our southland, the Riviera offers little in the way of climate or vegetation that we are not familiar with at home; in fact, it is inferior to California in both of these respects. It is the exquisite art, the delightful finish of the country that constitute its chief attraction, the manner in which every natural feature is seized upon and welded into a harmonious relation to the whole. The general effect is that of a stage setting. It seems almost impossible that such an obviously arranged-for-effect country can be the seat of anything but a comic-opera life; one is constantly looking around for the limelight man.

It was at Cannes that this scenic quality first struck us, as we sighted the gleaminb white town spread around the half-moon bay, with the old city, topped by the crumbling chateau, climbing the slopes of Mont Chevalier. At that time we had not been in Italy, but it was then that the meaning of Italian opera burst upon us. The steep, narrow streets of the old town, some of them mere flights of steps, the houses braced with flying arches against possible earthquakes, the wonderful effects of light and shadow, the frowning towers of the castle and the glimpses of the Mediterranean framed between buttressed walls, all were of the stage, stagey. Many of the peasants and fishermen still cling to their old picturesque costumes, and on market days, or along the quay when the fishers landed their catch, we were in constant expectation that the whole population would suddenly come to attention at the tap of the conductor's baton, and break out into the strains of "Mansaniello," or listen respectfully while Leonora wailed her melodious woe. In spite of its blue sky and semi-tropic vegetation, Cannes, we found, could be quite cold.

A mistral was blowing as we arrived, and as we drove down to the pension on the Boulevard de la Croisette, to which we had been recommended, we were glad of overcoats, in spite of the avenue of magnificent date palms that lines the shore. At the pension the proprietress, noting our chilled appearance, felt called upon to apologize. "The coldest day for years—quite exceptional!" she said. We smiled inwardly, remembering the times when we had said the same thing to grumbling easterners, who grudged California a drop of rain, or shivered when the snows of Mount Lowe cooled the breezes. It was our turn now; we were the tourists, and we made the most of our opportunity, booming the superiority of California, until we found that we were being much misunderstood, for there is a suburb of Cannes called "La Californie."



Promontory of Monaco.



Monte Carlo.

Promenade des Anglais, Nice.

Cannes is a handsome city of some 20,000 inhabitants, apparently mostly English; they go there in droves every winter, elderly gentlemen, and the female sex in every gamut of age, from just-emerged infancy to the edge of the grave. They are as much at home there as at Brighton or Eastbourne; the girls wander around in unchaperoned freedom, while the matrons and retired-on-half-pay generals and colonels sit about with an air of having just made the place, and feeling, on the whole, rather pleased with their work.

Five miles to the east of Cannes is Antibes, an interesting old town that still retains part of its medieval fortified walls; it is one of the oldest cities on the coast, having been founded by the Greeks in 500 B. C. The very stones of Antibes teem with romance; the city has been besieged, taken, burned and sacked on an average of once every twenty-five years for nearly eighteen centuries. Its last experience was a bombardment by the Austrians in 1813. Since then, the storm center of the world's history having shifted, Antibes has had a well-deserved rest. Being somewhat exposed to the mistral, that vicious blending of a Boston east wind and our California "Santa Ana," that is the bane of the Riviera winter, Antibes is not so popular a resort as Cannes. It has the reputation of being none too healthful, and we, having spent a night there, can vouch for the fact that the Antibes mosquitoes linger as late as December. But to the seeker after antiquity Antibes is full of interest; many days could be spent in inspecting its sun-warmed walls, with their fragments of Roman remains built into the medieval towers and fortifications. All traces of the Greek city have disappeared, but there are distinct evidences to be seen of the Saracenic occupation in the eighth century.

Twelve miles inland from Cannes is Grasse, perched amid the olive-clad slopes of the Esterels, famous for its flower farms and perfumes. Grasse, with its suburb Costebelle, is probably the sweetest-smelling town on earth, every available yard of land being devoted to the culture of some fragrant flower. Groves of orange trees, green for their flowers alone, shade acres of violets, while all around are miles of roses, narcissus, jasmine and heliotrope. Most of the so-called "oriental" attar of roses comes from Grasse, whose roses are considered superior in fragrance to those of even Shiraz itself.

Queen Victoria spent several months at Grasse many years ago, the Grand Hotel being rented entire for her accommodation; in the grounds is a seat bearing the inscription that it was Her Majesty's favorite resting-place. We thought the seat that had supported such a weight of greatness would uphold us, too, so we sat upon it and inspected the view hall-marked by the approval of royalty.

Grasse was also the residence of another queen, quite a different sort of person from the respected Victoria. This was Jeanne, Queen of Naples, a contemporary of Boccacio; from all accounts of her she was a spirited lady of distinctly unethical tendencies. Her escapades drew down upon her the reproof of the Vatican, but instead of receiving the censure of the Pope in a properly humble frame of mind, she went to work and succeeded in ousting the occupant of St. Peter's throne and installed another Pope of her own choosing. For this she was cursed by Saint Catherine of Siena and was shortly afterward murdered at her castle in Naples. Part of the Queen's palace may still be seen at Grasse, and the town is full of legends connected with her, any one of which would put the wildest historical novel to shame. What a treasure trove to modern "yellow journals" a queen like that would be nowadays! Royalty has lost its spirit of late; the most exciting thing a queen can do now is to elope with a music teacher, but the [illegible] week of Jeanne's life would have provided scare heads for a twelvemonth.

The most interesting excursion to be made from Cannes is to the Isles des Lérins, the two islands of Sainte Marguerite and Sainte Honorât, lying about [illegible] miles off shore to the east. These islands have been made the scene of one of Marie Corelli's [illegible] romances, which may in itself be their claim to immortality, but they have also a vivid history of their [illegible]. Nice is intensely aristocratic. A directory of Cimiez, or a page from the register of one of the big hotels, would read like an extract from the Almanach de Gotha. To judge from the crowds that throng the Monaco trains, and the strings of autos that speed eastward over the Corniche road, it may be inferred that one of the chief attractions of Nice is that it is so near, while yet so reputably far, from the Casino at Monte Carlo. Like Cannes, Nice can be cold at times. Noting the tremendous drop in temperature that takes place with the sunset, we were at first puzzled as to how the many kinds of purely tropical vegetation were enabled to stand it. The date palm, the great scenic stock in trade of the Riviera, is of course pretty hardy; we had seen occasional specimens of it on the southern coast of England, and we knew of one that dragged out an existence for several years in Seattle. But the bananas, the bougainvilleas, the many kinds of palm that are accounted doubtful even in Los Angeles, surprised us. We finally solved the problem one evening in the Casino gardens at Monte Carlo. There was a chill as of threatened frost in the air, and we saw that every tender shrub and tree was wrapped in straw.

At Nice begins the most beautiful part of the Corniche road, the most famous road in Europe, that winds along the mountains, sometimes more than a thousand feet above the sea. In many places the slopes are so precipitous that the road is carried on huge arches of masonry. Here and there it leaps a ravine on a flying arch, or tunnels through some impassible buttress of rock. Known originally as the Via Aurelia, after the Roman Emperor Aurelian, the Corniche was laid out as a means of communication between Rome and her Gallic empire; for a thousand years it continued to be the easiest, and in winter, the only, way into Italy. It was along this road that Dante came when exiled from Florence; Petrarch traversed it on his way to Avignon, Napoleon and his army passed over it in 1796, and Charles Albert of Sardinia, after his defeat by the Austrians at Novara, fled along it to La Turbia. The most picturesque part of the Corniche lies between Nice and San Remo. This is the very heart of the Riviera, where the mountains are highest, the sea the bluest and the vegetation the most luxuriant. "Little Africa" it is called, and African it looks, with its sun-scorched slopes and exotic verdure. Looking down from the Corniche the Mediterranean is seen, far below, with perhaps some white town or village stretching along the strip of ground between the mountains and the sea. The lower slopes are covered with olive groves, and the cliffs, wherever they afford the slightest foothold, are terraced and cultivated. Massive stone walls, often thirty feet high, are built to uphold even a few square yards of soil; on these hanging gardens are grown delicious winter vegetables that are exported for the delectation of London and Paris. Here and there a mountain torrent rushes down some narrow ravine, clusters of pines cling in shady spots, or clumps of prickly pears and century plants, grow out of the crevices of the rocks. On detached rocky points little villages, so gray and weather-beaten as to be hardly distinguished from the mountain, cluster around the crumbling ruins of some old castle. Roccabruna and La Turbia are the best-known of these eyries, but Eze, perched on its rock 1300 feet above the sea, is the most picturesque, and is in itself an epitome of the romantic, bloodstained history of the coast. The railroad runs along the seashore and at the foot of the Rock of Eze is a station and a little hotel, where one can breakfast among the orange trees, almost within reach of the spray that dashes on the shore beneath. From here a path climbs up to Eze, but people who are unused to walking would better take one of the donkeys that may be engaged at the foot for the trip.

Mentone, supposed to be the warmest station on the Riviera, lies about five miles from the Italian frontier. Its name can be pronounced French fashion, in two syllables with clipped "n's," or Italianwise, in three syllables, Men-to-nay; but never, like that of its namesake near Redlands, to rhyme with "own." The mountains here rise to the height of 4000 feet, inclosing two amphitheaters of sloping terraces, along which the town is built, with the usual ancient city, on a rocky promontory that separates the east and west bays of Mentone. The Corniche road passes right through Mentone, then climbs the hills again on its way to Ventimiglia. Of Ventimiglia few people cherish recollections, it is the frontier station, and customhouses are rarely popular with travelers. As soon as one passes the invincible imaginary line of the frontier the character of the country changes; it is no longer France, but Italy. Nice and Mentone have not been part of France so very long, but the forty-odd years that have elapsed since their cession have sufficed to stamp them as unmistakably French. At Ventimiglia Italy begins; everything is a little more out at elbows, a little more picturesque, and considerably dirtier. There are more rags, more beggars, and Bordighera, with its palms, is like a bit of Calabria set down within sight of the Alps.

The palms of Bordighera are world-famous. There is, of course, a legend connected with them, which in this case has, for a legend, the entirely superfluous merit of being true. It is the well-known story of the man who, when the obelisk in St. Peter's Square at Rome was being raised, called out to "wet the ropes" and saved the mass of stone from falling. Being told to choose his reward, he asked that his native place, Bordighera, should be given the monopoly of supplying the palm branches used in the Palm Sunday festival at Rome. That was in 1584, but Bordighera still enjoys its "palm trust," and the odor of sanctity thus engendered has caused it to be the principal source of supply of palm branches for all Europe. It is said that there are 20,000 date palms in Bordighera; they usurp the place of the olive as the principal feature of the landscape, covering whole hillsides, growing thickly, in all shapes and sizes, from the three-century-old giant down to the baby bunch-of green-feathers-stuck-in-the-ground state. Those who would see these palm groves in their beauty must do so early in the year, before the annual crop of branches is harvested; after Easter the palms present a sadly bald and shorn appearance. The town of Bordighera is a quiet, picturesque place, girt round by mountains, washed by the bluest of seas, and shadowed by its whispering palms. There is more of nature and less of fashion than at Nice or Monaco, and the winter residents are mainly those attracted by the quiet beauty of the place.

But after all it is Monte Carlo that is the chief attraction of the Riviera. The most gorgeous settings of nature are somewhat tame without human interest, and at Monte Carlo may be seen every possible variation of humanity, from reigning royalty down to the beggars in the streets, all moving together with a certain democracy. Before the goddess of chance all men are equal; she deals out her favors, or her blows, without apparent regard for the personality of the recipient.

The principality of Monaco, the smallest independent monarchy in the world, is three miles long by two miles broad; it is ruled by the Grimaldi family, the Princes of Monaco, and supports a standing army of six men. The town of Monaco, perched on the rock, consists of three streets and the huge palace; but since the coming of M. Blanc, and his gambling establishment, the whole principality has been built up into practically one large city of villas and hotels. The gambling house pays all the municipal expenses, and the inhabitants live free from taxation; the townsfolk are debarred from entering the Casino, except on one day in the year, when the whole population throngs up to the gaming tables to take a throw out of the tricky goddess.

What revenue the Prince derives from the Casino is not known, but it is variously estimated at from half a million to one million dollars per annum. The Princess of Monaco is an American lady who thought to gratify her social ambitions by a marriage with a reigning sovereign; but she found that, owing to his connection with the gambling-house, the Prince was officially frowned upon by the courts of Europe, notwithstanding the fact that they provide a large percentage of its supporters. Public and private morality are two different things, and while the royalties were willing to go incognito and play a quiet game at Monte Carlo, they would not offend public opinion by receiving the Prince who profited by the revenues of the establishment. The Princess was thus cheated of her hopes until she gained the ear of Queen Victoria, who consented to receive the Prince and Princess, provided the former gave his promise that the Casino should be suppressed. Accordingly all Europe was astonished when the Queen of England, the very incarnation of British respectability, entertained, with the honors due to reigning sovereigns, the Prince and Princess of notorious Monaco. But time went on, the Casino still ran wide open, and it was soon evident that the Prince either could not, or would not, keep his side of the bargain. Since then the sudden friendship between the courts of St. James and Monaco has cooled, and another international marriage has been written down a failure.

The Prince is a clever scientist, and spends most of his time in his yacht, dredging up the floor of the ocean, and writing learned treatises on the flora and fauna of the deep sea.

No expense has been spared at Monte Carlo to make a naturally lovely spot lovelier still. The gardens of the Casino are alone worth crossing the ocean to see, and even the glaring "bride-cakey" architecture of the Casino is toned down by the glowing gorgeousness of its setting. The attire of the visitors is in keeping with the riot of color all around, the flocks of human swallows who fly here for the winter vying in their plumage with the iridiscent hues of sea, sky and vegetation. Monte Carlo is the great trying-out place for the autocrats of Paris fashions; it is here that the styles for the coming spring and summer are launched, while yet Paris and Vienna are in the grip of winter. At the Casino one of the finest orchestras in the world gives free concerts every day; these concerts are one of the great baits of the management, it is such a commendable excuse to "run up to the Casino to hear the music." Once under the same roof as the gaming tables few people go away without "just a look at the tables;" and it is on that one look that much of the fortune of the place depends.

The mysteries of the tables, with their "roulette," "trente et quarante," etc., are too well known to need description; it is the players who are the most interesting. Simply-dressed women, traveling incognito, whose faces are marked by the direct, straight-ahead royal stare, rub shoulders with needy adventurers; stout, expensively-upholstered English duchesses stand side by side with spangled, painted female bywords of Paris. Prime ministers, waiters, Hindu princes, Chinese ambassadors, lodging-house keepers, gilded youth from all the capitals of Europe, South American planters, famous men and women, and men and women famous for their infamy, all gathered around the tables, waiting upon the Fates of the Green Cloth.

The gambling-rooms are always kept heated almost to suffocation, and heavily perfumed; a ray of sunlight or a breath of outdoor air might bring an awakening of sanity to that feverish crowd, hypnotized by the dancing balls, and the monotonous call of the croupiers.

To step out of the Salle des Jeux into the wide peace of the night, where the palms tower overhead against the stars, and the Mediterranean shimmers in the moonlight, is relief unspeakable.

HENRY E. TWOSE.

Bachelors' Conceit and Loneliness.

The matron of the foundling asylum set six nude babies, fat and pink, in a row on a bed.

"Take your choice, sir," she said. "A bachelor, eh? Well, you are the first bachelor that has adopted a child in my experience. Married couples adopt, of course, and old maids are great adopters; but bachelors, no."

"I'll take this one, please," said the bachelor, after a lot of poking about, mouth examining, and so on. "Would you mind—er—doing it up at once? My automobile is at the door."

While the matron did up the fattest of the babies in queer white trailing garments, the bachelor said thoughtfully:

"We bachelors don't adopt children, because we are so conceited. An old maid adopts: her loneliness is breaking her heart, she is lonely, and frankly she admits it. But in his conceit the bachelor pretends that he is altogether sufficient unto himself. He pretends that in his hours of solitude he finds in himself an abundance of exquisite entertainment. He thinks that he would fall in his acquaintances' esteem if he admitted, by adopting a foundling, that there were times, late at night in his still rooms, when his isolation, his increasing years, the thought of death, the thought of the girl he might have married, tortured him intolerably. No, no! That must never be admitted!

"Silly bachelor, he fancies that his world regards him as something godlike, always happy and contented, on a pedestal. He does all he can to keep up that illusion.

"I, frankly, am miserable in my bachelorhood. I am old and lonely. And this kiddy will cheer me wonderfully. But I had a hard fight with my conceit before I could bring myself to adopt it."

Woman's Balloon Dress.

"This is a woman's ballooning suit," said a New York tailor. "What do you think of it?"

The suit was of soft gray cloth. The jacket was smart, it fitted over a waistcoat of red silk, and—the knickerbockers were cut like riding breeches, very full and wrinkly about the hips, and buttoning, smooth and tight, over the knee with a half-dozen little buttons at the front.

"This is the third balloon suit I have made for the wives of rich aëronauts," said the tailor. "They are all knicker suits. Ballooning is too dangerous to admit of cumbersome and entangling skirts. Pretty and modest rigs they are. A cap goes with them, brown shoes, and puttees or high leather gaiters."

Queer Things in Rome.

SHORT RAMBLES AMONG ITS GALLERIES AND CHURCHES.

By a Special Contributor.

"WHY, of course we will be late pulling into Rome. It's sprinkling, and that alone is enough to delay any Italian train," said the New Yorker in our compartment. "You young ladies surely didn't expect to be on time? That's unheard of in this country. You think this train is too slow and making too many stops, do you? Well, this is nothing to a train that I was traveling on once in France. It stopped so long in a field that I got out to investigate, and found that a pig checked in the baggage car had broken loose and was running away. The pig continued to run and the trainmen after it. They were afraid to go on without it, so they went on with the chase. It took just three hours and a half to catch that pig, then the train moved on serenely. Now, that's a true story. Makes you think of the Twentieth Century Limited, doesn't it? Great country this."

By this time we were able to believe anything concerning the railroad system. We had purchased our tickets from Naples to Rome at Cook's for 20 lire 50 cent., or about $4.10. When we drove to the Naples station we regretted the fact that we had left our hotel so early, for we had over twenty minutes to wait. We leisurely followed our facchino or porter to our train, and found to our distress that all the compartments were occupied by people who sat firmly and disagreeably in their seats and shouted "Completo!" very loudly when we opened the door. The corridors were crowded with luggage and men standing. The journey from Naples to Rome occupies six hours at best, and we groaned at the prospect. Finally, after much effort, two of the party found seats in a compartment with some flirtatious young Italians and an Italian couple with a baby that snuffled and was stuffed with food every moment of the entire trip. The New Yorker had come to our rescue and made room for the others in his carriage. We discovered that the proper method in Italy is to arrive from forty-five minutes to an hour before the train leaves, find seats, then sit and watch the poor Americans who are so misguided that they do not know that the railroad plans to have a few more passengers than can be accommodated.

The Roman station, where twentieth-century engines puff and shriek, is almost opposite the Baths of Diocletian and the Museo delle Terme, and this mingling of the modern and the ancient is typical of the whole city. From the haggling of the curio store, one may step unwittingly into the hallowed ground of the pagan gods. Three Romes are built upon the same territory, to the confusion of the student tourist, who is forever trying to distinguish between the ruins piled one upon the other. The Romans of the Middle Ages were troubled not at all by the intermingling strata of their city. If some stately marble columns protruded half their length through the accumulation of débris, they regarded their presence as so much less labor and built a house, the roof of whose porch rested on these pillars. This sort of conglomerate building is no uncommon sight today.

Many travelers, thinking only of the ancient Alba Longa built up on the seven hills, are astonished, on their first visit, by the fashion of the modern city. Carriages of the latest pattern and powerful automobiles filled with women dressed in Paris creations and men in London clothes are in constant procession in the streets; yet underneath this gay parade the ground is honeycombed by miles of catacombs of the early Christians. One sees the same style as on the thoroughfares of Paris and New York. The happy, care-free temperament of the Italians, the money of the Americans, and the ingenuity of the French, make a combination that supplies Rome with a rush of hilarious pleasure and unceasing enjoyment. The crumbling walls and the profusion of temples, first pagan, then Christian, make a setting that is so attractive and so appealing to the imagination that it has no equal. Here, in winter, the wealthy Americans and Europeans throng to be warmed by the Italian sun, quieted by the music of the great cathedrals, and to be entertained by each other.

Rapid progress on the streets is always frustrated by the beggars, who invariably have ten children and a blind father and mother. Little boys pursue you and stand in front of you beseeching you artfully to buy their postal cards and mosaics. The streets are so full of mosaics that it seems as if they must have been made by machinery in Pittsburgh. The venders look up at you pathetically, and say in a coaxing voice: "You no like my goods, you no like my t'ings, lady?" About a week's residence in Rome is all that is necessary to acquire a hardened heart and eyes that do not see the boy who has followed you for blocks. After ten days you do not hear the cabman's whip that is snapped loudly and accurately about an inch from your ear.

The mosaic venders expect about a quarter of their first price. If you really want some of their wares it is fatal to betray the slightest interest. We found the most effective way was to look very bored and say we did not want it at all, when we had decided the treasure must be ours. The result was always the same. They pursued as we retreated. "How much you pay, lady, how much you pay?" It is only the Americans that are reckless enough to set a price, and it is a costly price, upon which the natives fatten. Although it took time, we waited for their offer, to which was always added the information that the ten children would starve, but it was "nothing, oh, nothing."

One morning I remained in St. John Lateran after our party had left, and had only one lira, or 20 cents, in my pocket. As I emerged from the darkness of the cathedral and stepped into the sunlight, one of the crowd of beggars that always congregate about church doors came forward and cringingly offered me two pins for 3 lire each. Thinking to get rid of him and the rest qui
I turned my pockets inside out and showed him my lira and said I must reach my hotel. He smiled hap and said: "Take them," and insisted upon my buy

One of the most bizarre sights of Rome is the Fair, which is held every Wednesday morning in th streets not far from the Piazza Venezia. Here the mans offer for sale everything from onions to a old jewelry or a pair of brass bellows. The Americ flock here in search of antiques, and the natives upon our countrymen's readiness to believe the their wares provided they look battered and decr enough. If a Roman knows only one word of Engl it—is always "anteeka." When interest in a sale they cry "Anteeka, anteeka!" Occasionally some ure from a depleted house does find its way to the Fair and is sold to some discriminating American song, but for every genuine antique there are a and fakes.

The great desire of the common Italian woman's is to own an American hat, which is curious, consi

There are a few regulation sights that no one cares to miss. In spite of the fact that it was used as a marble quarry, the Colosseum still retains its grandeur and surprises most tourists by being elliptical. It is most impressive when seen in the moonlight. The Fountain of Trevi, too, should be visited at night. If you throw a coin into its sparkling waters and wish to return to Rome and a moonbeam strikes you, the gods will grant your petition. One pilgrimage in Rome nearly disabled our party. The dome of St. Peter's is the highest in the world, and some Americans at our hotel told us of the glories of the view from its topmost gallery. Early one bright morning we sallied forth, well and strong, to make the ascent. We had some difficulty in finding the correct entrance, but after walking about half a mile inside the Vatican we came to the right door, but the guard told us that the dome was not open to the public that day. We gave him a fee and started up the stone steps. We climbed and climbed, and kept meeting people who told us we were nearly at the top. Finally we reached an exit and discovered to our grief that we were only on the roof of the building proper. The dome was yet to scale. Up and up we went, always on the bias. The stairs, which were about two feet wide, encircled the dome, and we were never able to stand up straight, but had to lean to one side. On and on we struggled, knowing that the descent would be the only salvation for the curve in our spines. When we stopped to gather courage and breath, we spurred each other on by the thoughts of the grandeur of the view awaiting us. After a while we reached the last step, and with shaking knees stumbled into the outer gallery and sank on the stone floor. The guards offered us camp stools, but nothing could induce us to move. We looked about us, but alas! there was no Tiber, no walls of Nero, no view, nothing but clouds, fog and mist. Silently and slowly we descended. The only alleviation to our misery was the fact that we met several people coming up and told them "it was just a little ways." At noon we returned to our hotel chastened and subdued. On the way we tried to buy some liniment for our aching knees, but the druggists could not understand us and offered us baby food. St. Peter's dome was the last thing in Europe we climbed.

Roped Into Matrimony.

THE DESPERATE MEANS TAKEN TO GET ADONIRAM MARRIED.

By a Special Contributor.

"ADVERTISING," continued the man with the hump-backed nose, as he warmed up to his theme, "advertising is the greatest power in the world today. It is advertising that makes the wheels go 'round. It is advertising that grabs the forces of nature and puts 'em to work. Science provides the harness, the machinery, for 'em, but it's advertising that makes 'em get busy. It's advertising that—that——"

"Possibly you're right," interrupted the red-headed man in the corner, "but suppose you elucidate."

"Certainly I will. It's the easiest thing goin'. We've got electricity and steam and air and water all working for us. What for? Just for fun? Just to please the children? Not on your life. They got their backs bent over, so to speak, and in the sweat of their brows, so to speak, they're making things for us; things for us to eat, to wear, to adorn our houses, to make us comfortable, to make us happy. So. Now, then, what is it keeps 'em at work? Why don't they lay down and quit us? They didn't have to work in the old times. Why do they work now, night and day, day and night, never lettin' up? Why? Simplest thing in the world. Supply and demand. Supply and demand. But what makes the demand? Our daddies got along without these things, didn't they—most of them? What makes the demand now? Why do we have to have these things—must have 'em; can't get along without 'em? What created this demand that didn't exist before? Why, advertising—advertising. What is it makes the wheels go 'round? Supply and demand. What is supply and demand? Business. What makes business? Advertising. Simplest thing in the world. Talk about your telegraph and your telephones—why, if it wasn't for advertising the wires would sag to the ground between each two poles, and the railroads would have to buy all the Standard Oil products to keep their tracks from goin' to rust.'"

"That's certainly going some," admitted the red-headed man in the corner, "but there's undoubtedly a great deal of truth in what you say. I haven't the slightest doubt that if all advertising were to stop right now the world would immediately commence to go backward."

"Maybe so, maybe so," said the passenger from Pawhuska, "and yet advertising isn't always a good thing. Sometimes it's dangerous. Look what that she devil over in Indiana did with a little bit of a matrimonial ad. That shows its power, to be sure, but it shows, too, that it's got to be used in the right way. It's a terrible weapon in bad hands. But talking about matrimonial ads. and trouble makes me think of the time I played Cupid for Adoniram Johnson. Don't suppose you ever heard of Ad. Johnson?"

"Never did," answered the red-headed man in the corner, "but I'd like very much to know what relation Ad Johnson bears to ad. matrimonial."

"Well, I'll explain it to you," said the passenger from Pawhuska. "Adoniram came into Oklahoma with the rush in '89. He lit onto a pretty likely piece o' ground down on the Cimarron close to Kingfisher, and he froze to it. Built him a little sod house and lived all by himself. And farm! Say, what that fellow didn't know about farmin' wouldn't make a preface for a spellin' book. Talk about makin' the desert bloom, why Ad. Johnson was certainly the original bloomer from Bloomville. Didn't seem to make much difference about the seasons, he'd have the biggest crop in the county, and every fall he'd stow away a lot o' money in the bank and saw wood.

"He was certainly spellin' prosperity with a big P, and all the women said it was a shame that Ad. kept on livin' in that little sod house all by himself instead o' marryin' some nice girl and bein' happy ever after, like the rest of the married men in that section. But Ad. didn't seem to be in the marryin' way. I guess he was the shyest man that ever come to Oklahoma, and that's sayin' a whole lot, for everybody knows that modesty's our long suit. You could not get him in forty rods of a petticoat to save your life, so there didn't seem to be much chance o' gettin' him hitched up in double harness. There was some reason for Ad's backwardness, too. He wasn't pretty to look at. He was about six feet long, mostly neck and legs, and he had a countenance that would have made his fortune in the undertakin' business. It commenced at his collar button and ran clear over the top of his head to a little fringe of faded hair at the back, and it was the oddest collection of hills and hollows you ever saw in your life. The sun had tanned his face to a fine saddle color, but the top of his head was as white and smooth as a baby's face except when a woman looked at him; then it would turn as red as one of these toy balloons.

"Of course, Ad got the reputation of bein' a confirmed woman hater, but we found out afterward that we'd misjudged him. We found out that he was a woman worshiper; that he was just pinin' for a woman companion; but he was so blamed bashful that he couldn't even speak to one let alone ask one to marry him. How'd we find it out? Why, one day a woman got off the train at Kingfisher and begun to make inquiries about Ad. Somebody said they'd seen him just a few minutes before, but when they looked for him he couldn't be found. She went out to his house, but the door was locked, and after stayin' around two or three days she got on the train and went back to wherever it was she come from. Two or three weeks afterward another woman dropped in and the same thing happened, and in about a month more here comes another woman inquirin' for Ad. We begin to git curious, and the next time Ad went to town we set a watch on him. He was all dressed up in a new suit o' store clothes, and he had on a blue necktie with red stripes in it you could see a mile away. He hung around the depot all mornin' sayin' nothing to nobody; but when the train whistled he begun to back off, and when it stopped he was down at the next corner, with nothin' but his head and about a yard of his neck in sight, peekin' around from behin' Jim Dawson's drug store. A strange woman got off and commenced rubberin' for somebody. One of the boys went up to her.

"'Was you lookin' for Mr. Johnson?' says he.

"'Yes,' she says, 'do you know where he is?'

"'Sure, ma'am,' he says; 'he's over at the drug store waitin' for you. I'll take you over.'

"All the rest of us went along to see the fun, but before we got half-way there we saw Ad cuttin' down the road toward the country, takin' in about a rod at every step. Looked like a giraffe in a hurry. Wasn't anything in town could overhaul him on two legs, and we let him go on. Found out that afternoon he was over in the next county and still goin'. Of course, the widow was mad. Who wouldn't be? She said she'd come out there all the way from Muncie, Ind., to marry Ad, in answer to an advertisement in one of these matrimonial papers. It had taken all she had to pay her fare, and here she was, in a strange country, flat broke, and the man she'd expected to take her in his arms had fled. Boohoo! It was tough. And she was a mighty good-looking widow woman, too; a lady any man could be proud of. We made up our minds right there that this long-distance playin' with the affections of unprotected females in various parts of these United States by this long-legged, chicken-hearted Don Joo-an had to be stopped; also we felt it our duty to restrain Adoniram's impetuous bashfulness and get him married in spite of himself. So we explained the situation to the widow, told her what was the matter with Ad, what a good fellow he really was and what a fine farm he had, and we conspired together.

"Well, we fixed it up with the editor of that matrimonial paper and sent the widow over to Guthrie to wait until she was wanted. In two or three days Ad sneaked back home, and pretty soon he commenced gettin' letters from the widow, sent of course, by way of the matrimonial editor, so he wouldn't catch on to where she was. She reproached him gently for his fickleness, and he was mighty sorry; wrote her if she'd come again he'd stay hitched if it killed him. When he come to town to meet her the second time we made all the arrangements for a coop, as the French say. We stationed a man on every road leadin' out of Kingfisher and had his horse locked up. The other times Ad had been in too big a hurry to get his horse, but we wasn't takin' any chances.

"Adoniram went up to the depot that mornin' as bold as a lion. When the whistle blew he stuck to his post, though he was lookin' mighty sick, and the boys begun to believe he was goin' to hold on this time. But the minute the edge of the widow's skirt showed on the platform Ad's courage fled, and so did he. Up the main street he went. Gee! but you ought to have seen that fellow run. There never was anything to beat it in Oklahoma. Out the north road he took like a jack rabbit in a prairie fire. That happened to be my road. I was waitin' for him behind a sycamore, with a lasso in my good right hand.

"Somehow or another, I didn't figure right on his speed. He must 'a' been goin' a mile a minute, for when that noose settled down over his shoulders he stopped with a jerk that nearly took me off my pony and doubled him up into a bowknot at the side of the road. I thought he was dead, but when the crowd came up with the widow there was a doctor in the bunch, and he said there was nothin' the matter with him except an arm and a couple o' ribs broken, and a crack in his head. So we carried him out to his sod house, put the widow to nursin' him, and of course the rest was easy. I don't live in that part of Oklahoma now, but every Christmas Ad sends me a couple of turkeys, just to show his gratitude, and they've gilded that lasso and hung it on the wall."

"Uh huh! Didn't I tell you!" exclaimed the man with the Roman nose. "Don't that prove the power and the beauty and beneficence of advertising? Don't it, now? Don't it?"

C. S. YOST.

American French.

He gazed complacently at the gay labels on his trunks.

"Funny how you hear in Paris at this season"—so he continued his reminiscences of travel—"our thin American accent struggling with the sonorous French tongue.

"You hear queer mistakes, too. No end of 'em. The queerest I came across was made by a Senator from the West.

"This Senator at the Chatham wanted to say: 'I am hungry.' He should have said: 'J'ai faim.' Then the waiter would have brought him a meal at once. What he did say was:

"'Je suis fameux, garcon.' He said there: 'I'm famous, waiter.' And the waiter, impressed, bowed and smiled. 'Congratulations, sir.'

"No food came; he must have made an error; so he tried again:

"'Garcon, j'ai une femme.' That meant he had a wife. The waiter said he was sure she was a winner.

"Rather red now, he took a third dive:

"'Je suis femme.' Gee! then the Senator said he was a woman.

"'And madame dresses in this way for comfort's sake?' the waiter inquired, with a gallant smile."

A High Aim Indeed.

Uncle Rooster filled his corncob.

"Aim high, young feller," he said to his city nephew.

Chuckling, he struck and held at arm's length a blue-headed sulphur match. Then he grunted:

"F'rinstance, try to live up to yer mother's estimate of ye."

The Lady of the Novel.

SHE MEETS A KNIGHT AND A ROBBER OF ANCIENT FICTION.

By a Special Contributor.

THE lady of the twentieth-century novel, fashionably correct in every detail, whizzed gaily down the page in her automobile. There were three clubs, a charity board, two receptions and a tea in the first chapter, and it needed haste as well as art to be seen at them all.

Hurriedly turning the corner on two wheels, she met a knight of the sixteenth century in full armor.

"I really think I must be in the wrong book," murmured the lady dubiously.

The knight paused and gazed at her inquiringly.

"Are you a 'female' in distress?" he asked hopefully.

"The term 'female' is out of date," she answered promptly, viewing him with some curiosity.

"Not in this book. You ought not to be here if you won't be rescued from distress."

"A woman of the twentieth century novel is fully capable of extricating herself from any difficulty," said the lady haughtily.

"Then you willingly deprive us of our chief occupation," complained the knight, with a bitter stare.

"Is there a tournament in this book?" pursued the lady, thoughtfully nibbling a chocolate.

"Certainly," replied the knight in amazement.

"Is it far?" asked the lady.

"There are dangers," said the knight doubtfully.

"For instance?" remarked the lady, with an indifferent air.

"Everything," hinted the knight, gloomily.

"How lovely!" said the lady. "It must be very interesting."

"This is a very lonely wood," quivered the knight, gazing about fearsomely. "I suppose I'll have to ride in front."

"I guess not," remonstrated the lady. "You'll be in my way if you do."

"I'm sure you are very unreasonable. There may be robbers on this page."

"How thrilling!" said the lady, looking about her expectantly.

"What did I tell you?" whispered the knight in a worried voice, as a robber in the conventional brigand costume stepped abruptly from behind a tree.

"Here's where you stand and deliver," remarked the robber in the correct hollow tone.

"Oh, I don't know," said the lady easily. "There are publishers in the twentieth century also."

"That answer isn't in this book, anywhere," said the robber despondently. "Your money or your life. Hurry up."

"Have you any references?" queried the lady in a business-like way. "One can't be too careful about such things."

"You mustn't talk back; I am a robber," he remarked anxiously.

"There are others," returned the lady nonchalantly.

"You haven't a watch about you, have you?" asked the robber, with an insinuating air.

"It strikes me," said the lady, catching her spark, "that your questions are quite searching."

"Look out!" yelled the robber indignantly as she whizzed away. "You might have hurt me if you had run over me with that thing." And he stepped aside with haste.

The knight boldly leaned over and felled the robber with his lance and hurried after the lady.

"We have foiled him!" he exclaimed triumphantly as his charger plunged along.

"Did you get your money back?" asked the lady practically.

"No; I did not stop. It would not do for you to be alone, you know. And besides, I was not real sure he was dead," the knight added sadly as they passed rapidly on to the next page, where a languid female was reposing under a tree. Tears were flowing down her delicate face.

"You seem to be in trouble," said the lady casually as she set the brake and felt of her back hair.

"True," remarked the sad female; and her long ringlets writhed sympathetically over her sloping shoulders. "The lord of yonder castle has sought my hand in marriage."

"If you don't want him, why not mention it?" hazarded the lady as she tied her shoe.

"He has not asked me," said the female, burying her face in her fine cambric handkerchief.

"Then how do you know he wants to marry you?" asked the lady in astonishment.

"My honored parents have told me."

"Why not refuse?"

"It is not the custom," sobbed the female in a fresh burst of tears.

"Defy custom," advised the lady fervently. "Set your foot down firmly and say you won't marry him."

"What! Not marry? Have no establishment? Never!"

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it, why do you cry?"

"It is the custom," faintly responded the drooping female.

"What women of your generation really needed," said the lady in disgust, "was a change of diet and a course in physical culture."

"But you are so different, you know," murmured the knight timidly as they left the page.

"Let's change the subject. What's that queer-looking thing in the next sentence?"

"Hush!" whispered the knight, quickly paling, "That is a dragon. What do you think we'd better do?"

"Vanquish it," advised the lady, with admirable promptness.

"Do you really think it safe? I'm not in extra good form today."

"That's not fair," said the lady, looking at him with a reproachful face. "That expression was never used in your time."

"You're so particular," said the knight testily. "It's very hard always to get the right expression. Books differ so."

"That dragon is asleep!" cried the lady, with a disappointed air. "Are they hard to waken?"

"Very. You watch me."

"But where are you going?" said the lady, looking around as the knight clumsily wheeled his charger and went back.

"To get a good start," answered the knight, with a superior air. "And then if he wakes up I can keep right on. You'd better climb a tree.

"I can see all right from here," said the lady, stopping her auto. "Don't be so poky."

"For St. George and the Dragon!" shouted the knight in a fierce voice. "You don't seem to realize the danger. That's no stage dragon. It's the real thing."

"But it ought to roar and spit flames and you ought to kill it after a mighty battle," protested the lady. "You really are not doing your part as you should."

"Oh, come on, for heaven's sake!" said the knight frantically. "We never will reach that tournament if we don't hurry. Besides, that dragon may wake up any time."

"You shouldn't say: 'For heaven's sake!'" said the lady critically. "You should say 'By'r lady,' or 'Peradventure,' or——"

"That shows all you know about it," exclaimed the knight triumphantly. "Those expressions don't come in until the next century."

"Oh, well, it really doesn't matter. It's only a question of dates."

"Do you see yon massive structure that rears its battlements so proudly in the middle distance of the next sentence?" asked the knight suddenly. "That's the King's castle," he added, with impressive pride.

"You said that beautifully," said the lady, with an admiring glance. "It's the first really appropriate thing you've said."

"I learned it by heart."

"Is the King at home?" asked the lady.

"He usually is. He's afraid to go away. There are several others, you see," explained the knight delicately.

"I see," said the lady as she rode gaily in at the gate.

"Here, you can't take your auto in there!" called the knight wildly. "The King won't allow it."

"I'm already in," remarked the lady scathingly. "Just pay attention to your own affairs." And she nodded to the King with a friendly air as she sat down.

"I wish you would ring for a glass of ice water," said the lady politely.

"You forget," said the King, brightening; "that idea has not been discovered yet."

"True," said the lady, gazing at him thoughtfully. "Then send for it."

"Send for what?" said the King, with a bewildered air.

"Why, the ice water!"

"But this is summer," said the King politely, "and we never drink water."

"No ice?" returned the lady, with indignation.

"If it was winter, now," said the King hopefully. "We always have ice in the winter."

"What's the use of being a king if you can't have a few privileges?" she demanded wrathfully.

"I often say so," murmured the King regretfully.

"The tournament, you know," reminded the knight hastily. "The people are all there. For goodness' sake, don't contradict her," he whispered anxiously to the King. "There's no telling what she might do. She's writing a book."

. . . .

"Who's ahead?" asked the King as the tournament ended and the knights dashed away. "They crowded so I couldn't see."

"I've kept the score," said the lady. "I'll tell you in a minute."

"Let me see," said the King eagerly. "Where are my glasses, now?" and he fumbled helplessly in his pockets.

"Why, you can't do that!" remonstrated the lady, with a severe look.

"Can't do what?" said the King, pausing in his search.

"Certainly not," said the lady reproachfully. "You know very well that glasses were not even heard of in your time."

"I had forgotten," murmured the King meekly.

"I wish you'd take her away," he whispered fretfully to the knight. "It's very provoking to be reminded of these things."

"But you see——" began the knight in a frightened tone.

"You brought her," protested the King. "She has upset me dreadfully."

"She came," returned the knight, with dignity. "There is some difference, you know."

"I don't think much of your old tournament, anyhow," said the lady breezily. "A yacht race is lots more exciting."

"Possibly," said the knight humbly. "We have to live up to our restrictions, you know."

"Well, really," remarked the King, gazing at her fixedly as she puffed rapidly out of the book, "I am quite worn out. If it wasn't so early in the century I should like a refreshing cup of tea. She was so—er strenuous, you know."

Goody-Goody.

A STORY OF LIFE AMONG THE GOVERNMENT SURVEYORS.

By a Special Contributor.

ROYALLY robed in old rose and gold, the sun sank behind the purple rim of the Argus Mountains. But the half-dozen khaki-clad young men grouped round a couple of government 9x9's ignored the splendid sunset and gave their undivided attention to a diminutive dust cloud, which, with exasperating deliberation, traversed the sage-dotted waste before them.

"Gee! I hope he brings me a letter," said the youngest rodman. "I haven't heard from home in two months. Look under the jockey box, Carrol, and see if there ain't a letter for me."

The man with the field glasses, pretending to look under the jockey box, indulged in the time-honored survey fiction. "Sure there's a letter for you—yes, two of them. One is from your mother. She says—let's see—she says you are to shake your bed every night to get the rattlesnakes out of it—when did you make your bed last, anyway?—and you're not to go far from camp, because you might be scalped by the Indians; and you're not to listen to stories told by the cowboys, because it's bad for your grammar. Then there's another, a long, lavender one from Los Angeles. It says—but I can't see what it says, Harvey; Jake's reading it himself."

"Indians—cowboys!" snorted the youthful Harvey. "We haven't seen a living soul outside of camp for a month—only the rattlesnakes. They're always with us, like the poor."

"By George!" suddenly exclaimed Carrol, "there's somebody with him, all right. Mr. Hinkle," he called to a man who was calmly adjusting a precise level under a green umbrella, "your bubble tender has arrived at last."

All crowded eagerly forward. Even the imperturbable Mr. Hinkle jeopardized an hour of careful adjustment by turning the telescope of his level upon the etherial dust cloud.

"You're right," he said briefly; then with professional enthusiasm, "Gad! what a working light. We ought to be out doing something."

"Old stinker!" muttered Harvey under his breath, "this is the first Sunday we've had for a month."

The arrival of the camp wagon from the nearest town (a group of thirty or forty shacks scattered over the alkali-encrusted shore of Owens Lake,) a hundred miles to the westward, caused a pleasurable thrill of excitement. Even more important than the bi-monthly complement of home letters, the tobacco, candy and such small luxuries as could be got at the frontier store, was the coming of a new man; for when, week in and week out, human society is limited to the half-dozen which make a precise level party, the arrival of a new personality, even though it be but that of a bubble tender, is much talked of.

Late that night, Carrol, who was filling out a livestock blank in the corral, listened to the frankly-expressed indignation of the group which held forth in the camp buckboard.

"Blast it all!" vociferated the beardless Harvey, "I don't mind waiting a month or two longer for my letters, but to have such a lobster as that dumped onto us is what I call rubbing it in. And the Old Man said this was to be a picked bunch, too. Tell it again, Jake, Shannon didn't hear the first part."

"Regular Sunday-school sissy," recited the teamster, nothing loath. "Don't swear, don't smoke, don't chew. Belongs to the Y.M.C.A., by gad! That's bad enough, but it ain't all. Down by the old 'rasters I saw a coyote a-settin' up on a lava boulder—prettiest shot you ever see, an' by way of bein' polite to a stranger, I hands him my Winchester an' offers him the first shot. An' what do you think he says?" Here Jake tried to make his deep-toned bellow sound effeminate and mincing, as he mocked: "'Oh, I don't believe in taking the lives of animals for sport.'"

"By ginger!" put in Harvey, borrowing an oath from an author he admired, "when we get into Death Valley, let's kill him!"

"Poor devil!" soliloquized Carrol, mechanically checking off his list by lantern light, "I'm afraid he's elected to be butt of the camp." But since he was wise in the ways of the survey, Carrol took no part in the intrigues of his juniors, but went unconcernedly to the office tent to attack his everlasting computations.

True to Carrol's prophecy, "Goody-Goody," as he was unceremoniously dubbed, became an outcast. He was too unresentful of the galling monotony, too much of a milksop, to blot out the bad impression he had made on the start. His official duties were to watch the bubble and to notify Hinkle if it moved during a reading, and, since the sun must never shine upon the exquisitely-adjusted parts of a "C. & G." level, to hold a green umbrella over the instrument. Otherwise, at the hundred and one detestable odd jobs about camp, or the packing and unpacking of moving day, no man willingly worked with him. He lived apart, like a prosaic barn fowl amid a strenuous and irresponsible flock of blackbirds. Carrol treated him kindly, and Hinkle ignored him along with the other men and the mules as long as they did their work. But Hinkle and Carrol were very busy and had other things to think of than the peace of mind of a bubble tender. Nights, as chief and assistant toiled in the office tent, the two rodmen and the teamster turned their backs upon Goody-Goody and went to the buckboard for the evening smoke and gossip. If he were unavailable for social purposes, he at least furnished a never-failing topic of conversation.

Sometimes the "Knockers' Club," as Carrol called it, knocked Hinkle for overworking them, sometimes Lee

Wong, the cordially-hated Chinese cook, for underfeeding them, but it was the bubble tender who always came in for the lion's share.

Never by word or deed, however, did he resent his ostracism. He worked faithfully, ploddingly, and, since he was not invited to the nightly conferences in the buckboard, he went to bed early, in consequence of which he rose mornings at the first tap of the bell in good condition and more exasperatingly even-tempered than ever.

It might be supposed that since they were both outcasts, Lee Wong and Goody-Goody might have been drawn together by common misfortune, but such was not the case. His white brethren, even though they had ostracized him, never allowed their dislike to overstep the bounds of common decency; but Lee Wong particularly hated him—not with the hate one white man feels for another—but with the vindictive, kick-in-the-face, knife-in-the-back hate of the oriental. Possessing the utter absence of pity of his race for the under dog, Lee was quick to discern that Goody-Goody was without friends and quicker to take advantage of the knowledge. Also, peculiar circumstances gave him a leverage not usually possessed by a Chinese of the West.

Many years before, when the "Old Man," in other words, the geographer of the Western Division, U.S.G.S.—was a dashing topographer, Lee Wong had been his cook, and a crack cook, to boot. Even yet, there were traditions of the delicacies Lee Wong could create, if he chose. Furthermore, he could pack a mule, drive a team or put up a tent with the best of them. He was voted the best all-round Chinaman that ever "hit" the survey, and he lived up to his reputation exactly so long as he was under the Old Man's personal supervision. After that no one had ever been able to get a satisfactory day's work out of him.

But when the Old Man, aided by an excellent record, together with certain backing, was called to sit among the mighty, he carried with him a lingering affection for his old cook. Consequently, year after year, Lee Wong fell to the lot of some luckless topographer or levelman, who, being disciplined, made the best of him, hoping that somebody else would get him the next year.

Always Lee Wong "had it in for somebody," but in Goody-Goody's case he bade fair to outdo himself. What respect could Lee Wong have for a man who actually wore overalls instead of khaki (the pig!) and who let his beard grow, which was permissible only on a pack trip?

When Goody-Goody's hands became chapped and raw, making the use of soap out of the question, Lee Wong said sarcastic things about white men who came to the table with filthy hands. As a matter of course, Goody-Goody never got his hot cakes till the rest were arising from the breakfast table; his coffee was always lukewarm, and he was sharply spoken to if he chanced to touch an article within the forbidden precincts of the kitchen or to get in Lee Wong's way.

After a time, having carefully felt of his ground, Lee ceased speaking altogether, but, instead, if the opportunity presented itself when Hinkle was not around, merely shoved Goody-Goody with his elbow, as he would have kicked a toad or a dog from his path.

That was the limit. All shreds of respect which the others may have retained for the bubble tender gave place to disgust. It was one thing to put up with a Chinaman's lip because the exigencies of the situation demanded it, but quite another to be physically jostled by him.

"We'd bust him if he tried that on us, wouldn't we?" said Harvey, confidently feeling of Jake's mighty biceps.

On a Saturday night Jake hurled himself into the buckboard, bursting with news. "Say, fellows, what do you think—we've got a desperado in camp——!"

"Do tell us," said Harvey calmly, favorably prepared to hear any new version of the bubble tender's shortcomings.

"Goody-Goody's packin' a gun!"

"What? The devil!" ejaculated Harvey, in huge delight at a new sensation. "Is that straight?"

"Sure it's straight. I seen it when he was overhaulin' his war bag—one o' them nickel-plated abominations, like the tenderfeet carry."

"What did he say?"

"Well, I asked him what he brought that thing along for, an' he says: 'I brought it for my protection.'"

Jake snorted, and the two rodmen roared.

"S'pose he thought there were Indians, like my mother," gasped Harvey through mirthful tears.

The next morning, after a late Sunday breakfast, Hinkle and Carrol, who never rested, went immediately to the office tent. The others, even Goody-Goody, lingered for a few moments in the pleasant warmth of the kitchen tent.

Lee Wong, especially indulgent for him, did not order them out, but proceeded to amuse himself by applying a lighted match to the chilled flies that clung drowsily to the warm tent roof.

"God!" exclaimed Goody-Goody. "Stop that, you yellow beast, or I'll wring your neck!"

It was like the exploding of a bomb. A greenish ash color overspread the Chinaman's face and his eyes became two white-hot tack points. Seizing a bread knife, he sprang upon the bubble tender and stabbed twice, inflicting ugly flesh wounds on neck and arm. Then they clinched. There was a shuffle of feet accompanied by a succession of grunts. Lee Wong's pigtail came down and a three-cornered rent appeared in Goody-Goody's shirt. Presently, by a sudden convulsion, the bubble tender wrenched himself free and ran from the tent.

"Oh, rats!" blurted Jake in his disappointment, "I thought he was——" But the words froze in his mouth as Goody-Goody burst through the tent flap with the nickel-plated weapon which had brought down upon the head of its owner the withering scorn of the buckboard trio.

When the biting smoke had cleared sufficiently to see, and Hinkle had appeared on the scene, Lee Wong's heels were beating a rhythmic roll upon the canvas tent floor.

"Who did this?" demanded Hinkle.

"I, sir, in self-defense," answered Goody-Goody.

"Is this true?" asked Hinkle, turning to the others. There was an effusive chorus of affirmatives. "Um," said Hinkle reflectively. "Er—what's this talk about your not believing in shooting coyotes?"

"I s's'pose," spluttered Goody-Goody, now thoroughly aroused, "I s'p-pose you thought because I didn't believe in shooting coyotes for fun, I didn't have nerve enough to shoot a man if it was necessary. I used to be a b-butcher before I came here."

For the first and only time during his long service as a government surveyor, Hinkle threw back his head and laughed.

The Cavern of Souls.

BEING A TALE OF UNAPPRECIATED AND MISAPPLIED EFFORT.

By a Special Contributor.

BRAINARD, the range-rider, had not seen a human being for seven weeks, and the fact troubled him not at all. The most congenial of companions could not interest him as the wilderness did. It was seldom that he indulged in self-analysis, possibly for the reason that the study of the woods was more to his liking; but this afternoon, as he squinted through the pines at the sun and saw that it was five o'clock, his thoughts drifted to the blistering valley below him, and he unrolled his sleeping-bag with a sigh of relief that he was not among those gathered at the settlement postoffice, where somnolent gossip and commonplaces were being passed about. To be near the headwaters of the San Gabriel River on an afternoon in July was to be stationed where the grimy appurtenances of civilization could not break in and corrupt. He was a toiler, too, not an idle camper, for Uncle Sam paid him to guard the splendid wealth of towering pine and sequoia, the great stretches of beech and poplar and spruce from the desolation which follows the carelessly dropped match and the unextinguished campfire.

Wherever the sunlight found ragged entrance to the floor of the grove, the silky shade-grass flourished green from the seepage of water from the brawling stream a few feet away. Brainard's pony was knee-deep in the herbage, feeding eagerly and with the single idea of stilling the pangs of day's-end hunger. Brainard was ravenous, too, and he shook his camp utensils from the long canvas pouch which sheltered him from the dew and the sharp air at night.

The ranger was preparing to cast a line into a rare place where the noisy stream idled for a moment, when his attention was fixed by an object bobbing on the water, something which spoke eloquently of man, in this region where no men came save himself. It was a battered tin can, a dynamite can, such as Brainard had often used in reservation work. The ranger fished it out gingerly as it neared the bank, and brought it to his camp. It was too light to contain explosive, but the ranger pried open the lid with a caution born of long years of lonely self-reliance.

The can contained but a few leaves of folded paper which had been torn from a note-book, and with a strange feeling of curiosity Brainard recognized the paper as a part of one of his own report blanks, lost somewhere during the previous season. The leaves were covered with characters in a fine, scholarly hand, the letters, dark red in color, as if the juice of the mountain elder-berry had been employed, or human blood. If Brainard had found it on the beach at some fashionable resort, he would have smiled and thrown it away as the work of some practical jester, but with the exception of the rare visits of government rangers, no man came to this solitary spot through the passing of countless years. Brainard's find contained the following surprising communication:

"To The Dwellers Upon The Face of the Earth, And of Especial Importance to the People of the San Gabriel Valley in the State of California,

"Greeting:

"I, Abel Barnes, having been deputed by the Almighty God to rescue from captivity a race of people long clamoring for release, and, having cheerfully undertaken this task, do warn the people of the valley at the base of this mountain, that the head waters of the San Gabriel River are about to be deflected from their original course, on or about the first of August, this being necessary for the deliverance of the unfortunate people mentioned above. This action I am fully aware will render arid a great portion of the San Gabriel Valley, but the deflection is necessary and will be temporary. I commend you all to the care of the Inscrutable Power above us, and ask your Prayer that I may be successful in this great human undertaking. Signed this first day of May.

"ABEL BARNES."

"The devil you say!" remarked Brainard. "The headwaters of the river are only a few miles from here," the ranger mused. "This can has been in the water a month, at least, by the looks of it, and it was written the first day of May, presumably of this year. Somebody is trying an original joke. The can has probably been lodged up in some crevice. Where did he get this can? That seems to come in as a part of my work."

At day-break Brainard awoke and whistled to his pony, who came contentedly from his browsing under the pines. The presence of the disreputable tin can brought back the circumstances of the night before, and the ranger scowled with impatience.

"I s'pose I'll have to take a look around," he said aloud, as was his wont.

Leading his horse over the boulders along the edge of the clattering stream, Brainard made his way up the hillside. The air was chill with the hint of melting snow-banks farther up, and the unclouded sun made ever-changing patterns of crazy patch-work on the floor of the forest, as it sifted through the fronds of pine and spruce. The pony stepped into pools if icy water with reluctance, and Brainard shivered with the bite of the early morning air.

The government man had gone but a few miles when in one of his pauses for inspection, he distinctly heard the tapping of a hammer upon metal. He listened, hardly believing his trained ears, listened until he was sure, and then started to follow up the sound. He had not far to travel. Rounding a bend in the river cañon, he came upon the originator of the sound.

Standing knee-deep in the icy water, with his sun-blackened arms bared to the shoulder, was the strangest looking individual the ranger had ever encountered. His back was turned to Brainard, and the dirty, iron-gray hair fell far below his shoulders, his trousers were torn into an exaggerated reproduction of the stage tramp, and his shirt had long since started to leave him by piecemeal. The stranger was absorbed in driving a heavy drill into the soft pumace-stone, and despite the gray badge of years upon his head, was wielding the hammer with the virility of youth. Brainard dropped the lines on his pony and approached with caution.

"Hello," he said, laconically.

The stranger turned without show of surprise. "Good-morning," he replied. And then, after a slight pause: "Did you get my message?"

"Message?" repeated Brainard. "Oh yes, I got your message all right. Doing a little placer work in the river?" The stranger replied pleasantly in the negative.

"Well, that's right," said Brainard, "because you see, Uncle Sam doesn't allow any mining to go on within the limits of the reservation, or any other kind of work for that matter."

"You received my message?" the stranger asked again, with an intonation of surprise in his voice.

"Oh, yes, yes, sure," replied the ranger hastily. "So you are the man who intends to turn the San Gabriel out of its course? Well, Uncle Sam wouldn't allow that to be done either, you know, unless you had a permit, and I hardly think you have that, or I would have heard something about it."

"I am about to perform a great act of humanity," said the man with the drill simply, but with a note of pride in his voice. "This small entrance upon which I am now working leads to a cavern beneath the mountain, and I am widening it, preparatory to turning the stream in here. Would you like to explore it? Follow me."

The invitation to follow was superfluous, as Brainard would not have allowed his companion to get behind him on any pretext, however harmless he seemed. On crawling through the widened aperture the two were almost immediately enveloped in darkness, and a pause ensued while the gray-headed man of the woods lighted a pine torch. The descent began, along a water-worn floor, always downward, until, after a few minutes of feeling his way in the wake of his guide, Brainard was told to pause, and the old man held the torch high above his head and swung it around, scattering the shadows in their immediate vicinity.

"You must not speak above a whisper in here," the old man said. "A strange voice would frighten them."

"Frighten who?" asked Brainard.

"They who live beneath the earth in this tomb," replied the aged man, solemnly. "This, my friend, is the Cavern of Imprisoned Souls. At this moment we are standing on the brink of a chasm which drops for one thousand feet. I have measured it with a line. It was during a great seismic disturbance that nearly one-half of a nation was buried in the earth, and the people have been prisoners since that time. This is the only outlet on this side of the mountain, and supplies them with air."

"I see," said Brainard.

"Listen, I will speak to them." The strange figure knelt on one knee above the black hole and shouted:

"Deliverance is at hand!"

From the pitchy darkness came a thousand voices, breaking and reverberating against the rocks, a pandemonium of repetition, in which the words uttered by the old man were distorted in several keys and in a most gruesome manner.

The figure on the floor arose and grinned hideously in the flare of the torch. "They know my voice," he said. "They are picking up a few words of English. I have instructed them to build boats with the material I have myself thrown into the chasm, and when the work is completed I will turn the water in, and they will rise to the surface."

"That is the demonstration of a very remarkable echo," said Brainard.

"Go to join the imprisoned people, you doubter!" screamed Barnes, and with a powerful wrench on Brainard's shoulder, he brought him perilously near the edge of the chasm. Brainard struck the madman full in the face, and threw him to the floor. An exhausting struggle followed, in which the ranger succeeded in dragging Barnes to the outer air, where he bound him securely with his pony's hobbles.

"You're the man who has been breaking into reservation station boxes and stealing tools," remarked Brainard. "That's where our provisions have been disappearing to, also."

Just a week later Brainard emerged into civilization on the opposite side of the mountain, a noisy maniac tied to his pony, and proceeded to the State insane asylum. The superintendent of the hospital said he had concluded that Barnes had died in the forest long since. The search for him had long been abandoned.

Different Dangers.

F. W. BALDWIN, the noted aëronaut, paused in his aëronautical experiments at Hammondsport, N. Y., to say to a reporter:

"Advise the general public to go in for flying. A good airship can easily be made for $15. Of course it has no motor; it's a glider; you take a run from a hilltop and go gliding down the air. When all the people are experimenting with these simple and cheap gliders, then real progress in flying will be made."

"But," said the reporter, "the danger?"

"There's no danger," said the aëronaut. "You learn from low hilltops, you don't attempt the heights until you have mastered aërial balancing. No, there's not nearly the danger in flying that there is in automobiling or in marrying too young a bride."

Mr. Baldwin smiled.

"How dangerous it is," said he, "to choose too young a bride. Do so, and either your children kill you, or you rush heartbroken into the divorce court in a year. Nevertheless, these unequal marriages are on the increase.

"The other day I met an aged millionaire whom I hadn't seen for years. He had two ladies with him. Introducing them, he said:

"'Mr. Baldwin, my wife and my daughter. The younger one is my wife.'"

The Men Said Nothing.

AT a dinner at the Plaza in honor of Mrs. Elinor Glyn, the lights went out. Then, in the dark, Mrs. Glyn in her prim English voice told this story:

"A débutante was describing to her mother a week-end visit she had made to a smart house in Devon.

"'At dinner on Sunday night,' she said, 'the lights went out, and—wasn't it funny, mamma?—the women didn't want the butler to light them again.'

"'How do you know they didn't?' asked the mother.

"'Because they were all crying out: "Don't!" and "Stop!" And the men didn't say a word.'"

Mr. Rockefeller on Persistence.

"SLEEP well, eat well, work well, and put by for a rainy day—those are the rules to keep if one wants to become an expert golfer."

The speaker was John D. Rockefeller. He made a fair drive and resumed:

"And to become a good reporter you must be persistent. But I don't need to tell you that, young man. With persistence anything can be accomplished. A peddler entered a business man's office the other day.

"'I am introducing,' he began, 'a patent electric hair brush——'

"'What do I want with a hair brush?' growled the business man. 'Can't you see I'm bald?'

"'Your lady, perhaps——'

"'Bald, too, except when she's dressed up.'

"'Yes, sir. But you may have at home a little child——'

"'We have. It's one month old, and quite bald.'

"'Of course, at that age,' said the peddler. 'But,' he persisted, 'maybe you keep a dog?'

"'We do,' said the business man. 'A hairless Chinese dog.'

"The peddler dived into another pocket.

"'Allow me,' he said, 'to show you the latest thing in fly paper.'"

On the Lookout.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, at the reception that he gave to the American boiler-makers during their convention in Detroit, said that among his many millionaire friends all were honest, and that he did not know of a single American millionaire who had made his money dishonestly.

"But the millionaire looms big," said Mr. Schwab, "and everybody wants to find fault with him. We are as anxious to find flaws in our millionaires as old Bill Lash of Loretto was to find special occasions.

"'Yes, sir,' said Bill one night, 'I faithfully promised my wife thirty-seven years ago never to take more than three drinks except on special occasions. Friday was my birthday; Saturday was Decoration Day; Sunday my mother-in-law concluded a visit to us; Monday we had fine weather after a long spell; tomorrow my oldest girl's new directory dress comes home; only today, durn it, I can't think of anything special.'"

Not Graceful.

GEORGE HARVEY, the editor, said of literary grace at a dinner in New York:

"Grace makes its absence very keenly felt. At a funeral that I once attended in New Hampshire a farmer said a thing that was singularly lacking in grace. A funeral hymn had just been concluded. The farmer leaned forward, tapped me on the shoulder and whispered:

"'Lovely hymn, hey? The corpse wrote it.'"

The Country Weeker.

THE baseball evangelist, the eloquent Billy Sunday, said during the revival services at Sharon, Pa.:

"Keep good company. Nothing does the young more harm than bad society. Only yesterday a farmer told me about a youngster of six or seven, a little country weeker, who had as suspicious and mistrustful a heart as some old miser or crook.

"This boy was sent by a charity society to spend a week at the farmer's. The farmer set out to meet him, but was late. He ran into him half-way to the farm, trudging along the white road, a big burlap bag of luggage on his little bony shoulder.

"The farmer held out his hand for the burlap bag.

"'I'll carry it, son,' he said. 'It's too heavy for you.'

"'Go on!' said the little boy fiercely. 'Clear out now, or I'll call a cop.'"

Easy.

MRS. CARRIE NATION, arrested in Pittsburgh, said that she had been arrested thirty-three times.

"I try to do good," she told a reporter. "In trying to do good I take life hard. Some folks, most folks, in fact, take it easy—as easy as the new hired girl wanted to take her new place.

"'Everything goes by clockwork here,' the mistress said to this girl. 'By clockwork, mind you. You get up at 6, you dine at 12, and you go to bed at 10.'

"'Well, if that's all,' said the girl, with a smile, 'I think I can manage it.'"

About a Famous Picture.

"THE late O. H. P. Belmont," said a New York picture dealer, "was a profound admirer of the painter Turner. He liked especially Turner's 'Carthage,' and one day he told me an odd story about it.

"Turner," he said, "kept 'Carthage' for years. If you wanted to buy it, he'd ask you £500; on your acceptance, he'd say on second thought he must ask you £750; and if you again accepted, the price would go up to £1000. So on indefinitely.

"Turner for years declared that he would be buried with 'Carthage' wrapped about his corpse. One day he said to Chantrey, his executor:

"Chantrey, if in my will I order you to bury me like that, with 'Carthage' for my shroud, you will obey, won't you?'

"'Certainly,' said Chantrey. 'I'll bury you rolled up in your picture, if it is one of the conditions of your will, and the next day I'll dig you up and unroll you.'"

We Work Too Hard.

LADY HEADFORT, during her American tour, said in New York that she approved of international marriages.

"They correct us," she explained. "Our Englishmen work too little, your American men work too much, and the international marriage tends to bring about a happy mean.

"Your men do work too much, you know," said Lady Headfort. "I have an English friend who attended the funeral of one of your hardest workers, a multi-millionaire.

"My friend's wife said rather bitterly to him at the funeral:

"'How you have missed your opportunities, my love. Place yourself beside Mr. Ritch there. You are both of the same age. You both began life together. Yet you are a poor man, while he died a multi-millionaire.'

"'Yes,' said the English husband. There Ritch lies, dead of nervous prostration, without one single penny in his pocket; and here I stand, hale and hearty, with a wallet in my coat containing quite a hundred dollars.'"

Mr. Evans's Wrath.

A CHICAGO art dealer was talking about the wrath of William T. Evans, the New York collector upon whom so many bogus paintings have been imposed.

"He's awfully angry," said the art dealer, repressing a smile. "Some of his costliest pictures, you know, have turned out fakes. His blood boils when he thinks of the way he has been duped.

"He told me the other day that he could hardly understand the rage that possessed him against every petty little insignificant dealer that had cheated him. He said it was like the rage of a waiter that he had noted one afternoon at luncheon.

"'At luncheon, Mr. Evans said, he called his waiter's attention to a dead fly in some dish or other.

"The waiter, as he took the dish away, muttered with a malevolent look at the limp insect:

"'I'd give a $2 bill if I knew for certain that this was the fly that's been buzzing about my nose all the morning.'"

Japanese Love.

MME. MIDZUNO, the wife of the new Japanese Consul to New York, told a young woman reporter the other day that she believed in the Japanese way of marrying—marrying out of esteem, and trusting to the coming of love afterward.

"With us, when love comes, it lasts," said the charming Japanese. "We have a song that we like to sing—'I want to live to ninety-nine years, and you must live to be a hundred, so that we may be happy while our hair grows gray.'

"That is better," Mme. Midzuno continued, "than the love that comes swiftly and as swiftly flies away again. They tell in Japan a story illustrative of this transitory love—the love of your West.

"A tourist, they say, was touring Brittany. He came to Quimper, and he found in the place publique beside the river an old woman selling trinkets.

"'What is the price of this?' he asked, taking up an antique ring of silver and sapphires.

"'Is it for your wife or your sweetheart?' said the old woman.

"'For my sweetheart.'

"'Fifty francs.'

"'Fifty francs! Nonsense!' And the tourist turned angrily away.

"'Come back,' said the old woman. 'Take it for ten. You've been lying to me, though; you have no sweetheart. Had the ring been for her, you'd have bought it at once without regard to its price.'

"'I will take it,' said the tourist, smiling. 'Here are the ten francs.'

"So the old woman wrapped the ring up.

"'But you haven't a wife, either,' she grumbled. 'If it had been for her, you'd have beaten me down to five francs. Oh, you men!'"

A Moth Cure.

RIPLEY HITCHCOCK, the editor and critic, said of literary popularity at a dinner in Philadelphia:

"To win popularity it is only necessary to write with sincerity on a taking subject. To hit on the taking subject, though—that is the difficulty. Upton Sinclair hit on it in 'The Jungle,' but that shot was accidental, mere luck; for, as Mr. Sinclair says himself, he aimed at the public's heart in 'The Jungle' and his bullseye in the public's stomach was a mistake.

"Taking subjects are abundant, but they are very hard to hit on. The writer in search of them resembles, indeed, the lady with the moths.

"There was, you know, a suburban lady whose house, one summer, was quite overrun with moths. A tramp told her that, in return for a square meal, he would give her an infallible moth cure. She set a square meal before the tramp, he devoured it, then he said:

"'All ye need to do, ma'am, is to hang yer moth-filled clothes and carpets and things on a line and beat 'em with a stick. Good-by to yer moths then.'

"'Will that kill them?' asked the lady.

"'Yes, if ye hit 'em,' said the tramp."

An Original Demonstration.

GENEE, the dancer, said on leaving America that she loved the American people.

"In truth," said she, "I feel as great good will toward you all as warmed the heart of a dying Norman farmer toward his neighbors. This farmer, dying, sent for the notary to make his will. Propped in bed, he dictated in a weak voice:

"'To Jean Marcel, our superb coiffure, 10,000 francs.

"'I bequeath 15,000 francs to the fearless Gaston Renaud that he may continue this valuable aëronautical experiments.

"'To Pierre Bucamp, chemist, 10,000 francs as a mark of affection.

"To my physician, M. Roux, 15,000 francs.

"'To our eloquent pastor 25,000 francs to continue the restoration of the nave of——'

"'But, my dear sir,' the notary interrupted, 'I don't believe you have all that money to leave!'

"'I know very well I haven't,' said the farmer calmly; 'but I just want to show them my good will.'"

A Mixed Compliment.

JOSEPH LEITER, at a Washington dinner party a few days before his marriage, said he agreed with John D. Rockefeller and Russell Sage that young men with their way to make in the world should not take vacations.

"A vacation doesn't strengthen the average young man," said Mr. Leiter. "Deranging all his regular habits, it weakens him. He plays too hard on his vacation. He comes back home thin and pale and tired. But good, hard, regular work, with the temperate habits it necessitates, is good for a young man's health. Nearly all the break-downs laid to hard work are really due to something else—to bad hours, to dissipation.

"I always liked to hear the story my father used to tell of a big, rosy country preacher who said, one Sunday morning in June:

"'My friends, I am all run down from the winter's work, and the collection today will be devoted to my traveling expenses, as I am going to the shore for my health. The more you give me the longer I can stay away.'

"The preacher's look was rather confused when he announced afterward to the people that the collection had been the largest in the history of the church."

Art Comes High.

A CHICAGO woman, standing on the Hamburg-American line's pier with four trunkfuls of French gowns, told a reporter a story about the late M. Paquin.

"A New York lady," she said, "once ventured to remonstrate with Paquin because he had charged her $700 for a ball dress.

"'The material,' she said, 'could be bought for $100, and surely the work would be well paid with $50 more.'

"'Madame,' said Paquin, with his grandest air, 'go to your American painter, Sargent, in his little Tite-street studio, and say to him: "Here is a yard of canvas, value 50 cents, and here are colors, value $1. Paint me a picture with these colors on this canvas, and I will pay you $1.75." What will the painter say? He will say: "Madame, those are no terms for an artist." I say more. I say, if you think my terms too high, pay me nothing and keep the robe. Art does not descend to the littleness of haggling.'"

An Apt Reply.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE, discussing the currency bill, said of a certain passage:

"That needs delicate handling. It is like the position of the young man on his honeymoon. This young man's honeymoon was peculiar because, while still in mourning, he had married his deceased wife's sister. A friend of his, a chap he had not seen for years, accosted him on the honeymoon in a Niagara restaurant. The friend, after being introduced to the bride, said sympathetically:

"'But who are you in mourning for, old man?'

"'For my sister-in-law,' was the delicate reply.'"

GARDEN PESTS.

THE SPRAY PUMP A NECESSITY IN EVERY LARGE GARDEN.

By Ernest Braunton.

IN every garden of size or note it is necessary to have material and equipment for fighting insect pests and plant diseases. It often occurs that both may be overcome with one and the same treatment which greatly simplifies the work of keeping the garden in a state of perfect health. The spray pump has become a necessity in all well-ordered gardens, more especially for warfare against fungous diseases by the use of Bordeaux mixture. An application of this mixture of copper sulphate and lime is not only a cure for, but a preventive of fungi in nearly all forms. Aside from its value in checking or preventing disease it appears to act as a tonic on many plants not in robust health. The only point that may be urged against its free use is that it adheres to the foliage for some time and is not of a particularly pleasing shade of color. Its benefits, however, far outweigh its unsightliness, and such materials, as a rule, need be used but once a year.

The Canary Island Palm.

Every year sees the growing popularity of Phoenix Canariensis, though it grows too large for small front lawns, so that many home owners make a serious mistake in so planting it, for in ten or fifteen years a pair will completely fill an ordinary city lot. When appropriately planted it is our best palm, but so much has it been improperly placed that landscape students often experience a revulsion of feeling when confronted with it on every hand and in all sorts of positions.

For Massing Effect.

For small shrubbery masses the modern dwarf large-flowering abutilons are almost without a rival. They are in the local market in four distinct colors—white, yellow, pink, and crimson. Each clump or mass should be composed entirely of plants bearing but one color of blossom, so that no bizarre effects are produced, but rather strength and dignity, which always come by simple and appropriate planting.

TYPICAL CANARY ISLAND PALMS.

Burbank's Shasta Daisy.

The Shasta daisy, that most glorious of all whites during hot weather, is just now at the height of its glory. In the writer's experience he has never found a large white flower of more lasting quality in our hottest weather than the Shasta daisy. It is no doubt Luther Burbank's finest contribution to horticulture. The plants in the writer's garden came from the originator and were of three named varieties, but the one known as Alaska, and commonly known as Shasta daisy, is by far the best of the three. Every garden in Southern California should contain a few plants of this most excellent, satisfactory plant.

The Atamasco Lily.

The Atamasco lily (A.zephyranthes,) closely allied to the amaryllads, is one of the purest and finest pink flowers we grow and is also a rarity in Los Angeles gardens. Unfortunately, each blossom is good for but two days, but while in bloom it is not surpassed by any flower of its class. It is in bloom at present and may easily be told in that it looks not unlike a dwarf Amaryllis belladonna, though fine of form and better in colors.

A Fine Irid.

Morea iridioides is the name of a beautiful flower of the iris family, close to the true irises, from which it differs but in floral organs. The ground color is pure white, and the narrow petals have a midrib of deep yellow, while the broader set are delicately etched through the middle with chocolate brown. Unlike the true irises this plant blooms at any season if it so wills; with the writer it has now bloomed three times, at intervals of about two months.

The Parry Lily.

An unusually fine native lily (Lilium Parryé) is now in bloom in a few favored gardens (favored in that the plants therein are given proper location.) The Parry lily grows in mountainous localities, sometimes at several thousand feet altitude. The flower is a pure deep yellow about four inches long in the full-grown, unopened bulb, and the same distance across the face of the expanded flower; its height is about three feet. Of all our native species this is the finest. It requires shade and abundance of water.

The Chilean Jasmine.

One of the most beautiful and interesting vines in bloom at present goes under the common name of Chilean jasmine, why appears not, but it is nevertheless as valuable and as ornate as any jasmine we grow. It rejoices in the botanical name of Mandevilla suaveolens, not a hard nut to crack for the unitiated, for it was named for a man named Mandeville. It is one of the most floriferous of all vines, large of flower and pure white in color.

Clematis of California.

The third crop of clematis flowers is now on the vines of the sorts grafted on roots of our native Clematis ligusticifolia. On their own roots we have been getting but one crop rather indifferently good; the plants were always dying off in the midst of what appeared a most vigorous and healthy growth. It is doubtful if the up-to-date California-rooted clematis has a peer anywhere on earth. Every garden should contain a few, and they may be had in all shades and colors except yellows.

Gladiolus Hybrids.

The season of the gladiolus is just now on the wane, and we are wondering how many took note of the advice given a year ago about crossing some of the better sorts to improve your garden strain. That many did is known from a number who have written concerning this interesting work, and the writer has this year seen fine crops of seedlings in several gardens. The work is both fascinating and profitable. It is interesting to have flowers in your garden a little different from those of any other place, and still more interesting and valuable if those particular ones originated in your own garden. Every garden owner who has time should indulge in some fad that would give him a stock of some sort of plant he might call all his own.

The Poinsettia.

During our longest, warmest days the poinsettia makes its heaviest growth and should be plentifully supplied with water or we will not get grand heads for next Christmas. In winter it loves our warmer exposures, for it is native to the Mexican tropics and Central America, though generally at a considerable altitude, so that the average Los Angeles wintry weather is quite suitable to its season of blossom. That conditions are not ideal is proven by the fact that it reaches its highest development in tropical India at an elevation greater than five thousand feet and where the season's rainfall is fully twice that of Los Angeles and vicinity; therefore we should give it an abundance of water. Unless planted in the sunniest spots it becomes too weak and spindly in its growth to produce large heads of flowers or develop that depth of crimson which constitutes its chief charm. Aside from sunshine and a copious supply of water it needs a well-drained soil, equable temperature and protection from winds. Under these ideal conditions it forms heads of flaming scarlet or crimson which easily make it the most striking floral object in our midwinter gardens.

Variation of Mangoes from Seeds.

The Mango has been repeatedly recommended in these columns as an excellent tropical fruit tree of ornamental value for practically frostless districts. For the past ten years a special study of seedling mangoes has been made at the experiment station on the Island of Trinidad, resulting in planters being advised not to plant seedling trees, as the several types of mangoes do not come true from seeds. The seedling plant (or fruit from same) seldom possesses the good qualities of the parent. Growing so slowly as they do in Southern California, the only safe course would be to obtain budded or grafted trees, no doubt a prohibitive task to set before our growers.

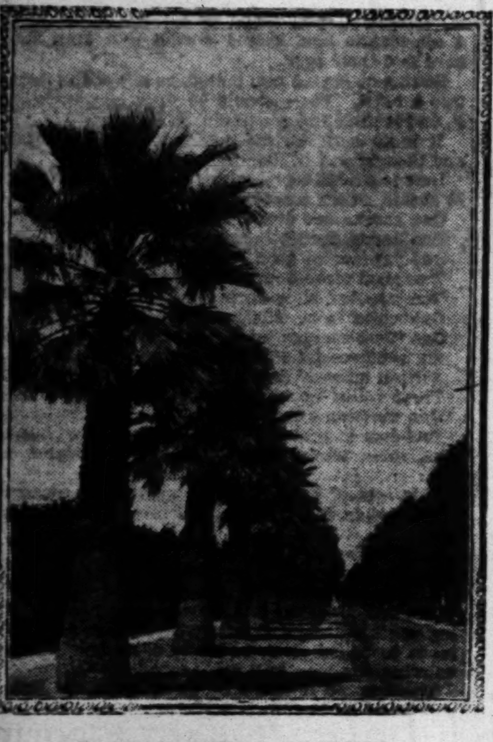
PLANTS AT SCHOOL.

SOME OF THE LESSONS LEARNED AND TO BE LEARNED.

NOW that we have school gardens and nature study as a part of the regular curriculum, our teachers are becoming fitted to teach botany so that some of the matter taught may remain with the pupil throughout life. We need to become acquainted with the living plant, and this is rapidly coming about through nature study and the school garden. When we add to this valuable phase of the work the great uplift these gardens give toward the home beautiful and the city beautiful, one marvels that we have not years agone been training our children in the way the plant should grow.

One of the easiest lines of material to obtain in plant life is a variety of street trees. Seeds of the leading sorts may be planted at school and studied in the seed and seedling stage. Bark, foliage, flower, fruit and seeds may be obtained from the mature trees in various parts of the city. By this method the children may be led to a thorough love and appreciation of the street tree and this knowledge and appreciation will prove a giant stride toward beautifying all our streets when the first generation of school children shall have become men and women. Aside from the study of trees, which are years in arriving at maturity, there should be used plants that will complete their life history, from seed to seed, in a single term or at least during one school year. The common squash is an excellent subject by reason of the short season needed for maturity and also by reason of the large size of all the parts, for microscopy should never enter into the work of the younger students. It is necessary, in order to make lasting impressions on the child's mind and impart knowledge of a practical nature, that plants should be carried from seed to seed, for the pupil may easily be made to understand that the process is the same whether the plant matures in three months or in a score of years. E. R. Downing in the Nature Study Review makes an argument against the haphazard use of any material that comes to hand for nature-study work. The author contends that only such material should be utilized as appeals to the interest of the child and that the child should be led to observe for a purpose. He believes that the average course in science in high schools and even in colleges frequently fails to reach its highest educational value because it is presented in such manner as to lack dependent continuity with increasing complexity corresponding to the increasing capacity of the student. He appeals therefore for the introduction of some unifying element in nature-study work, for a theme which may be worked out uniformly and still make use of dissimilar objects. The concept of evolution, in his opinion, is one of the best around which to group nature teaching. Suggestions are given for carrying out the problem method of study. The author believes that the spirit of investigation and appreciation rather than that of information is the prime desideratum in nature study, and that while the lesson plan should "not be too rigidly adhered to, yet elasticity must not degenerate into aimlessness." There should be an intentional widening of the scope of the work and sufficient plan in carrying it out to make it the basis eventually for the solution of problems.



MAGNOLIA AVENUE, RIVERSIDE.

Control of Street Trees.

The city of Riverside has just passed its first year under the new charter, wherein the city has had complete control of street trees. The tree warden, writing a few days ago, states that both the people at large and the city officials are very much pleased with the unusual harmony and progress that have marked the last twelve months' street-tree work. The writer sincerely trusts that Mr. Reed may so spread the gospel of municipal control of the parkways that all Southern California cities will adopt like ordinances, to the end that all our streets may be fully, uniformly and properly planted and cared for. Only by such methods may we build up that particular phase of civic betterment that goes farthest in the development of the city beautiful. Parks may beautify certain sections, though even a city park is unbeautiful unless surrounded with well-kept, appropriate trees, but the only way in which all parts of a city may be beautified by the municipality lies in planting care of its street trees. Los Angeles is rapidly falling behind lesser cities in our southland, and it is especially needed in a city that has no well-planted streets that we should at once take hold of the work in no uncertain manner. Unless our much-heralded but elusive new charter makes proper provision for a forestry department or for the control of street trees in some way sufficient to the needs of the matter we are doomed to form the tail end of the procession in the ranks of the city beautiful brigade. There need be no mincing of words; we are far behind our smaller cities in well-planted streets.

Need of Small Parks.

Now that we are getting our warmest weather the need of many small parks—breathing places—is more deeply felt than at any other part of the year. Every resident of Los Angeles should be able to reach a park of some size in a few minutes' walk. At this time of the year the whole families would like to take evening strolls in a park while yet somewhat of day remained. This they should be able to do without the necessity of using street cars in order to get a little rest, recreation, fresh air or change of scene. We have all too few small parks or "squares," and the time to reserve land for this purpose is before the districts to be affected become too congested and land values soar beyond reach of the municipal purse.

Growing Appreciation of Street Trees.

The care of street trees is rapidly becoming one of the business propositions of the municipality, especially since some of the eastern courts placed a high money value upon them in judgments for damages resulting from suits by property owners against public service companies using overhead wires for the transmission of the electric current. Ruthless destruction and irretrievable damage was done to the street trees in the early days of wire stringing, and so far as the trees were concerned, those in charge of construction had apparently no idea that there was any value in them, or that abutting property owners had any rights whaever in regard to them. Since the decisions of the courts that trees have a real value, not only to the town but to the property owner in connection with his property, greater care is exercised in erecting wire systems, and a higher regard for street trees seems so to have spread over the country that ordinances and State laws are being freely enacted in many localities to protect them.

STREET-CAR EVOLUTION.

INTERESTING STORY OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF TROLLEY TRANSPORTATION.

By a Special Contributor.

Three hundred years ago an English coal miner laid some wooden beams in the muddy road leading from his colliery, for the wheels of his coal carts to run on; the other day a coal-mine owner from the same country boarded an electric car in New York and made a tour of inspection of the subway. The boards in the muddy road were the ancestors of that street car.

The little expedient of the English miner, which made heavy hauling light, marked the beginning of the "tramway," the great-grandfather of the railway, the thing which made street cars possible. These wooden beams served their purpose very well until they began to wear out. Inventive genius was equal to the occasion; the wooden beams were plated with iron. Thin iron bands were fastened to the top of the beam to take the wear of the cart wheels. This was all right as far as the top was concerned, but the wooden beams rotted on the bottom; so they made them out of iron entirely and laid them on short pieces of wood which could be cheaply replaced when they rotted. To keep the wheels of the coal carts from running off the rails was the next problem, and they solved it by putting flanges on the outer sides of the rail. In 1789 William Jessop, the father of the street railway, took the flanges off the rails and put them on the cart wheels and the real evolution of the street car began.

A clumsy omnibus car drawn by horses made trips over this railway, carrying passengers. The car was a big stage coach, or rather three stage coaches in one, for there were three compartments, each of which resembled a small stage coach, and it had the name "John Mason" painted above the center door. About twenty years later the Sixth-avenue street railway was built and the street-car craze began. It really amounted to a craze, for thirty street-car companies began business during the next five years. During the ten years from 1860 to 1870 eighty-five street railways were built. The census twenty years later showed 769 street railways in operation. In two years this number increased to 987.

The street railway was a success, therefore it was the object of various attempts at improvement, for in America, whatever is a success must be improved. People wanted to go faster than the one poor horse could pull the car, and so many were satisfied to go slow that the little car the one horse pulled would not hold them all. They made larger cars and hitched two horses to them, but two horses could not go any faster than one horse since they had doubled the size of the car; so inventive genius kept the Patent Office up nights examining their claims for improvements in street railways.

The most popular of these improvements were the "dummies," steam engines mounted on wheels and boxed up to make them attractive. Their popularity was short-lived in the cities, however, but suburbanites consented to ride behind them long after they had disappeared from the city streets. But, until Lieut. Frank G. Sprague, U.S.N. (resigned,) built the first successful electric railway in 1888, the "dummies" were the only things the suburbanites had to ride behind.

The gap between the "dummies" and Sprague's electric railway, however, was about twenty years wide, and it was filled with numerous attempts to help the eager passengers to hurry. The cable system was one of these. The first cable road was laid in San Francisco in 1873 by Andrew S. Hallidie, Henry Root, Asa E. Hoevy and William Eppelsheimer. The originator of the idea, however, was E. S. Gardiner of Philadelphia, who suggested the plan some time prior to the actual building.

The cable served its useful purpose for eighteen years, when it was electrified by the motor-car promoters; that is, electric conductor rails were strung in the cable conduits and the wire rope hauled out. The dynamo had been perfected and electricity was a commercial motive power; therefore, the electric street railway of 1888 was a success. Before that, attempts had been made to operate street cars by various kinds of magnetic engines. In 1835 Thomas Davenport, a blacksmith, built a railway in Springfield, Mass., over which he operated a car driven by an electric magnet motor, and twelve years later Prof. Moses Farmer brought out another electromagnetic motor, but they never passed beyond the experimental stage.

The real beginning of the American electric street-railway system was the Union Passenger Railway of Richmond, Va., equipped by Lieut. Sprague and opened for service on the first day of February, 1888. It was a "troller" line—"trolley" is the word in use now. City officials soon saw the danger of overhead wires in the crowded city, and their precautions led to the underground system, a system that is familiar to all, for examples good and bad are on constant exhibition in the streets of our cities and even in the towns that are just growing into cities.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

FOR THE CHICKS.

CONTRIVANCE WHICH A CORRESPONDENT FINDS CONVENIENT.

By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE.—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experience with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enligntened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions, fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

LOUIS DE BUFF, a valued correspondent of the poultry department of The Times, kindly sends in the sketch herein contained of his contrivance for the suggestion and control of the chicks. It is practically a cage for feeding chicks in a mixed flock. Place the chick feed in the cage, the little ones can run in and out, while the larger ones are prevented by the closeness of the slats. Its size and manner of building is optional, depending almost wholly on the material readily available and the number of chicks to be accommodated. We have used the same idea, with two-inch mesh wire netting on three sides and top having slats only on the remaining side. Being light, the whole cage can be moved anywhere in the yard at pleasure.

Susie Monkeys With an Incubator.

And so, Susie, you have been gaining experince in artificial hatching, and report negative results. This of course, leads to the inference that you did not explicitly follow the instructions of the manufacturer of your machine; for, bear in mind, Susie, that your particular machine has been on the market, to the writer's certain knowledge, for about twenty years. Hence it is fair to assume that he would know about how to run the thing for results. Your experience brings to mind Sister Jennie's experience along similar lines. Her's was a hot-water machine, and taking the water gauge for the reservoir proper, she proceeded to fill the gauge and heat her up. Well, it did, and melted all the solder off the reservoir proper and came near burning down the building in which the incubator was situated. For you see, Susie, it is always best to be guided when you don't know. Artificial incubation is not a problem in the higher mathematics; to the contrary, Susie, it is quite simple, only you must do certain things, and most decidedly avoid doing others. If you are in a receptive mood this beautiful morning, Susie, we will venture to state a few of the essentials that go to pulling off a successful hatch of eggs via the artificial route.

And in this connection we take it for granted, Susie, that you can see straight, and that at the beginning you will be quite sure that the wooden hen is sitting perfectly level; otherwise even with a steady flame in your lamp, she will be quite apt to distribute heat unevenly over the eggs. Of course, Susie dear, you have taken the precaution to use only the best oil—which will save you annoyance from smoke and a sooty chimney. You have white and brown eggs from several breeds bought at the store? Oh, that's bad. For remember, Susie dear, that brown eggs are usually tougher shelled than white, and that a miscellaneous lot are uncertain as to age and fertility. A much safer and better way would be for you to buy your eggs of one breeder, from some responsible poultryman who makes a specialty of eggs for hatching. This will insure you better fertility and stronger chicks. Having your machine in condition per instructions from the maker, be sure that it is situated in an even temperature. For this purpose many prefer a cellar, though that is not essential; nevertheless, avoid sunshine. See that the thermometer works right, and that your burner is free from dirt and kept scrupulously clean. Now then the artificial hen is sitting for business. Your instructions will tell you to commence turning the eggs about the third day, night and morning, stopping about the eighteenth day; after that let her work out her own destiny. When you see 'em pipping out of the shell, let matters rest. At the expiration of the first week you should commence to "test out" the unfertile eggs, and again at the end of the second week; by this you will eliminate not only the blank tickets in the game, but later on the aroma of certain hen fruits which does not suggest the perfumes of Arabia by a long ways. When the strong chicks are all "out" and dried off they can be removed to a brooder and started along the primrose path of chicken dalliance, which in its last analysis usually leads to the block and to the pot. Sad, isn't it, Susie? But hungry man has a soft tooth for chicken meat, and his capacious maw knows no policy nor ornithological forbearance when he's hungry. Fried chicken a la Maryland, in such cases, usually carries the day. Possibly, Susie, you also are often a party to the feast of reason and flow of soul that a real good chicken dinner inspires? Who isn't?

Cull to the Standard.

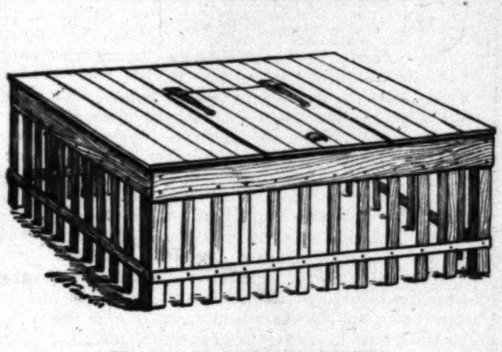
The time to cull is upon us, and the conceits of poultry keepers effluving. We think we know how to cull as we like anyhow. Our conceits publish us in the chicken yard, if we aren't careful. Unless long in the business and familiar with the standard of perfection, expecting to cull, we slaughter. The novice should head advice and get out his Standard, or get to the poultry supply house and buy one. He should study carefully his breed in the Standard, which is a book of statistics on each breed, telling what makes the perfect bird. Nobody has bred a perfect bird of any breed, but some have come near to it. If one has poor birds, he should consider them worthy of selection, when it comes to thinning out, and select the birds nearest the standard. It seems too bad that anybody should start with poor stock, when standard-bred poultry is so easily obtained, and for so little money. The standard is the same all over the country, though different people interpret it differently in minor ways. If a fine flock of Buff Leghorns has produced one blue-legged hen, though she be a beauty, yield not to individual taste; do not keep her with the standards. The should have yellow legs, and though blue legs on a buff bird are pretty to the colorist, the standard says no, and refrain from wanting to create a blue-legged strain of Buff Leghorns. The mongrels have blue legs generally. Do not yield to individual taste, but conform to standard requirements. If a beautiful Barred Rock pullet has a dark bill or legs, throw her out, and save the bright yellow-legged and billed. Now is a good time to begin eating the poor specimens, makes one feel other things are doing in the poultry yards. As the hens begin to moult the better specimens get bigger, and when eggs are very slow the bigger specimens are a nice return for expended labor. Keep the culled specimens by themselves and feed them for eating, while the others should be fed for continuance of fine form and feathers.

The Show Campaign.

About one-half of the several organizations that will give poultry exhibitions in this State have at this writing announced their dates; it is fair to assume that the remainder will do so before July shall have gone. Fanciers and breeders will be interested to learn that show matters are shaping up strongly all along the line, and that good exhibition stock will command attention this coming winter. Dates set for shows are as follows: Hanford, December 1-5; State Fair, Sacramento, August 28 to September 5; San José, November 9-14; Oakland, December 7-13; Petaluma, December 14-18; Fresno, December 16-19.

Asked and Answered.

Henry Straw of South Pasadena writes: "I have a lot of chicken feed left over; will it keep until next year?" The writer is not going to keep his over, but is feeding it in hoppers to the hens as well as young stock. Whenever the hot morning mash is not rich, or the filling mostly bran, we put in the feed to help out. It keeps better, if in a high, dry place, and must not get musty from standing in a sack on the ground.



DEVICE FOR FEEDING CHICKS.

To A. V. B., Riverside: It is not unusual for a Wyandotte stag-cock to be cross and vicious, and is not a sign of poor breeding. To go into the pen with a demonstration invites a fight; yet one has to self-protect. In breeding Dorkings the writer has had only two fighting sires in fourteen years; has one at present so important that a fox terrier dog is taken into the pen to entertain him, while the drinking dishes are being washed and eggs gathered. He puts both feet together and jumps high, spurring about a foot and a half from the ground. The force with which he strikes is fierce. Striking a robust caretaker on the shin one morning, when feeding carelessly, he nearly doubled the offended leg up, and severe kicking and rapid backing out of the pen was hastily resorted to. Generally, however, a cross sire is a good business fellow.

A fancier from Searchlight writes: "It is a common practice to take chicks away from the hen as they hatch out, keep them in a basket all day, and return them to their mother at night. It is supposed that if not so treated the little ones are liable to get smothered or killed in some way." This is a practice not to be commended. Lifting the hen every hour to see if another chick has broken through its shell is not only a very disagreeable distraction or worse to hen and chickens, but it is a waste of time and care for the owner. The hen understands her business; she is best left alone. Chicks are seldom killed in a flat-bottom roomy nest; that misfortune occurs frequently, however, in nests which have a "well" in the center, causing the chicks to roll together in a heap.

Grains from the Grit Box.

Well-fed hens lay the most eggs, while ill-fed hens often make their owners feel ashamed.

Lettuce is an excellent food for young geese and ducks.

Usually there is more in the garden than the family uses. This can be fed with profit. It pays to raise it for young waterfowl, and all kinds of poultry like it.

The breeders of Southern California have organized a Black Minorca Club with the following-named officers: H. A. Wheeler, Lordsburg, president; J. Madison Wright, Los Angeles, vice-president; M. E. Brown, Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer.

Wheat, oats and barley can now be fed with good results.

At a meeting of the Orange County Poultry Association the following officers were elected: President, W. Frank Greenleaf; vice-president, William Whitehead; secretary and treasurer, O. M. Robbins; chairman Purchasing Committee, S. J. Jackman; chairman Auditing Committee, C. R. Schenck; chairman Show Committee, F. A. Holbrook. The association will hold a banquet in September.

The Missouri State Board of Agriculture has written to Ernest Kellertrass, the poultry fancier, asking him for a portrait of "Peg," the famous $500 hen. This portrait is to be hung in the Missouri Agriculture College.

Per capita poultry returns a larger result than any other animals on the farm, nevertheless, in spite of that, hens often receive the least attention.

Beware of throwing rotten fruits into the poultry yards, because such a disposition would be handy. Just lift a spade of earth and dump them below the surface for fertilizer to a tree. One feels worthy making a good disposition of things generally wasteful.

HOW TO GET UP.

THERE SHOULD BE SOMETHING ARTISTIC ABOUT RISING IN THE MORNING.

[London Opinion:] I may as well say at once that I have never got up earlier than 8. Nothing can persuade me that anything of interest happens before breakfast.

Attempts have been made to convince me that I am missing the best part of the day; but I always say to my friends, as they stand grimly in the doorway, that a considerate man should always wait until the hens have laid their eggs.

Getting up should not, indeed, be allowed to degenerate into a habit. There should be something artistic about it, and it should be recognized as a feat.

It is no easy matter—this first plunge into the day; and thought and deliberation are needed.

Here is a table representing the usual course of events. It should, at all costs, be avoided:

One knock=one dream disturbed.
One dream disturbed=one yawn.
One yawn=two good resolutions.
Two good resolutions=ten minutes' sleep.
Ten minutes' sleep=one voice from outside.
One voice from outside=one "Just coming!"
One "Just coming!"=six good resolutions.
Six good resolutions=fifteen minutes' doze.
Fifteen minutes' doze=three voices from downstairs.
Three voices from downstairs=one word.
One word=one door banged.
One door banged=one jump, three shivers, one broken stud, three words, fifteen stairs, one martyred expression.

This sort of thing leads to unpleasant consequences. There are, in fact, only three successful ways of getting up:

1. The thoughtful.
2. The abrupt.
3. The mechanical or involuntary.

The first most nearly approaches the perfect. Supposing you want to get up at 8, all you have to do is to arrange to be called at 6. There is no finer feeling than knowing you have still two hours in bed.

There is no pleasure in being called at 7:45. This quarter of an hour's reprieve is no use. You can think of nothing except the coming ordeals of the cold bath and the shave.

But at 6 everything is agreeably in the distance, and you can doze, and wake up, and doze again.

For those who don't care to be called at 6 the abrupt method is recommended. Directly the clock goes off, or you hear the knock, sit up in bed. Having achieved this position, the rest is easy. If there is any tendency to fall back do one or two simple exercises and sing a few verses from a musical comedy.

The mechanical or involuntary method should only be used when the others have failed. An effective plan is to apply the alarm principle to the bed, and to set it to collapse at a certain hour. Make sure, however, before having the bed made that no member of the household has any tendency toward practical jokes.

Any one who has difficulty in getting up after trying these three methods cannot do better than have breakfast in bed. Crumbs!

Bachelor Girl in Panama.

PLEASANT LIFE UNDER THE GOVERNMENT'S WATCHFUL EYE.

From New York Sun.

IF YOU want to be a real bachelor girl, officially recognized as such, and with real bachelor quarters set aside for you by the Government, you must go to Panama. At present the bachelor girl in Panama is a small but growing institution. Her most celebrated "quarters" is in Empire, the town erected by the Government midway between Panama and Colon for the official business of the Canal Commission.

A few weeks ago one of Panama's original bachelor girls arrived in New York for her first vacation in two years, and with such glowing descriptions of a woman's life there that several of her friends have begun to save their pennies for a trip down. She hails from Empire and works in the disbursing office there.

"Life in Panama isn't everything it might be," she says, "but it's a lot better than the working woman enjoys in New York. I would never think of living North again.

"Each room in our house is about the size of a four-room Harlem flat in itself. There are two girls in a room, and each is provided with a bed, chiffonier, table, two straight back chairs and a rocking chair, and this double equipment doesn't begin to crowd the quarters. Then there are two stationary washstands with running water—cold of course. No one wants to so much as think of hot water in Panama. There are cold shower baths in the hall.

"The rooms are pretty. The walls are painted light blue or cream color, and the furniture is of mission style. The building is fitted with electric lights throughout.

"I don't mean to say it's perfection. We're always growling and demanding why on earth each can't have a smaller room to herself, instead of so large a room with another girl. That's where the women teachers in Panama have an advantage over those in the Government offices. The teachers' quarters were built for women and single rooms provided. But in the clerical work the woman was an afterthought with the Government, and she has simply been installed in quarters originally intended for men.

"The fact that plaster is not used in any of the buildings and that the walls are of wood is one of the greatest sources of discomfort. Every little sound carries in. With two girls chatting in the room next to you it is hard to write a letter or read a book. Panama is a splendid place to be sociable in, but the girl who is wise will not set her heart on much study or reflection. She will take life as it comes, with the gay group on the veranda.

"It is on the veranda that the bachelor girl of Panama practically lives, moves and has her being. Broad verandas surround every building on every side. Most of the girls in our house club together in bands of three or four and housekeep on the verandas outside their rooms.

"Yes, there is a hotel—that is there is the Government 'mess,' where all the employees may get three meals a day at 30 cents each. Everything is clean and well served there, but the cooking is such that almost any woman would rather take the trouble to do her own than eat it.

"I am one of a trio of girls myself. We clubbed together to buy a refrigerator—one of the greatest necessities in the Zone. We paid $15 for it and agreed that the one who remained a bachelor girl longest should have it to start housekeeping with when the inevitable finally occurred. No girl remains in Panama long without having a dozen proposals, and accepting one. I don't know what it is. Perhaps it's the long evenings on the verandas with that wonderful moon hanging overhead. But just now I'm going to stick to the housekeeping of the bachelor girls.

"Besides a refrigerator we bought four oil stoves, for there is no gas in the building. And we have an extra table out there and chairs and mats—a real pretty dining room and living room combined. We have dinner there five nights a week—seldom alone, for there is always some man or other who manages to get, or simply begs for, an invitation to join us.

"Oh, it would amaze the New York girl to see what a truly humble creature a man becomes down there, and how saucy and hard hearted the girls grow to be. Sometimes we even hang a sign 'Git!' on the door of our quarters when we want to remain undisturbed. But it never does any good. The men take it down and come up just the same.

"Every one in Panama rises very early in the morning, and the nights are so delightfully cool and refreshing that we get up feeling thoroughly exhilarated and ready for work. We take a cold bath and dress and make our beds, and have coffee and rolls, and are at the office by 8 o'clock. The janitor of the building comes up to sweep and dust every day in our absence, and has everything spick and span for us when we return.

"At 12 all work in Panama stops for two hours and every one goes home to sleep. The heat in the Zone is no fiction. We open all the doors and windows, and put on the thinnest kind of kimonos, and have an hour's nap. Then we take another cold shower bath, have iced tea with a cold snack, and get back to the office by 2.

"Marketing is one of the great difficulties. It is too hot to walk downtown in the middle of the day, and at 5 o'clock we are simply ravenous. So we buy something that can be quickly cooked, like a steak, and canned vegetables, and perhaps some potatoes, and hurry home. Generally we won't even wait for the potatoes to cook, but dine on the steak and canned goods. there are no fresh vegetables in Panama, or the few that are brought to the Isthmus are bought up so quickly that we business women are never in time to secure any. That's one of the greatest deprivations the American woman has to endure.

"Of course, all the meat one can get comes from cold storage, though occasionally we may pay a native a dollar for a chicken. We have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely fresh, for the native is far too lazy to be induced to kill or pluck it. He delivers it alive, with all its feathers intact, and as we are sensitive about such things we have to pay the janitor to kill it for us.

"Most persons when they talk about living in a hot country say, 'Why not eat fruit and such things? One doesn't need meat down there.' Well, some of the fruits are very delicious, and the native varieties are cheap. Bananas can be had for five cents a dozen. But, strangely enough, every one loses taste for fruit after living there a little while and craves solid fare. The way in which one's appetite increases in Panama is one of the surprising things about that country. No one seems to develop 'southern languor,' as it is called. Every one grows more active and energetic. In fact, there is a certain nervous exhilaration in the air which makes it imperative for a woman not to be too ambitious, but to make all her leisure moments ones of perfect relaxation, and above all not to worry if she is to avoid a breakdown.

"We do all our marketing and shopping of all kinds at the commissary, which is like the big, old fashioned general store of a country village, and where one may purchase anything from a loaf of bread to a pair of shoes. There is no bothering with small change. Each girl has her commissary book, and whatever she buys is noted therein and deducted from her salary at the end of the month. Our ice is sent around from the commissary store every day, and there is one delivery of other goods, too; but we seldom manage to order far enough in advance to take advantage of it.

"Prices are just about the same as New York prices for provisions of all sorts at the commissary store. Last month we three girls lived well for only $15 apiece. But everything except food is dear. Empire is a town built and owned entirely by the government. There are no shops or houses of any sort except under its control. Even in Panama City, however, one will have to pay about $2 for a simple muslin undergarment. Ribbons, shoes and gloves cost small fortunes. Women seldom wear hats except when traveling by rail. Every one carries a parasol instead.

"Until lately there was no way for a woman to get a dress except by making it herself. The Jamaican negro women are splendid sewers, doing the finest kind of needle work; but they have absolutely no idea of cutting a garment and ruin any they undertake to make. There is now one American woman in Panama City who has opened a dressmaking parlor. She can procure the services of the Jamaican women to sew for her for very little, and as she does the cutting and fitting herself she should reap a small fortune.

"The bachelor girl depends upon the Jamaican woman for her laundry work. I pay one $5 a month, and for that she does any amount of washing, including the numerous white shirtwaists necessary down there, and a thin suit or two each week. She takes a full week to do the wash, but when it is finished it is a pleasure to behold in its whiteness and beautiful ironing.

"White is the usual thing worn in Panama, though most of the women wear dark skirts to the office for economy's sake. The sun fades out all colored wash goods so quickly that colors are only used in evening gowns. A girl has use for any number of pretty evening gowns in the Zone, for there are always one or two dances a week to which she is sure to be invited.

"Dancing and baseball are the two chief amusements of Americans in Panama. Baseball amounts to a positive passion there. Every little town and office in a town has its team, and the games between these have much the same interest for the girls as college games do up here.

"On Saturday the government employés take route from the various towns to Panama City and its American suburb, Ancon. The large I.C.C. hotel, the Tivoli, is in Ancon, and the fare and accomodations one gets there are really good. On Saturday evening every one goes to a dance. It may be at the University Club, which is the oldest and swellest of the American clubs in Panama; or at the Tivoli, where the Tivoli Club gives a dance every fortnight; or at one of the smaller clubs or societies, all of which give dances frequently.

"On Sunday there are the baseball games—large matches between the best of the teams, and the entire American population of Panama City and Ancon turns out to yell itself hoarse over the national sport. Then at night the men take the girls to dinner—to the University Club, if they are fortunate enough to be members, for the service there is the best on the isthmus.

"Sunday evenings the band plays in the Central Plaza, and the Americanos flock there to mingle with the first families of the Isthmian capital who turn out in force to promenade solemnly back and forth.

"For the woman who comes to Panama with money ahead of her and able to start in some independent enterprise there is no lack of opportunitiy in the Zone. But no girl should make the mistake of coming down under the impression that a good position is to be picked up on a moment's notice. When I went to Panama, two years ago, almost no women were working in the government's employ, and the few who were were rather looked down upon. Now, however, the wives, daughters and sisters of the men employed by the civil service have grown to appreciate the fact that they may as well make a salary to help along, for the hours are short, and life without work is apt to be monotonous. Now girls who come down with their families put in their applications for positions as soon as they arrive. They can afford to wait several months for work, and the bachelor girl who competes with them must be able to do the same.

"Nor are the prices paid for women's services exceptionally high. Those in the government offices receive from $60 to $75 a month and their rooms; the teachers start at about $60, but there is more advancement for them.

"Good stenographers are very much in demand. A girl who is expert at taking shorthand notes will have ten times the chance of securing an immediate position that another girl has. And even before she procures a position she can be sure of making a living if she will do public stenographic work.

"Spanish teachers are also lacking, strangely enough. The first thing every American does after reaching Panama is to try to buy a Spanish grammar—which, by the way, is a very scarce article and should be brought from home.

"One woman has opened a room where she presses, cleans and mends men's suits. She will coin money, for there are about 600 men to every woman here, and men are in need of all sorts of home life and care.

"There are flats in Panama City, and the woman who can afford to take and furnish one and rent out rooms with good table board will not have to seek far for boarders. But the flats are very expensive.

"A good circulating library is another crying need. Books of all sorts are treasures down there. It is impossible to keep a volume of your own unless you hide it. It is borrowed and reborrowed until it has disappeared forever. A book store which kept the up to date novels would bring a handsome return. There is also a great need for a good stationery store.

"Any one who can offer amusement or entertainment of any sort is assured an enthusiastic welcome in the Zone, where the men and girls alike crave anything at all in the way of variety. There is one small theater in Panama. Sometimes a moving picture show or a monologist or several concert singers will stop on their way down to South America and open the theater for a night or two. No matter what they are they play to full houses. If a stock company rented the theater and gave a new play each week they would do a magnificent business.

"If clothes of all kinds are dear in Panama a woman has at least the comfort of knowing that she does not need to worry about her next spring or winter costume. Once procured clothes serve until they are worn out.

"Another comfort which spoils the woman who has tried life in the Zone for ever coming to New York to live again is the fact that she may have a carriage to drive in wherever she wishes to go and only pay a dime for this luxury. After getting used to this elegance the crowding and discomfort of the New York surface and subway cars is almost unbearable.

"Of course all the government employés in Panama advise each other to be sick at least once a year in order to be sent to Toboga Island, where the government sanitarium is situated. And if one is the least run down it isn't hard to get the two weeks sick leave allowed.

"Toboga is the most ideal spot on the face of the earth. The heat of the isthmus is lacking and the blue sea stretches out before one in infinite peace. There is good bathing in the surf and boating on the waters all tbout the island, and the people in the quaint old town on the island come up to make your acquaintance and give you a perfect time.

"One of the amusing things to one who is long in Panama is the perpetual growler, who dislikes everything and everybody down there and who is continually talking about 'getting back to God's country.' After a bit he does disappear; but if you are accustomed to the type you will look for him back again. And this time he will tell you what a cold, unsociable place a great city in the north is, how he didn't enjoy going to all the theaters as much as he thought he would, and how glad he is to get back to the free and easy life of the Zone. Every one who has once tried the southern life seems to return to it again."

Won't Be Called Grandma.

"The word 'grandma' is dying out," said a lexicographer, or maker of dictionaries, pausing in his labor on the letter G. "By 2000, at this rate, no such word will exist."

"What will take its place?"

"Oh, 'nannie,' 'nans,' 'lovelocks,' 'dearest'—some such rubbish.

"You see," explained the lexicographer, "women think that they have learned to stave off old age. A woman of fifty, because she has dyed hair, a painted face, a figure here distended and there cramped, thinks that she looks young. As a matter of fact, she looks neither fish, flesh, nor fowl. No man can bear the sight of her.

"But she thinks she looks young, and therefore she won't be called 'grandma.' Youth is over for good, you know—beyond peradventure we are done with the long, long dreams of youth—when a little one is lisping 'grandma' or 'grandpa' at our knee. So this old fool trains her grandchildren to call her 'nans' or 'kitten,' and getting into her wadded street gown, she trips on rheumatic feet to the beauty parlor for a face steaming."

A Cruel Experiment.

"At the seashore it is an interesting experiment to look for those little shell-dwelling crabs called hermits," said a nature student.

"You find one, then you break his shell house. His look of independence at once leaves him. Houseless, he rushes here and there, up and down, with a helpless, terrified and desperate air.

"Then you find another shell of the proper shape and size, and you set it in his way. He halts before it. He takes its measurement. As quickly as possible he bustles in.

"Then his helpless and lost air vanishes, and, a haughty and fearless householder once more, he frowns out at you from his window, as much as to say:

" 'Go on about your business!' "

FIELD NOTES.

The Melon Fly.

IF IN San Francisco drop into the quarantine office at the Ferry building, and ask for a look at a jar of cucumbers there, infested with the melon fly. This fruit of the vine was held up at the wharf, having come from Honolulu. You may not enjoy cucumbers for a week, but it will give you an idea of the work of this pest wherever it abounds. It is one of the destructive insects that the vigilance of the State Quarantine Division has kept out of the country. Were it to get a hold on our Coast there would be no more watermelons, cucumbers or "cants" in this country.

This fly, known to entomologists as Dacus cucurbitae, was noticed first by Byron O. Clark, formerly of Pasadena but for many years a prominent official and fruit grower at Pearl City, Oahu. This discovery was made in 1897 and in two years all attempts at raising melons on that island were abandoned, so rapid was the spread of this pest. The female fly, by means of her strong ovipositer pierces the epidermis of the melon, or other host plant or fruit, and prepares just beneath the surface, in the tissue, an egg-chamber, into which through the one incision are deposited eggs, sometimes numbering fifteen. The larger portion of the melons are infested from the time of the setting of the fruit until about three inches in length. Muskmelons and cucumbers are capable of being infested much earlier in their development. The vines, as well as the fruit, are infested with this loathsome maggot and the fruit is soon reduced to a rotten mass. When the maggots are ready to pupate they bore into the soil an inch or so and from thence emerge, perfect flies. No expense is too great that will prevent the introduction of this pest into the United States.

Farm-House Hygienics.

THERE is quite a distinct movement in the old-settled farm districts in favor of better plumbing, heating, disposal of sewage and the introduction of better modern conveniences in every form about the farm premises. Farm communities are equally cleanly with the better city classes, but it is a well-known fact that typhoid fever and possibly other bacterial diseases are found most persistent and widespread in the rural districts. Even the people who do not pay much attention to the public questions of the day are becoming impressed with this fact, and they are beginning to comprehend the causes that lead to the prevalence of these diseases. I know of one large city where it is said typhoid fever is almost unknown, and such examples as this have done much to enliven the rural population to the necessity of providing for each home better drainage and more careful disposition of sewage and other waste likely to spread contagion. It is said by a national expert that typhoid fever in all well-regulated cities is becoming rare except in the fall, when the vacation ceases and the people return from the country, bringing with them the germs of the disease.

The farmers who wish to have about the latest and best treatise on farm hygienics may have the same free, by addressing the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington City, and asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 270.

Alcohol from Fruit Waste.

A CORRESPONDENT in the upper Sacramento writes inquiring if it would pay to try to utilize the waste products of the orchard and cannery for the manufacture of denatured alcohol. It would pay far better to reduce the waste fruit by the production of a maximum of the merchantable quality. In lessening the quantity of unmarketable fruit in an orchard the grower must perforce raise the standard of excellence in his entire crop. There is no way to improve a part without improving the whole output. With this view of the case it is useless to talk of utilizing the waste when it is so much better in price and yield to take your alcohol-making energies and use them in bettering your horticulture.

One hundred pounds of apples will produce about five pounds of alcohol, or five-sevenths of a gallon, worth perhaps 30 cents. We have no means of estimating the cost of making 30 cents worth of alcohol from fruit waste, but we know it costs about 30 cents to make a gallon of industrial alcohol from corn. In the latter case but 56 pounds of raw material has to be handled to produce 2.7 gallons of alcohol, while in the fruit waste 100 pounds must be worked to produce less than one gallon. Another consideration is that no one knows the alcoholic product of average fruit-farm waste—culls, over-ripe and immature fruit. This would no doubt reduce the probabilities of success to the minimum. At any rate no fruit grower should think of organizing an alcohol plant till the question is worked out to a clearer understanding of the matter.

Inferior Union in Stocks.

I HAVE had a large correspondence with nurserymen within the last three months regarding the rejection of deciduous trees by horticultural inspectors in different parts of the State. One sample of bad union between the stock and scion was sent in by one of the loudest complainants. My reply to him was that any serious knot, gall or enlargement about the union of a graft would justify its rejection, not upon theory, but upon observation and experience. It has been my lot to put together successfully a half million apple grafts, and I came to the conclusion long before I ever saw California that the quality of wrapping material and care in wrapping the unions would produce such a maximum of smooth trees that the few rough ones need not be considered.

In the first place some nurserymen do not take any account of the value of waxed cloth, rubber or specially prepared paper in propagating deciduous grafts. The result of a poor union is a greater liability to the entrance of such diseases as crown gall. With proper care in wrapping one experiment of record shows that only 91 trees out of 700 made a rough union, all the others showing such perfect union by the time the trees were 1 year old that no one could tell, except by the bark, where the scion and stock were joined. In another experiment where unwaxed thread was used, 203 out of 675 made unequal union. In a late experiment made by the Bureau of Plant Industry, only 10 per cent. of the well-wrapped grafts showed any evidence of crown gall, while 27 per cent. poorly wrapped were attacked with this disease.

I am writing this hoping that some nurseryman, and possibly many prospective tree planters will read it and become wiser as to planting nothing but clean, well-united trees. Crown gall may not be a disease at all, but it is a condition to be avoided, for it displays a weak point in the tree which may induce decay. A bad wound from a knife or an ax is not a disease, yet it may induce abnormal conditions or allow the entrance of disease or decay that may be fatal to the tree. Then what is the use of planting an inferior tree of any kind in this age of horticultural progress? What is the use of my nursery friend writing me that he proposes to test the right of an inspector to reject his trees because they have enlargements at the union with the crown and scion? Cannot he see that he has no right to handicap a future orchard with trees of any abnormal tendencies? A perfectly united graft will aid in keeping out disturbing factors of all kinds. One reason why budding produces a greater percentage of perfect trees is that the incision is very small, can be closed tighter than grafting and is superior in many ways. At any rate, plant nothing but a perfect tree.

Dishonest Commission Men.

IT IS very creditable of the League of Commission Merchants that it is doing its best to expose, drive out or apprehend the dishonest men who are doing business in fruits and produce as commission merchants. As evidence of the efforts being made to put these fake merchants out of business I quote from the headlines of the three last columns of the first page of the Chicago Packer of June 20:

"Where is Meals?" "Creditors Can't Locate Him." Meals bought a carload of eggs at Kansas City on credit, shipped it to Philadelphia, got the money and has not been seen since, leaving many smaller debts unpaid. "The packer stopped him. Bradley, the notorious crook, skinned the shippers, but he succeeded in getting away." "M. W. Wilson & Co. a fake. Deal at Quincy, Ill., made a $5000 clean-up. It seems that this professional produce crook, who landed at Quincy a month ago, giving the name of Wilson, has sidestepped, leaving the shippers stung to the tune of $5000. This much is certain, and the clean-up may be bigger. It is somewhat difficult to get a description of 'Wilson,' but those who are familiar with his habits say that he was undoubtedly the same crook exposed in the Packer April 11, who operated a deal at Dubuque under the name of E. J. Johnson. It will be recalled that Johnson was none other than Ed. Bates, a protegé and former accomplice of Jim Mulhall." The latter was the biggest thief of all and I believe was finally captured in Los Angeles.

The above quotations, taken from one page of the Packer, shows what kind of fellows are disgracing the commission business. The list could be extended indefinitely within the memory of California fruit growers. But there are always plenty of suckers among the farmers and orchardists of the East. They seem willing to entrust their crops to men who have no standing, sometimes in preference to dealing with honest firms. The weeding-out process cannot go on too swiftly, for the cause of the commission business cannot thrive under these great handicaps.

In the Monarch's Zone.

TO A MAN who has spent over twenty years exclusively in Southern California, a trip through the pine forests of the northern part of the State is a revelation. I had that experience for the first time not long ago. This territory is known to forestry as the Pacific Coast division of the Transition Zone. They mean by this the area where the northern and southern species of plants meet and blend or overlap, and hence its name. It is interesting to fruit growers from the fact that conditions making possible this blending of the natural flora also make possible the wide range of fruit plants and cereals. The temperature of this great region is exceptionally low for the latitude, thus enabling the northern types of vegetation to push farther south. On the other hand, the total heat units of twelve months at Puget Sound, for example, is greater than that of Philadelphia, though the former is 500 miles farther north than Philadelphia. This peculiarity enables the plants native under other conditions to Arizona and the great valleys of California to return the visit and invade the territory where without the great average heat they would be excluded. One may judge from these facts why Oroville can grow perfect oranges as well as Riverside, and one month earlier in ripening—more heat units in the former than in the latter during the orange growing season.

But it is the great Douglas fir, the western hemlock, the Sitka spruce and Pacific cedar that attracts one's attention. I was told that in some of the best of these timbered areas through which we traveled in Siskiyou county the trees averaged 200 feet high. I found the greatest and most abundant trees in some cases less than ten miles from the main road running over the Shasta range from the south. The timber is not confined to the conifers, for there are some maples and a great deal of the lesser trees, such as dogwood, alders, madronas and shrubby growth generally. The visitor is struck by the inaccessible position of much of the remaining fine timber. The giants seem to be making their last stand in the fastnesses for their more unfortunate comrades within the reach of a crude roadway have long since disappeared, leaving the survivors appearing to have taken warning and climbed aloft to escape the lumber cutter. Some day the ingenuity of the lumbermen will reach these sentinels, and there are millions of them left, for we must have box shooks, building material and wood for ornamental purposes. Fortunately the humidity of the climate prevents unusual ravages by fire, as 100 inches of rainfall is not conducive to forest conflagrations. The rainfall in most of this territory seldom falls below 30 inches, and an average of 50 inches is not uncommon. In fact it rained nearly all the week I was in that section, and last winter was one of very scant degree. Northern California is attracting greater attention as a summer resort, largely due to the magnificent forests and the grandeur of old Shasta, which dominates the whole landscape of Shasta and Siskiyou counties.

Happening of the Expected.

I WROTE for this department recently some account of the mealy bug menace of the Sandwich Islands pineapple industry. When the new order was made requiring this fruit to be clean upon landing in California, some of the dealers thought it a final blow to the marketing of this fruit here. But the sequel of these dire forecasts is what I want to bring before the readers of The Times. The Quarantine Inspector at San Francisco reports that the Hilonian brought 1900 crates in one lot on her last trip. He was unable to find a living insect on the entire lot, and the agent who accompanied the shipment told the inspector that the growers were pleased at the way the new order is working out, and glad we had taken action allowing nothing but clean fruit to leave the wharf. Although the new rule has been in effect only a month, the islanders acknowledge that it has given a big stimulus to the industry, shutting out the poor fruit of the Chinese renters and giving the American growers a chance. It has already made marked improvement in the fruit.

New Plant Introductions.

I HAD the pleasure of a visit from Frank N. Meyer, explorer for the Department of Agriculture. The gentleman had just arrived from the Far East, bringing with him fifteen tons of rare plants gathered in China and adjacent territories, many of which are but little known even to botanists. He gave me a description of many of these new specimens, all of which have been delivered at the National Plant Introductory Garden at Chico. One of peculiar interest is the white-barked pine of China. He brought twenty plants of this pine. It grows branching from near the ground and bears an edible nut. The bark is pure white and is a long-lived tree. Some trees are known to be 1600 years old. This pine is one of the sacred trees, the nuts being eaten by the priests.

One of Mr. Myer's collection is a willow that grows like an umbrella tree. If adaptable it will add another beautiful ornamental tree to California's already redundant list. Pink and white dwarf lilac are in the lot, bearing exceedingly flagrant flowers upon a bush so small that it is used in China for interior decorations. He has a snowball variety with flowers one foot in diameter, weeping junipers, horsetail plants, a blue spruce and hundreds of other specimens too numerous to record. In the consignment are 100 boxes of bamboo, containing thirty varieties, and the garden will try to acclimatize these plants and make them of commercial value.

Mr. Meyer left San Francisco for the Far East and spent the entire time in the field. He was in the midst of the terrible cyclone three years ago that did $8,000,000 worth of damage in the region round about Shanghai. His accounts of adventure are interesting and thrilling. He was nearly beaten to death by Chinese outlaws in the interior, but escaped with but one adventure of this kind.

No man can realize his own meanness and rascality, until he becomes a candidate for office, or defendant in a divorce suit.

MORE and more people are becoming convinced of the danger of coming in contact with the commonest of insects. A few years ago the assertion that a flea, the tiniest and apparently the most harmless of insects, was capable of propagating bubonic plague would have been ridiculed. Yet it is now known to science that it is not necessary for a flea to bite a person to transmit the bubonic poison. All that is necessary for this insect to do is to drop its blood or offal into an open pore of the skin and the disease has been transmitted.

What is true of the flea is true in a greater measure of the mosquito. Nine-tenths of the malaria extant has been transmitted by a specific breed of mosquito. Other diseases are propagated by this pernicious insect. Some persons affect indifference in its presence, but they should not. The mosquito is a plague and pest that should be exterminated wherever found.

In some places the dread of this pestiferous insect is so intense that the law makes it compulsory for the authorities to take measures toward its abatement. The following, after extensive experiments in countries where the mosquito abounds, has been found an excellent method of extermination:

Cut the thick, pulpy leaves of the cactus into pieces and throw into the water where the mosquitoes are found until it becomes macerated and resolves itself into a sticky paste.

This paste is spread upon the surface of the stagnant water and forms an isolated layer which prevents the larvae of the mosquito from coming to the top to breathe and destroys them through asphyxiation. There are those who prefer petroleum as the most effective means for the extermination of mosquitoes, and it is true that petroleum is an excellent exterminator. But in the warm climates petroleum evaporates too rapidly and proves of little avail. The mucilaginous cactus paste, on the contrary, can hold its place indefinitely. Packing-house Equipment.

THE following article was read by C. E. Rumsey of Riverside at the Riverside Fruit Growers' convention:

The most important item of equipment is not machinery, nor any contrivance or device to hurry our perishable fruit from wagon to car. I would place absolutely first a body of growers who would demand from the packing-house management that the fruit they had labored nearly a year to bring to perfection should be so handled as to prevent its decay while on the way and after its delivery to the buyer.

While packing-house managers have been open to blame (mainly for consenting to handle fruit improperly,) it would be very hard to find a manager who would resist an effort made by his growers to insure greater care in handling. In my experience the grower is to blame—not the manager. Some growers will help the manager by picking and delivering fruit in the most careful manner. Other growers will do neither, and their neglect when the fruit is pooled makes the care of other growers of no effect. I am discussing this matter from the association standpoint, having no experience with any other. I think in any association packing-house, with the light we now have, a body of growers can be grouped who will agree to have their fruit picked by a crew under the control of the manager, hauled in the most careful manner, and packed under strict rules, asking only that this be done at as little cost as the best work requires, and demanding that the fruit so packed shall be sold under specified brands. If there is a group who do not believe in care and who will not take it, or pay for it, I would let them have the brands they have always had, and adopt new ones for those who have the work done carefully. The past two years have shown that new brands, well handled, have displaced some of the old favorites, and good work is quickly appreciated by the trade. Such a body of growers will either gladden a manager's heart—or break his back if he does not respond. This is the first and best item in "packing-house equipment."

The second item is the picking crew, and the main force in that is the foreman. I do not believe the best work can be done by any manager unless he controls the fruit from the tree to the car. In no other way can you fix responsibility. The grower should do nothing but watch and help the foreman, unless he will work in the crew with the other pickers and under the foreman. The grower must expect to pay more for picking when clipper cutting and long stems are not tolerated. No picker can pick as many boxes of perfect work—fifty boxes is about the limit, and where fruit is small it may drop to thirty-five boxes. In my own experience constant inspection at the packing-house is necessary to insure perfect work. Several times when fruit was small the men would pick faster than before, and we had to warn them that we wanted perfect work rather than quantity. In our crew every man keeps tally of his boxes as he fills them, and also numbers them on the end in pencil, so the inspector can examine a certain number of each man's pick daily. I prefer clipper cuts to long stems. Some clipper cuts heal over, but the possibilities of the long stem to cause injury and decay are about five times as great. We cut all stems twice, and we have no leaves or twigs in the boxes. Throwing the picking sack to the left hip has cut out that source of decay. We fight the pickers all the time to keep the work right, and find it is necessary. Full boxes are ordered kept in the shade of the tree, and we have pieces of canvas that cover two and three boxes to keep off the sun and dew or rain.

We haul to packing-house in wagons two feet from the ground; the end gate, six feet long, drops to the ground and serves as a bridge, up which the boxes are carried and gently put in place. The wagon holds 120 boxes, two rows wide and six high. Front wheels 48 inches in diameter, hind wheels 54 inches. We use three horses abreast. Every sixth box has cleats under it and is stenciled in black, so it can be seen anywhere to enable the men to put these on the bottom of each tier so we can use a truck with a twelve-inch nose to convey six boxes at a time from the wagon across the end-gate (now used as a bridge) from load to packing-house floor.

The elevator, the clamp truck and the rustler were all undesirable features in equipment. We have cut out the elevator by dropping the floor of the house below the grading table twenty inches, so we feed on the sizer almost horizontally. When necessary to weigh we empty the bins and use small platform scales. All our culls are carried to a bin and reinspected by the foreman. I think I pay his wages out of the cull bin.

We use no brusher. If the fruit is dirty we grade it out and clean it. If one child is sick it is better to dose it and not give medicine to the entire family. We use Stebler's automatic dumper and sizer, which eliminates the desire of the human dumper to shove the fruit down with the edge of the box. We have a piece of canvas, with a board attached, so that it meets the box as it comes up, and covers enough of it to make the oranges crumble down inside the box instead of flying out. They fall on rubber hose spaced apart to let the buttons, sticks, etc., fall through at once, but clean picking has almost cut them out. The hopper below the hose grating is smooth, hard board, as the fruit does not fall on it.

We use Praed canvas bins. When packed the boxes are placed on Alvey-Ferguson ball-bearing roller conveyors, 26 inches high, the height of the press. The most perfect press I know of is made by Mr. Covey of Riverside. The fruit is clamped sideways, away from the edge of the box, before it is pressed down, and it seems to prevent injury when carefully handled. When nailed, the boxes are shoved on the conveyor and run by gravity into the end of the car if needed, or off to the side of the house to be stacked.

Not all of the work in our house is adapted to all other houses, but the determined growers, the intelligent manager, the picking crew, the careful hauling and handling are, after all, the best equipment for any house, and when you have these no device that can possibly do injury to fruit will be tolerated.

Let us pick and pack our fruit to save ourselves loss, now that the Department of Agriculture has spent $36,000 to show us how to minimize decay, knowing that the trade will pay us well if we save them loss. When dealers find out that most decay is preventable it will be hard to sell fruit that has been carelessly handled.

I presume "Packing House Equipment" was assigned to me because the commissioner thought there was something unusual in my house in the way of "equipment." There is little in it that is original. It is only the adaptation of other men's ideas, picked up here and there, but always with the purpose of simplifying the work and handling fruit with care. We have coddled the lemon and abused the orange. Having no lemons, we coddled what we had and the oranges got the easy handling. They have responded, as Mr. Powell predicted they would, and the market seems to be appreciating the care. I think the packing-house equipment has been a small factor only. It is care, not equipment, that has done most to lessen tdecay. No equipment will take the place of anxious, systematic care from the tree to the car. I am forced to this conclusion by finding houses which have a less careful equipment than ours, but whose care and haulage is of the best. I would rather take my packing-house and pick, haul and pack for it with care, than take the costliest equipment designed for careful handling and rush fruit through it, so care could not be given.

It was a mystery to me how Mr. Chapman could sell oranges for such high prices. Then it became a mystery how the National Orange Company could get such figures. Then L. V. W. Brown put me in a brown study. I began to remember that Mr. Powell had said nearly four years ago that Mr. Chapman was the most careful packer in California. As I knew the National Orange Company and Mr. Brown were following Mr. Powell's suggestion, the proof seemed positive that there was something in it.

Later I knew of a packer saying "Mr. Powell is a humbug." I looked in the market report and saw this packer's fruit sold at $2.40 for extra fancy, when three "orchard runs" sold for over $3. That proved it negatively, and I built a house with an oak shield on the corner, on which, in gold letters is inscribed:

"In gratitude to the United States Department of Agriculture, the Bureau of Plant Industry, G. Harold Powell and his staff, this building is dedicated to the careful handling of citrus fruit."

It is not dedicated to "equipment."

GUARDING PAPER MONEY.

CHECKS AGAINST THEFTS OF CURRENCY WHILE IN THE PROCESS OF PRINTING.

[Chicago Record Herald:] The paper money of the government is brought in ironbound chests, locked and sealed, from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to the cash room of the Treasury and there delivered upon receipt to James A. Sample, chief of the division of issue, in sheets of four bills each. They are complete with signature and numbers, except for the seal, which is printed upon them with power presses in a small apartment under the cash room.

These presses are worked by two people, usually a man pressman and a woman feeder or assistant. When the seal has been imprinted upon the bills they are counted automatically, bound in packages of equal numbers by bands of paper, marked, signed by the persons who have handled them, and passed into the adjoining room, where the sheets are cut, the bills are recounted and inspected, so that the imperfect ones may be thrown out. They are then bound into packages of equal amounts and taken to the drying vault, where they lie upon the shelves for several weeks, until the ink has become perfectly dry.

Every safeguard that ingenuity can contrive is placed around these transactions, and the chief of division can tell which of his hundred or more subordinates have touched the different bills in the vaults. He knows who received them, who printed the seal, who wrapped and cut them; for every package is numbered and its history is recorded in an enormous book.

The combination of checks is so complete that Mr. Sample would know within twenty minutes if a single bill were missing, but he has never had occasion to test this knowledge except twice within fifteen years. Only two attempts have ever been made to steal the money of the government while it is in this stage of its history.

On one occasion many years ago a pressman passing a pile of notes upon the table of his neighbor slipped the top sheet under his blouse without being observed and carried it with him into the lavatory, where he was successful in concealing it. The theft was discovered within five minutes and it was clearly apparent that he alone could be guilty, although the evidence was purely circumstantial. No one saw him take the money. Therefore he was not arrested and was never publicly charged with the crime. But he was dismissed from the service and he knew the reason why. The bills were never recovered. He probably destroyed them, as they did not appear in circulation.

On one occasion eight or ten years ago a colored messenger whose business was to haul the money about on a cart slipped a loose sheet into his pocket unobserved while passing between the printing and counting-rooms. This theft was also unseen, but the responsibility was fastened upon him. The pile of notes was complete when it left the printer, for it was counted and registered automatically in the press. When it reached the counting-room one sheet was missing and the package had not been out of the possession of the colored messenger in the meantime. Therefore he alone was responsible, and as he could not offer any satisfactory explanation he, too, was dismissed from the service, but was not prosecuted because there was no direct proof of his guilt.

The Science of Eating.

EXPERIMENTS at Yale University, conducted during the past few years by Prof. Russell Chittenden, have been of much importance, and have done much to greatly modify previously accepted theories in regard to the amount of food necessary to sustain health and vigor, especially in regard to the necessary amount of proteid food. Prof. Chittenden's book, "Physiological Economy in Nutrition," was reviewed here over a year ago. A later book by Prof. Chittenden is entitled "The Nutrition of Man." It is a book of over three hundred pages. While primarily written for physicians, the language of the book is so plain and simple that it may readily be understood by any person who has devoted a little study to the subject of dietetics.

Referring to digestion, the author shows that it is not so simple a process as is usually supposed, but is indeed "an obscure physiological problem." In regard to the construction of living protoplasm, Prof. Chittenden declares that we know nothing, and probably never shall know anything, as it is a process like that of bringing the dead to life.

As in the case of fuel burned by engines, a large proportion of energy is lost in the human body—about 65 per cent. of the energy of the food is used in connection with external muscular work. May it not be suggested that the thorough mastication of food, as recommended by Fletcher, would increase this efficiency? Also that some recent investigators deny that we derive energy and heat from food, claiming that it is renewed during sleep, from some unknown outer source.

As showing the greatly increased consumption of oxygen brought about by exercise the author mentions that simply walking along a level suffices to increase the consumption of oxygen threefold over what occurs when the body stands at rest.

Answering the argument that much proteid food is needed, because people have been in the habit of eating that way, Prof. Chittenden says:

"The argument that because the people of a country, constituting a given class, eat a certain amount of proteid food daily, the quantity so consumed must be an indication of the amount needed to meet the requirements of the body is as faulty as the argument that because people of a given community are in the habit of consuming a certain amount of wine each day at dinner their bodies must necessarily be in need of the stimulant, and that consequently alcohol is a true physiological requirement. A large proportion of mankind is addicted to the tobacco habit, and to many persons the after-dinner cigar is as essential to comfort as the dinner itself; but would any one think of arguing that tobacco is one of the physiological needs of the body?"

As the author says, in another place: "The smooth running of men's bodily machinery calls for exercise of reason and intelligence and is not to be entrusted solely to the dictation of blind instinct, or the leadings of a capricious appetite."

The author says further:

"If it is true that the demands of the body for proteid food—which of all foods is the most expensive—are fully met by an amount equal to one-half that ordinarily consumed, and that health and strength are more satisfactorily maintained thereby, it is easy to see how the acquisition of dietary habits leading to consumption of food in harmony with physiological needs will result in a fruitful twofold economy, viz., economy in expenditure, and of still greater moment, economy in the activities of the body, by which food and its waste products are cared for."

A chapter is devoted to the results of experiments made in feeding dogs on high and low proteid dietaries. As mentioned here on several occasions, such experiments on the lower animals are of dubious value, and are frequently misleading, owing to the difference in the structure and functioning of those animals from that of men. In the dog, for instance, the digestive juices are vastly stronger than those of a human being. However, these experiments made by Prof. Chittenden at least lack the element of needless cruelty that is involved in vivisection.

The author expresses appreciation of the benefits derived from bacteriology, an appreciation which the editor of the Care of the Body cannot share, for it has diverted much effort that might have been devoted to a more valuable investigation of the real causes of disease.

The author indorses the platitude that "the ideal diet is found in a judicious admixture of foodstuffs of both animal and vegetable origin," whereas, as frequently stated here, the "mixed diet" is the most illogical of all diets, the only animal adopting such a diet being the hog, and then only when that animal has been "civilized" by man. The author has, however, a good word to say for a non-flesh dietary. He writes:

"As has been stated in several connections, a diet which conforms to the true nutritive requirements of the body must necessarily lead toward vegetable foods. In no other satisfactory way can excess of proteid be avoided, and at the same time the proper calorific value be obtained. This, however, does not mean vegetarianism, but simply a greater reliance upon foods from the plant kingdom, with a corresponding diminution in the typical animal foods. This raises the question of the possible relation of diet to the bacterial processes of the intestine, knowing, as we do, that the latter are of primary importance in the causation of certain forms of auto-intoxication, etc. Recent studies have indicated that the bacterial flora of carnivorous animals is quite different from that of herbivorous animals, and this being so, it is easy to see how a predominance of vegetable or animal food may modify the bacterial conditions of the intestinal tract in man."

As to table salt—chloride of sodium—while the author does not altogether condemn this slow poison, he points out that far too much is used.

There are two other dietetic tests which the editor of the Care of the Body would like to see Prof. Chittenden and his colleague, Prof. Fisher, undertake. The first is to decide whether the increased energy displayed by those who adopt a low proteid dietary is due entirely to the less amount of proteid consumed, or largely to the absence of flesh food. Personally, the editor of the Care of the Body is sure the latter is the case, owing to the presence in flesh food of what Dr. Haig calls "fatigue products." This test could be carried out by feeding one set of men on a dietary including a comparatively full amount of proteid foods in the shape of flesh, and restricting the others to such proteid foods as pulse, nuts, cheese and eggs.

A second test, that would be exceedingly valuable, is one to determine to what extent the nourishing qualities of food, especially the organic salts, are changed or destroyed in cooking. A few experiments along this line have been made in Germany, on animals, the result showing that cooked foods underwent a great diminution in nutritive qualities. This test could be made by giving one set of men cooked food and another set the same foods in the raw state, choosing such foods as are appetizing when raw, such, for instance, as fruits, green corn, vegetables, eggs, oysters, etc. It was recently stated that Prof. Chittenden has been making experiments along these lines.

The editor of the Care of the Body recently received from Dr. Alexander Haig of London, with whom he occasionally corresponds, a letter with an article reprinted in pamphlet from the Edinburgh Medical Journal for December, 1907, under the heading "Physiological Economy in Nutrition—Is Not a Different Explanation Possible?" Dr. Haig is opposed to the low proteid diet. In this article he suggests that the increase in endurance shown in Prof. Chittenden's tests are due, not to the extra chewing of the food or the small proportion of proteid, but to the dropping of meat and the consequent elimination of uric acid. As is well known, Dr. Haig is the leading proponent, and an enthusiastic advocate of the uric-acid theory.

Dr. Haig shows that Japanese workmen, who are unaccustomed to flesh food, find that their power of endurance is at once diminished by taking it. This, he believes, is due to the fact that the omission of uric-acid food diminishes friction in the machinery, especially in the circulation and nutrition of muscles, the reverse effect being obtained in the case of these Japanese laborers.

Dr. Haig asserts further that tests of sufficient duration have not been made of the low-proteid dietary, and that if albumen is deficient the patient, for a time, can draw on his own force, and so loses weight, and such drawing on reserve can go on for twelve to eighteen, or even twenty-four months, until the reserves are exhausted, and then if the albumen is not increased, a breakdown is sure to result.

As an additional instance of the increased endurance displayed by vegetarians, Dr. Haig cites the following case:

"Only within the last few months (July, 1907,) a long-distance walking match was held at Berlin; for this there were twenty-nine starters, fifteen of them vegetarians and fourteen mixed feeders. Only six men came in at the finish, and of these five were vegetarians and one a mixed-feeder, and the mixed-feeder was fifth."

In addition to meat, Dr. Haig recommends abstention from tea, coffee and the pulses, all of which contain uric acid or their equivalents. As the editor of the Care of the Body understands it, most of the zanthin in pulse is contained in the hulls, and may consequently be removed. Dr. Haig concludes as follows:

"In place of physiological economy in nutrition, I see merely an economy of force in diminished friction, and the force thus economized is available for external power and endurance."

Two remarkable statements are made by Dr. Haig in this article. First he says: "I have maintained for years, and still strongly believe, that albumen is a sine qua non of life, and the only source from which muscular energy is derived." Again later on he says: "No force is ever produced, or ever will be without the conversion of a quite definite amount of the nitrogen of albumen into urea."

These statements conflict with the very foundation of our accepted knowledge in regard to diet. It is generally understood that the main sources of food energy are derived from the carbo-hydrates and fats, although, as above stated, a school has recently arisen which teaches that energy does not come from food at all.

So far as the editor of the Care of the Body can judge, the advocates of a low-proteid dietary have the best of the argument. There seems to be little doubt that a

O if they were intelligent men, educated on the subject o food and health, they would have done just as wel on nothing at all, except a little water.

The idea that you can concentrate food beyond the point of merely extracting the water the food contains is just as reasonable as to believe that you can put a quart of water into a pint pot. Lean beef is about two-thirds water, therefore you may concentrate ten pounds of beef into about three and one-half pounds of solid food. Cabbage is over 90 per cent. water; therefore you can concentrate ten pounds of cabbage into less than a pound of solid food. Beans and peas and rice range from 8 to 13 per cent. water; therefore the best you could do with them would be to concentrate ten pounds to eight of nine pounds of solid food.

That conditions have changed materially in this country since the early days of the republic, when Uncle Sam was able to give every man a farm, and when a majority of the population lived on land of their own—that the struggle for existence is tending to become as keen here as it is in other countries—was strikingly shown in a recent dispatch from Columbus, O., stating that four men of that city had offered a finger each for $300 apiece to a West Virginia man who recently lost his fingers in an ice-cream freezer.

It will doubtless be many years yet before we reach conditions prevailing in China, where it is not uncommon for gamblers who have lost everything else they possess to wager a finger, the winner chopping the fingers off as they are won, although what satisfaction a man can take in winning such a peculiar bet can only be understood by a confirmed gambler. In that country, too, where human life is so cheap, it is always possible for a man condemned to death to purchase, for what he should consider a small sum of money, a substitute, who is beheaded in his place.

Control of Sex.

DR. FRANK KRAFT of Cleveland, a member of the American Institute of Homeopathy, is the latest to come forward with a theory in regard to the control of sex, the secret of which he claims to have discovered, in a book he has just published, according to a press dispatch. He bases his theory on the asserted fact that savage races, and races which exist where the conditions of life are hardest, produce a preponderance of male children. From this fact he deduces that nature recognizes in the female the weaker sex. Thus, he says, in times of plenty females are likely to predominate. Some thinkers on this question even go so far as to state that hard times produce male children.

However this may be, it is a remarkable fact that nature seems to endeavor to even things up in this, as in other ways. For instance, in the early days of the Australian colonies, when there were very few women there, it was noticed that girl babies largely predominated among the births.

An All-the-Year-Round Climate.

HERE is an extract from a story that has been running in the Saturday Evening Post, the scene being laid in Florida. The author is describing the breaking up of the fashionable winter colony. He says:

"With the beginning of March the end of the so-called social season, south of Jupiter Light, is close at hand. First, the great winter hotels close; then, one by one, doors and gates of villa and cottage are locked, bright awnings and lawn shades furled and laid away, blinds bolted, flags lowered. All summer long villa and caravansary alike stand sealed and silent amid their gardens, blazing under the pale, fierce splendor of an unclouded sky; tenantless, save where, beside opened doors of quarters, black, recumbent figures sprawl asleep, shiny faces fairly sizzling in the rays of a vertical sun.

"The row of shops facing the gardens, the white streets, quay, pier, wharf are deserted and silent. Rarely a human being passes; the sands are abandoned except by some stray beachcomber; only at the station remains any sign of life, where trains are being loaded for the North, or roll in across the long drawbridge, steaming south to that magic port from which the white P. and O. steamers sail away into regions of eternal sunshine."

What a contrast is this with our bright, cheerful, busy Southern California summers, and with the climatic conditions that then prevail. Too little has so far been said about the summer climate of Southern California. Many easterners still think that it must be exceedingly hot here in summer, because it is so mild in winter. This we know is a great mistake—at least so far as the coast section is concerned, and to a distance of thirty miles inland. Take, for instance, the recent month of June. Who could imagine a more delightful spell of weather than we enjoyed from beginning to end of that month? Some of the mornings and evenings were so cool that light overcoats were welcome to thin-blooded people.

Some easterners have begun to find this out. Only recently one was heard to say that after trying both, he liked the summers in Los Angeles better than the winters.

This possession of a peerless all-the-year-round climate is worth untold millions or dollars in hard cash to Los Angeles and the surrounding section.

The Breath of Life.

THE following comes from Nellie Sullivan of La Crescenta:

"A vibratory impulse,

Not slave, but mighty master,

Without its vital presence,
  Man's body is but sod.
Some call it respiration,
  But others call it God."

Unloading Vessels.

THE editor of the Care of the Body endeavors to make the columns of the department as comprehensive as possible, and to take in a large variety of subjects, directly or indirectly affecting the care of the body or the mind. Yet scarcely ever a day passes in which he doesn't receive a communication chiding him for overlooking what the writer regards as a most important subject.

Here, for instance, is a letter from a woman correspondent of Los Angeles, who has adopted the original nom de plume of "Constant Reader:"

"May I call your attention to the fact that there are points as to the care of the body that you do not touch upon in your articles in the Sunday Times? It is very common to leave urine uncovered during the night, even when two use the same night vessel. The beds are made up by many just as the occupant of them gets out of them in the morning. This is done week after week and month after month. One sees so much of these evils in rooming-houses. It would be a great favor to those leaving urine uncovered and beds unaired if you gave reasons why this is unwholesome."

It is true, as the correspondent says, that there are some points in regard to the care of the body that are not frequently touched upon here. Some things are not altogether attractive to the touch, and others it seems to be unnecessary to touch upon. The subject alluded to by the correspondent appears to belong to both of these classes. It might also be complained that the editor of the Care of the Body has never suggested the propriety of pulling the chain and letting the water run after visiting a water closet, or of wiping your nose when it leaks. There are some ordinary decencies of life in regard to which readers of this department are not considered to need any instruction.

Care of the Body.

Curious Cooking Recipes.

SINCE the editor of the Care of the Body was recently deputed to take charge of the closing chapter of The Times cook-book, now in course of preparation—such chapter to be confined to dishes that will please the food "cranks"—he has had a chance to realize more fully than heretofore the utter absurdity of some of the cooking recipes published in the woman's journals, and other publications giving space to that sort of thing. Some of these recipes are ridiculous in regard to proportions, others fail to give any proportions whatever, or if they do, in such a vague manner that it is like the traditional "as big as a lump of chalk," yet others are so simply silly that they appear to have been intended for a kindergarten class. Some of these recipes may perhaps have started out all right, but by the time they have been copied and recopied about a hundred times in different publications their mothers wouldn't know them.

A woman correspondent, who lives not far from Los Angeles, sends in the following somewhat sarcastic comments on this subject:

"Verily some of the interested ones sending recipes to The Times cooking contest are unconsciously padding, for note this from Ventura: 'When the cucumbers are sliced, put them in a dish.' It is not probable we would slice enough for a tank.

"A Los Angeles contributor says: 'Wash and peel your potatoes.' Sure! We always wash them. Maybe she could tell us what to do with the water.

"Another says: 'Scoop out with a small, short-bladed knife.' Why? We would rather use a silver spoon.

"This is from Long Beach: 'Squash is young enough if easily marked with your finger nail.' Must we each use our own finger nails?

"Coronado is solicitious to 'Wash the squash and cut into pieces small enough to handle with ease.' That is, without calling in the assistance of the family.

"Another Los Angeles woman writes: 'Wash spinach until the sand disappears.' Yes, as we have stomachs, not gizzards!

"One in East Los Angeles says: 'Do not remove outer skin of the potatoes.' Does she use potatoes having several skins, like an onion—or a politician?

"Apropos of hygienic recipes, having none fit to offer, I will call attention to a few of the habits of a class of housewives not by any means extinct. For instance, there is the mother who came to California for a very obvious hygienic reason, yet who tastes her child's food to see 'if it is just right'—before she passes over the spoon she just used—thereby making it all wrong.

"It is not the young housewife only who tests her cake with a straw from the broom, which, colored a salable green with arsenic, has just swept microbes from the floors.

"There is the kind of woman who takes the chewing gum from her mouth and gives it to her child 'to chew awhile.'

"And there is also one who cuffs her offspring for, perhaps, going to the 'swimming hole,' plunking him down to eat, sick with sobbing. Then he has a cold—because he went into the water, of course! And there is—but 'what's the use?' "

Swimming.

A WOMAN correspondent thinks that children should be furnished more opportunity to practice swimming. A good suggestion. There is no better exercise to develop the chest. If the water in the park lakes were not so much like soup, bathing pools could be established in them. Los Angeles, being such a short distance from the ocean, should have a plentiful supply of sea water. It is surprising that this has not been provided.

The A.M.A. Congress.

NORTON HAZELDINE writes to the Care of the Body about the work of the recent American Medical Association Congress in Chicago. Space will not permit the publishing of the article in full. Here are extracts:

"To think that our only hope for salvation in good health lies in the brutal practice and scientific monstrocity of vivisection, a science of medicine gone crazy! . . .

"The second phase of its message is the upholding of the philosophy of one germ killing another germ, one filth displacing another filth; as if the normal mind can ever bring itself to imagine such a tihng as the kingdom of dirt being divided against itself and expecting that kingdom to stand. . . .

"Can any normal thinking mind accept a salvation that is born from the physical torments of innocent dumb brutes? Is there any normal man or woman that would not rather suffer the pains he or she may possess than inflict excruciating agonies upon the helpless? Is there any normal thinking man or woman that would not rather go to Nature's hydropathic cures and sun cures and hygienic dietetic cures, than to submit to the infections of reinfections prescribed as the road to freedom?

"If the American Medical Association has endeavored to write their last will and testament, they certainly could not have inscribed their own self-destruction in any more powerful terms than they did when they arrayed themselves on the side of vivisection and serum cultures and legislated their practices on to the people. . . .

"It seems to me that the sanitary engineer and the plumber have done more to eliminate diseases from the human race than the entire medical profession put together."

In conclusion, Mr. Hazeldine urges that we should try to develop the "germ of cleanliness."

Small Surgery.

ONE of the frequently performed minor surgical operations is the excision of the tonsils. Rarely is such an operation really necessary, and never is it without some injurious after effects.

Enlargement of the tonsils is not a local ailment. It is a sign of constitutional disease, and should be so treated. Usually such an ailment indicates scrofulous or syphilitic taint, inherited or acquired, which has caused the fluid of the body to become impure. Therefore, in this, as in other ailments, the whole body should be treated, not a part thereof. Locally, burnt alum may be rubbed on the tonsils.

Another popular minor surgical operation is the removal of adenoid growths from the nose. This affliction is also a sign of constitutional troubles, and should be so treated. Otherwise, after the removal of these growths by the knife, they will come again.

Gasoline at Sea.

FREQUENT reference has been made here to that deadly "contraption" the "perfectly safe" gasoline stove. There is another gasoline contrivance that is open to criticism, namely, the gasoline launch. Scarcely a day passes that one does not read of how one of these launches broke down. Now it is no joke to break down in a small boat in a choppy sea, with no help in sight. There seems to be something radically defective about these gasoline launches—or the way they are run, or both. Not long ago a family drifted about for forty-eight hours in the Catalina channel.

It should, at least, be made obligatory for these little launches, which carry passengers, to have on board an emergency sail, and some way of attracting attention when help is needed.

Nuts, Milk, Liver and Cheese.

A WOMAN correspondent sends the following inquiries:

"(1.) What are proteid nuts?

"(2.) Will milk, used as a beverage in place of tea or coffee, cause biliousness?

"(3.) What is biliousness? Does it mean simply overeating?

"(4.) Is cheese a good food?"

(1.) Proteid nuts are a large species of pine nut, grown in Italy. They contain a larger percentage of nitrogenous matter than is found in most nuts. Apart from this, they are not superior to other nuts.

(2.) Yes, milk is not a beverage, it is a food—a food for the young of the animal from which it comes, not for adults. It should never be drunk, and especially not mixed with other foods. How often must this be repeated here?

(3.) It means that the much overworked and abused liver has been outraged to a point where it rebels.

(4.) Yes, in moderate quantities, when not rotten, and when eaten with some fresh green stuff, such as lettuce or watercress.

Babies on Their Bellies.

A HOLLYWOOD woman writes as follows:

"One of my children has an unusually well-developed chest. When he was only a few weeks old I would lay him on his stomach whenever he was restless or crying, putting his arms in such a way that he could brace himself on his elbows, which he did very soon, stretching his head up. I did not leave him too long at a time this way. I was told it would make his neck thick. But I can see no signs of this so far. He is now 3 years old. If this is one way of developing babies' chests, it ought to be widely known. It relieves gastric pains and keeps them quiet."

As frequently suggested here, it is a good thing not only for children, but for grown people also, to practice lying on their stomachs. The gentle pressure on the abdomen facilitates digestion. Anyhow, it is the only natural position. Man is the only animal that lies on the back—although he also lies, all too frequently, when on his feet.

Despicable Sneaks.

ONE may have some respect for a man who holds up a train or a stage, at the risk of his life, and robs the passengers, but those miserable creatures who craftily take hard-earned dollars from poor people, who are trying to keep body and soul together, are deserving of utter contempt. They belong in the chain gang.

One of the meanest forms of graft is the well-known plan of advertising to give out work to be done at home. In a great majority of cases these advertisements are deliberate frauds and should receive attention from the Postoffice Department. A charge is made for material, and then the victim is informed that the work is not satisfactory. In most cases, however, it is retained and disposed of.

The Salvation Army.

EVEN in this country of wonderful natural resources and opportunities there are plenty of needy people in the big cities. One of the leading organizations that makes a specialty of relieving the wants of these people is the Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army was recently invited to stop work in Pittsburgh. The permit was taken away and the officers of the army were told that if they attempted to continue work there they would be arrested. The police declare that, while members of the army collect large sums of money, they can give no satisfactory account as to what becomes of it. The matter was brought to a climax, however, over the case of a girl 16 years old, who collected among the downtown saloons until late at night. The police warned her to stop, but she refused, declaring that she collected from $6 to $8 a day, and her commission was 25 per cent.

That the Salvation Army does good among the "submerged tenth" of our large cities admits of no question. It is also doing valuable work in helping people from the slums to farms in British colonies and elsewhere, and giving them a chance to become prosperous and contented men and women. It wisely cares for the tangible bodies, while endeavoring to save the supposititious souls of men. At the same time, it cannot be denied that Gen. Booth is as absolute an autocrat as is Mrs. Eddy—so much so that his own son was forced to secede and start a separate body. He has boasted that a word from him will cause any one of his "soldiers" to leave his home and go to the uttermost ends of the earth.

The Salvation Army must handle an immense amount of money every year, through its various branches, scattered all over the world.

Teachers Must Know.

THE apparent inclination of the city school board to aconsider a protest against any teaching in the public schools aimed at the use of alcohol or tobacco has naturally aroused much adverse comment.

There should be more teaching of the simple facts of physiology in the public schools—facts in regard to diet, and cleanliness, and the sexual functions, and hygiene in general. It should, however, be common-sense teaching of facts, not hysterically exaggerated statements of biased opinions. Much of the teaching of the prohibitionists does more harm than good. When children are told that alcohol and nicotine are deadly poisons, fatal to life, and then come across apparently healthly old people who have drunk and smoked all their lives, they are naturally inclined to suspect the truth of all that has been taught them on the subject.

Again, who shall teach children these facts? Evidently not the medical fraternity, for they themselves as a rule do not know them—or do not agree on what they think they know. For instance. Prof. W. O. Atwater of the United States Department of Agriculture, regarded as one of the leading American authorities on dietetics and author of several bulletins on the subject, declares that alcohol is a food—which it is not—and quite recently the physical director of Columbia University published statistics to prove that the physical condition of smokers is, on the average, better than that of non-smokers.

As to diet, almost every medical book on the subject continues to quote Voit's figures of over four ounces of proteid daily, although Voit himself subsequently reduced his estimate to a little over one ounce, and recent experiments have shown that even this may be too much.

Clearly, therefore, we cannot expect rational and intelligent teaching of physiology from the general run of the medical fraternity. As to the schoolteachers, they know even less on the subject.

Teachers must know before they can successfully teach.

The Medical and Surgical Reporter.

CHARLES PRICE WAGAR, editor of the California Medical and Surgical Reporter, died at the Pacific Hospital, Los Angeles, last month. It is announced that the Reporter will be conducted for the estate of the deceased by his private secretary, to whom much of the work of the magazine has been entrusted during the past six months.

Cause and Effect.

ONLY in the United States do many people, on rising from bed, eat a big meal, often including beefsteak, ham and eggs, fried potatoes, hot cakes, hot biscuits, mush and syrup.

Only in the United States do many people eat flesh food three times a day. Only in the United States do many people swallow their meals with one eye on the clock.

Only in the United States do many people take coffee or ice water with all their meals, including dinner, in place of light wine or beer.

The people of the United States consume vastly more cane sugar per capita than any other nation in the world.

On the other hand, the United States leads the world in doctors, dyspepsia and dentists. It has more doctors per capita than any other country except Australia, where they eat even more meat than do Americans.

In Bulgaria, with a population of only 2,500,000, where the mass of the people live on sour milk and black bread, there are more centenarians than in the United States.

Draw your own conclusions.

Dangers of the X-Ray.

A GERMAN physician claims to have cured bronchial catarrh and bronchial asthma by means of the X-ray.

As the editor of the Care of the Body has several times said, the X ray is a dangerous thing to "monkey with." It is x—the unknown quantity—for harm as well as for possible good. That it may do great harm we know; that it has done any permanent good has yet to be proved. Here is a recent dispatch from London:

"For several years Dr. Hall-Edwards of Birmingham has suffered what he himself describes as 'excruciating, ever-present pain,' caused by his constant work with the healing X-rays. At last the agony became so unbearable and his left arm so useless, that a few days ago he had it cut off. Now it is a question whether he can save the right arm or whether that will have to go, too. He was one of the pioneers of the X-ray treatment."

Eat Less and Chew More.

FOLLOWING is by B. F. Calvert, in the Carlsbad (Cal.) Argus:

"The world in which we live is insane, our institutions of learning are conducted by insane men because they cannot practically apply their knowledge to the art of living. Learning that cannot be applied to life in some form is rubbish and yet thousands of people who are going through institutions of higher education do not know the simplest rules of health and long life and happiness. As an example of this one of the leading educators of the country who was cut off in the prime of life. A physical examination showed that his death was due to overeating. Every day we read of men going to sanitariums to recuperate from overwork. What they are really suffering from is overeating. It is not the brain of the man of today that is working too much —it is his jaws."

To the above it might be added that while most people overwork their jaws in one way—some in two ways, for they talk too much—many underwork them by not chewing their food enough.

Eat less and chew more.

A City of Pills.

ACCORDING to the Technical World Magazine (Chicago, April,) Detroit turns out more than three-quarters of the world's supply of pills, or in round numbers six thousand millions. Over 2000 different varieties of pills are made there. The writer of the article quotes statistics to show that notwithstanding the general diffusion of knowledge in regard to the laws of health, the pill habit is rapidly on the increase in the United States, and at the present time is growing at the rate of 20 per cent. a year. This great increase is said to be brought about mostly by women, who have largely given up the liquid patent medicines for the more easily-carried pill. According to the reports of a large number of physicians in eighteen great American cities there is scarcely a woman who is not a user of pills of some kind or another. Each year about 200 new makes are added to Detroit's list of pills.

And yet we call this an age of enlightenment.

Think of the immense amount of suffering and sorrow that have been caused by these billions of boluses. Think of the recoveries from sickness that have been retarded, of the acute diseases that have been transformed into chronic diseases, and of the premature deaths that may be traced to the consumption of these Detroit drugs.

Vegetarianism Sixty Years Ago.

FOLLOWING is an extract from London Punch in the year 1849:

"We see by the papers that there is a Society existing in Manchester that devotes its entire energies to the eating of vegetables. We do not quite understand the principle upon which these gentlemen object to animal food, but if health is their object we do not think that it will be promoted by the mixture of messes they sat down to. We look upon the vegetarian humbug as a mere pretext for indulging a juvenile appetite for something nice."

Since so many prominent Englishmen and Englishwomen, including members of the "haristocracy," have enthusiastically taken up the non-flesh dietary, Mr. Punch would doubtless nowadays speak in a much more respectful tone of vegetarianism, for dear old Mr. Punch, like the Illustrated London News, is very much of a toady, "doncher know."

Physicians and Publicity.

THE above was the title of a paper read before the Medical College of Ohio, by E. S. McKee, M.D., of Cincinnati, and printed in the Lancet-Clinic. Dr. McKee opened his paper with the somewhat startling assertion that "doctors are the greatest dead-beat auvertisers on earth." He went on to prove this assertion by referring to the indirect advertising done by physicians at clubs, at churches, at theaters, on the street, in the car and elsewhere, by rushing through town at breakneck speed, and by having their names dragged into the reading columns of the newspapers on all possible—and some apparently impossible—occasions.

Dr. McKee quoted the president's address before the Illinois State Medical Society by Dr. J. E. Percy, who advocated that the medical profession "advertise to the public just what it is doing to reduce the sum of human suffering."

If the medical profession should advertise all the deaths it caused through drugs and unnecessary surgical operations it would need a lot of space.

Dr. McKee concluded his paper by prophesying that in twenty-five years doctors will advertise and pay for it just as other people, and he added, "the only ones who will benefit thereby will be the press."

As frequently remarked in these columns, it does seem strange that it should be considered a crime for a "regular" physician to advertise in a newspaper—and pay for it—while it is all right for him to have his name set before the public whenever he operates on some big wig, or gets in line as a discoverer of one of the new and sure cures for consumption, introduced to the public about once a month.

Well, if the doctors are going to advertise, it would be well for them to begin at once, for the reading public is slowly but surely awakening to the folly and futility of the present system of medical practice.

If you want to get even with that fellow who is always talking about you, pay him what you owe him.

When you are disposed to do a little loaning, find the man who borrows trouble, and lend him your own.

"NatureAID"
The Little Pocket Health Magazine of the Hour

Progressive NATUREAID "Harmony with Nature's Laws is Man's Eternal Duty."

Contains the essence boiled down for people who must read as they run.

And who desire without loss of time to retain (or attain when ill) full vigorous physical, mental and moral health and the key to peace and plenty that Nature so wisely intended for us all as well as how to realize the full force of your instinctive, conscious powers. But we are powerless to achieve these things unless we cut our perverted habits and reharmonize our bodies with Nature's infinite all-wise invariable and invulnerable harmonious laws. Study Nature's ways, friends. She brought us here. NatureAID teaches this marvelously beautiful yet simple philosophy, including the mental and physical physiology of the human body in plain, simple, "uncommon" common sense language so that your child (which is his right) and your profound duty can readily understand himself fully.

This is accomplished by the only possible manner in which mankind can possibly evolve or learn anything, namely, by comparative knowledge. The editor simply compares the body's physical and mental structure, as well as its functions and faculties with simple plant life and the progressive arts and sciences with which we all come in daily contact, "thus you may learn while you earn." Edited and published by Adolph J. Petter, Physician and Orthopedic Surgeon.

LITTLE NEMO IN SLUMBERLAND
GOODNIGHT DARLING! SLEEP TIGHT!
GOOD-NIGHT! SWEETHEART! GO TO SLUMBERLAND, NEMO.
GOODNIGHT PAPA! GOODNIGHT MAMA! UM! UM!
WHERE YOU GOING KIDDO, EH?
OH! EH! I WAS GOING TO SLUMBERLAND! WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE?
WELL. YOU NEEDN'T GO ANY FARTHER. THEY KICKED ME OUT AND I CALLED MY UNCLE AURORA WHO MELTED THE WHOLE SHOOTIN' MATCH IN TO-DAY! YEP. IT'S GONE!
MAMA! HERE IS FLIP! HE SAYS THERE IS NO MORE SLUMBERLAND—
5
I DON'T BLAME THEM FOR KICKING OUT A LITTLE BOY WHO SMOKES BIG CIGARS! NO!—
IS THAT FLIP WE SEE IN THE PAPER
BOO HOO OH! BOO HOO HOO HOO HOO
6
LITTLE BOY? HUH! I AM TWENTY-THREE YEARS OLD! I'M NO KID! NIXEY!
DONT CRY, NEMO, DON'T CRY!
AW! NEMO! I SHOULDN'T CRY ABOUT IT! NO! NO! DON'T CRY, NEMO!
BOO HOO! OH! OH! OH! OH!
WOWOW. LOOK AT THE TEARS FLOWING! WOW!
I NEVER SAW HIM CRY LIKE THAT BEFORE!
WHY, PAPA! HE'S CRYING TERRIBLY! LOOK AT THE TEARS!
8
WHY. HIS TEARS ARE FLOODING THE FLOOR, MOM. TAKE HIM OUT!
NEMO! PLEASE STOP CRYING!
THAT BOY CAN CERTAINLY WEEP! LOOK AT THIS FLOOR!
BOO! HOO!
WHAT'S THE MATTER, OLD PAL: WHAT ARE YOU WEEPING SO. FOR? QUIT IT! QUIT IT!
NEMO! NEMO!
I'LL GO OUT AND GET YOUR RUBBER BOOTS!
JUST THINK. I'LL NEVER SEE THE PRINCESS AGAIN!
MERCY! OH! THAT BOY'S TEARS ARE GOING TO RUIN THIS WHOLE HOUSE!
11
RUN! HURRY! THE HOUSE IS FLOODED! NEMO! DO STOP CRYING!
BOO! HOO!
DAT'S WHAT I SAY! STOP WEEPING OR WE'LL DROWN!
WHAT'LL WE EVER DO, IF HE DOESN'T SOON STOP?
12
HERE, DEAR. TAKE HIM, WHEN I HAND HIM UP TO YOU!
OH! MY DARLING! DO STOP CRYING SO!
IF I'D A KNOWN ALL DIS WAS GOING TO HAPPEN I'D STAYED AWAY.
LOOK NEMO! YOUR TEARS HAVE FLOODED THE WHOLE TOWN!
BOO HOO!

THAT THERE IS SOMETIMES LOTS OF TROUBLE IN TRUNKS; ESPECIALLY, AN ELEPHANT'S TRUNK. OUR SNAKES WERE NOT RATTLERS, BUT THEY RATTLED UNCLE AND HIS FRIEND ALRIGHT. SOME PEOPLE ARE EASIER TO RATTLE THAN A BABY'S RATTLE. THERE ARE MANY VARIETIES OF SNAKES, BUT ONE KIND I NEVER SAW—THOUGH I'VE HEARD LOTS OF MEN TALKING ABOUT SEEING THEM AND HAVE ALWAYS NOTICED THAT THESE MEN GENERALLY COMPLAIN OF HEADACHES; I WONDER WHY. WE HAVEN'T SEEN ANY INDIANS YET, DOWN HERE IN INDIA; BUT WE'RE HERE, SO DON'T WORRY. WHAT'S THE USE OF WORRYING ANYWAY? THIS EARTH IS A HAPPY OLD PLACE IF YOU MAKE IT SO; THE TROUBLE IS THAT NEARLY EVERYBODY IS WORRYING TO OUTDO OR DO EVERYBODY ELSE AND IN DOING SO, THEY STEP ON ONE ANOTHER'S FEET. OUCH!

OF REAL importance is the bathing suit to the summer girl. Be she at seaside or mountains, in the country or in the city, she surely needs a bathing suit, for even if at home she has no opportunity to swim, she may be invited to visit some more lucky friend who lives by a bathing pool. Who would take a chance of visiting in summer without being equipped with a bathing suit?

The materials for bathing suits improve each year. Where heavy serge was in favor only a few years ago, no one would think of wearing anything nowadays but silk, mohair or the lightest serge. A new and much-advised fabric is a mixture of silk and mohair.

A beautiful bathing suit is made of Dresden taffeta in charming shades of rose and gray. This needs no trimming, its style depending upon cut and fabric.

White mohair is used for a swimming suit, and the model is a new one. It is so ingenious a combination of many pleats and wide tucks that one is left in doubt whether the suit is made with skirt, bloomers or divided skirt.

It is always advisable to avoid noticeable bathing suits. Nothing betrays good taste or bad taste, common sense or no sense, more surely than the bathing dress.

The bathing suit made on the princess plan is sure to be the most popular model of the season. It fastens at the back, a box pleat extends down the front, and the sides are tucked at the waist line to make the suit fit closely to the figure. Princess suits are usually finished with a square Dutch neck, which is popular. The trimming around the neck is sometimes repeated around sleeves and bottom of skirt.

Three bathing suits on this order are shown today. One of dark blue taffeta is trimmed with bands of tartan plaid and another of brown is adorned at neck only with a basket weave silk braid in Oriental coloring. The third is black silk, while stitched bands of black satin form a walls-of-troy design around the square neck, both back and front, and down the left side of the box pleat. This last suit may, if desired, be hooked down the front under the pleat.

A most original and effective suit is made—quite on the jumper style—of brown taffeta, piped with light blue silk and finished with a sash which ties at the back, leaving two small tabs.

Bathing caps have undergone quite a revolution, and the old-fashioned cotton bandana has been replaced by one of silk, which, if possible, matches the trimming of the suit; otherwise it is the same shade as the suit itself. The rubberizing process, which has lately been brought to perfection, is used to make the silken kerchiefs an added protection to the hair.

Other caps are made to resemble hats and bonnets.

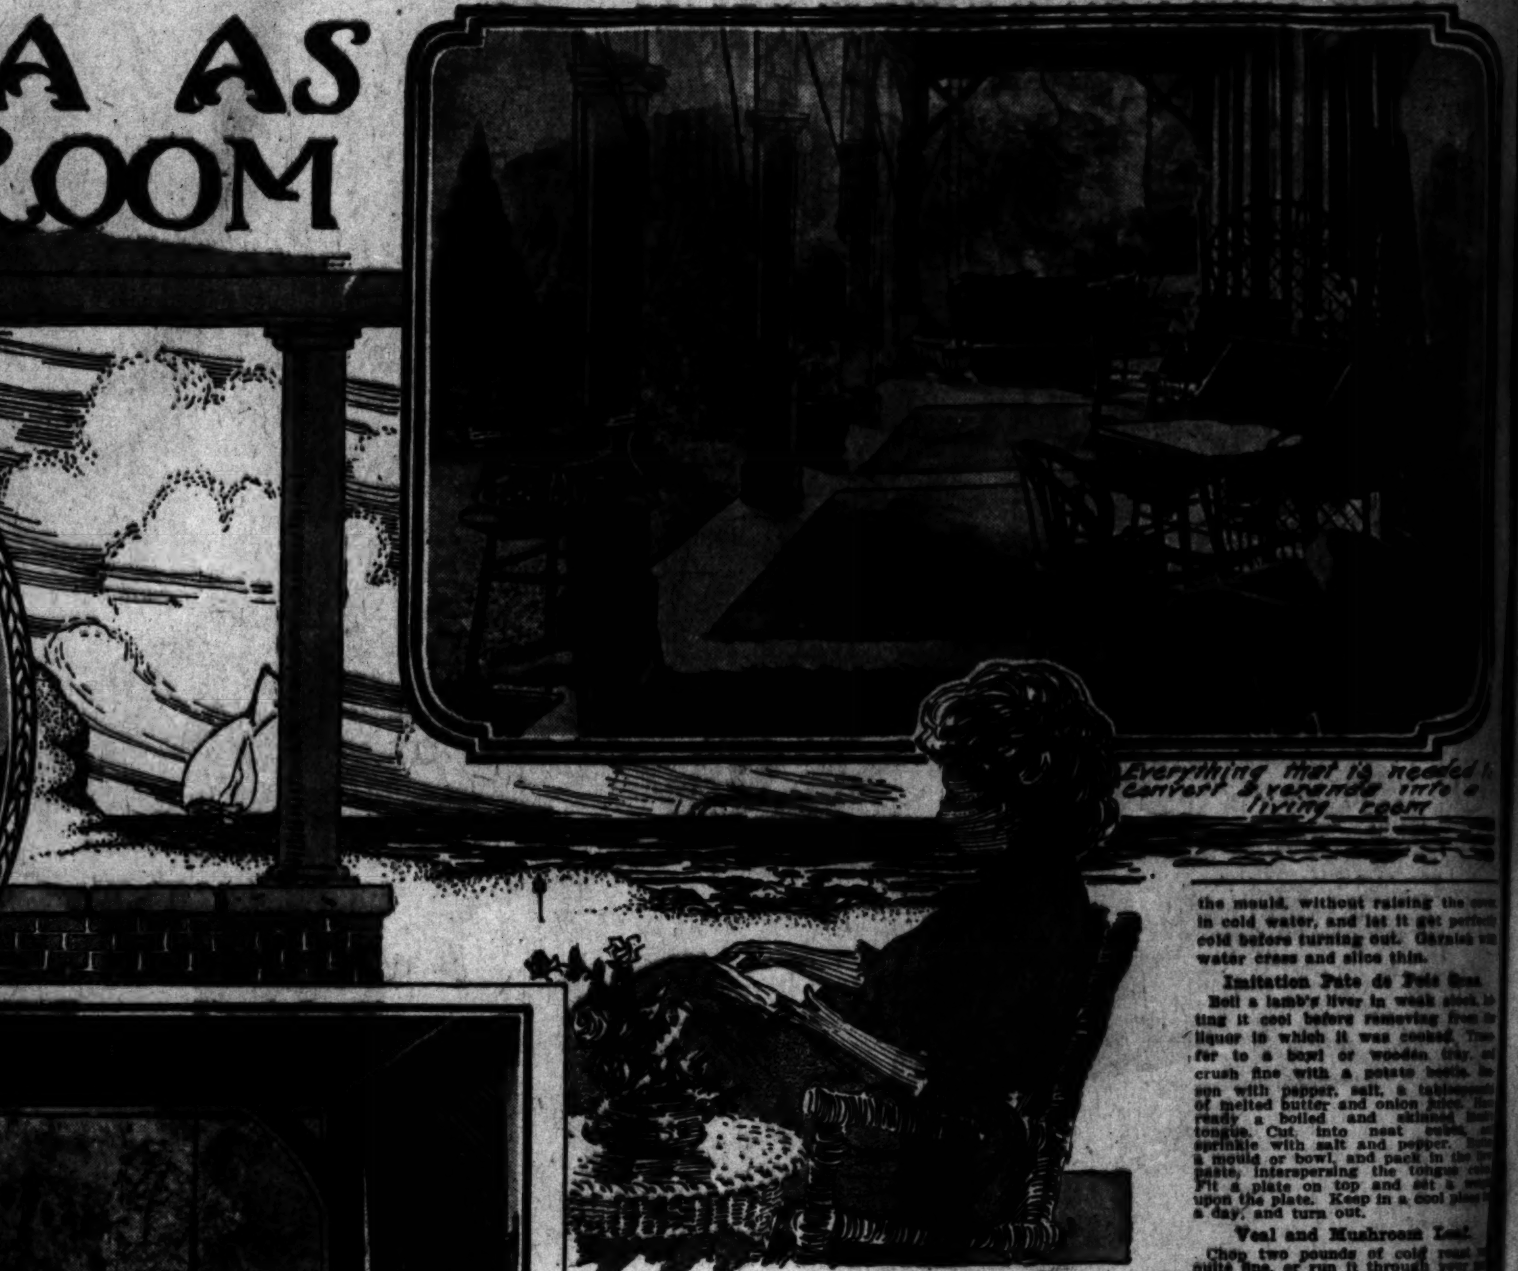
THE VERANDA AS A LIVING ROOM

They sit cross-legged in true Oriental fashion



Everything that is needed to convert a veranda into a living room

Qualifications of veranda furniture—comfort and usefulness

The wide veranda is distinctly an innovation

The outdoor life implied by the veranda

"THAT is the first time I ever saw a bookcase on a veranda." The speaker was a young man visiting at a country house, and he was inspecting, with some curiosity, a set of small book shelves which hung against the side of the house in the most sheltered corner of the big veranda.

"I don't think I ever saw one before, myself," said the hostess. "It is my own idea. We find it very handy to have a book within reach when we stroll out here for a few minutes after breakfast or luncheon."

The bookcase in question was of bamboo, with light wooden shelves, and was evidently not of a nature to be injured by the weather. The books on it were paper backed summer novels and magazines, with not a bound volume among them. Nothing there was of sufficient value to tempt a thief, or to be a serious loss if an unusually sweeping storm should invade the porch. The novelty was not expensive, but it was a feature to commend itself to all who make the veranda a living room.

More and more this is done, and the matter of porch furniture is considered of importance never dreamed of twenty years ago. In those days a few comfortable and more or less battered chairs were all that were needed, unless one introduced a long settee. There was the invariable hammock, of course, but little besides.

The veranda of those days did not always lend itself very graciously to furnishing. In some parts of the country—notably the southern portions—wide porches or galleries were a matter of course. But in the New England and Middle states the wide veranda is distinctly an innovation, except in the houses of well-to-do dwellers in country towns. In the "real country" there might be a square porch or "stoop," but if there was a piazza of any sort it was barely wide enough for two people to pass one another on it when walking, and it would have left no room for passengers had it been endowed with furniture. When persons who lived in these houses wished fresh air, beyond that which came in the window, they sat on the grass or upon the steps.

Now, however, furniture shops are crammed with articles labeled "porch furniture," and, although the wagon laden with piazza chairs and step ladders and similar wooden ware still goes about the country seeking purchasers, the brilliant red rocker which was once the ne plus ultra of veranda furnishings has lost its popularity. Mission chairs, bamboo and willow and cane and rattan couches and seats are now in chief favor.

Two qualifications the veranda furniture must possess in addition to comfort and usefulness. It must be fitted to stand ordinary weather and light enough to be moved easily when a hard storm comes up. The tropical storms which we often have during the summer would ruin anything delicate or perishable. Manufacturers recognize this, and the furniture they offer for the veranda is warranted to stand tolerably severe usage from the elements.

There is an endless variety from which to choose if one can go forth and purchase at will. Long lounging chairs which are almost like couches, deep sleepy hollow chairs with a pocket for books or work attached to the side, hammock seats or benches which may be used as a bed or napping place, low rockers, short, broad settles, hooded chairs for invalids, chairs with a book rack or writing tablet secured to one arm—the variety seems practically endless.

Other furniture besides seats is required for the up-to-date veranda. At least one small table, and, preferably, two or three, for afternoon tea or work or to lay books on; a "curate's" assistant—the three-shelved stand to hold cakes and sandwiches for tea—rugs, cushions, hammocks—nearly everything that is needed to convert a veranda into an outdoor living room.

While it is not within the power of every one to supply a veranda with all these objects, there is yet opportunity in nearly every family to furnish a porch attractively. The straw rugs which come now in attractive designs are inexpensive, and cheaper even than these is the heavy grass matting sold by the yard, that, after being cut to the desired length, may be bound with wide tape to prevent raveling at the ends. Three or four such rugs as these, or even mats made from odds and ends of carpet and matting, may be laid on the veranda.

The furniture may not be quite so simple a matter, but it is astonishing what favorable results may be achieved by a combination of old chairs or settees and a pot of green paint. Even a cheap kitchen rocking chair or an old-fashioned Boston rocker, if freshened by a coat of paint and provided with a cushion or two, will make a smart appearance without a hint of its former shabbiness.

Much the same treatment may be bestowed upon a little table, which will serve to hold the afternoon tea tray, and between times may be used for books or work. Add a hammock or two and the veranda will be attractively furnished, even though the furnishing may be less expensive than if all the articles were newly purchased.

The outdoor life implied by the veranda is not nearly so much practiced as it should be in this country. To this statement I must make some exceptions, for I know families who make regular sitting rooms of their verandas, and even use them for dining rooms as well. In one cottage all the meals are taken on the wide porch that runs around two sides of the house. One corner of it is wider than the rest, and is sheltered by an angle of the house. In the corner stands the dining table, and the family gather about it at three meals a day, unless the weather is stormy enough to drive them indoors. A long window, opening down to the floor, admits to the dining room, and, as the kitchen is just beyond this, there is little distance to carry the food or the dishes. Such a plan as this would hardly be feasible in those sections of the country most given over to the plague of flies and mosquitoes. That is, it could not be followed in an uninclosed veranda like that of my friends. But the practice of putting netting about the veranda is common in the Middle states, and protected behind these wires the family could eat in comfort, secure from attacks of insects.

One family of whom I have heard practically live on their veranda. Their meals are taken at one end, they have their sewing room at the other, and here there is always some one reading aloud or chatting with the workers. They take their afternoon siestas in hammocks swung in the porch and go indoors to dress and sleep at night, and little else. Indeed, I have known of occasions when the heat of the night has driven them from their beds and they have transferred their sleeping quarters to hammocks on the porch.

I would not feel I had done my duty in telling of veranda furnishings without reference to a certain farmhouse I know up in the hills, where a rather narrow porch makes chairs awkward incumbrances. In place of these the seats are huge cushions stuffed with hay, on which the guests and family sit cross-legged in true Oriental fashion. Newcomers exclaim, but they, too, adopt the fashion in a short time, and are apparently as contented on their low seats as though they had been born and reared in Turkey.

Housemothers' Exchange . . .

APROPOS to my talk upon the veranda sitting room comes a request from a correspondent from whom we have heard before, and more than once. It is a woman who thinks of other housemothers' comfort while she studies things pertaining to her own. Her queries are always pertinent; her modest suggestions have supplied me with more "leads" than she would believe possible. Here is part of her letter:

> Won't you during the "heated term" let us have a "Play Number" of the Exchange? Can't we let up for a week upon matters that we find seasonable and helpful for the rest of the year? Help us to forget the horrors of "crimson ramblers" and laundry pests and kitchen heats and the humors of Bridget-Thekla-Dinah. Instead of the family meals for a week—you poor dear! how the necessity of thinking up, at one fell swoop, twenty-one dainty and inexpensive meals must tax your brain and patience. Instead, I say, of the weekly menu, why not recipes for cooling and refreshing and easily-made dishes, suitable and inviting for hot weather, with any other little suggestion which might be helpful in lightening necessary work?
> Am I presuming upon your good nature? Believe me, I offer the suggestion in fear and trembling. But summer is upon us; days are hot and long, and in this latitude nights are short and hot, too, and some of us belong to the "Can't Get Away Club." That is, our respective Johns do, and we cannot reconcile it to conscience or to inclination to be cooling ourselves, within and without, at seaside and mountain inn, or farmstead, when they are broiling bodies and racking nerves to keep their families alive and comfortable.
> ANNA L. (Germantown, Pa.).

You have not presumed, and I follow your lead with heartiness born of the conviction that you represent the needs and longings of many another of the Guild.

I hope you have an inclosed nook—if you have not thought it advisable to surround the whole veranda with rustless mosquito netting! My veranda runs around three sides of the house. One-half of that which looks westward and directly across lake and valley to the everlasting hills is guarded from flies and night moths by the said wire screen. The dining room opens upon it through a French window.

A screen door admits us from the main porch. We read the evening papers here when the tea tray has been removed, an acetylene burner overhead granting all the light we need and reducing to a minimum the heat inseparable from light. The principal objection to cold luncheons and suppers served in the open air—namely, that insects are attracted by food and lights—is done away with by this simple and inexpensive barrier.

One wise woman rises while the day is yet young—consequently, comparatively cool—and does the bulk of her cookery then. She says that flies are not phenomenally early risers, but lazily disposed to sleep until the world is well-aired before stretching wings and legs for the day's foraging. I commend her example to you who agree with "Anna L." in preferring chilled cookery to hot in the dog days.

Preserved Beef Loaf.

Get from your butcher two pounds of beef, chopped for hamburg steaks. Mix with it three tablespoonfuls of minced fat salt pork, half a cup of fine bread crumbs, a rounded teaspoonful each of salt and white pepper and a teaspoonful of onion juice. Work well to incorporate the ingredients before adding the beaten yolks of two eggs. At the last work in two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Press down firmly into a greased mould with a close top. Set in a pan of boiling water and put into the oven. Keep the water on a steady boil for two hours, replenishing from the kettle should it boil down too fast. Set the mould, without raising the cover, in cold water, and let it get perfectly cold before turning out. Garnish with water cress and slice thin.

Imitation Pate de Fois Gras.

Boil a lamb's liver in weak stock, letting it cool before removing from the liquor in which it was cooked. Transfer to a bowl or wooden tray, and crush fine with a potato beetle. Season with pepper, salt, a tablespoonful of melted butter and onion juice. Have ready a boiled and skinned [illegible] tongue. Cut into neat cubes, and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Butter a mould or bowl, and pack in the liver paste, interspersing the tongue cubes. Fit a plate on top and set a weight upon the plate. Keep in a cool place a day, and turn out.

Veal and Mushroom Loaf.

Chop two pounds of cold roast [illegible] quite fine, or run it through your [illegible] chopper. Mince a dozen olives and the same number of canned French mushrooms. Mix all together in a bowl, season with a teaspoonful, each, of [illegible] pepper and onion juice. Have ready a cupful of strained gravy, or of [illegible] and wet the mixture with it. [illegible] the gravy be quite thick, it is well to make sure of having a firm [illegible] stirring into it, while warm, a [illegible] a package of soaked gelatine. The mixture should not be too soft, or it will not form well. Pack in a greased [illegible] and set in a pan of boiling water. [illegible] into the oven and cook for an [illegible] When cold and stiff, turn out.

Chicken Pate.

Make as directed in the last [illegible] substituting cold roast or boiled [illegible] for the veal.

Jellied Tongue.

Boil a fresh beef or calf's [illegible] and, while it is hot, pare away the tough outer skin neatly. Let it get perfectly cold. Then lay it in an [illegible] mould. Soak half a package of [illegible] gelatine in a pint of strained stock [illegible] three hours. Heat to a boil, and [illegible] to blood warmth. Pour around the tongue as it lies in the mould. [illegible] the ice to form. Turn out upon a chilled platter when you are ready to serve it, and garnish with [illegible]

Sliced tongue may be jellied in the same way. But the slices should be [illegible] in by degrees. Arrange one layer [illegible] the bottom of the mould; pour in enough jelly to cover it, and set on the ice until the jelly is firm enough to bear the weight of the second [illegible] of tongue. Proceed in this way [illegible] all the materials are used up and [illegible] on the ice to form.

Jellied Chicken.

Soak half a cup of gelatine in a cupful of cold water for two [illegible] Boil up and strain two cups of [illegible] en stock or thinned gravy. The [illegible] in which chicken has been boiled [illegible] best. Stir into the hot stock [illegible] soaked gelatine, and season to [illegible] with salt, pepper and onion juice.

Have ready the meat of a cold boil[illegible] ed or roast chicken, from which [illegible] the fat and skin have been removed, and the meat cut into neat dice. [illegible] a layer of these in a buttered mould, sprinkle with salt and pepper, [illegible] with olives, halved and stoned, [illegible] French mushrooms, also halved. When the jelly is cold, but not firm, pour [illegible] over these layers. Now, more chick[illegible] en, olives and mushrooms. Cover [illegible] jelly, and go on thus until all are [illegible] Let the mould stand on ice for [illegible] twelve hours before the contents [illegible] turned out upon a chilled platter. [illegible] do this neatly, wrap a cloth [illegible] out in hot water about the mould [illegible] about twenty seconds to loosen the jelly from the sides.

A fitting accompaniment to this is a lettuce salad and cream-cheese balls. Serve a mayonnaise dressing with the lettuce. Pass thin slices of buttered graham bread with both.

Baked Corned Ham.

You may substitute a "cured" [illegible] for the corned, but it will not [illegible] quite so nice.

Soak the ham overnight. [illegible] scrub it hard and pare the hard [illegible] crust from the under side. Lay in [illegible] gar for an hour, turning it four [illegible] When the bath is over, do not [illegible] the ham. Lay it, skin down, in [illegible] covered roaster and cover the [illegible] have pared with a paste of flour [illegible] water thick enough to hold its [illegible] Mix together a cupful of [illegible] half a cupful of vinegar, a [illegible] spoonful of molasses and the [illegible] onion juice, with a teaspoonful [illegible] French mustard. Pour about [illegible] ham; put the cover on the [illegible] and bake half an hour to [illegible] after the liquid begins to boil, [illegible] every fifteen minutes with the [illegible] in the pan.

Leave in the pan and liquor for [illegible] an hour after taking it from the oven. Wipe, then scrape off the [illegible] ened paste and skin the ham, [illegible] quickly with cracker dust to prevent the escape of the juices.

Next, cover the top of the ham [illegible] a paste of cracker crumbs and [illegible] smooth with a little cream and [illegible] with a beaten egg. The crust [illegible] be a quarter of an inch thick. [illegible] the ham in a quick oven to brown the crust lightly.

If the housemother [illegible] cavil at the tediousness of [illegible] ess, let me assure her [illegible] sult will amply repay her [illegible] lay of time and thought. [illegible] liciousness of ham prepared [illegible] way is something to [illegible] lifetime. It will last a family [illegible] erate size for several meals.

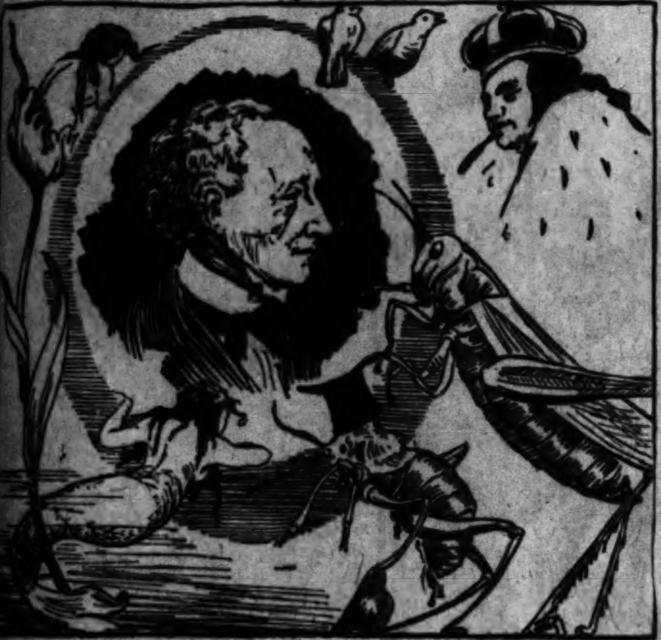
The Fairy-tale Man



HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN, THE FAIRY TALE MAN

QUITE recently photographs were printed of scrap screens which the Fairy Tale Man made for the amusement of his boy and girl friends. Pictures were clipped from illustrated papers and then pasted together to complete one big artistic screen. So you may know that the Fairy Tale Man was very fond of children. But this is not all he did for them. He wrote the bestest kind of fairy stories—stories which are read the world over. American, English, German, French, Spanish and Italian children enjoy them no more than do the little pig-tailed children of far-off China or the swarthy-skinned boys and girls of India.

What kind of a person was this Fairy Tale Man, whose other name was Hans Christian Andersen? You shall hear the story of his life—a story which is the tale of the Ugly Duckling all over again.

On April 2, 1805, there was born in the Danish city of Odense, on the island of Funen, a baby who was finally to become the Fairy Tale Man. The building in which Hans was born was torn down shortly afterward, and the first home of which the great story-teller had recollection was a little house on Monk Mill's street. There were only two rooms on the ground floor. From the kitchen you climbed by means of a ladder to a tiny attic above, where upon the window sill was a garden box containing lettuce and garlic and a few flowers—the very same box you remember so well in the tale of the "Snow Queen." And almost overshadowing the modest dwelling was the famous Church of St. Canute, whose pealing bells so often beguiled the fancy of little Hans.

Hans' father was a cobbler, with the ambition to achieve fame under Napoleon. But his military career was short, for he got no farther than the neighboring duchy of Holstein before he came home to die. There remained to care for the lad his simple, industrious mother. His grandfather, though mad, was quite harmless, and the boy often went to see the old gentleman, who carved innumerable grotesque monsters out of wood. The grandfather and the grandmother—who now attended the madhouse gardens—were once in better circumstances. From the latter Hans heard stories of a certain great-grandmother, come of a noble family in Cassel, who had run away with a theater player.

Perhaps it was the story of this ancestor that influenced Hans in his desire to become an actor and a writer of plays. Be that as it may, at a very early age he had a fondness for the theater. Indeed, while a tiny youngster he would set up his puppet playhouse and therein enact dramas with the little wooden dolls his father had carved for him.

Later, after his father died, Hans' mother wished him to learn a trade. But at the factory where he was sent the boys made such fun of this homely, gawky lad that the sensitive boy returned to his dolls and playthings. He was not as other lads were. For hours he would sit with the old ladies, while they spun, and listen to their strange tales and legends. He would stroll along the Odense river, dreaming of plans and stories which afterward brought forth the world's admiration.

When only fourteen years old he started for the city of Copenhagen—twenty miles distant from Odense—to make his fortune. Then for two years the boy had a rough time of it. He failed in his ambition to become an actor, but many friends he found who tried to help him acquire learning. Many difficulties beset the lad in his studies, but he surmounted them all.

In 1829, after he had entered the University of Copenhagen, he published writings of great merit. At last people began to take notice of the "Ugly Duckling." In 1833 he was granted a pension by King Frederick VI. Then he set out on his travels through France, Switzerland and Italy. Later he went to Spain, Greece, Constantinople, and north to Sweden. Some time before this he had visited Germany.

But now that fame had come to the great writer, and he was loved throughout Denmark, he was just as modest and unassuming as ever. When he would espy an acquaintance on the street he would wave his umbrella or cane or whatever he had in hand, or shake hands and clap the person warmly on the back. Best of all was he loved by the children. One look into his kindly gray eyes made them forget the tall, homely, stooped figure. And they trooped around him, grasping his hands, and merrily asking him questions.

To his native town of Odense, the Fairy Tale Man ever remained true. He loved the town and its people, and they returned his love. When, in the year of his death (1875), he journeyed to Odense, the town was literally ablaze with decorations in his honor. In this way was there fulfilled a prophecy which an old woman made when Hans first left Copenhagen. "When he returns," said she, "Odense will be illuminated for him." And so it was. But who could help loving such a dear old man?

In truth, the Odense children of today seem to idolize the very statue of the Fairy Tale Man. It was erected through the contributions of the Danish children themselves, and it stands in the King's Garden, on the banks of a miniature lake where swim majestic swans, just such beautiful birds as the Fairy Tale Man liked to write about. Around this statue the boys and girls dance, and as it stands with arms outstretched toward them and with a kindly smile upon its face, it would almost seem that again the Fairy Tale Man was telling those entrancing stories of "The Nightingale," "Thumbelina," "The Old House," "The Shepherdess and the Chimney-Sweep," and ever so many others.

No one can imagine the Fairy Tale Man doing other than providing delights for girls and boys. I really think he must at this very moment be telling charming tales to little cherubs, hovering round about him. Don't you? And surely they must love him just as all of us here love him.

BRAVE HEART

"SAFE I feel, and well protected, While Brave Heart is guarding me"—
So says mother dear whenever
I a soldier try to be.

'Course, it isn't that I'm daring,
Or I'm very, very brave;
For if just to me came danger
I don't know how I'd behave.

When I was a tiny fellow,
Everything quite easy seemed:
I'd kill tigers and great lions,
Bears and elephants—I dreamed.

Now I'm big, I'm not so boastful,
'Cause I might as well own up—
I'm not fond of inky darkness,
And I hate Ted Jones' bull pup.

But, if anything, whatever,
To hurt mother dear would try,
I would show that I'm her "Brave Heart"—
I would fight until I'd die!

A Race of Water Boats

Awarding the Prizes

"NO, MY SON," said Monsieur Dunois, firmly; "when I bought your diabolo set I told you quite plainly that it must last you at least a month; nor will I reverse my decision."

Frederic sadly turned and walked away. Always careless with his toys, he had broken three diabolo sets within the past two weeks. Now his father was determined to teach the boy a lesson. The punishment was just, Frederic knew, and at any ordinary time he would have borne it with fortitude. But tomorrow was the 14th day of July, when he was entered in the diabolo contest. And he had no set!

As was usual for him, Frederic had also spent his week's pocket money. Unfortunately, too, his sister Christine had spent her all in the purchase of ribbons and other gewgaws for service on the morrow. There was apparently no way out of the difficulty. Frederic was inconsolable.

The weather for this joyous celebration was ideal. Not a cloud marred the sky. July 14, you know, is the French holiday which marks the falling of the Bastile. Paris, in particular, is in her gayest mood upon this day. In the morning there is speechmaking by great numbers of dignitaries, exercises and processions of the school children and military pageants. Then the afternoon is by custom devoted exclusively to the children, who participate in all manner of games and contests. At the close of the day there is a magnificent display of fireworks, and the rest of the evening is spent in mirth and revelry.

Frederic and Christine acquitted themselves well in the patriotic exercises, in which both had prominent parts. And Christine looked so nice in the procession, with her pretty new gown, that Frederic in his pride for her forgot temporarily his own dissatisfaction. Afterward the splendid procession of brightly uniformed soldiery was enough to stir any boy's blood.

When luncheon was over Christine and Frederic, accompanied by their father and mother, eagerly betook themselves to where the children's games were to be held. A great crowd had already gathered to witness the different events.

Promptly at half-past two o'clock, the master of ceremonies announced the beginning of the contests. First, there was a "three-legged" race for the boys. Each lad had one leg tied up with a gay-colored scarf. This left him one leg and his hands to cover the stretch of pavement that lay between the starting-point and the goal. Frederic hobbled along the course with great vim, and he was roundly cheered by numerous friends when he came out in second place. Christine did well, also, in the bowl race which followed. In this, several little girls ran with bowls filled to the rim with water. She who reached the goal first, and without spilling any of the water, was awarded the prize.

Next came an egg race, in which boys ran along a stretch of ground with eggs balanced in spoons; then a candle race, and many other contests. The hoop race for girls was announced as the event to follow.

As Christine took her place in the line of girls who were competing, her neighbor whispered:

"I hear there's going to be a delightful set of diabolo for the winner of this race."

At once the thought came to Christine that here was an opportunity to win the set for Frederic, and thus enable him to enter the contest to be held later.

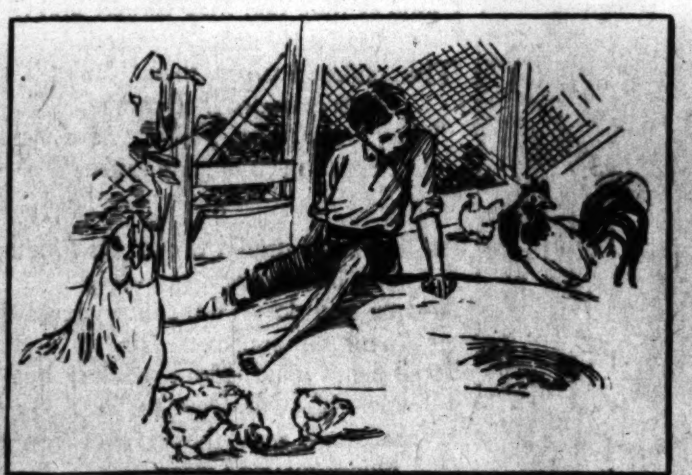
Frederic, in the meantime, had given up all hope of his father relenting, and, as befitted a brave lad, was trying his best not to feel disappointed. It really was a great disappointment, because he was very skilful at diabolo and had every chance of bearing off the honors.

But the hoop race was on. Christine gritted her teeth. Swiftly she flew along the course, spinning her dainty hoop with an energy that soon brought her directly in line with the foremost girl. But try as she would she could not forge ahead of her rival. Suddenly the other girl slightly turned her head to note Christine's progress, the hoop was sent on a false spin to the right, and Christine in a breathless spurt reached the goal—the winner! And after the cheering for her plucky fight had subsided, she was presented with a splendid diabolo set!

Monsieur Dunois was so proud of his little daughter's achievement that he finally consented to permit Frederic to use the diabolo set. This event, as had been expected by the other contestants, was captured by Frederic, who went into the contest determined to do his best, as much to show his appreciation of Christine's generosity as for any other reason.

In all the jubilation which followed, however, Frederic did not lose sight of the lesson so painfully taught him. And although he is still careless and destructive with his toys at times, he now tries his level best to correct the fault, so that no one has any longer great cause for complaint.

SKINNY AND THE "PINEY"



SKINNY PATIENTLY WATCHED THE HOLE

WE'D never have lost that baseball game to Newtown if it hadn't been for the first two innings; and the first innings wouldn't have been bad if Skinny and Joe Stanton hadn't missed the 2.15 train. And Skinny says they wouldn't have missed the 2.15 train if it hadn't been for the "piney." That's just like Skinny—to blame a poor, harmless animal for losing our baseball game, and not give it a chance to 'fend itself.

As well as I can make out, Skinny left home 'bout 10 o'clock and went through Perkins' front gate ten minutes later. Then he said to Mrs. Perkins:

"Mis' Perkins, ma says here is a half-dollar an' she wants a nice, fat chicken."

"All right, Joseph," says Mrs. Perkins, (Joseph is Skinny's real name, but he's never called that by us fellows.) "All right, Joseph," says Mrs. Perkins; "suppose you catch one yourself."

So Skinny scooted out to the chicken yard, got his eye on a plump hen, and started to chase her. Now chasing hens is mighty warm work, an' after awhile Skinny thought he might as well rest a bit.

It was when Skinny was sitting on a chicken coop that he saw the "piney." That's what Farmer Perkins said it was when Skinny told him about it, 'though Skinny said it looked exactly like a weasel. Anyway, the little beast, whatever it was, streaked across the chicken yard just like lightning and dived right down a little hole near the fence.

You can bet your life that Skinny wasn't long getting to that hole. You see, Jack Warner is so hefty proud over that groundhog skin he's got nailed to his pop's barn that every one of us fellers is trying to catch something that'll make Jack feel as humble as dirt.

Well, sir, Skinny plugged up the hole, and then started to hunt the blazes for the other door of the "piney" home. He spent 'bout an hour at that, and then, not finding any, went to work to dig at the hole he'd stopped up. He digged and digged and digged, till he had most of the yard dug up. But he begun to find so many little galleries that branched off from the main hole that at last he made up his mind he'd have to dig until kingdom come. So he sat right down by the diggings and waited.

When we fellows got to the depot Skinny wasn't there. And when it was only about five minutes to train time, we began to get anxious. Joe Stanton started off at a run for Skinny's home, and from there traced him to Perkins'. There Joe found 'im.

"What in thunder are yuh doin'?" yells Joe. "Don't yuh know that you'll have to hustle like sixty to catch the train?"

Skinny turned his head, and just then the "piney" skipped out from his hole and streaked it 'cross the yard. Skinny streaked it, too, but his path led toward the depot. As you know, he and Joe missed the train, and didn't get to Newtown till an hour and a half later.

Skinny got the dickens all 'round. He's our best pitcher, and we gave it to 'im hot and heavy for losing the game. And then when he got home his ma told him a few things about not gettin' her chicken.

Skinny hasn't seen Mrs. Perkins yet, an' he's putting off meeting her just as long as he can. She has it in for him, 'cause he dug up the chicken yard.

Now, I guess you know just how we lost the game. 'Course, those Newtown fellows can play ball a little, but ordinarily we'd licked them all to hollow if it hadn't been for Skinny and that consarned "piney."

Faculty of Observation

"HOW many seed compartments are there in an apple?" he queried.

No one knew.

"And yet," said the school inspector, "all of you eat many apples in the course of a year, and see the fruit every day, probably. You must learn to notice the little things in nature."

The talk of the inspector impressed the children, and they earnestly discussed the matter at recess time.

The teacher the next day overheard this conversation in the play yard. A little girl, getting some of her companions around her, gravely said: "Now, children, just s'pose that I'm Mr. Inspector. You've got to know more about common things. If you don't you'll grow up to be fools. Now tell me," she said, looking sternly at a playmate, "how many feathers has a hen?"

How a Horse Gallops

A HORSE in full gallop places only one foot at a time upon the ground. Did you know that? This fact is more convincing to the ear than to the eye, for the human eye, after all, is a trifle slow. In listening to a horse galloping on a hard road, it will be found accurately exhibited by placing the little finger on a table or pane of glass, and causing the other three fingers to follow in rotation; by so doing the precise sound as of a horse galloping will be produced. I remember it was a common practice for boys to cabbage all the empty tin cans and use them for galloping. Great sport. The bottom of the can was held in the hand, the opened top was on the ground. As we galloped through the streets, fifty strong, people thought they heard a regiment of cavalry coming.

Angler—"Is it against the law to fish in this stream, can you tell me?"

Boy—"Noa, but it's agin' common sense. Ther' ain't no fish in it!"

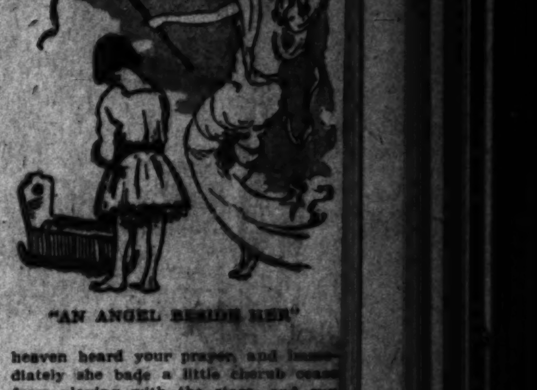
Daddy Stork's Mistake

FOR a long time Clarissa had prayed for a sister—a nice little baby sister, whom she could love and fondle. And now the mean old stork had brought her a baby brother that fretted and squalled and looked ever so crossly at her.

"Daddy Stork must have made a mistake. I'm sure he must; and I do wish he'd take this baby back," said Clarissa impatiently, as she frowned upon her baby brother.

Clarissa didn't know just how it came about, but suddenly she found beside her a radiant angel, clad in gleaming robes of white, and wearing a brilliant star above her brow. And the angel, though still smiling sweetly, said quite reprovingly to the little girl:

"There was no mistake. The queen of heaven heard your prayer, and immediately she bade a little cherub cease from playing with the stars, and run across to the chamber of souls with a message. Now, this message directed that a delightful little girl baby be selected from among the souls, and be given to the stork messenger. But when we happened to tell the queen that a naughty boy baby was disturbing the little souls, she commanded this baby sent to you, in order that it might teach you patience and kindness."



"AN ANGEL BESIDE HER"

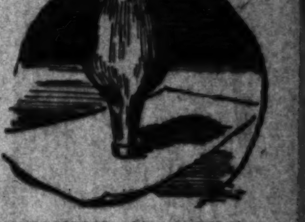
"I have just been too ugly for anything," murmured Clarissa through her tears, "and won't you please tell the queen that I'll be as kind and patient as ever I can. And I really do feel that I love baby brother now."

Clarissa quickly proved that, after all, Daddy Stork had made no mistake.

Bottle "Stunt"

SPREAD a newspaper flat on the table and upon the paper stand a bottle, mouth downward.

You may then announce with perfect confidence that you can draw the newspaper from beneath the bottle without upsetting the latter.



POSITION OF BOTTLE

Grasp firmly two ends of the paper. Ask a friend to pound gently upon the table. Before long your bottle will have "walked" off the newspaper.

Neighborly.

A few days after a farmer had sold a pig to a neighbor he chanced to pass the neighbor's place, where he saw their little boy sitting on the edge of the pigpen watching its new occupant.

"How d'ye do, Johnny," said he; "how's your pig today?"

"Oh, pretty well, thank you," replied the boy. "How are your folks?"

"What became of Nineveh?" asked a Sunday school teacher.

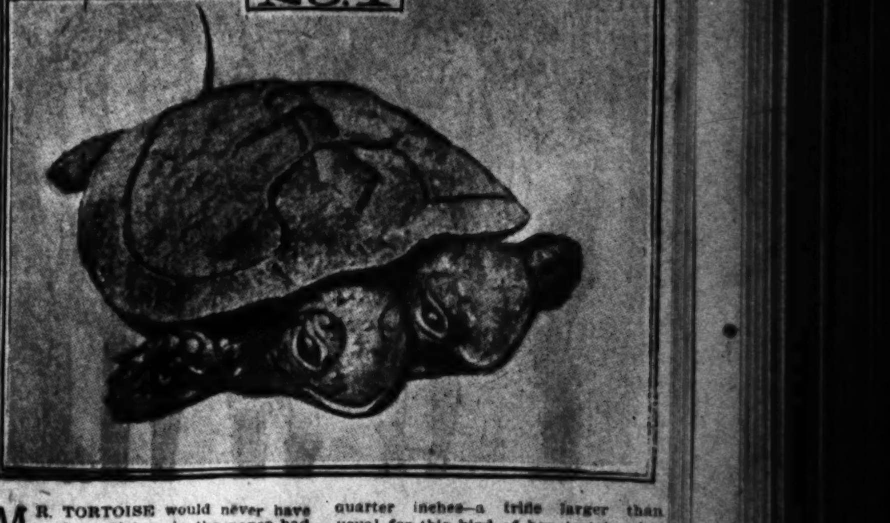
"It was destroyed," said Johnny, promptly.

"And what became of Tyre?"

"Punctured."

IN THE World of Curiosities

NO. 1

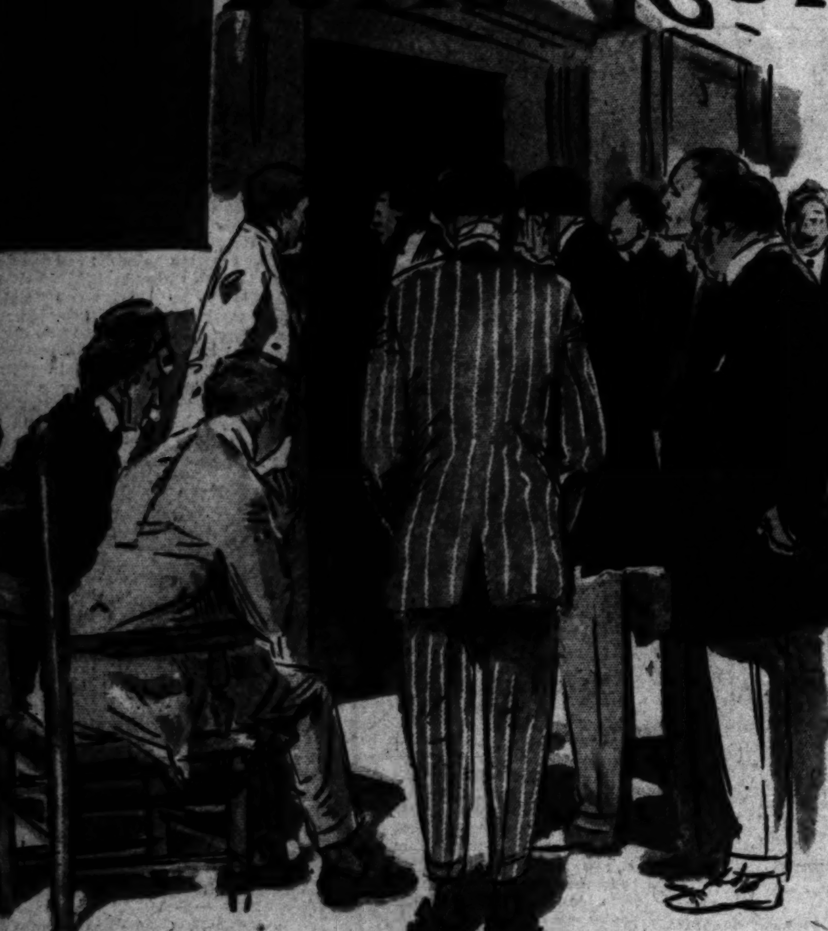


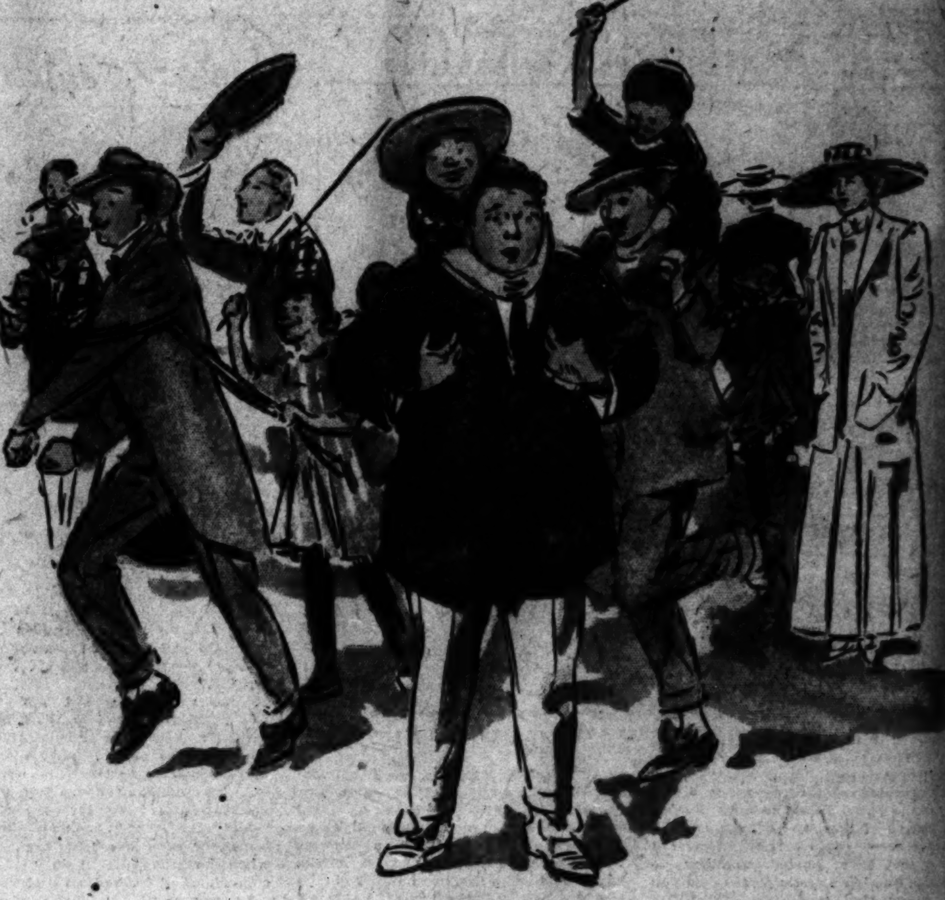
MR. TORTOISE would never have got his picture in the paper had he not been too busy quarreling with himself to observe the man's approach. That is how he was captured.

An ordinary tortoise wouldn't have been taken in such a way. But this tortoise was different from his kindred, although, unless you looked for a head, any dissimilarity was not apparent. The shell measured two by one and three-quarter inches—a trifle larger than usual for this kind of box tortoise—but all other parts were normal; that is, all except the head. And this tortoise had two of them. As you see, he had two heads. You see now how he could readily fight with himself.

The "Siamese twins" tortoise at the present time is probably about 3 months old, and is a native of Virginia. The two heads are perfectly formed. They never feed together, but do so separately and alternately.

UFFY RUFFLES Drawings By Wallace Morgan





SHE EMPLOYS SOME BACHELORS

1.

At least a score of bachelors (among them Mr. Dean)
Were spending pleasant summer weeks at Blennerhaven Green.
Like Traddles, their sole reason for a sojourn in the place
Was so that they could daily see Miss
Fluffy's pleasant face.

2.

The Fresh Air Children were her care
(they were her pleasure too)
And every day she planned something for all of them to do.
And one day as she chatted on the piazza in the sun,
Surrounded by a mob of men, she said,
"Let's have some fun."

3.

"All right, you tell us what to do."
"Yes, tell us what to do."
"It's this," said Fluffy, smiling gayly,
"You, and you, and you—
In fact each man that's here to-day must help me in my plan
To make my little Fresh Air kids as happy as I can."

4.

At this most all the bachelors began to hem and haw,
And one out on the outskirts of the crowd said, "What a bawl"
But Fluffy smiled, and then, of course, each man within the group
Was quite prepared for anything from
"craps" to "loop-the-loop."

* * * * * * * *

Next day at three the bachelors, all togged out in their best,
Came as they said they would, and found
Miss Fluffy simply dressed.
The children wore their "outing" suits (their only ones, of course).
"Now," said Miss Fluffy, "here we are;
Suppose we all play horse."

6.

At this each urchin chose his "mount,"
each lassie seized her whip,
And up and down the country road they made the poor men skip.
Some didn't mind (like Traddles), but the most (like Mr. Dean)
Were sorry that they'd ever come to Blennerhaven Green.

7.

With leap-frog, "jump-the-rope" and "Copenhagen," likewise "tag,"
The eager children chase the hours—their spirits never flag.
Fair Fluffy drove a four-in-hand, but in the games with kisses.
Although she seemed to lure the men—
the men made nought but misses.

8.

Aunt Mary watched the merry sport, but like most ancient dames
She thought it wise to take no part in any of the games.
Now when the afternoon was spent, the men all went away!
But every child declared he'd had bulliest kind of day.
